Oak Lawn Chapter Of Aglow International Will Hold Meeting

The Oak Lawn Chapter of Aglow International will meet on Thursday, Jan. 11th, at Mama Luigi's Restaurant, 7500 S. Harlem Ave., in Bridgeview. Dinner Tickets are $13 and are available at 6:30 p.m. at the door. Dinner is served promptly at 7 p.m. Reservations are required by Jan. 8th.

Guest speaker will be Pastor Ken Bonner Jr. who returns as the January speaker, having spoken for this lighthouse a few years ago. He is a RHEMA graduate. Pastor Ken moved to Chicago in 1998 when his dad died, to assume the responsibilities of his father, at the Christian Fellowship Church. Later his sister Pam Kacys joined him and she now co-pastors with him.

Bonner is married, has three children and was an attorney. He also served as an advisor for this lighthouse for several years. His special desire is to help people overcome hardships, depression and hurt by receiving God's blessings.

Bring a friend to be uplifted and encouraged. For additional information and to make reservations, call June at (708) 424-1656.

Free Health Screenings

The Oak Lawn Community Partnership will hold free health screenings at the Oak Lawn Public Library, 5300 W. 95th St., on Wednesday, Jan. 10th from 10 to 11:30 a.m. Blood pressure screenings will be performed by personnel from the Oak Lawn Fire Dept. Free hearing tests will be given by audiologists from Advocate Christ Medical Center, as a special screening offered this month only.

For information, call the library at (708) 422-4990.

Students in grades three and up are invited to bring their own set of Yu-Gi-Oh cards to play with others. No registration is required. The event will take place in the lower level meeting room.

For information, call the Youth Services Department at (708) 422-4990.

Lawsuit Is Dismissed

Judge Blanche M. Manning of the U.S. District Court dismissed a complaint brought against the Village of Oak Lawn by Michael Walsh.

Walsh, a former village trustee who also presided over traffic court and code violations from 2000 to 2005, claimed that current Mayor Dave Heilmann had Walsh removed from his job and violated his first amendment right. Walsh backed Heilmann's opponent in the 2005 election.

However, Mayor Dave Heilmann reportedly said that Walsh was fired from his part-time job because of his performance, stating that Walsh did not collect enough in fines and he was getting a pension that he was not entitled to. It was stated that Walsh worked approximately 100 hours a year and that a person must work 600 hours to be eligible for a pension.

According to the court ruling, an administrative hearing officer is appointed by the currently elected mayor. It is assumed that the officer and the mayor would share similar views on how to enforce the rules.

Shepard Reading Contest Winners

Shepard High School announced the winners of the fall semester Read and Write to Win contest, which offered rewards to students to write book reviews on their own time.

School officials have sponsored a number of activities in recent years outside of customary classroom curricula to promote reading, writing and the arts. Examples include an all-school book each semester, a new ACT preparation program for juniors, and a literature and arts festival. District 218 also has instituted a Writing Across the Curriculum project to boost reading abilities in all academic areas.

Students who won prizes in the Read and Write to Win competition included:

Alysha Wilson (grand prize/iPod); wrote three book reviews and an original poem, plus six drawings based on books she read); Sarah Salcik (second place/$50 gift card to Borders; wrote seven original poems based on books she read); and Quasba James (third place/$25 gift cards to Borders and Hollywood Park; nine book reviews).

Also, Ashia Stevens and Asla Stevens (fourth place/$25 gift card to Borders; five book reviews each); and, Scott Brazzale, Jacqueline Brefczynski, Karen Hall, Danaya Harper, Walter Hoskins, Natalie Lee, Jasmine Lesane, Jeff Littleton, Vlor Lumani, Lawrence Prentice, Chiquita White, and Eric Zamara (fifth place/gift cards to local restaurant).

What Makes A Hero?

You don't have to save a life to be a hero to someone. The American Red Cross of Greater Chicago is calling on Chicagoland residents to nominate people who inspire them for the 2007 Red Cross Heroes Breakfast to be held on April 10th at the Fairmont, Chicago. Recognize someone that inspires you - and hurry - the deadline for nominations is Jan. 31st.

The American Red Cross of Greater Chicago believes outstanding people who present endless valor, compassion and humanity toward their community should be honored to the fullest, and we need the help of local residents in recognizing them.

"We have many heroes among us. Their courage and good deeds solidify the mission of the Red Cross and help us carry it out," said Fran Maher, chief executive officer of the American Red Cross of Greater Chicago. "The Heroes Breakfast is our way of honoring these exceptional individuals who, in addition to their courageous response efforts, inspire others to impact good will on their community."

The American Red Cross of Greater Chicago will honor people who have demonstrated outstanding community service in nine categories:

Citizenship: An individual who displayed leadership and commitment to our community.

Community Impact: An individual who made a positive difference in our community.

Disaster Response: An individual who exhibited heroic efforts in response to a natural disaster, assisting victims in an emergency situation with financial or social service assistance.

EMS: A professional emergency medical service provider who exhibited heroic efforts as a paramedic, first responder giving CPR, or as an emergency medical service provider.

Firefighter: A firefighter who acted above and beyond the call of duty.

Good Samaritan: Someone who acted selflessly in helping another in need.

Good Samaritan (youth): A youth (under age 21) who acted selflessly in helping another in need.

Law Enforcement: Law enforcement personnel who acted above and beyond the call of duty.

Military: Active, retired or reserve personnel who acted above and beyond the call of duty.

Candidates must live or work in one of the seven counties that the American Red Cross of Greater Chicago serves (Cook, DuPage, Kane, Kendall, Lake, McHenry or Will) and their heroic act must have taken place within the last twelve months.

Self-nominations are not permitted and all nominations will be subject to further verification and validation. The American Red Cross of Greater Chicago must receive nominations by Jan. 31st to be eligible and will notify winners by Feb. 28th.

Completed nomination forms can be mailed to ARCGC Heroes, 2200 W. Harrison, Chicago, IL 60612, or faxed to (312) 729-6305. Nomination forms can also be submitted online at www.chicagoredcross.org

Sheriff's Sex Offender Unit Receives First-Ever

National Recognition Award

The Cook County Sheriff's Office recently received national recognition from a Washington-based child protection agency for the department's efforts to protect children in Cook County from sex offenders and online predators.

The National Law Center for Children and Family Services awarded its first ever Child Defender of the Month award to the Cook County Sheriff's Police Sex Offender Unit. NLC Executive Director Richard Whidden presented the award to Sheriff Tom Dart in downtown Chicago on Dec. 19.

Whidden said the Cook County Sheriff's Office was selected to receive the NLC's first ever Child Defender of the Month Award in recognition of the unit's 400th arrest of child sex offenders.

"Law enforcement works very hard across the nation to protect children and the National Law Center is proud to recognize these dedicated servants with this award," Whidden said. "We want to thank the administration and officers of the Cook County Sheriff's Police Sex Offender Unit for their hard work keeping their community safe."

Sheriff Tom Dart said the award is an important recognition for the department.

"The Sheriff's Police Department is working day in and day out to help protect children in our county from sex offenders and online predators," Dart said. "This award not only reinforces our efforts, but provides national recognition for what we are doing for children."

Orr Issues First Marriage License Of 2007

Jan. 2nd marked the 17th consecutive year that Cook County Clerk David Orr married the couple that obtained the first marriage license issued in the new year.

David Garcia, 22, and Rosalinda Gonzalez, also 22, received the first marriage license of 2007 and were married by Clerk Orr in the traditional first marriage ceremony. The newlyweds reside in Virginia but have relatives who live in Chicago.

Orr is the only county clerk in Illinois with the authority to perform marriages. He asked a judge to waive the standard 24-hour waiting period so he could conduct the ceremony that morning.

The Clerk's office paid the couple's license fee and is also giving the newlyweds donated gift certificates redeemable for a show at Steppenwolf Theatre, dinner at a Lettuce Entertain You restaurant, and a weekend stay at a Chicago Hilton Hotel.

The Clerk's office issues all marriage licenses in Chicago and suburban Cook County. The office issued 35,114 in 2006; 36,439 in 2005; 36,491 in 2004; and 37,882 in 2003.

Put Away Holiday Decorations Safely

Now that the holidays are over, take down your decorations and start the New Year safely, advises the National Fire Protection Association (NFPA) and Underwriters Laboratories Inc. (UL), the not-for-profit product safety testing organization.

According to the NFPA, 20 percent of home fires attributed to Christmas trees occur in January. "Christmas trees can be a significant fuel source if a fire occurs in your home," said Lorraine Carli, NFPA assistant vice president of communications. "Dried-out trees burn easily and should not be left in a garage or placed against the house. We recommend you remove your tree from the home and dispose of it properly as soon as your Christmas celebration ends."

Carlo also reminds you that Christmas trees aren't the only holiday decorations that need prompt attention after the holidays.

"Leaving your decorations out for several months or even all year not only aggravates your neighbors," Carli said, "but it also leaves the wires exposed to rain, snow, cold, the sun, squirrels and bird longer than intended by the safety standards. Many people don't realize that holiday lights should only be up for a limited time. The safety standards are developed anticipating a maximum of 90 days of use per year because these decorations are considered seasonal. If you leave decorations out any longer, the resulting damage could cause an electrical shock or a fire hazard."

As you unplug and store your lights - whether indoors or outdoors - remember the safety precautions you take now can prevent hazards from occurring next season.

Following is a checklist of safety tips that are not only helpful to stay safe as you take down your holiday decorations, but are useful all year-around.

When using electrical toys or appliances for the first time, carefully read and follow all instructions in the manufacturer's use and care booklet. Make sure electrical toys and appliances have the UL Mark.

Use the gripping area provided on the plugs to unplug electric decorations. Don't pull plugs from electrical outlets by the cord. Yanking or tugging on the cord can damage the cord's wire and insulation and could lead to an electrical shock or fire.

When putting away electrical light strings, take time to inspect for flaws. Check each light set for broken or cracked sockets, frayed or bare wires and loose connections.

Dispose of worn or broken light sets and replace them. Do not place a faulty set of lights back into the storage box for next year's use. Store electrical decorations away from children and pets to ensure that cords and wires are not damaged in storage.

Store electrical decorations in a dry place where they can not be damaged by water or dampness.

To keep from having a tangled mess of lights next year, be sure to pack them appropriately. When preparing your holiday lights for storage, you can purchase a holiday light storage reel, or create your own storage systems. For example, wrap the lights around an empty paper tube or a cardboard square, or wrap each set of lights and put them in individual plastic bags.

For more post-holiday safety tips, to download footage of how quickly a dry Christmas tree incinerates or for photographs related to holiday decoration safety, go to <http://www.ul.com/newsroom> or <http://www.nfpa.org>.

Prevent The Criminalization Of Canines

The ASPCA® (The American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals®) applauded the state of Illinois in its pursuit of justice toward all—including our canine companions. On Jan. 1, Illinois became the first state in the nation to crack down on potentially dangerous and vicious dogs owned by convicted felons, when Public Act 94-0818 took effect.

"We and the entire animal-loving community are extremely grateful to Rep. Jerry Mitchell and Sen. William Haine for sponsoring this extremely important public safety bill," said Ed Sayres, president and CEO of the ASPCA. "Gang members, who are often legally prohibited from owning armed weapons, frequently use dogs as weapons to intimidate community members. This innovative act was designed to make our communities safer, and is a major step forward in correctly administering and regulating 'dangerous dog' laws. I commend these far-sighted lawmakers for this act of public service."

Public Act 94-0818 will make it a Class A misdemeanor for a person convicted of a felony to own, possess, have custody of or reside in a residence with, an un-spayed or un-neutered dog older than 12 weeks of age, or any dog deemed "vicious" under the Illinois Animal Control Act. Further, any dog owned, possessed by, or in the custody of a person convicted of one of the listed felonies, must be micro chipped for permanent identification.

Research has shown that sterilized animals are less likely to behave aggressively, bite or be involved in fatal attacks. The illegal blood sport of dog fighting involves intact dogs. According to Karen Delise, author of Fatal Dog Attacks, there were 28 fatal dog attacks in the United States in 2005—and 90 percent of the dogs involved in fatal attacks were not spayed or neutered. Additionally, a 2002 Texas Severe Animal Attack Survey revealed that 81 percent of the dogs involved in severe attacks on people were not spayed or neutered.

Investing In Action Program

Edward Jones investment representative Janet H. O'Brien of Palos Park is hosting a free broadcast presentation titled "Perception vs. Reality: How to Stay Focused on What Matters" at 10:30 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. on Tuesday, Jan. 9th at 8101 W. 123rd St. in Palos Park.

It's easy to be influenced by news coverage regarding the war, economy, deficit, oil or trade. But these short-term news events should not cause investors to alter their long-term investment strategy.

Join Edward Jones Chief Market Strategist Alan Skrainka and special guest former Secretary of Defense William Cohen as they help put these news events and their potential impact into perspective.

This interactive event is presented at select Edward Jones branch offices nationwide via the firm's private video network.

To reserve a seat or for more information about the Tuesday, Jan. 9th program, call O'Brien at (708) 923-6678. If you are unable to attend, additional viewing opportunities are available.

The Big Fence

The U.S. is going to build a big, new 700-mile-long fence along its southern boundary with Mexico. It makes me wonder how the Mexican-American Fence will differ from the China Wall, the Berlin Wall, the Iron Curtain, the Moinot Line, and the Israeli-Palestinian Wall.

"Good fences make good neighbors," Robert Frost's neighbor said.

I just want to know where they are going to put the gates, how close together, whose going to watch the fence, whether the fence will be costly or whether Congress is just going to "Charge it."

Statement From Gov. Blagojevich On The Passing Of President Gerald Ford

"President Ford ascended to the country's highest office during a very difficult and divisive time in our nation's history. With honesty and integrity, President Ford emphasized cooperation and helped restore the public's confidence in its government.

"My wife Patti and I extend our deepest sympathy to the Ford family. All of America will mourn the loss of a great public servant."

All Points Southwest

By THOMAS E. GAVIN

Happy New Year to each of our readers and friends! As we reflect upon the joys and disappointments of last year we are certain to remember that we, as Americans, have much for which to be thankful. All Points respectfully requests that each of us consider the work and services that our elected officials and their employees (many of them our neighbors) provide for us each day. Municipal, Township, City, State and National elected officials continually contribute in making America what it is today. Additionally, let us not forget our men and women in the United States Armed Forces. Because of their unselfish commitment and dedication, we are able to enjoy our daily lives, safe in the knowledge that our military personnel are protecting our right to enjoy a lifestyle of our choosing, not one that would be forced upon us by a rival nation. Our humble thanks.

Thankfully the founding fathers of this great nation formulated plans including the right and privilege for each of us to reasonably agree or disagree with our elected leaders. That right is our ability to elect our leaders. In large measure our system of electing individuals to serve us in public office is a testimonial and legacy to be appreciated and preserved.

Now that 2007 is upon us, we would encourage readers to cultivate an interest in what is taking place in their respective grammar, high school, and community college districts. Make the time to learn how your tax money is being used and how productive are the results relative to students and educators. A progressive, effective community body deserves accountability.

Looking back upon 2006, we could site numerous bills and legislative initiatives which are notable in their own right. However, one of the most significant pieces of legislation enacted was Senate Bill 1268, increasing the minimum wage to $7.50 per hour in July 2007 and to $8.25 an hour by 2010. Senate Bill 1268, co-sponsored by State Rep. Marlow Colvin (D-Chicago) and Larry McKeon (D-Chicago) and State Sen. Kimberly Lightford (D-Maywood) will potentially impact 647,000 workers in Illinois.

Under the terms of the legislation, the state's minimum wage will rise by $1 to $7.50 per hour beginning July 1, 2007. The legislation further includes annual increases for three years: to $7.75 in July 2008, $8 in July 2009, and $8.25 in 2010. A full time minimum wage worker will see their annual income increase from $13,520 to $15,600 per year. By 2010, the yearly income for a full time minimum wage earner will be $17,160.

This is the second time in Gov. Blagojevich's administration that he has signed legislation raising the minimum wage. The first increase in 2003 was from $5.15 an hour to $6.50 an hour. When the final rate of $8.25 per hour takes effect in 2010, Illinois will have increased pay for minimum wage workers by $3.10 per hour, or 60 percent. This makes Illinois a national leader in wages for workers.

In response to a new study that asserts both scientific justification and a competitive role for the U.S. in building a modified Rare Isotope Accelerator (RIA), U.S. Rep. Judy Biggert (R-IL-13th) and Sen. Dick Durbin (D-IL) are urging the Bush Administration to accelerate construction of the project.

Argonne National Laboratory in Darien, Illinois and Michigan State University in East Lansing, Michigan are the two likely builders for the project, estimated to cost $500 to $600 million. A U.S. rare isotope research facility will be the world's most powerful research facility dedicated to the production and exploration of new rare isotopes that are not found naturally on Earth. It will enable advancements in nuclear physics, astrophysics, biology, medicine, food safety, and environmental protection. We'll keep our eyes on this project.

All Points has learned that Orland Township is offering medical emergency ID bracelets to residents of Orland Hills, Orland Park, the Western half of Tinley Park, and the Unincorporated area of Orland Township. Priced at only $8 for stainless steel and $10 for gold plated bracelets, this is an excellent promotion to ensure the good health and medical histories of area residents. The purpose of the Emergency ID Bracelet program is to make critical information available to an emergency responder.

For more information on this worthwhile program, call Sue Bienias, Health Service Coordinator for Orland Township, at (708) 403-4222.

Governors State University's Graduate Program in Reading is sponsoring The Literacy Zone, a reading tutorial program for students in grades 6 through 12.

"This is a one-to-one program that brings students experiencing reading problems together with teachers who have the skills to help them," stated Dr. Mary Hession, Coordinator of the Literacy Zone.

Students meet on campus with certified, experienced teachers enrolled in the Master of Arts Reading Program at GSU. Sessions are on Tuesdays from 4:45 to 6:30 p.m. from Jan. 23rd through April 10th. Enrollment is limited. There is a $100 registration fee. However, $30 is refunded to the parents/guardians of those students who complete the program with good attendance and return all Literacy Zone materials. Transportation is not provided.

For more information, call (708) 534-4129 or email m-hession@govst.edu.

South Suburban College's Human Services program is hosting an Open House on Tuesday, Jan. 9th, from 6 to 7:30 p.m., in the Heritage Room (located on the first floor of the main campus). The Open House will provide information about the college's unique program that prepares graduates for career opportunities working with individuals, families, groups, and communities to enhance social functioning and improve the quality of life for others. SSC is showcasing a revised state-of-the-art curriculum that was approved by the Illinois Community College Board earlier this year.

For more information about the Human Services Program at SSC, contact Ms. Wise at (708) 596-2000, ext. 2277 or e-mail ywise@southsuburban-college.edu. Registration is now in progress for spring semester; classes begin Tuesday, Jan. 16th. Call (708) 210-5718 for registration information or visit www.SouthSuburbanCollege.edu. South Suburban College is located at 15800 S. State St., South Holland, IL.

CAGW Names Sen. Tom

Harkin Porker Of The Month

Last week, Citizens Against Government Waste (CAGW) named Sen. Tom Harkin (D-Iowa) Porker of the Month for proudly proclaiming himself to be an unabashed supporter of earmarks.

On Nov. 25, The New York Times published a story on incoming Appropriations subcommittee chairs, or "Cardinals." The article quoted Sen. Harkin as saying, "I happen to be a supporter of earmarks, unabashedly. But I don't call them earmarks. It is 'Congressional directed spending.'"

This is a prime example of Washington double-speak because all federal spending is directed by Congress. Sen. Harkin implies that Congress can spend money however it wants and that earmarking is a normal part of the budget process. In reality, earmarking is a secretive, corrupting and wasteful practice that bypasses normal budget procedures. That is why most earmarks are properly called "pork." Furthermore, the proliferation and widespread abuse of earmarks is a relatively recent phenomenon.

The Times also noted Sen. Harkin's habit of earmarking millions of dollars in defense spending for breast cancer research. He responded, "Now, was that bad?" If you left it to the Defense Department, they never would have done it."

The reason the Defense Department does not conduct research on its own accord is that such spending, along with thousands of other pork-barrel projects costing nearly $15 billion last year, falls outside its national security mission. In fiscal 2005, the federal government spent $560.1 million on breast cancer research through the National Cancer Institute. If Sen. Harkin wants more funding for breast cancer research, his proposal should be debated, authorized, and integrated into the federal government's existing research framework; not sneaked into an unrelated bill. The duplication of efforts across different departments and agencies weakens the government's overall approach to all research.

Sen. Harkin, set to chair the Labor, Health and Human Services, Education and Related Agencies Appropriations Subcommittee in the 110th Congress, has helped to pull in $275,503,642 in pork for his state since 2000, including $1,000,000 for development of an American River Museum in Dubuque (2002) and $250,000 for the National Cattle Congress in Waterloo (2006).

A recently-announced, year-long joint resolution will apparently stave off the earmarks in the nine unfinished appropriations bills for fiscal 2007. Also, a "moratorium" on earmarks is in place until budget reforms are passed. For defending earmarking in the face of widespread agreement over its defects, for bringing home hundreds of millions of dollars in pork-barrel spending, and for muddying the priorities of federal departments, CAGW names Sen. Tom Harkin its Porker of the Month for December 2006.

The Citizens Against Government Waste is the nation's largest nonpartisan, nonprofit organization dedicated to eliminating waste, fraud, abuse, and mismanagement in government. Porker of the Month is a dubious honor given to lawmakers, government officials, and political candidates who have shown a blatant disregard for the interests of taxpayers.

New Law Allows Consumers To Reduce Risk Of Identity Theft

Illinois consumers will have access to a powerful new tool to stop identity thieves from opening new credit in their names.

Attorney General Lisa Madigan recently joined with consumer advocates to remind Illinoisans that under a law that took effect on Jan. 1st, all Illinois residents will be able to place a "security freeze" on their credit reports. A security freeze prohibits the credit bureaus from releasing a credit report without the consumer's permission, making it much harder for imposters to obtain a credit card or open a credit line in the consumer's name.

To take advantage of this new law and place a security freeze, consumers must make a written request to each of the three major credit bureaus - TransUnion, Equifax and Experian. Once the freeze is in place, only the consumer can authorize access to his or her credit report, using a personal identification number provided by the bureaus to lift the freeze temporarily.

Madigan and consumer advocates believe this tool will reduce the incidence of identity theft in Illinois, which in 2005 ranked 10th in the nation for identity theft complaints filed with the Federal Trade Commission.

Credit bureaus have up to three days to "thaw" a freeze once a consumer authorizes them to do so. Although a freeze may limit a consumer's access to instant credit, most delays can be avoided by simply planning ahead.

For example, if consumers know they will be shopping for credit on a Saturday or Sunday, they can call the bureaus during the week to have the freeze temporarily lifted for the weekend. Consumers also can authorize their credit reports to be released to a specific store or creditor, such as an automobile dealership.

The cost for most Illinois consumers to place, temporarily lift, or permanently remove the freeze is $10 for each transaction at each credit bureau. There is no cost for victims of identity theft. Persons 65 and older can place or remove a freeze for free, but they may have to pay a $10 fee to lift it temporarily.

On a related note, Madigan also announced her plans to introduce a bill in the upcoming legislative session to establish in her office an Identity Theft and Privacy Protection Unit. The unit, which Madigan described as an outgrowth of her office's year-old Identity Theft Hotline and Identity Theft Complaint Unit, will be dedicated to promoting and protecting the privacy rights of Illinois consumers. Unit staff will assist victims of identity theft, educate the public on privacy issues, coordinate with local law enforcement on identity theft investigations, and advise businesses and governmental agencies on how best to safeguard the personal information that they collect.

For more information on how to request and use a security freeze, Madigan urged consumers to visit her office's Web site at <http://www.illinoisattorneygeneral.gov/consumers/hotline.html>. Consumers also can contact Attorney General Madigan's Identity Theft Hotline at 1(866) 999-5630, TTY 1(877) 844-5461.

Provides Affordable Utility Reconnection

As part of Governor Rod R. Blagojevich's Keep Warm Illinois campaign, officials from his administration announced the start of the Good Samaritan Initiative for the 2006-2007 winter season. The initiative provides more affordable reconnection terms to Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) recipients who have had their utilities services disconnected. Nicor Gas, Peoples Energy, and Ameren have agreed to again participate in the Good Samaritan Initiative for the fourth consecutive year. For information on energy assistance or conservation tips, families can visit the Keep Warm Illinois website at www.KeepWarmIllinois.gov or call the toll-free Keep Warm Illinois hotline at 1 (877) 411-WARM.

The Good Samaritan Initiative will help disconnected low-income customers by reducing the amount that the utility companies require to restore service. LIHEAP beneficiaries, whose outstanding balances are too high to be covered by a LIHEAP grant alone but less than $3,000, will need to pay only $250 or 20 percent of the remaining balance, whichever is less, to have their service restored. Customers must also set up payment plans with their utilities for the remainder of their balance.

Illinois citizens are encouraged to contribute to the Good Samaritan Trust Fund. The fund, which was established by law in 2003, allows Illinois residents and businesses to voluntarily contribute money toward the heating bills of low-income families. Contributions will benefit low-income residents of the country from which funds were donated and are tax deductible. To voluntarily contribute to the Good Samaritan Energy Trust Fund, send tax-deductible donations to the Good Samaritan Trust Fund, P.O. Box 19154, Springfield, IL 62794.

LIHEAP is a state- and federally-funded energy assistance program that assists households with incomes of up to 150 percent of the federal poverty level. A single-person household can qualify with a monthly income of up to $1,225, a two-person household up to $1,650, and a family of four can earn up to $2,500. LIHEAP energy grant applications are processed through a network of 35 local Administering Agencies around the state. The winter heating program is expected to serve 300,000 households this winter with an estimated $150 million in state and federal funding. For a complete listing of LIHEAP's local administering agencies and additional information about the grant program, go to www.liheapillinois.com, or call the toll-free Keep Warm Illinois hotline at 1 (877) 411-WARM.

Governor Blagojevich launched the Keep Warm Illinois campaign and website in October to help all Illinoisans stay warm, healthy and safe this winter. The campaign brings state agencies together to coordinate efforts in preparing communities across the state for high home heating costs this winter. The Keep Warm Illinois website www.KeepWarmIllinois.gov offers various no-cost and low-cost energy saving tips, a web-based tool to conduct a home energy audit, links to energy assistance programs and other resources. In addition, the Keep Warm Illinois hotline is another resource for Illinois residents to learn how to save energy and get energy assistance.

Nature Works Cafe

"Nature Works Café" is a free book discussion group for adults that explores the many voices of nature writers. Here you can discuss classics, non-fiction and fiction alike, contemporary and anything else that suits your interests. "Nature Works Café" will hold its next meeting on Thursday, Jan. 11th at 7 p.m. at Plum Creek Nature Center in Beecher.

The selection to be discussed at the program is Under the Sea Wind by Rachel Carson. Participants should read the book beforehand and bring a copy to the program.

The nature center is fully accessible.

For more information, call (815) 727-8700.

Plum Creek Nature Center is located in Goodenow Grove Forest Preserve, 1.25 miles east of the intersection of Routes 1 and 394 on Goodenow Rd., south of Crete.

Adult Learner Information Sessions

If you're an adult considering college, but concerned how you'll fit in classes around your family, job and other responsibilities, Moraine Valley can help.

Moraine Valley offers daytime, evening, weekend, one-day-a-week, directed study and short-term classes that can be planned around even the busiest schedules. The college's neighborhood extension sites may offer classes that are even closer to home than its main campus. Still a tight fit for your schedule? Moraine Valley also offers classes on DVD, and online classes that can help you earn credit from the comfort of your own home, or fast-track degree programs that allow you to earn a degree in as little as 18 months.

Moraine Valley offers adult information sessions throughout the spring semester. Sessions will be held on the following Wednesdays at 6 p.m. in Moraine Room 4 located on the second floor of the College Center on campus, 9000 W. College Parkway in Palos Hills: Jan. 10th and 17th, Feb. 21st, March 21st, April 18th and May 23rd.

The audience for these sessions will include a combination of returning adults who have never stepped foot onto a college campus, adults who are in a career transition and adults who have taken classes at the college but have not pursued a degree. These events are free to the public and offered for those who are interested in getting a sense of the college scene before committing to college coursework.

During the sessions, college staff will discuss details about the college and the benefits of a college education. Career programs and degrees are explained and contrasted in detail, as well as programs and resources offered to low-income adults, displaced workers, or women returning to the workplace. The information sessions will conclude with a question-and-answer session and individual counseling for those who request it. Opportunities to apply for admission also are available. Refreshments will be served.

Student success is the top priority at Moraine Valley, and the college offers many means to that end. The college houses a Children's Learning Center for students with young children, and the small class sizes and highly qualified faculty and staff will ensure that students get the attention they need.

For more information, call Moraine Valley's Admissions Office at (708) 974-5355 or e-mail admissions@morainevalley.edu.

Adult Skiing Program

"Ski the Dunes," a two-day adult skiing outing to the Indiana Dunes, will be on Saturday, Feb. 10th at 9 a.m. through Sunday, Feb. 11th at 12:30 p.m. Registration by Jan. 9th and a fee are required.

Kick the winter blues with a trip to the beautiful Indiana Dunes National Lakeshore. Join us for a 4.6-mile cross-country ski trip through the Cowles Bog Trail, one of the most spectacular trails in the national preserve. The trail winds up and over dunes as it brings you down to the shores of Lake Michigan. We will view the shelf ice that forms on Lake Michigan as well as any wildlife we may see along the way.

After a day of skiing, we will stay the night at the Spring House Inn, a quaint bed and breakfast nestled in a wooded setting overlooking a creek. On Sunday morning you will have an opportunity to ski a shorter trail or just sleep in and enjoy breakfast before returning to Will County.

Bring a sack lunch for the trail on Saturday. Cross-country skis will be provided.

We will depart from the Environmental Learning Center in Mokena at 9 a.m. on Feb. 10th and return to the Center at 12:30 p.m. on Feb. 11th.

The cost for the outing is $160 per couple and $130 per single.

Registrants will receive directions to the Environmental Learning Center, which is open by permit only.

The registration deadline is Jan. 9th. To register, call (815) 727-8700.

Lily Society Announces Education Series

The Wisconsin Illinois Lily Society program starts its series of four free, interactive public slide/show lectures at 2 p.m. on Sunday Jan. 14, as part of its free public education program this Spring at the Chicago Botanic Garden. All four talks open to the public, will emphasize audience participation, and will be held in the Garden's new Regenstein Center.

The first slide show/talk, on Sunday, Jan. 14, is "Companion Plants For Lilies" presented by well-known author Pam Duthic. She is president of The Gifted Gardener, a well-known garden design firm, president of the international Landscape Design Association, long-time instructor at the Chicago Botanic Garden, author of many books on gardening and garden design, and speaks widely throughout the Chicago area on these subjects.

The second slide show/lecture is at 2 p.m. on Sunday, Feb. 11. Carolyn Ulrich, will present a slide show lecture on "Garden Design Through the Ages." Well-known speaker and author, Ulrich is editor of Chicago Gardening Magazine, and has won several Garden Writers Association Quill and Trowel awards for outstanding achievement. Mrs. Ulrich's articles on gardens and gardening have appeared in numerous regional and national gardening magazines, and she has led many garden tours throughout Europe.

Those attending will learn the highlights of how gardens have evolved over the ages, as gardeners have searched for their own bits of paradise on earth.

Winter Wedding Faire

The Hilton Oak Lawn, 9333 S. Cicero Ave., will host a Winter Wedding Faire and Fashion Show on Thursday, Jan. 4th. Doors open at 5:30. The fashion show begins at 8 p.m.

House of Brides will be featuring a fabulous wedding gown collection. Black Tie Formalwear will be showing their latest formalwear attire. Music by professional DJ service.

Prospective brides are encouraged to come early and visit with more than 40 exhibitors who can help plan the perfect wedding. Register for fabulous door prizes; enjoy cheese and champagne when you take a tour of the hotel's suites and Tower Room. Every bride touring the suites receives a chance to win an overnight in the Jacuzzi Suite. Special discounts are available to show attendees. Book any one of the hotel's three Honeymoon Packages the evening of the Bridal Show to receive a 20% discount.

Before the show visit with florists, hair stylists, makeup artists, formalwear experts, bakeries, photographers, DJs, and view the beautiful limousines on display.

Fabulous door prizes will be raffled off after the fashion show. Winners must be present to win.

An express menu will be available in Whitney's Restaurant from 4 to 6 p.m.

Stop by the Hilton Coffee Corner, proudly brewing Starbucks Coffee. This cozy coffeehouse is tucked inside the Hilton Oak Lawn. You can now enjoy a delicious cup of freshly brewed Starbucks Coffee, the tantalizing taste of Tazo Tea and many specialty drinks.

The Hilton Gift Shoppe will be open until 7 p.m.

Call (708) 229-8850 and receive two free tickets to the show, while the supply lasts. Admission the night of the show is $5.

Call For Information

The third slide show/lecture, "How To Put Glam in Your Garden With Lilies," will be on Sunday, March 11, also at 2 p.m. It will be presented by Winnetka resident Woodruff Imberman, President of the Wisconsin Illinois Lily Society, who lectures on lilies at garden clubs throughout Illinois. Imberman is the author of numerous articles in many horticultural magazines on lilies.

Those attending will learn how to grow lilies best suited for the soil and climate in the Chicago area, and be taught simple propagation techniques.

The Lily Society's Spring bulb sale will be held starting at 1 p.m. on March 11, just before the lecture, providing audience members an opportunity to purchase unusual lily bulbs at inexpensive prices.

The final session of the series, at 2 p.m. on Sunday, April 1, will be by a panel of regional lily authorities who will answer audience questions on how to grow lilies and prepare them for shows. Those attending will learn tips from experienced lily experts on how they grow and show their favorite flower.

The mission of the Wisconsin Illinois Lily Society, an affiliate of the North American Lily Society, is to further the knowledge and propagation of true lilies.

The Field Museum is proud to present two programs celebrating the life of Martin Luther King Jr. during the MLK weekend, Jan. 13th to 15th. Visitors will have the opportunity to honor the life and times of the iconic civil rights movement leader through music and panel discussions.

Voices of Freedom: Re-igniting King's Legacy will feature the Choral Thunder and Trinity United Church of Christ Young Adult Choir. Families will bask in the powerful messages of King's movement as these choirs perform a selection of inspirational music from the era. The performers will traverse the public areas of the museum and end in James Simpson Theatre where guests will learn the significance of each piece. Voices of Freedom - Re-igniting King's Legacy will run from Saturday to Monday, Jan. 13th to 15th, at noon each day. Mike Robinson, Program Director of Gospel Radio AM 1390, will serve as emcee for the program. This performance is free with museum admission.

Lisa Brock from Columbia College will serve as the moderator for the panel discussion, Get Up, Stand Up: Music and The Black World Experience, on Saturday, Jan. 13th. The lecture will begin at 2 p.m. and panelists will include Joyce A. Joyce from Temple University and Morris Phipps from Columbia College's Center for Black Music Research. Guests will discover the vast contributions and revolutionary messages of the late Jamaican Reggae singer, Peter Tosh. Panelists will discuss the role that music played in the African-American experience, especially with regards to the African Diaspora in the U.S. and the Caribbean. The panel discussion is free with museum admission.

On Monday, Jan. 15th, general admission to The Field Museum will be waived. General admission to the museum is $12 for adults, $7 for children 4-11, seniors and students with ID. Discounts are available for Chicago residents. The Field Museum is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily. For more information, call (312) 922-9410 or visit www.fieldmuseum.org.

Wright Plus Benefit Housewalk

The 33rd annual Wright Plus Housewalk, presented by the Frank Lloyd Wright Preservation Trust, will feature interior tours of eight private residences in the Frank Lloyd Wright Historic District, the neighborhood surrounding Wright's Home and Studio in Oak Park. This event, which supports the Trust's preservation, restoration and education programs, has attracted more than 60,000 visitors from around the world since 1975.

From 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on May 19th, guests will have the opportunity to tour private homes designed by Frank Lloyd Wright and renowned contemporaries. Oak Park is home to 27 Wright structures, the largest concentration in the world, and is just a short drive from Chicago's Loop.

"It is a special year for Wright Plus because all of the homes are in the neighborhood of Wright's Home and Studio, many of which were in the neighborhood while he lived here and you really get a feel of the community at this early time in Wright's career," said Joan Mercuri, president and CEO of the Frank Lloyd Wright Preservation Trust.

The private homes open for Wright Plus 2007 are: Peter A. Beachy House (1906), Frank Lloyd Wright; Dr. William H. Copeland House (1909), Frank Lloyd Wright remodel; Joseph Dunlop House (1895); Henry G. Fiddelke; James T. Hayden House (1893); W.K. Johnson; Arthur B. Heurtley House (1902), Frank Lloyd Wright; Benjamin P. Horton House (1912); E.E. Roberts; David J. Kennedy House (1888), Patton & Fisher; T. Lyle Vette House (1905)*; William Barfield.

*New to Wright Plus. First time on since 1991.

Also open for the housewalk are Wright's Home and Studio (1889/1898), Unity Temple (1905-1908) and Wright's Robie House (1908-1910).

Tickets to this renowned event are now on sale. Simply go to wrightplus.org or call (877) 848-3559. The ticket price is $70 per Preservation Trust member (limit of 4 tickets at discounted price) and $85 per non-member.

For more information on Frank Lloyd Wright Preservation Trust programs, call (708) 848-1976 or visit wrightplus.org.

New Exhibition Opening At Field Museum

Diamonds are not just a girl's best friend, but rather everyone's favorite gem. The Field Museum will present Treasures of the Titans, a new special exhibition showcasing items once owned by famous figures from the 20th century. The exhibition opens in the Museum's Grainger Hall of Gems on Jan. 26 and runs through June 3.

The exhibit will include 30 exquisitely crafted jewels and accessories – designed for and owned by – icons from the arts, political arena, and entertainment industries. The exhibition features a stunning diamond necklace and earrings set once owned by Sophia Loren, in addition to actress Janet Leigh's beautiful ruby studded golden powder case, Elton John's commemorative world tour pin, and a striking diamond tiara which belonged to Princess Grace of Monaco.

Curated by the National Jewelry Institute, Treasures of the Titans presents objects that reflect the character and style of the people who possessed them. The Institute is a non-profit organization that preserves, researches, and exhibits fine jewelry from all over the world. The Institute hopes to educate the public while positioning jewelry as more than a collection of precious stones, but also as pieces of art. A bangle once worn by Princess Sadruddin Aga Khan (known in the fashion world as model Nina Dyer) helps support the Institute's initiative. The bracelet is comprised of two panther heads made with circular diamonds and sapphire specs, complemented with emerald eyes and an onyx rose—it is a masterpiece.

The Grainger Hall of Gems houses over 300 gems, precious and semi-precious stones, crystals, minerals specimens, and artifacts. Guests can view priceless gems such as a fist-sized piece of blue topaz and a Tiffany stained-glass window while viewing Treasures of the Titans.

The exhibit is free with general admission to The Field Museum ($12 for adults, $7 for children 4-11, seniors and students with ID). Discounts are available for Chicago residents. The Field Museum is open daily 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., with the last ticket sold at 4 p.m., and is located at 1400 S. Lake Shore Drive in Chicago. For more information, call (312) 922-9410 or visit www.fieldmuseum.org.

Make your plans to attend at least one of the outdoor shows. This is an opportunity to talk to the pros regarding equipment and tactics in the field and on the water. The seminars are free and geared for all ages.

The Tinley Park and Lockport East shows, in addition to being close to home, don't cost an arm and a leg to get in. There is plenty of free parking. The seminars are conducted by local outdoor personalities who are eager to answer any questions you might have. The kids won't get bored; special events are planned just for them.

PERSONAL COMMENT: This is a good time to mention that any items or comments appearing in this column are of my own doing and do not reflect the policies of this publication.

I try to strike a balance between hunting and fishing, and make every effort to include boating, camping, conservation, governmental actions affecting the outdoors, and include news items relating to local events.

My fishing and hunting reports are garnered from contacts deemed reliable, and my own personal observations in the field or on the water.

If you have an item you would like to see published in this column (club activities, successful trip afield with photos, comments in general, etc.) feel free to call me at (708) 448-4960.

St. Xavier Wins Tournament

Senior guard Candis Jackson scored a game-high 18 points and was named the tournament's Most Valuable Player as No. 9 St. Xavier University cruised to a convincing 83-55 victory over St. Ambrose University (Iowa) in Friday's championship game of the 2006 Christmas Tip-Off Tournament at the Shannon Center in Chicago. The Cougars improve to 15-1 overall this season with the victory and close out the month of December with a perfect 10-0 mark. In addition to Jackson, senior guard Angie Brown and junior forward Jackie Heine also represented SXU on the all-tournament squad.

Brown was the only other St. Xavier player to score in double figures on Friday posting 12 points, including three three-pointers. Sophomore forward Abiola Amure, sophomore guard Sarah Wilson and freshman forward Erin Hannemann each chipped in eight points in the winning effort. Junior forward Tara Breshock led the rebounding effort for SXU with nine rebounds, while Jackson helped lead the defensive front with a game-high four steals.

In the first half, SXU used a 16-0 run over an eight-minute stretch, which started near the 12-minute mark, to break a 9-9 tie and build a 25-9 lead. The Cougars closed out the half on a 10-5 run to take a 35-14 into halftime. The St. Xavier defense frustrated St. Ambrose offense in the first half helping to cause 18 turnovers and holding the Queen Bees to just 18 percent shooting (4-for-22) from the field. In the game, SXU scored 28 of its 83 points off of 29 SAU turnovers.

The rest of the 2006 SXU Christmas Tip-Off All-

St. Xavier (15-1 overall) takes a break from its schedule until the New Year returning to action on Tuesday, Jan. 9th with its conference opener against Olivet Nazarene University (Ill.). Game time is scheduled for 5:30 p.m. in Bourbonnais.

Musher Mania

"Musher Mania," a free, all-age family program sponsored by the Forest Preserve District of Will County, will be on Saturday, Jan. 13th from 12 noon to 4 p.m. at Monee Reservoir.

Hear the "call of the wild" at this winter dog sledding program where The Siberian Club of Greater Chicago will provide presentations on "mushing." Bring the entire family to watch these trained dogs in live demonstrations of their strength and teamwork. Pull a sled at the "Human Mushing" demo, run a snowshoe race, roast marshmallows by a fire, or have a picture taken with a sled dog. A warming room will be available with coffee, hot chocolate and snacks for sale.

The day's schedule is: 12 noon to 1 p.m.: Presentation: History of Iditarod and Basic Dog Sledding; 12 noon to 4 p.m.: Pictures taken with a sled dog and human mushing; 1:30 to 2 p.m.: Snowshoe races; 2:15 to 3:15 p.m.: Presentation: Alaska - Where Men are Men and Women Win the Iditarod.

Weather doesn't stop these dogs, so don't let it stop you from joining in. The demonstrations will take place with or without snow. (If there is no snow cover, the demonstrations will be done on sleds with wheels.) For safety reasons, please do not bring your own dog to this program.

"Musher Mania" will be held out of doors, and the ground could be snow covered. Walkways will be cleared. Monee Reservoir is located at 27341 Ridgeland Ave., west of Route 50 and south of Pauling Road, 2.0 miles south of Monee.

For more information, call (815) 727-8700.

Night Owls Program

"Night Owls," a free, all-age family program sponsored by the Forest Preserve District of Will County, will be on Friday, Jan. 19th at 7 p.m. at Plum Creek Nature Center in Beecher. Registration is required by Jan. 17th.

Owls have appeared in many a myth and legend throughout time. At "Night Owls" we will discuss some of these stories and look at the owl's role in the environment. Winter is the breeding time for owls, and we will hike through Goodenow Grove in search of these fascinating creatures. With any luck we may get to hear their distinctive call. So join us as we discover the interesting behavior of some of Will County's intriguing birds of prey.

A portion of the program will be spent outside hiking preserve trails, which are composed of gravel and natural grass. Dress for the weather.

Plum Creek Nature Center is located in Goodenow Grove Forest Preserve, 1.25 miles east of the intersection of Routes 1 and 394 on Goodenow Road in Crete Township.

For information and registration, call (815) 727-8700.

Marsupial Program

"Marsupial Magic," a free, all-age family program sponsored by the Forest Preserve District of Will County, will be on Saturday, Jan. 20th at 1 p.m. at Plum Creek Nature Center in Beecher. Registration is required by Jan. 19th.

With more than 300 species in the world, marsupials are equipped with a special fold of skin which allows mothers to carry their young while freeing their paws for other uses. At "Marsupial Magic" we will take a look at this weird but fascinating group of animals. We will make a marsupial craft and eat some snacks a marsupial would enjoy. Best of all, you will get to meet a real live member of the marsupial family and learn which marsupial lives right in Will County.

Plum Creek Nature Center is fully accessible.

Plum Creek Nature Center is located in Goodenow Grove Forest Preserve, 1.25 miles east of the intersection of Routes 1 and 394 on Goodenow Road in Crete Township.

For information and registration, call (815) 727-8700.

Moraine Valley Trustees Approve $5.25 Million Bond Sale

The Moraine Valley Board of Trustees approved the college's second bond issue Dec. 19 for $5.25 million as part of the $89 million expansion project the community approved last spring.

"This $5.25 million sale is aimed at the retail market of investors," said Robert Sterkowitz, the college's chief financial officer. "This sale give the community an opportunity to invest in Moraine Valley." Bonds will be sold in $5,000 denominations and will pay interest semiannually at rates set on the sale date of Dec. 19, based on prevailing municipal market interest rates.

Trustees approved the first sale of $10 million at their November meeting and are expected to approve the final issuance of $73.75 million in late summer or early fall of 2007. The Moody's bond rating of Aa1 and the tax rate of 5.5 cents per $100 of equalized assessed valuation remains the same as it did for the first sale. The first sale will fund architectural work and preliminary construction planning costs, and the second and third phases will fund the construction and renovation projects.

The Aa1 rating, according to Moody's, "reflects the district's substantial and economically diverse tax base; consistently sound financial operations supported by healthy reserves; and a favorable debt profile." Moody's also noted that it anticipates the district's "strong financial position to continue for the foreseeable future given its historically conservative budgeting practices...and strong management team."

Because of the top rating and favorable market conditions, Moraine Valley was able to lower the tax rate to 5.5 cents per $100 of equalized assessed valuation. An owner of a home valued at $200,000, for example, can expect to pay an additional $50 in taxes in 2007. During the referendum campaign last spring, college officials conservatively estimated the tax rate at 7.65 cents per $100 equalized assessed valuation, or about a $59 increase.

"We are pleased that we can continue to maintain a lower tax rate than we had estimated last March," said Sandra S. Wagner, board chairman. "Once again our high bond rating and subsequent lower tax rate because of our fiscal accountability demonstrates the good stewardship the college has sustained over the years."

Voters approved the referendum on March 21 that will allow the college to construct a science building, an instructional and job training center on campus and establish an education center in the southwest area of the district. Additionally, bond funds will pay for renovation of the college's original buildings and technology upgrades.

Constance Hardy Receives Fellowship

Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich announced recently that Constance J. Hardy, M.S.N., assistant professorial lecturer and director of graduate practicum placement in Saint Xavier University's School of Nursing, is among 15 nurse educators in Illinois to receive $10,000 fellowship grants to help them continue teaching future generations of nurses.

Hardy is in her third year of teaching at Saint Xavier. She is currently enrolled in a doctoral program at Rush University's College of Nursing. She will put the grant toward completion of her degree and continuing education in her teaching expertise.

SXU School of Nursing Dean Anne R. Bavier said Hardy has an exceptional clinical and administrative background for guiding future nurses.

Hardy has 30 years of progressive nursing leadership experience as a manager, director and administrative director in community hospitals. She has previously served as administrative director of Women and Children's Services at Edward Hospital & Health Services in Naperville, Ill., director of Maternal Child Nursing at Palos Community Hospital in Palos Heights, Ill., and director of Maternal Child Nursing at LaGrange Memorial Hospital in LaGrange, Ill.

The fellows, who were chosen by the Illinois Board of Higher Education from among 46 nominees, are recognized as some of the top nursing faculty in the state. The fellowship program is part of the governor's commitment to improve health care for state residents by increasing the number of nurse educators.

Sheriff Appoints New Chiefs

Cook County Sheriff Thomas J. Dart (center) recently appointed two career officers to the positions of Chief and First Deputy Chief of the Sheriff's Police Department.

William McHenry (right), who has been with the Cook County Sheriff's Police since 1981 and most recently served as the First Deputy Chief, is the first African-American to serve as Chief of the Sheriff's Police.

First Deputy Chief John Palcu (left) has been with the Sheriff's Police since 1977 and most recently acted as Commander of the South Suburban Major Crimes Task Force.

"These two veteran officers have nearly 60 years of experience between them and will continue to be valuable assets to our department," Sheriff Dart said. "They will make a great team to lead our efforts to crack down on the spread of gangs and drugs in suburban Cook County."

Improve Access To Unemployment Benefits

In an effort to improve service, delivery and convenience to those qualified for unemployment insurance benefits in Illinois, the Illinois Department of Employment Security (IDES) announced that Illinois residents will have the option of receiving their regular unemployment insurance benefit payments via IDES-issued debit cards. This announcement signals that Illinois now offers three choices for unemployment benefits - via standard unemployment checks, direct deposit and debit cards.

According to a recent study by the American Bankers Association, credit and debit cards have surpassed cash as the most popular way to buy items at the checkout line. One out of three purchases is now made with debit cards, compared with one in five purchases four years ago.

In order to utilize the debit card option, the claimant will have to complete a Debit Card Authorization form and either submit it to their IDES local office or mail it to the IDES Accounting and Reporting Unit, P.O. Box 5541, Chicago, IL 60680. The form is available at IDES local office and can also be found on the internet at www.ides.state.il.us. Once a Debit Card Authorization form is submitted to IDES, it will take approximately 10 business days to receive the card.

The prepaid debit card program is being administered jointly by IDES and Illinois National Bank (INB). Once a prepaid debit card is issued, the claimant will receive correspondence that includes detailed information regarding fees, terms and conditions and how to activate the card, what to do in the event of a lost or stolen card, etc.

The prepaid card does not contain a credit feature or the ability to defer payment. Claimants can only spend the benefit amount that has been applied to the card by IDES. The debit card may be used at merchants to make purchases or to withdraw cash. Each time an individual successfully certifies for benefits, IDES automatically adds money to the card.

Since April, unemployment insurance benefit payees who have bank accounts have been able to opt for direct deposit services by stopping by their local IDES office, filling out a form and submitting it along with a voided check. The form can also be found on the internet at http://www.ides.state.il.us/pdf/forms/direct_deposit/authorization.pdf.

The Illinois Department of Employment Security administers federally-funded employment services and unemployment insurance through its 70 offices, including the Illinois Employment and Training Centers. IDES also receives federal grants to assist veterans with job placements and provide and analyze labor market statistics and information. Illinois workforce and career information is available at www.ILWorkInfo.com.

Ceramics Class

The Worth Township Senior Ceramics Class will be starting on Tuesday, Feb. 20th at 9 a.m. Classes are held in the Worth Township Center, 11601 S. Pulaski, Alsip. This will be a seven-week course. Call (708) 371-2900, Ext. 28 to register.

Sunday With Friends Concert

The Oak Lawn Public Library, 5300 W. 95th St., will host a free concert featuring traditional Brazilian music performed by "Dois no Choro" at 2 p.m. on Sunday, Jan. 14th.

Get swept away by the light, soothing and up-tempo sound of choro music, genre that originated in Brazil during the late 1800s that mixes African rhythms with European dance melodies. Julie Koidin's flute intertwines with Paulinho Garcia's suave vocals and rhythmic guitar to create a perfectly balanced blend reminiscent of a warm Rio night. The name "Dois no Choro" means "Two in Choro" in Portuguese. Sponsored by the Friends of the Oak Lawn Library.

For additional information, call (708) 422-4990.

Input From Teens

Students in grades six through ten are invited to participate on the Oak Lawn Public Library Teen Advisory Board the third Wednesday of each month from 7 to 8 p.m. Teens can earn volunteer service hours while sharing ideas and suggestions to help the library better serve people in that age group. Upcoming meeting dates are Jan. 17th and Feb. 21st. No registration required. Light refreshments will be provided.

For more information, call (708) 422-4990. The library is at 5300 W. 95th St.

Getting Organized

The Oak Lawn Public Library, 5300 W. 95th St., will host a free lecture on "Getting Organized for the New Year" at 7 p.m. on Wednesday, Jan. 17th. First-come, first-served in the library's lower level meeting room.

Pamela Colovos of Organizing Solutions will share tips to help you reduce stress, save time and money, manage your papers more efficiently and keep your home and workspace free of clutter. Learn how to employ new tools, tricks and methods to stay on top of everything in your busy personal and professional lives.

If you would like to have additional information, please feel free to call (708) 422-4990.

Local Attorneys Attend ATG Holiday Celebration

ATG member Thomas Courtney (center) and his son Thomas Courtney Jr., of Palos Heights, and Marie Duhig, of ATG's Oak Lawn office, were among guests at the annual holiday party hosted by Attorneys' Title Guaranty Fund, Inc. (ATG) on Dec. 7 at the Chicago Cultural Center. Nearly 500 ATG members and their guests attended the event, held in celebration of another successful year for the 42-year-old company.

Homeschool Group Meets

Homeschooling families can meet and work together as part of a resource and sharing group sponsored by the Oak Lawn Public Library, 5300 W. 95th St., the second Thursday of each month from 10 a.m. to noon. On Jan. 11, the group will focus their activities on the various January holidays. Other regular monthly offerings include tours of the library, instruction on improving research skills, presentations, crafts and book discussions. No registration is required. All ages are welcome.

If you need more information, stop by the Youth Services Desk or call (708) 422-4990.

Friends Of The Library Discussion Group

The Friends of the Oak Lawn Library sponsor two discussion groups that meet once a month, September through May, at the Oak Lawn Public Library, 5300 W. 95th St., in the Mary Nelson Room, lower level.

Short story discussions are held on the second Wednesday of the month at 1 p.m. They will meet Jan. 10 to discuss "Silence" by Alice Munro and Feb. 14 for "Koolhaas the Leper" by Jack London. Copies of these short stories may be picked up one month in advance at the Readers Advisory Desk.

Book discussions are held on the fourth Wednesday of the month at 1 p.m. They will meet Jan. 24 to discuss "The Joy Luck Club" by Amy Tan and Feb. 28 for "The March" by E. L. Doctorow. Copies of these books may be checked out one month in advance at the Circulation Desk.

If you would like to have additional information, call Dorothy Whitney, (708) 422-2390.

Fire Safety Procedures

United Spinal Association reminds people with disabilities that this time of year also presents a good opportunity to review fire safety procedures in the home and in the office. The Association is offering Fire Safety for Wheelchair Users at Work and at Home, a valuable free booklet to assist wheelchair users in the proper procedures of fire safety and evacuation. Single copies may be downloaded or ordered at www.unitedspinal.org, or by calling (800) 444-0120. Bulk copies are also available for a small fee.

Discussing fire safety in the home environment, Fire Safety for Wheelchair Users emphasizes prevention of, and planning for, a fire emergency, focusing on individuals with mobility impairments. Included is important information on which type of smoke or heat detector is preferred in different areas of the home, and since detectors can reduce the risk of a fire-related fatality by 60%, the booklet recommends that persons with disabilities who are unable to maintain smoke or heat detectors on their own should seek the assistance of family or friends.

Knowing what to do in the event of a smoke or fire incident requires advance planning and the local fire department is the best resource. Professional firefighters can identify potential hazards within the home and can help individuals with disabilities to plan one or more escape routes. And Fire and Safety for Wheelchair Users emphasizes the most important fire planning rule: Exit the home as quickly as possible.

The booklet also contains important prevention tips when using electrical appliances in the home, when cooking, and when using space heaters and heating systems.

Thoughts On Health & Nutrition

TRANS FAT: POINT AND COUNTERPOINT

In December, New York City was the first city to outlaw the use of trans fat in restaurants. It is rumored that other cities, such as Chicago, may follow suit. Last summer Alderman Edward Burke proposed a ban, according to reports. It has languished here, however, partly because of opposition from Mayor Richard Daley, who holds the old-fashioned view that it's not the job of the government to tell people what risks they may take.

Two-thirds of Americans are overweight or obese, and removing trans fat from the diet is one way to assist in controlling cholesterol levels and heart health. Most of the trans fats we eat are formed during the partial hydrogenation of oils used in fried foods and commercial baked goods. Partially hydrogenated oils provide processed foods with longer shelf lives and therefore greater economic profitability.

The feeling of a large number of individuals is that the motive of reducing heart disease is commendable, but the mandatory approach is not. "It's not as though consumers lack heart healthy options," according to a recent Chicago Tribune editorial. And many restaurants, including some fast food giants, have switched to other oils voluntarily. "Even McDonalds has reduced the amount of trans fat used in frying chicken, and it offers plenty of menu items cooked without trans fat."

It seems, then, that if customers are concerned about their health, they can certainly avoid trans fat.

The logic of the ban is similar with that of smoking bans, which have become law in New York and Chicago. The value of such measures is to protect people who don't want to inhale the toxic fumes of others who are smoking. Trans fat does not fit this model. There is no such thing as "second-hand" fat. If customer's prefer French fries cooked in trans fat, the cooks won't suffer clogged arteries, and neither will the other restaurant goers.

So, do we need the City Council telling us what to eat? What's your opinion?

How Your Brain Reacts To Cigarettes

Public smoking bans. Smoke-free workplaces. Cigarette taxes and price hikes. Warnings about cancer and heart disease.

There are a lot of reasons to quit smoking. Approximately 70 percent of smokers want to quit. And, the average smoker has tried to quit six to nine times. Still, there are 45 million smokers in the U.S. There are 388 billion cigarettes smoked each year. What is it about cigarettes that keeps smokers hooked?

Health experts say that nicotine, one of the main chemicals in cigarettes and tobacco, causes addiction. It affects the brain in a unique way. It makes people want to smoke.

"When you smoke, nicotine binds to certain parts of your brain. This causes a good feeling," says Dr. Robert Anthenelli, associate professor of Psychiatry at the University of Cincinnati College of Medicine. "When you stop smoking, your brain no longer gets nicotine. Then you have craving and withdrawal symptoms."

Many smokers who try to quit find the craving for cigarettes too hard to control. The withdrawal symptoms are hard to live with. Smokers may feel moody or have trouble sleeping. They seek relief by going back to cigarettes.

"Craving or withdrawal symptoms make you want cigarettes. You smoke, you feel better. The cycle of nicotine addiction starts again," says Dr. Anthenelli. "We need to treat smoking as a medical condition. It's important to use medication and lifestyle changes to stay on track."

If you want to quit smoking, talk to your doctor about the best way for you to quit.

Cancer Support Events

The Jennifer S. Fallick Cancer Support Center, 2028 Elm Road, Homewood, has announced its schedule for January. The Cancer Support Center offers free classes for cancer patients and their family. All classes are held at the Center unless otherwise noted.

On Monday, Jan. 8th, from 7 to 8:30 p.m., the center will present The Five Wishes: the Intimate Living Will. Mary Ann Droel, LCSW, of the Midwest Palliative and Hospice Care Center, will facilitate the program. The Five Wishes is a legal but gentle approach to life planning and will take into account the cancer patient's wishes for healthcare in the future.

On Tuesday, Jan. 9th, at 7 p.m. there will be a welcome session at the center. This is an orientation to the Center and an informational meeting that is open to anyone affected by cancer. Tour the facility and meet cancer survivors who can explain the benefits of the center's free programs.

Also on Jan. 9th, from 11 to 12:30 p.m. join the Creative Expression Class: "The Velveteen Principles." Based on the book by Toni Raiten-D'Antonio, this course will teach you a safe and steady method toward peace and self-acceptance. Participants will be guided toward the discovery of the "Real" within themselves utilizing meditation, discussion and multimedia art forms.

On Wednesday, Jan. 10th, join the Multiple Myeloma Forum. This group will allow you to exchange information and gather support from others. No registration is required. Kerry Donegan, MSW, LSW facilitate the program.

Saturday, Jan. 18th, from 9 to 11 a.m., the new Mindfulness Meditation Course begins with Tim Pedigo, PhD. The class follows the book "Finding the Center Within" by Thomas and Beverly Bien for a 10 week course concluding with a "Day of Mindfulness" on Saturday, March 31st, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Books are available for purchase or limited copies for loan in the resource library.

On Tuesday, Jan. 16th, at 7 p.m., another welcoming orientation meeting will be held. This free informational meeting is open to anyone affected by cancer. Tour the facility and meet cancer survivors who can explain the benefits of the center's free programs.

Wednesday, Jan. 16th, from 11 to 12:30 p.m., another Creative Expression Class: "The Velveteen Principles" will be held.

On Jan. 17th, from 7 to 8:30 p.m., the center offers the Lymphoma Forum where you can exchange information and gather support from others. No registration is required and the program is facilitated by Kerry Donegan, MSW, and LSW.

On Monday, Jan. 22, from 7 to 8:30 p.m. the center presents "Look Good, Feel Better." This program is sponsored by the American Cancer Society and is designed to teach women with cancer about makeup techniques, skin care, nail care and options related to hair loss such as wigs, turbans and scarves. A free cosmetic kit will be provided. Due to the nature of this program, it is limited to eight people. You must call to reserve a spot. This class is a one-time only program.

On Tuesday, Jan. 23, at 7 p.m., there is another welcome session/orientation for those who are curious about what the center offers.

Also on Jan. 23, from 11 to 12:30 p.m. there is another Creative Expression Class: "The Velveteen Principles."

On Wednesday, Jan. 24, from 7 to 8:30 p.m., the center presents the Prostate Cancer Forum that will allow you to exchange information and gather support from others. The forum is facilitated by Kerry Donegan, MSW, and LSW.

On Monday, Jan. 29th, from 7 to 8:30 p.m., the center presents an Introduction to Journaling. According to research, writing about life-changing experiences such as cancer may decrease stress, improve the quality of life and enhance the immune system. This introductory program will focus on setting the environment for effective journaling and journaling techniques utilizing guided imagery. Previous participation or experience is not required. Supplies are furnished. Cheryl Pickering, LCSW will present the class.

On Tuesday, Jan. 30th, from 11 to 12:30 p.m., another Creative Expression Class will be held.

All programs at the Cancer Support Center are free of charge and open to Chicago Southland and Northwest Indiana community members. A second site will open in January 2007 at 19250 Everett Lane in Mokena. The Cancer Support Center is always looking for volunteers, donation of items for its wish list.

For more information on programs or to register, call (708) 798-9171 or visit www.cancersupportcenter.org.

Dos And Don'ts Of Using Your Pharmacy Benefit

One-third of people who tried to fill a prescription in the past year using their insurance report have had a problem, including the pharmacist needing to call the person's doctor or health plan before the prescription could be filled, the plan not paying for the medicine, or the pharmacy not having current information about the person's insurance. Knowing the dos and don'ts of using your coverage can help you solve problems and access the medicines you need.

When you're told there's a problem filling your prescription don't walk away from the pharmacy counter until you know what the problem is.

The problem may be easy to fix. For example, if the information in the pharmacy computer doesn't match what is on your current pharmacy ID card, you may just need to show your card to update your record.

Sometimes the problem is something your doctor should know about. For example, if the medicine could react badly with another medication you take, your plan may need your doctor to confirm that you should take it before the plan will pay.

Don't give up if you're told a medicine you need is not covered. If your doctor thinks it's important for you to have a medicine that your plan won't cover, you can appeal the plan's decision. Write a letter to the plan and ask for the medicine to be covered or to be paid back for the cost of the medicine if you have already paid for it yourself. Your doctor may have to explain why you need this specific medicine.

To help head off problems before you get to the pharmacy: Do know what you can expect to pay. Most plans only cover certain medicines. You can find out what medicines your plan covers by looking at the plan's "formulary." Find this list on your plan's Web site, or call your plan to request a copy. Plans usually expect you to pay a portion of the cost for your medicines. The portion you pay is called a "co-pay" or "co-insurance." Your plan can tell you what your share is for any medicine you are prescribed.

Do look at all your options. If you have a choice of plans at work or from Medicare, you have a chance to change plans each year. It makes sense to look at your options and see if another plan would better meet your needs. When you compare plans, look at the coverage for medicines you take now and for medicines you are likely to take sometime during the year (for instance, for seasonal allergies).

Visit www.YourPharmacyBenefit.org for more information about choosing and using the pharmacy benefits under your insurance coverage, or call (888) 8-PUEBLO (1-888-878-3256) for a free copy of the brochure "Your Pharmacy Benefit: Make it Work for You" (publication #524N).

If your prescription isn't covered by your plan, there are other programs that may be able to help. Contact the Partnership for Prescription Assistance at (888) 4PPA-NOW (1-888-477-2669) or www.pparx.org for more information.

Knowing the dos and don'ts of using your coverage can help you solve problems and access the medicines you need.

The Facts About Diabetics And Sugar Intake

If you're concerned about diabetes and what causes it, you may be surprised by the latest medical findings. According to leading experts, eating carbohydrates—including sugar—doesn't cause diabetes. Major factors include genetics and lifestyle, especially excessive weight and poor fitness.

According to the American Diabetes Association (ADA), diabetics may enjoy sugar in moderation, provided it's counted like all carbs. When you consume foods like potatoes, carrots, corn, strawberries and watermelon, you're eating what dietitians refer to as "starches and sugars." Your body converts starches and sugars—including the pure, all-natural sugar from your sugar bowl—into glucose, the fuel every body needs to function properly.

Both type 1 and type 2 diabetes are disorders that affect the body's ability to convert glucose into energy. A key piece in the diabetes puzzle is insulin, a hormone produced by the pancreas. In type 1 diabetes, the pancreas is unable to produce insulin. In type 2 diabetes, commonly referred to as adult-onset diabetes, the pancreas gradually loses its ability to produce enough insulin to transform blood glucose into energy.

Most important for diabetics to know is how they can incorporate carbohydrates properly into their diet. According to the ADA, blood glucose levels are a direct result of the total amount of carbohydrates in one's diet. So if you're diabetic, you can include sugar in your diet as long as you count it as part of your daily carbohydrate allowance.

The American Diabetes Association offers a good rule of thumb for how to keep your blood glucose in check without depriving your sweet tooth: control portion size. So long as you're counting, you can swap some of the carbohydrates in your diet with small amounts of sweets.

Currently, diabetes afflicts more than 20 million adult Americans. It is estimated a third of adults with diabetes don't know they're afflicted. Even with today's research technology, scientists still don't know all of the causes of diabetes. A smart, sensible diet is an important safeguard for anyone's health; it becomes even more important once a person is diagnosed with diabetes.

Knowing the truth should strengthen your resolve and enthusiasm for eating a balanced, sensible diet that includes fruits, vegetables, whole grains and lean proteins. All-natural sugar, with just 15 calories a teaspoon, can be part of any healthy, active lifestyle. For more information, visit www.sugar.org.

Childbirth Classes

Veterans And Soldiers News

By Lori Taylor Ph: 708.388.2425

Air Force Senior Airman John S. Klimczak has graduated from Airman Leadership School at Charleston Air Force Base, South Carolina. Klimczak, an air transportation journeyman with four years of military service, is the son of John S. and N.J. Klimczak of Midlothian. The airman is a 2002 graduate of Bremen High School in Midlothian.

The Illinois Department of Transportation (IDOT) and the Illinois Department of Veterans Affairs (IDVA) are teaming up to make Illinois veterans aware of well-paying job opportunities as Highway Maintainers in Cook County. In addition, IDOT has openings for Spanish speakers in its high-visibility Emergency Traffic Patrol (ETP) unit, which assists drivers in trouble on Chicago-area expressways.

IDVA will make applications and information about the jobs available at its Veterans Services Offices in Cook County and the surrounding area and will also work with state commanders of veterans' organizations to make their members aware of these opportunities.

The starting salary for Highway Maintainers is $3,750 per month; for the ETP Spanish Speaking position, which is also technically a Highway Maintainer, the salary is $4,028 per month. Applications should be submitted to the state's hiring agency, the Department of Central Management Services (CMS), where applicants will also complete Civil Service testing. Applicants are encouraged to apply by Feb. 15th as IDOT expects to begin the hiring and interview process for these positions at this time.

The main requirement for both Highway Maintainer and Highway Maintainer/Emergency Traffic Patrol jobs is possession of an Illinois Class "A" Commercial Driver's License, with endorsements for tankers and non-restricted air-brakes, and a good driving record for the last year.

Highway Maintainers work out of IDOT maintenance yards and are required to drive and operate heavy-duty maintenance trucks, plows and salt spreaders, tractors, mowers, pavement marking equipment and other heavy equipment, and to perform arduous manual labor. They are responsible for cleaning and clearing right-of-ways along IDOT highways and roads and for patching and repairing roads and bridges as needed.

ETP workers drive heavy-duty, bright yellow tow trucks on patrol along Chicago-area expressways. They are responsible for providing roadside assistance to motorists and deal with a range of traffic emergencies, anything from minor fender benders to major crashes involving semi-trucks.

Interested candidates for both jobs must take the Highway Maintainer test with CMS in order to be placed on a list of eligible candidates. Having a Commercial Driver's License is required to take the test. Qualified veteran applicants with an "A" grade on their Civil Service test are considered top candidates for open positions.

Information about the testing process and applications are available online at: www.cms.illinois.gov, and in person at the James R. Thompson Center at 100 W. Randolph, 3rd Floor, Chicago, IL 60601. Information may also be obtained by phone at (312) 793-3565.

On an ongoing basis, officials from CMS' Veterans Outreach Program provide professional counseling to Illinois' veterans about how to obtain state employment. Through the past year, these officials have attended 25 job fairs and counseled nearly 500 veterans. Interested veterans may learn more about the program or to begin the process of state employment by calling 1-800-643-8138.

One of the Must-See Permanent Exhibits at the Museum of Science and Industry, 57th and Lake Shore Dr., is the U-505 Submarine. The U-505 - the only German submarine captured by the U.S. Navy during World War II - resurfaced in June 2005 as part of a new 35,000-square-foot exhibit with a variety of never-before-seen artifacts, dramatic representations of key events, special effects and an optional, new on-board tour. Interactive elements let guests experience aspects of submarine operation, including dive training, the principle of buoyancy, navigation by periscope, and even encoding and decoding German Enigma messages. The exhibit is included in general admission, but the optional on-board tour of the sub is $5 per guest. Buy on-board tour tickets in advance at www.msichicago.org or by calling (773) 684-1414.

When you read this column I should be out of surgery with a total hip replacement. My surgery is scheduled for today, Jan. 4th. At this time I am very nervous and ask for your prayers that everything will go well. Thanks. Good-bye for this week. God bless you and your family and God bless America.

New Laws Take Effect Jan. 1st

Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich recently promoted a number of important new laws that he signed earlier last year and took effect Jan. 1, 2007.

"2006 was a very productive year for state government. We worked hard to pass new laws to help our seniors, children, and the hardworking citizens of our state. A number of those new laws will go into effect on Monday, so now is the time for the public to learn about new protections and programs we enacted," Gov. Blagojevich said.

House Bill 4121 punishes individuals who falsely claim to be decorated war heroes. The new law creates criminal charges and imposes penalties on individuals falsely representing themselves as recipients of various military honors.

House Bill 4125 helps autistic children get access to new treatments by requiring all state and local insurance plans, as well as private insurance plans offered by many employers, to pay for the treatment of pervasive developmental disorders. It also requires group health benefit plans to provide coverage for 20 additional outpatient visits for speech therapy.

House Bills 4222 and 4606 and Senate Bills 0859, 2873, 2962 and 3016 give law enforcement agencies more tools to protect Illinois families and communities from sex offenders. The comprehensive package authorizes Global Positioning System (GPS) monitoring of paroled sexual predators, includes stricter guidelines for sex offenders who are near child care facilities, prohibits custody or visitation by a father of a child who is convicted of sex crimes that resulted in the conception of the child, and requires clarification of disclosure of sex offenses in teacher endorsement or certification.

House Bill 4300 makes it illegal to sell or buy the pure form of dextromethorphan (DXM) - a drug commonly used in cough syrups such as Triaminic or Robitussin. The legislation will help counter the availability of highly concentrated DXM on the Internet. The level of DXM in prescription and over-the-counter medications is safe in correct doses, but when taken incorrectly it can have hallucinogenic effects similar to PCP and ketamine.

House Bill 4676 helps prevent cases of self-abuse and neglect by senior citizens by requiring the Illinois Dept. on Aging (IDoA) to respond to reports of self-abuse and neglect.

House Bill 4986 requires districts that offer a secondary agricultural education program to provide instructional courses approved by the Illinois State Board of Education and requires a state and nationally affiliated FFA chapter to be a part of the curriculum. The legislation also requires hands-on instruction through formal, supervised agricultural experience activities/programs (SAE).

House Bill 5284 requires carbon monoxide detectors in homes and apartments that use fossil fuel for heating or cooking. All buildings that use fossil fuel and have sleeping rooms or have an attached garage must have an approved, operating carbon monoxide detector installed within 15 feet of any sleeping area. Homes that have all electric appliances and do not have a fireplace or an attached garage will be exempt from the requirements.

Senate Bill 1001 creates the Illinois African American HIV/AIDS Response Fund to address the disproportionate rate of HIV/AIDS in the African-American community. The Fund will be used for HIV/AIDS prevention efforts and to establish a system for delivering HIV/AIDS services to reduce transmission among African Americans. The approved budget for fiscal year 2007 includes $3 million for the Fund.

Senate Bill 2165 guarantees condo owners can freely observe the doctrines of their religion at home, including being able to display objects on their front door. The legislation was prompted by several cases in Chicago where co-op boards and condo associations have attempted to pass rules that would ban the display of religious symbols in hallways.

Senate Bills 2303 and 2968 protect people trained in first aid or medical response from being sued for trying to help injured people. The new laws aim to alleviate worries by "Good Samaritans" that they could be sued for helping someone who is seriously injured.

Senate Bill 2310 allows Illinois residents to place a security freeze on their credit reports. The legislation also requires a password to remove the freeze. The Illinois Attorney General Office Identity Theft Hotline has information on how to do that and other measures one can take to prevent identity theft. That number is (866) 999-5630.

Senate Bill 2349 protects vulnerable homeowners from unscrupulous mortgage "rescue" firms that purport to help avoid foreclosure, but instead profit at the homeowners' expense by taking over the property and not alleviating the debt. The law gives homeowners new rights when dealing with companies that offer financial assistance to help them save their homes from foreclosure. It also guarantees that homeowners will receive a substantial portion of their equity in the home from the companies. Additionally, the new law creates new disclosure requirements for mortgage rescue companies.

Senate Bill 2865 makes Illinois' railroad crossings safer by giving local governments the ability to use photo enforcement at rail crossings to crack down on drivers who go around lowered crossing gates. The legislation comes in response to an accident during Thanksgiving Eve in 2005 when a Metra express train crashed into several cars trapped in rush-hour traffic at the Grand Avenue railroad crossing in Elmwood Park, injuring 16 people.

Senate Bill 2885 helps make sure that Illinois working families, seniors and people with disabilities continue having access to affordable housing through the coordination of state government resources. Specifically, the legislation will encourage businesses to locate closer to public transportation and to the areas where their workforce lives.

Senate Bill 3086 requires clear and convincing evidence that private land is necessary for a public use before it can be seized. The new law also requires governments to reimburse property owners for relocation expenses and, in some cases, legal fees. Additionally, the new legislation allows trial courts to reset the valuation date of the property if the trial begins more than two years after the filing. Currently, Illinois law only requires "just compensation" for property owners, which is the fair market value of the property plus any damage to associated property not taken through eminent domain.

Mortgage "Rescue" Fraud Schemes

Attorney General Lisa Madigan on Dec. 28th advised vulnerable homeowners of their rights under a new law designed to protect them from predatory mortgage "rescue" businesses.

Effective Jan. 1, the Mortgage Rescue Fraud Act, P.A. 94-0822, sponsored by Sen. Jacqueline Collins and Rep. Marlow Colvin, takes aim at unscrupulous businesses that offer to save homeowners from foreclosures but often strip the equity from the homes and leave the homeowners with nothing. Under the new law, mortgage rescuers are required either to save the home as they have promised or pay the homeowner a substantial portion of the home's value.

Mortgage "rescuers" typically arrive on the scene when homeowners fall behind on mortgage payments or are on the verge of losing their homes. The rescuers usually promise to buy the house, collect rent from the homeowner and provide the homeowner with the option to buy back the house in a year or two after they have "improved" their credit and financial condition.

Mortgage rescuers, often working in concert with a group of investors, obtain title to the home by paying off the homeowners' mortgage—a sum that is considerably less than the homeowners equity in the home. The rescuer then takes out a new mortgage that exceeds what the homeowners owe—often without the homeowners' knowledge—and charges them high monthly rental payments to cover the new mortgage.

After falling prey to these schemes, financially strapped homeowners find themselves struggling to make rental payments that are equal to or higher than their original mortgage payments.

When the homeowners fall behind in rent, as they almost inevitably do, the rescuer initiates eviction proceedings, and the homeowners end up losing their home and all of their equity. In some cases handled by Madigan's office, homeowners have lost as much as $35,000 to $70,000 of equity in their homes to these mortgage fraud schemes. In the most egregious cases, the homeowners did not even understand they had sold their home until the new owner took steps to evict them.

The Mortgage Rescue Fraud Act contains a series of

Honeywell To Pay For Clean Up Costs

Attorney General Lisa Madigan recently said that the supplier that allegedly spilled trichloroethylene (TCE) as it refilled the storage tank at a DuPage County manufacturer will reimburse the State of Illinois and local jurisdictions for costs associated with the cleanup resulting from groundwater contamination caused by the spills.

Madigan said an order filed on Dec. 28th in DuPage County Circuit Court requires Honeywell International, Inc., a Delaware corporation, to pay $737,500 to the Hazardous Waste Fund of the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency (IEPA), $21,430 to DuPage County and $33,746 to the Village of Lisle to reimburse the costs incurred for the cleanup. In addition, the Attorney General's office will receive $50,000 to recover costs incurred in the prosecution of environmental violations resulting from the spills at the Lockformer Company at 711 Ogden Ave. in Lisle.

From approximately 1970 through 1992, the company now owned by Honeywell supplied TCE, an industrial degreaser, to Lockformer to use as a degreasing agent in its manufacturing process. Toxicologists consider TCE a possible carcinogen that can cause various health problems.

In January 2001, the Attorney General's office and the DuPage County State's Attorney sued Honeywell, in addition to Lockformer, alleging that groundwater and private wells were contaminated when Honeywell spilled TCE on the ground beneath the refilling line when replenishing Lockformer's rooftop storage tank. In August 2001, the Village of Lisle intervened in the lawsuit.

The IEPA coordinated extensive private well testing and monitored the soil and groundwater in the vicinity of the Lockformer plant to determine the extent of any contamination caused by the TCE spills. Samples taken in the area by the IEPA showed the presence of TCE. The chemical also was found to have moved off site to private wells near the factory.

Lockformer continues to clean up its contaminated property under the terms of a July 2004 court order. Under that order, Mestek, Inc. guarantees to pay up to $3 million to ensure that the cleanup of TCE is accomplished. Additionally, in the event Lockformer does not complete the cleanup as required the state has reserved the right to pursue Honeywell in future court actions to accomplish the task.

safeguards to ensure that mortgage rescue agreements provide a substantial benefit to the homeowners and do not result in an unearned windfall for the rescuer. Under the Act, rescuers must provide homeowners with a written contract that lays out all of the terms of the sale and makes it clear that the home is actually being sold. The Act also provides that the homeowner must have the right to cancel the contract for five business days after it is executed by all parties.

Crucially, the new law requires rescuers to make a determination — before the property is sold — that the homeowner has the financial ability to make rental payments and buy the house back.

Under what is perhaps the new law's most important provision, rescuers can no longer legally enjoy unearned windfalls when the rescue fails. If the homeowners are unable to buy back the home, the rescuers must pay them at least 82 percent of the home's fair market value.

In addition to reining in mortgage rescuers, the Mortgage Rescue Fraud Act targets "distressed property consultants." Through consumer complaints, Madigan's office learned that distressed property consultants often offer phantom help to homeowners, usually promising to "buy them time" or "save the home" by negotiating with the homeowners' creditors. Despite receiving steep upfront fees, the consultants do nothing and abandon the homeowner to a fate that might have been prevented with legitimate professional intervention.

The new law is intended to put an end to these practices by (1) requiring consultants to put in writing every service that they promise to perform, and (2) prohibiting them from collecting a fee until they have performed every service as promised.

Health Insurance

Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich recently announced a new study shows Illinois has seen the greatest improvement in health over the previous year than any state in the country. The 17th annual edition of America's Health Rankings: A Call to Action for People & Their Communities shows Illinois with the highest overall health improvement in the nation from 2005 to 2006. Some of Illinois' strengths, according to the report, include high per capita public health spending, a low rate of motor vehicle deaths, a low occupational fatality rate and few poor physical health days. Significant changes over the past year in the state include a decrease in the percentage of children in poverty and a decrease in the prevalence of smoking.

America's Health Rankings is produced by United Health Foundation in partnership with the American Public Health Assn. and Partnership for Prevention, and is a yearly assessment of the relative healthiness of the nation. The report is based upon analysis of comprehensive determining factors such as personal behaviors, the environment in which people live and work, the decisions made by public and elected officials and the quality of medical care delivered by health professionals. The report ranks such factors as smoking prevalence, infectious disease, health insurance, prenatal care, motor vehicle deaths, children in poverty, immunization coverage and cancer deaths.

Homeland Highway Watch

The Illinois Terrorism Task Force has recognized the outstanding efforts by the Illinois Trucking Assn. and the Midwest Trucking Assn. in training members to serve in the nationwide Highway Watch program, the homeland security effort that enlists transportation industry professionals to be on the lookout for suspicious activity on the nation's roadways.

"Thanks to the efforts of the Illinois Trucking Assn. and the Midwest Trucking Assn., we have thousands of extra eyes and ears out on our highways helping to protect the heartland of America," said Illinois Dept. of Transportation (IDOT) Secretary Timothy W. Martin. "Truckers are the lifeblood of our economy and they are now also protecting lives through their participation in the Highway Watch program."

Since the Illinois Highway Watch program was initiated by the Blagojevich Administration in 2004, more than 16,000 people have undergone Highway Watch training in the program overseen by IDOT and carried out by the two trucking associations.

"The acceptance of the Highway Watch program by the trucking industry is no surprise," said George Billows, executive director of the Illinois Trucking Assn. "To truck drivers, Highway Watch is about doing the right thing, being a good citizen, helping to protect the families, towns and cities of America. Truckers are very patriotic people. Whether it be 9-11, hurricane Katrina, an Amber Alert or being the eyes and ears of the highway, it is the drivers and the trucking industry that you can always count on to lend a helping hand."

"Illinois' Highway Watch program was started through the cooperation of the trucking industry, law enforcement and state transportation officials," said Don Schaefer, executive director of the Midwest Trucking Assn. "The industry has worked as a partner to provide an extra set of eyes and ears for authorities on the state's roadways."

Nationwide, more than 500,000 transportation professionals — including truckers, school bus drivers and state highway workers — call in tips as part of the Highway Watch program.

Highway Watch participants are trained to recognize potential safety and security threats. The Highway Watch effort seeks to prevent terrorists from using large vehicles with hazardous cargoes as weapons on our nation's highways.

Highway Watch training provides transportation professionals with observational tools and the ability to report safety and security concerns rapidly and accurately to law enforcement via a nationwide hotline. It utilizes the skills and experiences of America's transportation professionals to help protect our nation's critical infrastructure and the transportation of goods, services and people.

The Illinois Highway Watch program was kicked off in March 2004 with a $200,000 grant from the Dept. of Homeland Security to the Illinois Trucking Assn.

Data Show Students Improve Dramatically During High School Years

While most Americans grade high schools by their state's annual assessment, educators know better. For years, school boards, administrators and teachers have stressed how student growth - how much students improve over their four years of high school - provides the one true measure of educational effectiveness.

State assessments, when examined independently, merely provide a snapshot of ability levels and supply no information on whether a group of students has improved over time.

Analyzing standardized assessments across four years shows whether students grow over time. Today in District 218, data from standardized test scores supply evidence clearly demonstrating that students improve skill levels dramatically. District staff tracked test scores for the current senior class. Calculations span from their results on the Explore test, which they took as eighth graders to indicate academic readiness for high school; the PLAN test, which they took as freshmen and sophomores; and, the ACT, which is the first day of testing of the Prairie State Achievement Exam as juniors. The College Board, which designs and administers the ACT, produces all three of these tests, which are correlated and used for tracking the success of a particular cohort of students.

District 218, where ACT scores have improved for five straight years, likely will experience a small decline for the Class of 2007. Analysis over time reveals, however, that district students have demonstrated steady growth. "When you look at the percentages of students in the various ranges, the movement is in the right direction," Assistant Superintendent for Instructional Services Dr. Kevin McCaffrey said to the Board earlier this month.

Analysis of the College Readiness Standards -- derived from Explore (8th grade placement), PLAN (grades 9 and 10), and PSAT/ACT (grade 11) -- across the past four years reveals noteworthy trends. Data, in general, indicated that students moved out of lower-achieving ranges and into mid- and higher-achieving ranges. Specifically, the data from the Explore, PLAN, and PSAT reveal the following between 8th grade and 11th grades:

In the lowest score range, the district improved from 23% to 5% (that means, as eighth graders, one in four scored in the lowest range and, as juniors, one in 20 did);

In the second lowest range, the district improved from 41% to 21%;

In the middle range, the district increased from 29% to 33%; and,

In the high-scoring ranges, the district increased from 7% to 41%.

Catholic High School Placement Tests Taking Place January 13th

The entrance exams for Catholic high schools will take place on Saturday, Jan. 13, beginning at 8 a.m. Students must bring two #10 pencils, a calculator and a pen. There is also a testing fee that varies with each school.

The schools recommend that students take the entrance exam at the school which represents their first choice.

Call the Catholic high school of choice for further information: Brother Rice (boys), 10001 S. Pulaski Rd., Chicago, (773) 779-3410; Marist (boys and girls), 4200 W. 115th St., Chicago, (773) 881-5300; Mother McAuley (girls), 3737 W. 99th St., Chicago, (773) 881-6500; Mount Assisi Academy (girls), 13860 Main St., Lemont, (630) 257-7844; Queen of Peace (girls), 7659 S. KIDS And Senior Identification Programs

City Clerk Miguel del Valle's office will provide the KIDS ID and Senior ID programs to all Chicago residents at the Bridgeview Bank, 6366 S. Archer Ave., on Saturday, Jan. 20th from 9 a.m. to 12 noon.

The KIDS Program is a free service for all Chicago children. National missing children's organizations have long stressed the importance of keeping a recent photograph available for every child. The program utilizes digital technology to create an ID card with the child's photo and fingerprint, along with an ID number, which is mailed to the parents or legal guardians of the child.

The database of photos, fingerprints and biographical information is securely stored in the Clerk's office to be used only when police and family report a child missing. At the parents' request, the child's data, along with the digital photo and fingerprint, can be forwarded via the Internet from the City Clerk's office to law enforcement agencies and search groups throughout the country.

The Senior Citizen Medical ID Program is free to all Chicago residents 60 years and over. The program combines important biographical and medical information on one card, which the Clerk's office recommends participating seniors carry on their person at all times. The ID card is designed to help medical professionals and family members assist the senior in the event of an emergency where the senior is unable to communicate for him or herself.

All data provided by the individual is private and will not be disclosed to anyone other than the participating senior for updating purposes, or family and medical professionals in an emergency situation.

For more information on the KIDS ID and Senior Medical ID programs, call City Clerk del Valle's office at (312) 744-2506.

Girl Scout Cookie Program

Every year, thousands of girls across the area gain valuable knowledge while providing the community with a special treat - Girl Scout cookies. This year will be no exception.

The Girl Scout Cookie Program, an integral part of Girl Scouting's Business and Economic Literacy initiative for girls ages 6 to 17, provides finance, marketing and public speaking skills, along with valuable experiences that build girls' self-confidence and help them develop their own personal leadership style.

Locally, girls will be selling Girl Scout cookies through the middle of January. We are very proud to announce that all varieties of Girl Scout cookies are now "zero trans fat per serving," in compliance with FDA regulations. This change was made because, like most successful businesswomen, Girl Scouts listen to their customers.

Since 1917, the Girl Scout cookie activity has become a famous annual event that has helped girls develop important leadership skills they will use throughout their lives. Whether they are dreaming of becoming a doctor, teacher, businesswoman, president of the PTA, or superstar athlete, the Girl Scout Cookie Program gives them the self-esteem they need to reach for the stars.

Through the Girl Scout Cookie Program, girls manage inventory, set goals, learn money management, and develop marketing skills. Essentially, the girls run their own business. The entire troop sets a goal and follows a plan leading toward that goal. Girl Scout troops use funds from the cookie activity to fund a service project or to plan for an exciting trip. Many successful women have credited their business skills to the Girl Scout Cookie Program, making it the premier business and economic literacy program for girls in the United States.

Proceeds from the Girl Scout Cookie Program also go to support programs for girls and training for volunteers across the area; pays for printed materials and postage; maintains council properties; and offers financial assistance to girls from economically disadvantaged areas of the city. All profits are used locally.

The Girl Scout Cookie Program helps girls in unique ways. For example, this activity is a chance to build self-esteem. A shy girl can get over her fear of approaching people by working at a booth with her fellow Girl Scouts or going door to door in her neighborhood with other girls from her troop. A girl who might feel she isn't good with numbers can build her confidence by keeping track of sales and learning to make change.

In addition to the order-taking program, Girl Scout cookies will be available for purchase on site at various locations throughout Chicago, Harwood Heights and Norridge during neighborhood booth sales starting in mid-February. Site sales with boxes available for on-the-spot purchase also will be held on Feb. 19th and March 5th at locations in the downtown area.

For information, call Girl Scouts of Chicago at (312) 416-2500 or visit the council Web site at www.girlscouts-chicago.org

The Oak Lawn Village Board Of Trustees Considers

Investment Committee

At a relatively brief meeting, several issues were brought up to the Oak Lawn Village Board of Trustees in their first meeting of the New Year. In their quest for a bank that would suit the Village's needs in a more equitable manner, the board unanimously voted to change their banking services to Standard Bank and Trust Co. Before the vote, Trustee Marjorie Joy proposed that an investment committee be formed to oversee the bank as it makes investments for the village.

Joy suggested that the committee would be formed from the board members who have financial experience plus business owners and residents who also have a financial background. Joy said that the committee could oversee the investments and report back to the board quarterly.

Though Mayor Dave Heilmann said that he was not quite in favor of forming another committee even for this purpose, he did ask how to form this type of committee and was told by the village lawyer that it would have to come up before the board for a formal vote. It was stated that the board could also begin an informal committee. Trustee Joy stated that she would be in favor of with the board's decision to study the need for the committee but said that there should be something in place to oversee investments for the village.

Mayor Heilmann suggest that the request be put on the next board agenda and in the mean time, board members could review the issue and come up with suggestions.

The board vetoed the request by the new Target store which requested a liquor license to sell packaged liquor. It was stated that no Target store in the area sells any kind of liquor, nor was the sale of liquor brought up in the meetings with Target officials in previous meetings. The vote was unanimous.

The board brought up the question of making Oak Lawn a "Quiet Zone" when it comes to the railroads blasting their whistles at all village railroad crossings. It was stated that Mayor Heilmann will bring before the board the request for approval of the installation of "quad-gates" at village crossings. This will eliminate the need for the trains to use their whistles. This has been a request from many residents of the village who live near railroad crossings. Many reported that the passing trains would wake them early in the morning and be an endless irritation during the day.

It was reported that the Village Hall will be closed on Jan. 15th in observance of Martin Luther King's birthday.

Senior Happenings

The Oak Lawn Senior Commission is one of the governing bodies of the Oak Lawn Senior Center. They are appointed by the Village Trustees, Mayor Heilmann and Clerk Jane Quinlan. Their goal is to bring vital information to the Center respective to their districts for the many needs of the seniors in the village. At the monthly meeting of the minds many issues are discussed. Scheduling of future programs for the Senior Center is a high priority. It is the objective of the Commissioners and the Senior Center to bring every advantage to the residents of the Village of Oak Lawn. Residents may meet their Commissioner on the last Thursday of the month at 10 a.m. At that time attendees may voice concerns or make suggestion for an activity they wish to see at the Senior Center.

Orr Announces Election Improvement Plan

Orr Announces Election Improvement Plan

At a press conference Tuesday, Jan. 9th, the Election Review Panel investigating transmission problems on Election Night delivered to Cook County Clerk David Orr its report calling for technological and other improvements.

The panel, appointed by Orr, made recommendations ranging from software changes to improving the County Clerk's technology management practices.

"I want to applaud the panel members for the hours and expertise they volunteered to this undertaking," Orr said. "They sifted through mountains of data in record time to find flaws, and propose solutions to speed up results in future elections."

Chaired by retired Judge Abner Mikva, the panel supervised and reviewed tests that recreated conditions from Election Night and duplicated failures in the transmission process, Orr said. The panel met nine times since convening in early December.

According to the report, the panel found that the primary causes for the delay in reporting election results were technology failures in multiple areas.

Orr said his office would: require that Sequoia conduct further testing of its card activator/transmitter (HAAT) to determine the root causes for transmission failures and rectify them; require that Sequoia make improvements to its WinEDS tally and reporting software so that it will process data more quickly; upload early votes at a time that will not interfere with the tallying of precinct transmissions; make sure Receiving Station sites have wired transmission capabilities, and also increase staff in anticipation of heavier use due to potential HAAT failures at the precincts; require that Sequoia redesign its reporting system to show Receiving Station staff correct information about successful or failed transmissions from the precincts; and hire a technical program manager to oversee all aspects of the end-to-end election technology.

During the investigation, the panel found that flaws in the HAAT kept the unit from working consistently over the wireless network on Election Night. Although 90 percent of the judges believed they had successfully transmitted from their precincts, only 56 percent had actually done so.

In additional findings, a design flaw in the vendor's reports provided misleading information on which data had been transmitted downtown. This hampered efficient use of the secondary transmission system at the Receiving Stations. Also, the combination of the vendor's software running over the county's network in a wireless environment was unstable, despite all individual elements being proven technologies.

The problems were compounded by the vendor's WinEDS server. The panel found that the central tallying server is slower in processing results than would be expected with contemporary technology. Entering early votes simultaneous with precinct transmissions increased vote processing time fivefold, the report states. The vendor's technical support staff deployed on Election Night misinterpreted a series of data processing events within WinEDS that led to confusion about the proper operational steps to take.

Despite the slow transmission of some results on Election night, Orr stressed that strides were made in making Election Day better.

"There is good news," Orr said. "Our election judges did a great job, which showed us that our revised judges' training was a success. Also, early voting was successful with over 33,000 people casting their ballots prior to Election Day. And most importantly, voters like the new equipment and the results were accurate."

Spending Habits

In January, information about how much Americans spend for health care, groceries, clothing, transportation, housing and other items will be collected by U.S. Census Bureau field representatives from a sample of households across the country.

The Consumer Expenditure Survey (CE) program consists of two separate surveys: The Interview Survey - about 12,000 households will be interviewed once every three months to obtain data on relatively large expenditures and also for those expenditures that occur on a regular basis (such as rent and utilities); The Diary Survey - during the year, another 12,500 households will keep two consecutive one-week diaries of all purchases - including small, frequently purchased items that are normally difficult for respondents to recall later (such as a fast-food purchase at a drive-thru window; a soda or candy bar from a vending machine; or a carton of eggs from the supermarket).

The U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics then publishes integrated data from the two surveys - providing a snapshot of our nation's economy and spending habits. Government economists use the survey results to update a "market basket" of goods and services for the Consumer Price Index, our nation's most widely used measure of inflation.

"The findings are invaluable to business owners and policymakers in our communities," said Stanley D. Moore, director of the Census Bureau's Chicago Regional Office. "They use the data to evaluate consumer needs and track changes in consumer spending."

Before the CE interviews begin, households receive a letter from Census Bureau Director Louis Kincannon informing them of their selection. Census Bureau field representatives conducting the interviews carry official photo identification. The law ensures survey respondents' personal information and answers are kept confidential.

Marist's Entrance Exam

The Marist High School Entrance Exam for current 8th grade students will take place on Saturday, Jan. 13th. Students should arrive at 8 a.m. and enter through the gym doors located on the east side of the school. There is a $25 test fee, however, pre-registration is not necessary. Students should bring two #2 pencils and are asked not to bring a calculator. The approximate dismissal time is 11:45 a.m.

In order to be considered a candidate for 2007-2008 admission, prospective students must test at Marist High School. For additional information, contact Alex Brown, Director of Admissions, at (773) 881-5330.

New Federal Travel Requirements

City Clerk Miguel del Valle reminds Chicago residents that the federal requirement to present a passport to enter the United States when arriving by air will begin on Jan. 23.

"It's important for all Chicagoans to be aware of these new travel requirements and prepare accordingly," stated del Valle. "Under the new regulations, citizens will need to have a passport even when traveling by air to Canada and Mexico."

The new federal regulation is part of the Western Hemisphere Travel Initiative (WHTI), which requires all citizens to have a passport or other accepted document that establishes the bearer's identity and nationality to enter or re-enter the United States from within the Western Hemisphere.

According to the U.S. Department of State, the passport requirement does not apply to U.S. citizens traveling to or returning directly from a U.S. territory. U.S. citizens returning directly from a U.S. territory are not considered to have left the United States and do not need to present a passport. U.S. territories include the following: Guam, Puerto Rico, the U.S. Virgin Islands, American Samoa, Swains Island, and the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands.

"Adult passports are valid for 10 years. Regardless of whether a person is traveling abroad or to a U.S. territory, it's a good idea to have one," stated del Valle. "If you're planning to travel outside the U.S. you should begin the passport application process as soon as possible to avoid any delays or extra costs for expedited services."

Chicagoans seeking to apply for a new or updated U.S. Passport have several options:

First Time Application for a U.S. Passport - To apply for a U.S. Passport for the first time, each applicant must appear in person at an official passport acceptance facility with proof of U.S. citizenship, two passport specific photos and a valid form of photo identification such as a driver's license. Passport acceptance facilities in Chicago include: the Office of the City Clerk, the Office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court and most U.S. Post offices. To find a passport acceptance facility near you, visit the City Clerk's website at www.chicityclerk.com for a direct link to the U.S. Department of State's passport facility search page.

Renewal of a U.S. Passport - According to the U.S. Department of State, passport renewal applications must be mailed by the applicant themselves. Consequently, the City Clerk's office cannot process a passport renewal. However, you can obtain a passport renewal application at the Clerk's office.

You can renew by mail if: Your most recent passport is available to submit and it is not damaged; you received the passport within the past 15 years; you were over age 16 when it was issued; you still have the same name, or can legally document your name change. For more information about renewing by mail visit the Clerk's website at www.chicityclerk.com for a direct link to the U.S. Department of State's website.

As an official U.S. Passport acceptance agency, City Clerk del Valle's office provides full passport services including expedited processing and passport photos. U.S. Passport services are available at the following City Clerk offices: City Clerk Passport Program in City Hall, 121 N. LaSalle St., Room 100, Chicago, IL 60602, Phone: (312) 744-2020. Monday-Friday, 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.; or at the City Clerk Satellite Office, 5301 S. Cicero Ave., Chicago, IL 60638, Phone: (312) 745-1100, Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, Friday, 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Wednesday, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Effective Feb. 1, U.S. Passport services will be available at the City Clerk's north side satellite office located at 5430 W. Gale Street.

Passport fees at City Clerk facilities: Regular Processing (6-10 weeks), Adults (age 16 & older), $67, Children (under 16), $52; Expedited Processing (2 weeks), Adults (age 16 & older), $127, Children (under 16), $112.

The passport fee must be in the form of a check or money order only. Cash or credit card will not be accepted for the passport fee. Make check payable to the U.S. Department of State. There is a separate $30 execution fee that can be paid in cash, check or money order payable to the City Clerk.

For more information about accepted forms of ID, passport photo requirements and a link to the Passport section of the U.S. Department of State's website visit the City Clerk online at www.chicityclerk.com. You may also call the Clerk's office at (312) 744-2020 for more information about the City Clerk's U.S. Passport Program.

Countdown To 1 Millionth Visitor

The Abraham Lincoln Presidential Museum recently announced the latest attendance figures as the countdown to the 1 millionth visitor continues. As of Sunday, Dec. 31st, the number of visitors that have toured the museum since April 2005 hit 997,410.

The winner will receive two free passes to the Abraham Lincoln Presidential Museum good for unlimited visits for one year, plus a $100 gift certificate to the Museum Store, compliments of the Abraham Lincoln Presidential Foundation, the sponsor of the event.

Letter To The Editor

Legalizing "Bottle Service" will jeopardize public health and safety

Illinois legislators are considering SB 948, which will legalize "bottle service" - selling an entire bottle of distilled spirits (hard liquor) to a table or group of 2 or more people. This could result in increased drinking and driving, alcohol abuse, violence, crime and underage drinking.

SB 948 encourages binge drinking and over consumption of alcohol. The U.S. Dietary Guideline on Alcohol states: "Those who choose to drink alcoholic beverages should do so sensibly and in moderation - defined as the consumption of up to one drink per day for women and up to two drinks per day for men." One drink equals 12 oz. of beer or a wine cooler, 5 oz. of wine, or 1.5 oz. of distilled spirits. There are 17 drinks in a Fifth of distilled spirits, 21 drinks in a quart bottle, and 22 drinks in a one-liter bottle.

Who will be watching to make sure that no one under the age of 21 consumes alcohol from the bottle of distilled spirits that is brought to the table?

The costs of alcohol are greater than the amount of revenue. For every dollar of alcohol revenue in the U.S., the cost to American society is $8.10.

This legislation applies to liquor licenses statewide, not just to a few high-end clubs in Chicago. Public health and safety will be jeopardized by legalizing "bottle service." Legislators will vote on this bill this week. Call your State Representative, (217) 782-2000, to voice concerns about SB 948.

State's Hospital Assessment Plan

Governor Rod R. Blagojevich announced on Jan. 2nd that the state's Hospital Assessment plan will provide a $421 million boost for Chicago's high-Medicaid hospitals over three years, a yearly increase of $74 million from the last hospital assessment in 2004. Last month, the governor announced that the Federal Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS) formally approved the state's plan for securing $1.8 billion in new federal funding to strengthen Illinois' health care system. Illinois Department of Healthcare and Family Services (HFS) Director Barry Maram joined hospital officials, legislators, and families at Mt. Sinai Hospital to celebrate the boost in federal funds that will benefit communities throughout the Chicago area. The state's Hospital Assessment plan will help Illinois hospitals continue to recruit and retain doctors, provide advanced medical care, and serve Illinois' most vulnerable patients.

Senate Bill 157, sponsored by Sen. Jeff Schoenberg (D-Evanston) and Rep. Barbara Flynn Currie (D-Chicago), created the three-year assessment on Illinois hospitals. The law, which the Governor signed in July 2005, replaced the former hospital assessment program that provided $430 million in federal funding, and ended on July 1, 2005.

A hospital assessment program is a federally permissible method for states to leverage their resources in order to attract additional federal matching funds into their state health care systems. Revenue generated by the assessment will boost the amount the state receives in matching funds from the federal government. Illinois will leverage additional federal resources of $600 million to the state's health care network in years 2006, 2007 and 2008. The state's hospitals will benefit by $470 million per year. Additionally, the state will use $130 million per year to help with additional Medicaid health care needs such as funding for nursing homes, the developmentally disabled and other Medicaid services. The proposed assessment plan will end on July 1, 2008.

Before last year's successful assessment, it had been over 10 years since Illinois submitted a hospital assessment plan to the federal government for approval, in turn forgoing hundreds of millions of federal health care dollars from coming into the state of Illinois. The Blagojevich administration was able to forge a broad-based, bi-partisan coalition in 2003 that led the effort to getting an assessment plan approved by the Illinois General Assembly and the federal government.

Juan Ochoa Named CEO

Governor Rod R. Blagojevich named Juan Ochoa as CEO of the Metropolitan Pier and Exposition Authority (MPEA) effective Jan. 2nd. He replaces Leticia Peralta Davis.

MPEA owns and manages the McCormick Place complex and seeks to promote and operate conventions, fairs and expositions in the Chicago area, in an effort to strengthen the local economy. Historic Navy Pier is also owned and managed by MPEA and the Authority is charged with carrying out the recreational, commercial and cultural redevelopment and operation of Navy Pier, which has become Chicago's most popular visitor attraction.

Ochoa brings years of business and community experience to the position. For the past 10 years, he has served as President and CEO of the Illinois Hispanic Chamber of Commerce (IHCC). Under Ochoa's leadership, IHCC has become one of the most respected and nationally recognized Hispanic business organizations in the country, growing from 53 members and a $45,000 budget to over 1,200 members and a $1.7 million budget. Ochoa was instrumental in garnering the business community's support for the historic $900 million expansion project at the University of Illinois at Chicago.

"The Board of MPEA enthusiastically welcomes Juan Ochoa. His experience and commitment will serve MPEA well as it continues the advances that are vital to Illinois and the region," said MPEA Chairman Theodore R. Tetzlaff.

Ochoa replaces Leticia Peralta Davis, who became the first woman to head the Metropolitan Pier and Exposition Authority when the Governor appointed her in March 2003. Before coming to state government, Peralta-Davis was founder and president of the financial advisory firm Davis Financial Inc. and former finance chair of the Chicago Housing Authority's board of commissioners.

The Board of Commissioners of the Metropolitan Water Reclamation District of Greater Chicago (MWRDGC) recently voted to re-elect Terrence J. O'Brien as President of the Board. Additionally, Vice President Kathleen Therese Meany and Chairman of the Committee on Finance Gloria Alitto Majewski were also reelected.

"I am grateful to my colleagues on the Board for the confidence they have shown in me," said President O'Brien. He continued, "I have always believed that it is in the best interest of the taxpayers when the Board works together as a team. We have accomplished a great deal in securing federal funds to complete our Deep Tunnel Project. We have lobbied our state lawmakers to give us authority for stormwater management in Cook County. We will continue working to maintain our triple-A bond rating while providing the best possible service to the citizens of Cook County at the lowest possible cost."

Terrence J. O'Brien was elected to the Board of Commissioners in 1988. He was first elected president in 1997 and has continued uninterrupted to the present. Vice President Kathleen Therese Meany was first elected in 1990, and Commissioner Gloria Alitto Majewski has served on the Board since 1984.

Seven water reclamation plants in Cook County are operated by the Metropolitan Water Reclamation District of Greater Chicago. The District collects and treats wastewater from more than 5 million people and the industrial equivalent of another 4.5 million people everyday. The District also operates the Deep Tunnel project to collect and treat sewer overflows, and provides stormwater management for all of Cook County on an annual budget of $1 billion.

Chicago's City Clerk, Miguel del Valle has filed petitions with the Chicago Board of Elections which include over 37,000 signatures from supporters hoping to make del Valle Chicago's first elected Hispanic City Clerk. The Municipal Election balloting will take place Feb. 27th.

A 51-year Chicago resident and lifelong community advocate, del Valle recently completed serving for nearly two decades as a full-time State Senator for the 2nd Legislative District on the Northwest side of the city. He has fought for open transparent government, stronger consumer protections and the reform and better funding of education, healthcare and social service programs throughout his 20-year tenure in the Illinois General Assembly. Now that 2007 is here, legislation passed by the General Assembly and signed by the Governor this past spring take effect immediately. State Senator Jacqueline Y. Collins (D-Chicago) sponsored several of these bills in the Illinois Senate that became Illinois law January 1st. A few of the issues that Collins fought successfully for in 2006 included mortgage fraud, assistance for grandparents raising grandchildren, and community safety.

•Senate Bill 2349 (Collins/Colvin) targets the growing number of illicit businesses called "mortgage rescuers" that fraudulently promise to "save homes" for individuals, but often charge a fee for providing no service or assume the deed to the home, evicting the original owner. Illicit mortgage "rescuers" are known to run a number of scams at the homeowners expense.

Under the new Illinois law, "distressed property purchasers" will be required to provide homeowners a written contract that lays out all of the terms of the sale and clearly states that the home is actually being sold, while "distressed property consultants" will be required to provide homeowners with a written contract spelling out all of the services to be performed.

•House Bill 4406 (Jones/Collins) will make available a renewable $1,000 scholarship that will help with tuition and fees for four years of higher education for a student who is in the custody of a grandparent and on Public Aid for a period of at least 12 months preceding application. In addition, students must also graduate from high school with a 2.7 grade point average on a 4.0 scale, receive a recommendation from their principal or other appropriate administrator, and attend a higher education institution in Illinois full-time.

•House Bill 4446 (Patterson/Collins) came in response to residents who complained about the large number of halfway houses suddenly springing up overnight in their neighborhoods. The new law will require privately owned halfway houses for persons on parole or mandatory supervised release to comply with all local zoning requirements and will aim to provide a more efficient working relationship between private halfway houses and the Department of Corrections regarding the admittance of inmates on parole or mandatory supervised release. Another provision of the law will require that notice shall be given to local law authorities within 48 hours of a person's placement in a halfway house or related facility by the Department of Corrections.

Users Ring In Savings

Illinois phone users in the AT&T region can ring in more than $23 million a year in savings on their phone bills in 2007, thanks to three new, low-cost "Consumer's Choice" plans, and a new online tool, dubbed the Local Phone Cost-cutter, is available to help customers make the right choice.

AT&T is offering the plans as part of an agreement with the Citizens Utility Board (CUB) and an insert explaining the packages will be included in January phone bills. In addition, CUB unveiled the Local Phone Cost-cutter, an online tool designed to help consumers understand their phone bills and determine which calling package best fits their needs. The tool is available at www.CitizensUtilityBoard.org.

Unlike most of AT&T's flat-rate calling plans, which are expensive and include a host of special features consumers often don't want or need, the Consumer's Choice plans were designed to fit the calling needs of most residential phone users.

As a result, the vast majority of AT&T customers will save money by switching to one of the Consumer's Choice plans or the company's standard, per-call rates. The three new plans are:

Consumer's Choice Basic - a no-frills plan that covers your monthly service plus 30 local calls a month. Additional calls cost 6 cents each. The monthly price is $3.05 for downtown Chicago residents, $6.03 for those in Chicago's neighborhoods and near suburbs and $9.50 in the rest of Illinois.

Consumer's Choice Extra - customers get monthly service plus unlimited local calling for $10 a month in downtown Chicago, $13 a month in Chicago's neighborhoods and near suburbs, and $16 a month in the rest of Illinois.

Consumer's Choice Plus - offers monthly service, unlimited calling and the choice of two special calling features, the most popular being Call Waiting and Caller ID. It costs $16 a month in downtown Chicago, $19 a month in Chicago's neighborhoods and near suburbs, and $21 a month in the rest of the state. Even if customers choose to buy one or two extra calling features, this plan still beats all other flat-rate packages.

The Consumer's Choice plans only cover local calls within 15 miles, and taxes and surcharges, including the $4.88 a month Federal Access Charge, are extra. For calls beyond 15 miles, CUB recommends customers use a prepaid calling card, a low-cost, no monthly fee long-distance service or their cell phone, if they have extra minutes. Plans that bundle local and long-distance service are not a good deal for most phone users.

Consumers also can save money by canceling expensive services they don't need, like Line-Backer. At $6.99 a month, the service covers repairs to a home's inside phone wires. But data show those wires go bad, on average, only once every 30 years.

CUB is a nonprofit statewide utility watchdog organization created by the state legislature to represent the interests of residential and small-business utility customers. For more information on the Consumer's Choice plans, call 1(866) 688-4CUB or visit www.CitizensUtilityBoard.org.

Collection Agency Lawsuit Filed

Illinois Attorney General Lisa Madigan recently filed a lawsuit against a Chicago debt collection agency for allegedly using unfair tactics, intimidation and misrepresentations to convince consumers to make payments when, in some instances, the consumers never owed the money.

The lawsuit names Leading Edge Recovery Solutions, L.L.C., as the defendant. Leading Edge Recovery Solutions, an Illinois limited liability corporation based in Chicago, collects debts on behalf of various entities, including credit card and installment debts.

Madigan's Consumer Protection Division has received 53 complaints against Leading Edge Recovery Solutions. According to these complaints, consumers made payments ranging from $300 up to $2,900 and, in some instances, Leading Edge Recovery Solutions deducted payments directly from consumers' bank accounts without the consumers' authorization.

The lawsuit, filed in Cook County Circuit Court, alleges that Leading Edge Recovery Solutions has attempted to collect on debts that are as much as 20 years old and, in some cases, are not even owed by consumers. When consumers have responded to contacts from Leading Edge Recovery Solutions by requesting proof that they actually owe the debt, the company has failed to provide such proof.

Madigan alleges that as part of its collection efforts, Leading Edge Recovery Solutions sent collection letters and contacted consumers by telephone, often using abusive language or improperly contacting consumers at their places of employment.

The complaint specifically alleges that representatives of Leading Edge Recovery Solutions made numerous misrepresentations during their collection efforts, including:

That they are attorneys and that the company would file a lawsuit if the debt is not paid;

That the company would file a lien against the consumer's property if the debt is not paid;

That the consumer could be arrested or imprisoned for failing to pay the debt;

That the consumer's wages would be garnished if the debt was not paid; and

That the company would take other actions that would have an adverse impact on the consumer's credit report if the debt is not paid.

Madigan's lawsuit asks the court to prohibit Leading Edge Recovery Solutions from engaging in the business of collecting or attempting to collect on debts, and from further violating Illinois' consumer protection laws. The lawsuit seeks civil penalties and requests that the court order Leading Edge Recovery Solutions to pay restitution to consumers.

Senior Tax Relief Program

Southwest Suburban Center on Aging (SWSCOA), headquartered in LaGrange, will host a program on the Senior Citizen Exemption and Senior Freeze Exemption programs sponsored by Cook County. These property tax relief assistance programs will be explained by Nancy McCready of the Office of the Cook County Assessor on Tuesday, Jan. 23rd at 11 a.m. at the Center, 111 W. Harris Ave. SWSCOA staff will be available to help with the completion of forms and all completed forms will be notarized.

The Senior Citizen Exemption may entitle Cook County property owners to a reduction in property taxes. In order to qualify for the Senior Citizen Exemption program for the taxable year 2006, the property owner must be born prior to or in the year 1941, own the property as of January 1, 2006 (prorated exemption may be possible) and use the property as the principal place of residence.

Taxpayers who have received the Senior Citizen Exemption in the past should automatically receive a taxpayer exemption mailing each year. Taxpayers who do not receive the mailing by May 1st should contact the Cook County Assessor's Office at (312) 443-7550.

The Senior Freeze Exemption may allow seniors on limited incomes to apply for a freeze of the equalized assessed value of their properties. To qualify for the 2006 taxable year, the following is required: a date of birth in 1941 or prior, a total household income of $45,000-$50,000 or less for the 2005 income tax year (proof of 2005 income is required to apply), to have owned the property, or had a legal, equitable or leasehold interest in the property and used it as a principal place of residence on January 1, 2005 and January 1, 2006 and to be liable for the payment of 2005 and 2006 property taxes. To make reservations for the program, call (708) 354-1323.

26th Annual MS Bike Tour

Registration is now open for the 26th annual MS Bike Tour, a cycling event to help raise money to find a cure for multiple sclerosis. Presented by the National Multiple Sclerosis Society, Greater Illinois Chapter, the MS Bike Tour is a two-day cycling adventure along Illinois' most picturesque farm roads. The rubber hits the road on June 23rd and 24th as the tour winds its way through DeKalb County.

Riders can opt for a 35, 75, or 100-mile route for each day of cycling. The maximum route is 175 miles, split between the two days of cycling. Visit www.rideforms.org to register for the ride and check out route maps, tips for riding, a list of the weekend's festivities and more.

"This is a disease that threatens the dreams of young men and women and it's one that we have to find a cure for," said Alexis Geissler, Event Manager for the MS Bike Tour. "Just about everyone knows someone who is living with this disease. By participating in the Tour, you can be a part of the fight to end the devastating effects of MS - for someone you love or care about."

As Illinois' largest bicycling charity fundraiser, money raised at the MS Bike Tour supports local MS research and programs serving the estimated 20,000 people in Illinois living with multiple sclerosis.

Multiple sclerosis is a chronic, often disabling disease of the central nervous system. It is generally diagnosed between the ages of 20 and 50. Symptoms can range from numbness in the limbs to paralysis or loss of vision. The progress, severity, and specific symptoms of MS in any one person cannot yet be predicted, but advances in research and treatments are giving hope to those affected by the disease.

The National Multiple Sclerosis Society provides programs and services that make life better for approximately 400,000 Americans with multiple sclerosis and their families and friends. The Society's programs are designed to inform and empower people to maximize their health and independence.

Studies show that early and ongoing treatment with an FDA-approved therapy can reduce future disease activity and improve quality of life for many people with multiple sclerosis. Talk to your health care professional and contact the National Multiple Sclerosis Society at www.nationalmssociety.org or 1-800-FIGHT-MS to learn about ways to help manage multiple sclerosis and about current research that may one day reveal a cure.

Maria High School Snow Ball 2007

Maria's annual fundraising event, Snow Ball 2007, will take place on Saturday, Jan. 20th, at the Drury Lane, Oak Brook, beginning with cocktails at 6:30 p.m. This year's Snow Ball will be a continuation of the 100th Jubilee Celebration of the Sisters of St. Casimir, sponsors of Marla High School. The Honorable Anne Burke, Illinois Supreme Court Judge and graduate of Marla High School, will provide the welcome address. Leona Conforti, Class of 1958, will be presented with the Marla Kaupas Award, and the 58 Sisters of St. Casimir who are graduates of St. Casimir Academy/Maria High School will be inducted into Maria's Hall of Fame.

Guests at the Snow Ball will enjoy a four course meal, followed by dancing and be able to view segmented story boards highlighting the 100 year history of the Sisters of St. Casimir. Pictures of the Sisters of St. Casimir Foundress, Mother Maria Kaupas, date back to the late 1800's and have traveled from Lithuania. These story boards will serve as a lasting testament to the tremendous contribution the Sisters of St. Casimir have made to the city of Chicago and young women in the area for the past 95 years.

For more information about the Snow Ball, call DiAnne Richardson at (773) 925-8686, ext. 115.

Swashbuckling Good Time

The Children's Theatre Company of South Suburban College is producing the classic adventure tale The Adventures of Robin Hood, by Michele L. Vacca. The upcoming performances will take place on Saturdays, Jan. 20 and 27 at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. Additional performances are Jan. 22 through 26 at 9:45 a.m. and 11:30 a.m. Seating for weekday performances is limited and advance reservations are required.

Robin Hood is a delightful, fast moving and witty play, and is suitable for a wide range of ages.

Robin Hood (Juniper Boerman DeYoung of Thornton) and his Merrie Band encounter the nasty and nefarious Sheriff of Nottingham (Paul Braun of Lansing) who is about to collect taxes (again!). They immediately don disguises and the fun begins.

While the Sheriff and his hapless Oswald (Jamel Williams of Chicago Heights) search aimlessly in the forest, Robin encounters a disguised Maid Marian (Amanda Cuzzo of Tinley Park) and challenges her. She easily wins her right of way and Robin invites her to join him and his Band.

In an effort to capture them, the Sheriff entices Robin and the Merrie Band with an archery contest. When that doesn't work, the sly Sheriff kidnaps Maid Marian. Robin vows pursuit.

A number of boldly dramatic and comic attempts are made on both sides to outwit the other, neither party succeeding. Robin wins the archery contest (of course), which calls for a bit of sword play (of course), and as he triumphs over the nefarious sheriff, a message from the King arrives, appointing the Lady Marian the new Sheriff!

The members of Robin's Merrie Band are Rob Smagacz of Calumet City as Little John, Mike Novakovich of Dyer, IN as Will Scarlett, Dominic Bellamy-Palma of Park Forest as Friar Tuck, Alexander DeYoung as Swash and Benjamin DeYoung as Buckle, both of Thornton.

Also included in the cast are Kim Nevins of Homewood as Nell the Innkeeper, Angela Martin of Midlothian as Midge the Miller, Dawn Begin of Oak Forest as Patsy the Saxon and Gayle Wonder of Park Forest as Gayle the Cobbler.

"The Adventures of Robin Hood" is directed by Ellie Shunko of Lansing; the state manager is Rochelle Walters of Chicago Heights; costumes are by JoAnna Tassin of Park Forest; lighting is Lydia and Dominic Bellamy-Palma of Park Forest; fight choreography is by William Boerman-Cornell of South Holland and the set is designed by Vernon Schwartz of Oak Park.

Tickets are $4. Large group discounts are available. Call (708) 210-5741 to make reservations. One may also e-mail boxoffice@southsuburbancollege.edu or visit the theatre website at <http://learn.southsuburbancollege.edu/theatre> for additional information.

South Suburban College is located at 15800 S. State St. in South Holland, between Sibley Boulevard and 159th St. The campus is convenient to Routes 94, 80, 57, and 294 and is also accessible by Metra. Free, ample, well-lit parking is available.

17th Annual Crystal Heart Ball

The Little Company of Mary Hospital Foundation's 17th Annual Crystal Heart Ball will take place on Saturday, Feb. 3, at The Field Museum. Fred and Kathy Berglund will chair this year's gala along with their co-chairs Mary Rose and David Roth, M.D.

Ron Kittle, former Chicago White Sox Player, will receive the Mary Potter Humanitarian Award at Little Company of Mary Hospital's Foundation 17th Annual Crystal Heart Ball on Saturday, Feb. 3.

Mary will present the Sister Nancy Boyle Award for Excellence to the Founders of the Beverly Breast Cancer Walk. Two long-time friends, Carol Moriarty, a cancer survivor, and Lisa O'Brien, who lost her mother and sister to breast cancer, teamed with Carol's sister, Nancy Mulcahy, to give Southwest Chicago area residents a local option in the fight against breast cancer. What started as a walk among friends and family on Mother's Day, the Beverly Breast Cancer Walk has snowballed into a community-wide event with more than 5,000 walkers raising more than $300,000 for The Cancer Center at Little Company of Mary Hospital and Health Care Centers. The Sister Nancy Boyle Award for Excellence is given to an individual or program so that the example of Sister Nancy Boyle, L.C.M., continues to inspire those who knew her personally as well as those who will know about her through this award.

Guests will enjoy a cocktail reception beginning at 6:30 p.m. followed by a gourmet meal that will be prepared by Carlyn Berghoff, granddaughter of the famed Berghoff family. Dancing will follow with music provided by City Lights Orchestra. Tickets to this black-tie event are $275 per person with proceeds benefiting Little Company of Mary's Comprehensive Breast Health Center. Attendees can treat friends and/or clients to an elite Diamond Table for $7,500, a Heart of Gold Table for $5,000 or select a Crystal Heart Table for $2,750. For Crystal Heart Ball information, contact the Little Company of Mary Hospital Foundation at (708) 229-5066.

Texas Hold'em Poker Tournament

SouthSTAR Services is planning its third Texas Hold'em Poker Tournament on Sunday, March 4, at CDs and Me, 23320 South LaGrange Rd., in Frankfort.

The doors open at 11:30 a.m. with a delicious buffet. The first hand will be dealt at 12:30 p.m.

Players who register before the event will pay $100, while the price for a seat at the door is $125. The tournament will include the Chicago Bulls game on large screen TVs, a raffle of a plasma TV, a delicious buffet, beverages and great prizes.

Participating players will have the opportunity to win $10,000 in American Express gift cards that can be redeemed at over 3,000,000 worldwide merchants and service providers who honor the American Express card.

The tournament has a limited number of player positions available, so register today! The tournament will be a fun-filled afternoon and ensures SouthSTAR can continue helping men and women with developmental disabilities.

Sponsorship opportunities include: 1) $1,000 Royal Flush No-Limits event sponsorship (4 seats at tournament plus advertising); 2) $500 Full House table sponsorship (2 seats at table plus signage); 3) $250 3 Aces Sponsor (1 seat at tournament, plus signage at buffet area).

To enter the tournament or to be a sponsor, contact Kristen Guthrie at (708) 755-8030 ext. 271.

The event is not only the hospital's premier fundraiser, but also an opportunity to recognize individuals for their outstanding accomplishments and service. This year the Foundation will present the Mary Potter Humanitarian Award to Ron Kittle former Chicago White Sox player and 1983 American League Rookie of the Year. Kittle is being honored for his work in founding Indiana Sports Charities, a charitable foundation focused on assisting cancer research institutions throughout metropolitan Chicago and Northwest Indiana.

The Mary Potter Humanitarian Award honors an individual whose personal and professional accomplishments embody the ideals, vision and mission of Venerable Mary Potter. The award is a testament to compassion, commitment and the gift of empowerment.

TIME WILL TELL WHAT ELECTION DAY CHANGES MEAN TO SPORTSMEN: Millions of voters cast their ballots on Nov. 7, and their choices have resulted in a dramatic shift in state and federal leadership. The coming months will show how the changes will impact sportsmen's rights.

State legislatures are where a majority of wildlife and sportsmen-related legislation will appear. Since states control the wildlife resources within their boundaries, with the exception of migratory birds and federal endangered species, this is where anti's will try to steal sportsmen's rights.

Prior to the election, 20 state legislatures had republican control in both chambers; ten states had republican control of one chamber, democratic control of the other; and 19 states had democratic control in both chambers. In January, 20 states will have democratic control in both chambers.

Regardless of which political party may dominate in any one state legislature or governorship, The U.S. Sportsmen's Alliance reminds all sportsmen to initiate communication with new lawmakers and foster relationships with those who have been in office. Bills that threaten hunting and fishing can be introduced by members of either party. Also, it's nice to have a good relationship with someone who may be the key vote for a bill to allow additional hunting and fishing opportunities. (The Sentry, USSA)

FISHING REPORT: Perch fishing along the Southern Lake Michigan shoreline has been spotty. Joe Solami, Crestwood, and Bob Hicks, Alsip, decided to brave the cold weather and choppy waters and check the perch situation for themselves.

Launching out of Calumet Harbor, they hit the outer and inner breakwalls, weed beds, and humps. Picked up a few small fish, and moved into the river, hitting slips and the railroad bridge. They caught and released over 75 perch, none over 10". They promised to keep trying, and when the "jumbos" move-in, to let me know.

OPENINGS AND CLOSINGS: Pheasant, quail and rabbit season in the north zone closed on Jan. 8. *Late winter deer season opens Jan. 12-13. *Archery deer and turkey seasons end on Jan. 11. *Brant, Canada, snow and white-fronted goose season closes in North Zone on Jan. 14. *Conservation order light goose season opens in North Zone.

CAMPSITE RESERVATIONS: Reservations for the 2007 camping season for Illinois Department of Natural Resources (IDNR) campsites, cabins, group campsites and picnic shelters may be made by mail now and in person or over the phone beginning Feb. 1. Reservations are not accepted via electronic mail at any time.

A daily lottery will be conducted for mail-in reservations. Up to six mail-in reservations per envelope, per person will be accepted for campsites or shelters. Camping groups may mail more than six reservations per envelope as long as no more than six are for one individual.

In addition to regular camping fees and utility fees payable upon arrival at the site, regular campsites and group campsites required a $5 reservation fee per site at the time the reservation is made.

Campsites can be reserved for a maximum of 14 nights per 30-day period and reservations must be made at least seven days before the campsite is needed. Reserved campsites will be held until 3 p.m. the following day, after which time the site will be offered to other campers on a first-come, first-served basis. Reservations for the Memorial Day, Fourth of July and Labor Day weekends require a minimum three day reservation.

The IDNR also has openings for campground hosts at many state-run campgrounds. Hosts are paid $1 per day and receive free camping for the length of their stay. Hosts are expected to check campers in and out and help answer general questions from campers. For more information on the host program, call Barb Foster at (217) 785-8129.

ILLINOIS MUSKIES ALLIANCE: The IMA in conjunction with muskie clubs in Illinois do a great job of taking on projects that improve muskie fishing (and indirectly other fish species) as is evidenced by excerpts from the minutes of their quarterly meeting:

"Special Projects- The Jake Wolf Hatchery needs some nets to cover ponds to keep young birds out. Ponds are covered with 2x2 netting. Young birds are able to get in and capture young muskies. These ponds will be covered with 1x1 netting to stop this predator of young muskies. The cost will be about $1,500."

"Muskie will be stocked in Mallard Lake in DuPage County in 2007. Motion was made by Pete Barber and seconded by Frank Walter stating that IMA will support this project that passed unanimously."

"Cook County will stock Busse Lake with muskie in 2007, and Tampier stocked in 2008. The IMA will support this project, based on available funds."

The Illinois Muskies Alliance takes on similar projects throughout the year!!

Moraine Valley's College Bowl Team Wins Regional Championship

Add the South Suburban Regional Tournament championship to the Moraine Valley College Bowl team's trophy case.

After sweeping the Illinois Skyway Collegiate Conference competition, the Cyclone squad on Dec. 8th won the Fall 2006 Illinois Community College Student Activities Assn./Illinois Community College Trustees Assn. regional tourney, dropping only one match.

Team members include Captain Philip Santoyo of Blue Island, David Faulkner of Palos Hills, Michael Schrader of Chicago Ridge and Lenore Thomas of Merrionette Park. Ted Powers advises the team and Jason King coaches the squad.

"Losing our first match to Joliet Junior College - and our first match of the semester - definitely woke us up. We were one question away from beating them, so we regrouped and came back strong," said Santoyo.

Coming back strong was indeed an understatement in the second round. Prairie State College experienced Moraine Valley's refocusing and were routed 195 to minus 5. "Overall, it is our teamwork ethic and practice that makes us good. Our team chemistry gets better every week," said Faulkner.

Round three meant revenge for Moraine Valley as Joliet defeated Prairie State 110-30 to set up a rematch with the Cyclones, who answered the challenge and won the round 125-90. "We enjoy rounds with competitive questions. This round we were really on our game and pulled out the victory," said Schrader.

Because the tournament was double elimination, Moraine Valley faced Joliet for a third time, and this time the Cyclones cruised to a 165-70 victory to win the tournament title. "We each have our specialties and we work well together. It shows in our matches," said Thomas.

"I like the depth of our team, but it's hard to take someone out. We are especially strong in Sciences and Humanities and that makes us hard to beat. I like double elimination. It gives you a chance to regroup from a loss," said King.

Moraine Valley now turns its attention to preparing for the Spring 2007 Regional tournament where a win will advance the team to the state championship. "Yes, we are a strong favorite to go downstate. However, this team will practice hard all semester like we never won a game," said Powers.

Baseball Camp

Youngsters who want to learn the proper techniques and fundamentals of baseball should attend Benedictine University's 17th annual baseball camp from 6:30 to 9 p.m. on Friday, Feb. 2nd, 9th, 16th and 23rd in the campus Dan and Ada Rice Center.

The clinics are designed for youngsters who want to become more proficient in the fundamentals of baseball. The main goal of the camp is making certain each student receives individual instruction and coaching. Individual attention is assured by the camp's low camper-to-instructor ratio. Players are grouped according to age and ability.

The clinics are conducted by veteran Benedictine baseball coach and Illinois High School Baseball Coaches Assn. Hall of Fame member John Ostrowski. Ostrowski's 33-year record ranks in the top 25 among all active NCAA coaches. Staff includes Benedictine's assistant coaches and varsity players.

Camp participants will receive a Benedictine baseball T-shirt. Campers should bring a baseball glove and wear gym shoes. Bats will be provided.

The camps are open to youngsters ages 7-13. The fee is $40 for one session, $78 for two sessions, $115 for three sessions and $150 for all four sessions. Campers are encouraged to register early. All four sessions sold out last year. For more information, call (630) 829-6140.

Softball Recruiting

Courtney Murphy, a senior first baseman at Oak Forest High School, has signed a letter of intent to continue both her athletic and academic career at St. Xavier University as a member of the Cougar softball program. She will be a freshman at SXU in the fall of 2007 and compete for playing time at first base during the 2008 season.

"Courtney is a strong hitter and a solid defensive first baseman," said SXU head softball coach Myra Minuskin. "Her maturity, intensity and leadership make her a perfect fit for our program."

St. Rita High School Transportation Options

St. Rita High School, 7740 S. Western Ave., has expanded its transportation program to be more accessible to students, beginning next fall, 2007. Currently, St. Rita students come from over 45 suburban communities and every section of the city of Chicago. St. Rita is committed to providing young men with the most efficient transportation options possible. Beginning in the fall of 2007, students will have the following transportation options:

St. Rita Private Bus Service: St. Rita will be using its own fleet of private buses. This translates into a shorter commute at a very reasonable price. The buses will be routed to meet the needs of all students.

St. Rita Car Pool Program: The car pool program is a free computerized service that can match St. Rita families looking to share rides. This program will be accessible on the St. Rita web site, www.stritahs.com, and will be up and running after Feb. 1st, so incoming freshmen can begin to make arrangements for next semester after taking the entrance exam. Over 85% of current students use car pooling as their mode of transportation.

Metra Rail System: In the fall of 2007, St. Rita will begin to offer Metra Rail as an option for St. Rita students. Students riding the Metra Southwest Line will be picked up and dropped off at the Ashburn stop (79th and Kedzie). Students will be transported to and from St.

Rita by a St. Rita shuttle bus that will pick up and drop off students at the train station front door. Example: Students will board the train at 179th and Southwest Highway at 7:09 a.m. and arrive at the Ashburn Station at 7:43 a.m. On the ride home students will board the train at Ashburn Station at 3:06 p.m. and arrive at 179th and Southwest Highway at 3:46 p.m. Check www.metrarail.com for exact schedules and student fares.

CTA Bus Service: St. Rita High School has arranged for the CTA to have all buses drop off and pick up St. Rita students directly in front of the school.

For additional information, contact Craig Ferguson, Admissions Director, at (773) 925-5029.

Thinking Of A New Career? Where To Start

It's estimated that most workers will hold seven jobs, work for three employers and follow two different career paths in their professional life span. Therefore, it's inevitable many Americans will soon feel the itch to meet a new career challenge, and some will need direction to ensure they choose a path that's aligned with their true interests, personality and natural abilities. Where to start?

"Current hiring trends suggest that existing skilled labor shortages and low unemployment rates will continue to strengthen demand for workers in the New Year," said Steve Pogorzelski, Group President, International for Monster Worldwide, parent company of Monster.com.

According to the Monster Employment Index, a measure of online job demand for workers, industries expected to show strong growth in the New Year include information technology, health care, and legal and protective services, which offer jobs for police, fire and transit workers.

Due to the vast number of baby boomers who pursue work postretirement—either through part-time or consulting positions—employers are increasingly beginning to embrace second-career workers. The Department of Labor predicts that the number of working retirees will increase by 2012, 65 percent of retired baby boomers will be employed, many in brand-new fields.

If waiting until retirement isn't an option, and a career assessment is in order, make it a top priority now—most companies tend to have more opportunities available in the first few months of the year, and again in the early fall. Use the following tips to help jump-start a career change:

Find Yourself -- When looking for new employment opportunities, workers often limit themselves to positions within their current industry. Instead, explore your compatibility with new fields by completing self-assessment exercises, speaking with professionals in other fields or engaging in volunteer work.

Present Yourself -- Once a new career direction has been set, update your resume to showcase the key qualifications most appropriate and relevant for the new endeavor. Don't hesitate to focus on skills and experiences acquired outside of your current job, as well. Resumes often need to be refocused to convey your potential in another career path.

Pace Yourself -- Don't expect an overnight transformation—a complete career change usually takes anywhere from several months to a year. Throughout the process, seek out new projects at your current job in order to broaden your horizons and expand your professional network.

For additional information on changing careers and 2007 hiring trends, visit Monster's 2007 New Year Featured Report at <http://featuredreports.monster.com/>.

Nominations

Nominations for the Illinois 2006-07 "Teacher of the Year" award are being accepted through March 1st. The announcement came from the award sponsor, Teachers' Insurance Plan, a car insurance program exclusively for members of the educational community.

The award will include $1,000 to the winning teacher and a $500 grant to that teacher's school. The state winner will also be eligible for the National Award that includes special recognition and a $2,500 travel certificate.

Teachers, students and parents can nominate any of Illinois' more than 160,000 accredited teachers. Nomination forms are available online at www.teachers.com/toty. To nominate an educator, or yourself, explain in 250 words or less why this teacher should be the Teacher of the Year. Winners will be announced at the start of the next school year.

St. Rita Announces November Mustangs Of The Month

St. Rita of Cascia High School bestows the 'Mustang of the Month' award every month during the school year to notable students from each class. Teachers nominate students based on the student's overall involvement in the school. The award winners are then selected from those nominated by an award committee. The following students were selected the November, 2006 Mustangs of the Month.

Freshman William McGrenera (Oak Lawn) hails from Queen of Martyrs Parish and Grade School and was on the honor roll every quarter there. On his entrance exam at St. Rita High School, he scored a 99 out of a perfect 100, and is on the Gold Honor Roll. Bill has been playing hockey for the past nine years and is a goalie on St. Rita's JV and Varsity teams. Not only is he a great scholar and athlete, Bill is an accomplished piano player who plays for St. Rita masses. He has been quoted saying, "St. Rita is an awesome school and I'm glad I make the right choice to come here."

Sophomore Daniel Dispensa (Mt. Greenwood) comes to St. Rita from St. Bede Grade School and Queen of Martyrs Parish. Since coming to St. Rita, Dan has been a member of St. Rita's Football Team. As running back, Dan helped the Sophomore football team win the Chicago Catholic League title and go undefeated 9-0 for the season. Dan is also an excellent varsity baseball player. Dan has been quoted saying, "St. Rita has been like family to me and that is why I love the school."

Junior DeOnte Hood (Harvey) hails from Gwenolyn Brooks Middle School and Mt. Moriah Methodist Baptist Church. He has been a member of St. Rita's football program for the past three years and is a member of this year's Class 7A State Football Championship Team. DeOnte has also membered the Track Team for the past two years. He volunteers every weekend with the Harvey Colts Youth Football Organization, taking stats and keeping the clock. DeOnte says of St. Rita, "I love this environment and all things about St. Rita High School. I wouldn't change it for the world."

Senior Sean Estand (Evergreen Park) is a graduate of Central Junior High and a member of Most Holy Redeemer Parish. He is a member of the Silver Honor Roll. Sean is a member of this year's Class 7A State Championship Football Team and is a starting pitcher of the Baseball Team. He recently signed a Letter of Intent to play baseball next year at Eastern Illinois University. In his spare time, Sean coaches his little brother's baseball team. Sean has been quoted saying, "(Being at) St. Rita has been the best four years of my life and I'm sad to see it coming to an end."

The Mustangs of the Month awards were presented at an all-school mass in November.

B.B.B. Elects President

The Better Business Bureau of Chicago and Northern Illinois has named Steve J. Bernas its new president and CEO. Bernas, a veteran staff member was serving as vice president and Chief Operating Officer prior to his election. He assumed the leadership of the organization on Jan. 1st.

"The mission of the BBB is to inculcate ethics in the marketplace through self-regulation. My main objective is to continue the successful expansion of the BBB services for all businesses and consumers in northern Illinois. These take many forms such as Business Reliability Reports to our numerous tips and scam alerts which are available without charge. Businesses should also recognize the value of our voluntary mediation and arbitration services. I am pleased to be given the opportunity to work with businesses and consumers, to ensure honest, fair practices in the marketplace," said Steve J. Bernas new president and CEO of the BBB.

Steve Bernas first joined the Better Business Bureau in 1987. His previous position was Vice President & Chief Operating Officer. Prior to that time he was Vice President of Operations which under his direction the BBB handled 2.6 million inquiries from the public in 2005.

A widely acknowledged and sought after expert in consumer confidence issues, scams and customer/business relations, he is regularly seen on TV and quoted in newspapers on a myriad of issues. Bernas has made significant operational enhancements at the BBB in the automation services which includes development of the Bureau's first website and creating an enhancement of the 24-hour interactive voice response system. These advancements increased efficiency and lowered operational costs.

Bernas began his career at the Bureau working in the Automotive Division and quickly moved to other areas of responsibility for the Operations Division which included extensive work with the very successful Advertising Review Program which is one of the founding tenants of the BBB system.

Bernas currently serves on the Illinois Attorney General's Automobile Advertising Review Committee as well as the Federal Trade Commission Consumer Fraud Task Force. Bernas is also a past member of the Board of Advisors for Archbishop Quigley Seminary High School and he is a graduate of Nile College of Loyola University.

Bernas and his family reside on the southwest side of Chicago in the Clearing neighborhood.

Final Plea To Locate Host Families

Foreign high school students are scheduled to arrive soon for academic semester homestay programs, and the sponsoring organization needs a few more local host families. The students are anxiously awaiting news of their new families. This is the final push for the chance of these young ambassadors to fulfill their life-long dreams.

According to Pacific Intercultural Exchange (P.I.E.) Executive Director, John Doty, the students are all between the ages of 15 and 18 years, are English-speaking, have their own spending money, carry accident and health insurance, and are anxious to share their cultural experiences with their new American families. P.I.E. currently has programs to match almost every family's needs, ranging in length from a semester to a full academic year, where the students attend local high schools. P.I.E. area representatives match students with host families by finding common interests and lifestyles through an informal in-home meeting. Prospective host families are able to review student applications and select the perfect match. As there are no "typical" host families, P.I.E. can fit a student into just about any situation, whether it is a single parent, a childless couple, a retired couple or a large family.

Families who host for P.I.E. are also eligible to claim a $50.00 per month charitable contribution deduction on their itemized tax returns for each month they host a sponsored student.

For the upcoming programs, P.I.E. has students from Germany, the Former Soviet Union, Venezuela, Argentina, Brazil, Macedonia, Hungary, Korea, Mexico, Australia, Yugoslavia, China, and many other countries. P.I.E. is also participating in two special government-funded programs to bring scholarship students from the former Soviet Union as well as predominantly Islamic countries such as Yemen, Syria, Jordan, Morocco, Kuwait, Iraq and Qatar to the United States. P.I.E. is a non-profit educational organization that has sponsored more than 25,000 students from 45 countries since its founding in 1975. The organization is designated by the United States Department of State and is listed by the Council on Standards for International Educational Travel (CSIET), certifying that the organization complies with the standards set forth in CSIET's Standards for International Educational Travel Programs. Doty encourages families to contact the program immediately, as it will allow the proper time for the students and hosts to get to know one another before they actually meet for the first time.

Cook County area families interested in learning more about student exchange or arranging for a meeting with a community representative may call P.I.E., toll-free, at 1-866-546-1402. The agency also has travel/study program opportunities available for American high school students as well as possibilities for community volunteers to assist and work with area host families, students and schools.

Lung Association & College Students Fight Power Plant

The American Lung Assn. of Metropolitan Chicago and advertising students from Columbia College are using an innovative power washing tactic to call attention to the 17,000 tons of pollution spewed out annually by Chicago's two old coal-fired power plants.

Beginning with sidewalks in front of the Association and Alivio Medical Center, near Pilsen's Fisk power plant, they've power washed the outline of a figure with a message calling for a cleanup of the Fisk & Crawford plants.

The students came up with the concept and Becker Studios in Chicago constructed the stencils. The students also produced print advertisements which are being run in local papers & public service announcements which are running on local TV stations.

The ads urge viewers to call 311 and request that their aldermen support tighter emission controls on the power plants, one of which is more than 100 years old.

Midwest Generation, the owner of Chicago's Fisk & Crawford power plants, has refused to join the two other big energy firms in Illinois, Ameren and Dynegy, which have agreed to greatly reduce dirty and deadly emissions. Together, Fisk & Crawford, located at 1111 W. Cermak and 3505 S. Pulaski respectively, are the biggest single source of particulate pollution in the city.

61st Annual Board Installation

Members and supporters of the Oak Lawn business community will gather on Saturday, Jan. 20 to honor the 2007 Officers and Directors of the Oak Lawn Chamber of Commerce during the 61st Annual Installation. The event will be celebrated with a dinner at the Hilton Oak Lawn, 9333 S. Cicero Ave.

The Installation begins with cocktails at 6 p.m. followed by the Installation of Officers by Oak Lawn Village President, Dave Hillemann, at 7 p.m. and dinner at 8 p.m. New this year, the Chamber will recognize winners of the 2006 Business Awards.

Kevin Mathers of Bally Total Fitness will be inducted as the 2007 President of the Oak Lawn Chamber of Commerce. Mathers succeeds 2006 President, Leo Gutchewsky of "A" Service Company. Also inducted will be First Vice President, Jackie Truty of Art Clay World; Second Vice President, George Cachares of Southwest Physical Therapy & Rehabilitation; Treasurer, Glen Kato of Glen Kato Web Design & Marketing; and Secretary, Rita Olsen of Gateway Motel.

The Chamber's 24 Board of Directors also will be inducted, including Susan Beran (Bridgeview Health Care), Dr. Joseph Brannigan (Brannigan Chiropractice), Peggy Burke (First American Bank), Dr. Sandra Bury (Complete Vision Care), Carey Cranston (Fox College), John Crivellone (Illinois Security Services), Dr. David Finkelstein (Oak Lawn Foot & Ankle), Michael Gutchewsky (The Gutchewsky Financial Group), Donna Herpich (Great Lakes Metals), Len Hlznay (Milex Tune-Up & Brake Center), Doug Kasper (Marquette Bank), Irene Lovitt (Bank Financial), Nancy Merlo (Archer Bank), Gene Mondello (Geno's Decorating), Ginger Morgan (Thompson & Kucster Funeral Home), Linda Olsen (Oak Lawn Public Library), Tom Orlowski (Men's Warehouse), Beth Purcell (Hope Children's Hospital), Laura Quillman (CellAir Communications), Paul Shanle (Lambton Auto Repair), Patricia Stasik (Oak Lawn park District), Paul Sterk (Merrill Lynch) and Adam Woodworth (Children's Museum in Oak Lawn).

Tickets cost $65 per person and include dinner and an open bar. For more information, or to purchase tickets for the dinner, call the Chamber office at (708) 424-8300 or email office@oaklawnchamber.com.

Local Hospital Receives Over $23,000 From Illinois Brick Company

Illinois Brick Company of Palos Hills recently donated $23,335 to the Little Company of Mary Cancer Center to benefit women who have breast cancer and who are in need. Illinois Brick raised these funds at the Tim Murray Annual Golf Outing in honor of Tim Murray, a former manager at Illinois Brick Company/Prairie Materials. Local Chili Challenge

The spicy aroma of simmering chili will fill the air when nearly 70 chili cooks from throughout the United States converge on Orland Park to compete in the Village of Orland Park Recreation and Parks Department's annual "Chilly Willie Chili Challenge."

The regional competition will be held on Saturday, Jan. 20, at the Orland Park Civic Center, 14750 South Ravinia Ave. (Ravinia Ave. is one block west of LaGrange Road/U.S. Route 45.) The public tasting at the competition will be held from 2 p.m. until 4 p.m. All-you-can-eat "tasting cups" will be available for chili lovers to purchase for $5 each.

The International Chili Society (ICS) and the Chili Appreciation Society International (CASI) will hold competitions for red chili and salsa, along with conducting two contests at this year's event. Verde, a green chili, will be judged and a People's Choice Award will be bestowed upon the winner.

Explaining the People's Choice Award, Orland Park Recreation Program Supervisor LeeAnn Fisk said, "As guests arrive, they will each receive a ticket that we ask they leave with the cook of the chili they like the best."

"The cook with the most tickets at the end of the event will be declared the People's Choice Award winner," she added.

Local cooks are invited to join the competition. Applications are available at the Franklin E. Loebe Recreation Center.

"Eighty individuals are needed to judge this event in order to make it a success," Fisk added. She explained that any individuals interested in judging the challenge should contact the Village of Orland Park Recreation and Parks Department.

The winner of ICS competition will qualify for the nationals held in Omaha, Nebraska, while the CASI top 10 winners receive points to add to their total which will qualify cooks for their national competition held in Terlingua, Texas.

The afternoon includes music, food and a chili bean guess. "Bring an empty belly to taste all that the challenge has to offer," advised Fisk.

Proceeds from the event benefit the Village of Orland Park's Special Recreation Program. For more information about Orland Park's annual Chilly Willie Chili Challenge, call the Village of Orland Park Recreation and Parks Department at 708/403-PARK.

Thoughts On Health & Nutrition

SLEEP: LIVE LONGER AND LOSE WEIGHT?

Last Sunday's Chicago Tribune Parade magazine had a special health report called "Holding Back the Years". According to the article, written by Dr. Tedd Mitchell, "there are some things we can do to turn back the hands of time, or at least to throw a wrench into the gears and slow them down a bit." A study published in 2004 by the JOURNAL OF THE AMERICAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION found that seven out of nine of the leading actual causes of death were related to lifestyle choices. Sleep deprivation was on this list.

The importance of a good night's sleep is logical, but millions of us fall short of what is needed. Sleep disorders are a relatively common problem, and can lead to decreased alertness, impaired memory and mental ability, and increased stress. The effects of it long-term are even worse according to experts: high blood pressure, strokes, heart attacks, psychiatric problems and weight gain.

Dr. Mitchell's advice: "to get seven hours (what's recommended) keep your bedroom dark and cool. Set a time for bedtime, and stick to it. Don't watch TV if you can't sleep. It only stimulates you mentally and wakes you up."

Other articles have discussed the aspect of actually losing weight with greater amounts of sleep. How so?

A sixteen-year study of nearly 70,000 middle-aged women found that those who slept five hours or less each night were more likely to gain a lot of weight, than those who slept seven hours.

Lead researcher, Sanjay Patel, MD, of Case Western Reserve University, says that sleeping less probably affects the number of calories burned during sleep--or resting metabolic rate--according to his presentation at the May American Thoracic Society International Conference. "Other research suggests similar findings in men," he said.

Another factor which probably influences this weight gain is overeating, to compensate for lack of sleep. If you notice, in general, the less you sleep, the more you eat. Especially as the day goes on and you start sagging and are looking for a "quick" energy fix. If you are at work, grabbing a candy bar or some chips usually gives an immediate boost. But both of these add huge amounts of calories to your daily intake.

Some people are nighttime eaters--after the dinner hour and a bit of relaxation on the couch. They don't eat all day but "pack it in" after a nice dinner meal while watching TV. Again, snack food calories that go unaccounted for, are generally loaded with fat and sugar.

Caffeine as Good Guy/Bad Guy

Problems sleeping can be due to caffeine intake during the day. If it's coffee that keeps you awake, consider switching to decaf instead of going "cold turkey". A fifteen year study reports fewer deaths from heart disease among 27,000 older women who drank one to three cups of either regular or decaf coffee a day. "Coffee is rich in antioxidants, which may reduce the oxidative stress and inflammation that encourage arteries to narrow," says researcher David R. Jacobs of the University of Minnesota. The findings are likely to apply to men as well. The study was published in the May, 2006, American Journal of Clinical Nutrition.

Multiple Sclerosis Patients Need Insurance Coverage

After months of advocating for new legislation to require insurance providers to cover preventative physical therapy, people living with multiple sclerosis in Illinois are declaring victory: Gov. Blagojevich signed SB 2917 just in time to ring in the New Year.

Activists from the National Multiple Sclerosis Society, Greater Illinois Chapter, drafted SB 2917 with help from Blue Cross Blue Shield and over the past year, lobbied for the support of the Illinois General Assembly and the governor. The bill passed unanimously out of the Illinois House and Senate and on Dec. 29th, Gov. Blagojevich signed SB 2917 into law.

How will this improve lives for the 20,000 Illinoisans living with MS? Simply put, people with MS no longer have to battle the bureaucracy of an insurance company in order to continue getting coverage for the physical therapy services that have kept them out of a wheelchair, stopped muscle atrophy and kept them active in the community.

"Physical therapy has been my lifeline to preventing muscle loss and atrophy -- and it has been clinically proven to help MS patients maintain current mobility and muscular strength," said Tami Ryan, who has been fighting the disease for almost 30 years. "Once a patient stops getting 'better,' insurers decline coverage for the physical therapy. But the goal of physical therapy for MS is to maintain current mobility -- not to make someone better. In the end, preventing falls and injuries and helping a person maintain current functioning will save the insurance companies money."

"This law significantly improves access to health care and dramatically improves the quality of life for people living with MS," said Lynda Chott, president of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society, Greater Illinois Chapter. "We extend our deepest appreciation to the governor, Speaker Michael Madigan, and the bill's sponsors and co-sponsors whose support of this vital legislation ensured that people with MS no longer have to worry about gaining access to the physical therapy services that have kept them mobile, independent and actively contributing to their community."

"This legislation provides us with another tool to fight the often devastating effects of MS," said Maureen L. Howard, Chair of the Chapter's Advocacy and Government Relations Committee. "We are proud that, with the governor's signature, Illinois becomes the first state to mandate insurance coverage for preventative physical therapy for people living with MS."

Multiple sclerosis is a chronic, often disabling disease of the central nervous system. It is generally diagnosed between the ages of 20 and 50. Symptoms can range from numbness in the limbs to paralysis or loss of vision. The progress, severity and specific symptoms of MS in any one person cannot yet be predicted, but advances in research and treatments are giving hope to those affected by the disease.

The National Multiple Sclerosis Society provides programs and services that make life better for approximately 400,000 Americans with multiple sclerosis and their families and friends. The Society's programs are designed to inform and empower people to maximize their health and independence. In Illinois there are more than 20,000 families living with MS.

Studies show that early and ongoing treatment with FDA-approved therapy can reduce future disease activity and improve quality of life for many people with multiple sclerosis. Talk to your health care professional and contact the National Multiple Sclerosis Society at www.nationalmssociety.org or 1(800) FIGHT-MS to learn about ways to help manage multiple sclerosis and about current research that may one day reveal a cure.

Letter To The Editor

Editor:

This month a window of information opened that provides Americans and those of us in Illinois with the best available indicators of the various components of our overall health.

The 2006 America's Health Rankings report points to some positive trends in Illinois between 2005 and 2006, relative to other states. Illinois experienced the highest overall health improvement since last year -- a 2.8 percent increase. The study attributed this increase to a 13 percent reduction in child poverty and a 10 percent decrease in the prevalence of smoking.

However, there still is much work to be done. For example, the obesity rate in Illinois is significantly higher (130 percent) than it was in 1990 when the UnitedHealth Foundation first presented the America's Health Rankings report. During this same period of time, our country as a whole has experienced a 110 percent increase in obesity -- a condition that now affects nearly one of four Americans.

Fundamentally, our citizens and policymakers can push for positive change by promoting physical activity and healthy eating in our schools and neighborhoods. Making more public places and working environments smoke-free would also go a long way toward promoting better overall health. Our communities can stave off the crippling and fatal effects of chronic disease by working with businesses, health care providers, insurers and public health clinics to find ways to expand their reach and improve their access.

Some of what we're learning from the 2006 America's Health Rankings report is encouraging, but much of it is sobering. But by showing where progress is being made and where we need to improve, we can set goals and achieve them. This window of information can become a gateway of opportunity.

Flu Prevention Course

The number of people that could die in a flu pandemic that matches the 1918-20 outbreak will be "very scary" and far higher than the 62 million deaths forecast by a recent Harvard study, an adviser to the White House said recently.

The 1918-20 "Spanish influenza" pandemic -- the worst in living history -- killed anywhere from 20 million to 100 million people. Half a million died in the United States alone. The Harvard study predicted 350,000 deaths in the United States in such a scenario.

What is pandemic flu? Do you know the signs to look for and how to treat those affected? How might it affect you? A pandemic could cause businesses millions of dollars in lost productivity if a majority of employees were unable to report to work due to illness.

The American Red Cross of Greater Chicago is offering a free course that provides workplaces, communities and families with the information needed to prepare for and prevent a flu pandemic. In only one hour you will get fast and comprehensive education on this important topic. The class includes:

- The similarities and differences between seasonal flu and pandemic flu.
- How the influenza virus spreads.
- What to expect during a flu pandemic.
- Steps to help prevent the spread of seasonal and pandemic flu.
- How to prepare for pandemic flu.
- Steps to take to protect yourself and others from getting pandemic flu.
- How to treat symptoms.
- When to seek medical help.
- How to prepare your household or workplace for a flu pandemic.
- How the Red Cross can help you in the event of a pandemic.

For more information, call the Red Cross of Greater Chicago at 1(800) 337-2338 or visit www.chicagoredcross.org.

Frank Lloyd Wright's Price Tower Exhibit

The Chicago Architecture Foundation (CAF) is bringing Prairie Skyscraper: Frank Lloyd Wright's Price Tower to Chicago, Jan. 18 through April 29. Open daily from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. at the CAF, 224 S. Michigan Ave.; admission is free. Prairie Skyscraper documents how a singular building in Oklahoma came into existence and demonstrates how it epitomizes Frank Lloyd Wright's lifelong passion for merging architecture, design and art.

The exhibit was originally organized in celebration of the 50th anniversary of this masterpiece by the Price Tower Arts Center in cooperation with the Frank Lloyd Wright Foundation in Scottsdale, Arizona. "We are thrilled that the Chicago Architecture Foundation will host an exhibit that celebrates this milestone work by Frank Lloyd Wright," said Lynn Osmond, Chicago Architecture Foundation President and CEO.

The exhibit includes a selection of documents, photographs, building components, and reproductions of drawings from the Price Tower Arts Center and the Frank Lloyd Wright Foundation archives. It also features original furnishings including desks, chairs, tables and textiles designed by Frank Lloyd Wright, many of which are on exhibit for the first time.

An opening lecture will be presented by the exhibition curator: Pinwheel on the Prairie: An Overview of the Price Tower by Anthony Alofsin, Roland Gommel Roessner Centennial Professor in Architecture, University of Texas at Austin. Held Thursday, Jan. 18, 6 p.m. at the CAF, the lecture will explore Frank Lloyd Wright's concept of rotational geometry and his integration of materials from exterior to interior. A reception will follow immediately after the lecture.

An illustrated catalogue edited by exhibition curator Anthony Alofsin will be available for purchase in the Chicago Architecture Foundation retail store. The large-format 176-page book features 150 color illustrations, catalogue entries, and essays by Wright scholars.

About the Chicago Architecture Foundation: The Chicago Architecture Foundation (CAF) is a non-profit organization dedicated to advancing public interest and education in architecture and related design. The Chicago Architecture Foundation pursues this mission through a comprehensive program of exhibits, tours, special events, and lectures. CAF's ArchiCenter is located in the Santa Fe Building at 224 South Michigan Ave. at Jackson Boulevard, Chicago. For further information visit www.architecture.org or call (312) 922-3432.

Illinois Mathematics And Science Academy Campus Visit

The Illinois Mathematics and Science Academy (IMSA) has scheduled an IMSA Preview Day for Sunday, Jan. 28th. IMSA Preview Day is an opportunity for students, their parents and teachers to learn more about the Academy's academic and residential life programs.

IMSA's advanced college preparatory program enrolls 650 students (grades 10-12) who are academically talented and who demonstrate a passion for mathematics and science. All students live on campus. Tuition and most room and board are provided by state funds.

Prospective students and their families can learn about the admission process, take a student-led tour of the IMSA campus, speak with faculty, sit in on a mock class and meet IMSA residential staff, parents and alumni. Preview Day also includes a special segment for parents and students interested in IMSA 2007 summer programs for youths in grades three through nine.

The IMSA Preview Day segment showcasing IMSA's college preparatory program will be held from 10:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. and no advance reservations are needed. These are formal events. Arrive by 10:30 a.m. to take advantage of all offerings.

The IMSA Preview Day segment showcasing IMSA's 2007 summer programs will be held from 1 to 3 p.m. During that time, the IMSA Kids Institute will be presenting "Summer@IMSA Snack Peek" featuring hands-on science programming for elementary and middle school students and the first opportunity to register for IMSA summer programs.

Preview Day also will include a "First Birthday" celebration of the IMSA-ComEd Cyberquiz 4Kids online math and science brainteasers for Illinois students in grades six through nine. Each student who submits a correct answer to a monthly brainteaser will receive a certificate, an invitation to a recognition ceremony in May and a chance to win an iPod Shuffle.

For more information about the IMSA Preview Day or about applying for IMSA's advanced college preparatory program, contact the IMSA Office of Admissions, 1500 W. Pace Offers Van Pool Service To Metra Riders

Every day, thousands of commuters who take Metra trains to work in the suburbs are faced with a shared dilemma: how to get that last mile or two from the station to the job and back.

Pace, the suburban transit agency, has a very convenient solution through its vanpool service. Here's how the service works: Pace provides a van, which holds from 5 to 13 participants, including the vanpool driver. The Pace van is parked at a Metra station near a common worksite;

Participants use the Pace van to get to their place of employment, and back. To qualify for the service, at least half the participants must purchase a Metra monthly pass or a 10-ride ticket. Each participant pays $48 per month fare for the service. The service covers all costs related to the van, including fuel, maintenance, insurance, tolls, roadside assistance and van washes (not included are parking and Metra fares - those remain the responsibility of the participants). The participant who volunteers to be the "primary driver" does not pay a fare; backup drivers receive a $10 per month discount. All participants are eligible for reimbursement of up to $125 a year for transportation taken due to a personal emergency (this does not apply to overtime).

For more information on this Pace vanpool service, call (847) 228-2492. Pace also has a line for Spanish language inquiries, (847) 228-3575. Or visit: http://www.paccbus.com/sub/vanpool/metra_feeders.asp.

Veterans And Soldiers News

By Lori Taylor Ph: 708.388.2425

At the time I'm writing this column (Sunday, Jan. 7th) I'm propped up in my bed at Palos Community Hospital. I had a total hip replacement Thursday and I'm doing very well. The pain in my leg is no picnic, but everything is going as expected.

During Governor Blagojevich's second inaugural ceremony on Jan. 8th, the governor honored recipients of his People Are Today's Heroes (PATH) award. These honorees are people who, through their hard work and commitment, have improved the lives of people in their community and have helped Illinois move forward in areas of health care, public safety, education, environment and economic development. Some PATH award winners for the first term are as follows:

I was very pleased to see Joe and Rose Mary Gerace received this honor. When the Illinois Veterans Home at LaSalle opened in 1990 I was the state VFW auxiliary president. I appointed Rose Mary to the position of VFW auxiliary Hospital Representative and am proud to say she is still working very faithfully and has been deeply involved with veterans' issues, coordinating hospitality service that offers personal care products, stationery, cards and other necessary items for residents of the home.

Other area recipients are: Sr. Rosemary Connelly, executive director of Misericordia Heart of Mercy in Chicago; the Village of Lemont; and Wanda Majcher who worked tirelessly to raise and promote the importance of breast cancer awareness in Chicago's Polish community.

For more details, visit www.celebrateillinois2007.com.

Life Source will hold a blood drive at Des Plaines VFW in Argo, 7256 W. 63rd St., from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturday, Jan. 13th. Donors must be 17 years old, 16 with a parent, and weigh at least 110 pounds. For an appointment or more information, call John McIntyre at (773) 767-2239.

How To Stay Young

1. Throw out nonessential numbers. This includes age, weight and height. Let the doctor worry about them. That is why you pay him/her. (I love this one)
 2. Keep only cheerful friends. The grouches pull you down.
 3. Keep learning. Learn more about the computer, crafts, gardening, whatever. Never let the brain idle. "An idle mind is the devil's workshop." And the devil's name is Alzheimer's.
 4. Enjoy the simple things.
 5. Laugh often, long and loud. Laugh until you gasp for breath.
 6. The tears happen. Endure, grieve, and move on. The only person who is with us our entire life is God. Be ALIVE while you are alive.
 7. Surround yourself with what you love, whether it's family, pets, keepsakes, music, plants, hobbies, whatever. Your home is your refuge.
 8. Cherish your health. If it is good, preserve it. If it is unstable, improve it. If it is beyond what you can improve, get help.
 9. Don't take guilt trips. Take a trip to the mall, to the next county, to a foreign country, but NOT to where the guilt is.
 10. Tell people you love them; at every opportunity.
- And always remember: Life is not measured by the number of breaths we take but by the moments that take our breath away.

Good-bye until next week. God bless you and your family and God bless America.

Nomination Deadline

The Unsung Heroine Award recognizes women who have made significant contributions to the well-being and betterment of their community through their volunteer actions. Jennifer Vidis, Executive Director of the Cook County Commission on Women's Issues, said: "These honorees are our neighbors, our mothers, our sisters, our daughters. They make a difference in our lives through their generous gifts of their time, energy, expertise and leadership."

Commissioner Joan Patricia Murphy, stated nominees must be residents of Cook County and live in her 6th County Board District. These women must have a background of community involvement in a volunteer capacity and be someone who has not received widespread recognition. Commissioner Murphy encourages all community members in the 6th District to submit nominees. A panel of judges will determine the selection of the 6th District honoree. All other nominated women will receive an Official Certificate of Honorable Recognition. Nomination entry forms are available at Commissioner Joan Murphy's 6th District office at 5405 W. 127th St. in Crestwood or call (708) 389-2125 and one will be mailed. All entries must be received by Jan. 19th.

Inaugural Interfaith Prayer Service

Governor Rod R. Blagojevich and the First Family welcomed the Constitutional Officers to First Presbyterian Church in Springfield for the Inaugural Interfaith Prayer Service on Monday, Jan. 8th. Under the theme of Peace, a diverse clergy led the interfaith service, which ended with the Constitutional Party lighting the Unity Candle as a coming together to serve the people of Illinois.

The program brought together traditions from many of Illinois' religious groups. In addition to the diverse clergy leading the service, each Constitutional Officer invited their religious authority to lead their prayer of commitment. Musicians and choirs from Springfield, Decatur and Chicago decorated the service with various musical selections. All parts of the program fit within the theme of Peace, which was chosen to symbolize embracing humanity and the citizenry to move the state forward in addressing the most basic human needs - be it healthcare, education, or safety.

The First Presbyterian Church in Springfield also boasts a history rich in Illinois traditions. Abraham Lincoln and his family worshipped here from 1850 to 1861, when Lincoln left Springfield to assume the duties of President. The Lincoln family pew, from the church's original location at Third and Washington Streets, is still kept in the church.

The service began as organist Dr. Rudolf Zuiderveld invited parishioners into the First Presbyterian Church with a selection performed on the church's John Brombaugh Opus 35 Pipe Organ. The organ was crafted explicitly for the church by master American organ builder John Brombaugh. This organ features 3,250 pipes, three manuals and a pedal with 46 stops and has captured national and international attention since its 2000 installation. A native of the Netherlands, Zuiderveld serves as the First Presbyterian Church's organist as well as Professor of Music and College Organist at Illinois College.

As the procession of Constitutional Officers and clergy walked toward the pulpit, choirs of First Presbyterian Church and New Mission Church of God in Springfield led by Directors Susan Harris and Merle McNeese led the congregation in "America the Beautiful." The selection set the tone for the service as the theme of Peace was emphasized.

Driss El Akrich, Principal of the Sunday Islamic School at the Islamic Society of Greater Springfield read a passage of scripture. The Islamic Society, which serves close to 200 families in the Springfield area, helps Muslims to carry out religious, social, civic, charitable, and literary activities according to the teachings of Islam. Since its founding in 1994, the Society has focused on education and communication with Muslims and non-Muslims alike to create a better understanding of Islam.

Following Principal Akrich, Rabbi Michael Datz of Temple B'rith Shalom in Springfield read another passage of scripture. Temple B'rith Shalom, the oldest Jewish congregation in Central Illinois, boasts services that are known throughout the community for their beauty, dignity, music and inspiration. Rabbi Datz has been at Temple B'rith Shalom since 1992, in that time serving as board member for many of Central Illinois' important charitable organizations including the Central Illinois

Food Bank, the Springfield Liturgical Arts Council. Before coming to Springfield, Rabbi Datz led congregations in South Africa and the Netherlands.

Prior to a prayer of dedication, the choirs of the First Presbyterian Church and New Mission Church of God led the congregation in "Let There Be Peace on Earth." The Reverend Dr. Clifford J. Hayes of the First Presbyterian Church delivered a prayer of dedication. Dr. Hayes' pastoral focus is church revitalization and spiritual development of leaders, concentrating his studies for his Doctor of Ministry degree in mediation and conflict resolution. Since 1999, Rev. Hayes has trained in Family Systems in Congregations, including Healthy Congregation Facilitator Training.

After Reverend Hayes' prayer, Kingdom Come Ministries' Praise and Worship Team of Decatur sang "Total Praise" by Richard Smallwood, a song which gives thanks to the Lord for giving strength in times of struggle. The Praise and Worship Team is led by Apostle William and Lady Donna Rogers, minister of Kingdom Come.

Following the musical selection, each Constitutional Officer was led in a prayer of commitment by clergy of their choosing. Bishop Arthur Brazier of the Apostolic Church of God in Chicago led Gov. Blagojevich in his religious oath to the people of Illinois. The Governor was followed by Reverend Richard LaPata, President of Fenwick High School in Oak Park leading Lieutenant Governor Pat Quinn; Reverend Mike Byrnes, Pastor of Sacred Heart Seminary in Detroit leading Attorney General Lisa Madigan; Reverend Marvin Alexander of Union Missionary Baptist Church in Chicago leading Secretary Jesse White; Reverend John A. Farry of St. Andrew Catholic Church in Chicago leading Comptroller Daniel Hynes; and Father John Kalomas of St. Andrew's Greek Orthodox Church in Chicago leading Treasurer-elect Alex Giannoulis in their prayers of commitment.

The Praise and Worship team sang again following the prayers of commitment the song "Open the Eyes of My Heart" by Paul Baloche. Reverend Sen. James T. Meeks of Salem Baptist Church in Chicago then gave a message to the congregation. Rev. Meeks has been the pastor of Salem Baptist Church of Chicago since 1985; the church has grown from 200 to 24,000 followers under his leadership. As a state senator for the 15th District in Chicago, he had advocated for school reform and housing affordability. Meeks is the Chairperson of the Housing and Community Affairs Committee and Vice Chairperson of the Commerce and Economic Development Committee. Additionally, he is a member of the Senate Commerce, Appropriations, Education, Higher Education, and Senate Education Funding Reform Committees.

Finally, the Constitutional Officers came together to light the Unity Candle in celebration of another four years serving the people of Illinois in harmony. Georgia Northrup, Senior Elder of First Presbyterian Church and Reverend W. G. Robinson-McNeese, M.D. of New Mission Church of God then recited the benediction. As the Constitutional Officers made their way through the recession, Choirs of the First Presbyterian Church, New Mission Church of God, and Kingdom Come Ministries came together to sing "Let There Be Peace On Earth" bringing the theme of Peace full circle.

Praise For Gerald Ford

"In Gerald Ford, America got the right man at the right time. We were lucky.

At a time when the term is used a lot, Gerald Ford was a real American hero. He looked to serve not himself but America. He knew that his tough decision to issue the pardon would probably hurt his standing and might cost him re-election, yet he did it because he knew it was the right thing to do.

We can learn a lesson from his courageous decision. Do we want leaders who will stand up for what is right, or do we want politicians who will pander? Gerald Ford was a leader we should take inspiration from.

Gerald Ford was a hard worker, a man who quietly went about the job of leading and healing a nation that was in turmoil. Like Americans across the nation, I took inspiration in his integrity and leadership. Today we lost an American hero, but we should be grateful that he came to lead our nation when he did, with the great qualities we needed."

Safety Tips For Chicago's Competitive Stair Climbs

In the next few months, Chicago athletes will be tackling fundraising climbs up some of the city's tallest buildings - the Hancock Center, Aon Building and the Sears Tower.

Stair climbs are increasing in popularity as evidenced by the fact Hustle Up the Hancock, for example, which will be held on Sunday, Feb. 25, sold out in just 31 minutes in November and is expected to raise over $1,000,000 for research programs of the American Lung Association.

Getting ready for the climbs require preparation and proper safety precautions. Dr. Terry Nicola, Medical Director of Hustle Up the Hancock and the Director of Sports Medicine Rehabilitation at the University of Illinois Medical Center urges participants to pay proper attention to their overall health and nutrition. Here are his tips:

1. Make sure you have the approval of your personal physician to participate in strenuous exercise for these events. Be sure to know and understand the potential dangerous side effects of all medications and supplements you will be taking on the day of the event.

2. If you can easily run a distance of 5 kilometers (3.1 miles) you should be able to complete as much as a 90 floor plus stair climb event without extensive stair climbing practice if you make a point to avoid sudden muscle exhaustion and shortness of breath (breathlessness).

3. If you find yourself suddenly out of breath or tired, simply stop and allow your breathing and your muscles to relax. If you do not recover within five minutes or less, experience chest pain, muscle pain, nausea, vomiting, or simply do not feel well seek immediate attention from the volunteers in the stair well. Medical attention should be summoned.

4. Do not keep anything in your mouth, food, lozenge, or otherwise when climbing. You will risk aspiration and choking on that object. When drinking water at the water stops as you climb up it is recommended that you stop and finish drinking before resuming your climb.

5. Prior to the climb, do a gentle warm up such as very light jogging "in place" for a few minutes while waiting to climb. This should not be vigorous as to cause any fast breathing or muscle fatigue.

6. Avoid any large meal on the day of the climb. If you eat a 200-300 calorie snack such as a bagel, it should be at least three hours before the climb.

7. Stay well hydrated so that you should need to urinate on event day before the climb, preferably clear urine. If you start well hydrated, the event is short enough that you will not need to worry about dehydration during the event.

8. Deep breaths in and out are especially important to avoid fast and shallow breathing. Fast and shallow breathing will not deliver oxygen to the lungs and the rest of the body. The waste product of carbon dioxide is also cleared better by deep breaths.

9. If you find yourself coughing them you need to stop to let your airways open up again. Do not ignore this. Coughing must stop to avoid further spasm of air passage muscles and other reasons for airway blockage. Once you are breathing comfortably and do not feel ill at all you may continue.

10. Stop and consult the medical crew on site throughout the race if you have any concerns whatsoever about your medical condition or wellbeing on the day of the race.

Enjoy the climb and the view when you reach the top!

Seeking Mrs. Illinois

Marcie Aceto, the Illinois Director for the Mrs. Illinois America Pageant system is announcing that the search is still on for Mrs. Illinois. Once selected, the community representative will then advance on to compete in the Mrs. Illinois America Pageant held this year in the beautiful Hemmens Theatre in Elgin on June 29 and 30.

Contestants will compete to win thousands of dollars in prizes, one of which includes a paid trip for 15 days to compete for Mrs. America, at the Loews Ventana Canyon Resort, Tucson, Az.

Interested applicants must live or work in the Illinois area, must be married during the time of competition, a resident of the state for at least six months, a U.S. citizen and be at least 18 years old. There is no age limit or performing talent.

In its 30 years, the Mrs. America Pageant is the major beauty competition dedicated to recognizing the one person who contributes so much to modern family life...America's Married Woman. While beauty is a key element in the competition, Mrs. Illinois contestants are also urged to voice their opinions on marriage and important issues of the day.

Prospective contestants can request and receive free entry information by contacting Karen at (630) 325-4305.

Book Drive For Inner-City Children

Chris Brodecki, Boy Scout Troop 699, Palos Park, is collecting new and gently used children's books that will be donated to public elementary schools in Chicago where 70 percent or more of the students are reading below grade level. The book drive runs from Jan. 22nd through Feb. 16th.

He is running the book drive as part of a requirement for his Eagle Scout rank. The requirement states that any candidate must plan, develop and give leadership to others in a service project helpful to the community.

"We are asking students and their parents to bring us books that are enjoyable, fun reading for inner-city children ages five through thirteen," says Chris. "It's a great 'kids helping kids' program to improve literacy."

The books will be donated to Book Worm Angels, a not-for-profit organization. The mission of Book Worm Angels is to put lending libraries in each classroom in Chicago elementary schools where so many children are reading below grade level. Principals, teachers and parents are encouraged to present these books as fun reading, not schoolwork.

"We believe that kids who read will succeed," says Kermit Myers, a retired businessman who founded Book Worm Angels in 1999. "Many of the participating schools are convinced that our program has improved reading scores, which probably also improves performance in other subjects."

Myers says that more than 30,000 at-risk children now can borrow books right in their classrooms. Over 400,000 books have been collected to date and put into 53 inner-city schools.

Brodecki says anyone with children's books in good condition can bring them to any of the following locations:

Palos Park Recreation Hall, 8901 W. 123rd St. in Palos Park.

Starbucks, 13000 S. LaGrange Road in Palos Park.

Palos Park Fire House, 13010 S. 104th Ave. in Palos Park.

Huntington Learning Center, 15226 S. LaGrange Road in Orland Park.

For more information about the drive, contact Chris Brodecki at cdbrodecki@comcast.net or call (708) 256-9772. For more information about Book Worm Angels, visit www.bookwormangels.org, or call (773) 332-8091.

Looking good on the outside begins by being strong on the inside. That's because later in life, especially for women, strong bones help prevent fractures and height loss. Your window to build maximum bone density is now, during your late teens and early twenties. So eat wisely, get plenty of calcium and vitamin D, and do weight-bearing exercises every day. To devise a plan that's right for you, go to aaos.org or rjos.org.

Heart Smart For Women Program

Saint Xavier University invites area women to participate in a free Heart Smart for Women Program that begins Jan. 22 at Saint Xavier's Orland Park campus and Jan. 23 at Saint Xavier's Chicago campus. "Heart disease continues to be a growing concern for all Americans," said assistant nursing professor Monica Ryan, project director and director of Saint Xavier University's Health Center. "This program is designed to provide women with the tools and resources necessary to improve their quality of life."

Saint Xavier is able to offer the 12-week program at no charge to participants thanks to a $30,000 grant from the Illinois Department of Public Health's Office of Women's Health.

The Heart Smart for Women Program is open to all women, including local community members, students, faculty and staff of Saint Xavier University. The 12-week session is led by nurses and nurse practitioners and includes guest speakers such as fitness experts, dietitians and stress management consultants. Each participant will be provided an opportunity to meet with a nurse prior to the start of the program to evaluate blood pressure, weight, height, fasting lipids and body mass index. These measurements will also be available to each participant three months after they complete the program to evaluate progress.

The weekly session at the Orland Park campus, located at 18230 Orland Parkway, will meet from 1 to 2:30 p.m. on Mondays starting Jan. 22. The weekly session at the Chicago campus, located at 3700 W. 103rd St., will meet from 5 to 6:30 p.m. on Tuesdays starting Jan. 23. A special session specifically designed for SXU students will meet from 3 to 4:30 p.m. on Thursdays starting Jan. 25 at the Chicago campus. All sessions conclude the week of April 16 (there is no class the week of April 2).

Registration is now open and will continue until each session has 20 participants. For more information, please contact the Health Center at Saint Xavier University at (773) 298-3914 or visit www.sxu/health_center.

Oak Lawn Senior Happenings

It is at this time the Oak Lawn Senior Center would like to thank the Village of Oak Lawn. The recent changes at the Senior Center have made life a little easier for those showing the signs of aging. By recent changes, we are speaking of much more accessible curbs, more handicap parking and automatic doors to the Senior Center. When using a walker, wheelchair or cane, the little things seem to turn into huge issues. Every advantage helps those with a disadvantage. Special thanks go out to Village Clerk Jane Quinlan for her endless efforts; Lynn Krauss, Public Works Director, for his implementation of the projects; and Roger Minnis, also of the Public Works Dept., who follows through with every project that is tossed his way.

The Oak Lawn Senior Center is located in the heart of town. The many recreational activities include Bridge, Canasta, Movies, Pinochle, Rummikub, Line Dancing and day trips. Health screenings and exercise programs are also available. Monthly, a variety of additional programs are added. It is also a resource center for the many needs of our seniors. The Center is open Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. and located at 5330 W. 95th St.

UPCOMING SPECIAL ACTIVITIES:
INCOME TAX PREPARATION

Beginning Jan. 29th the Center will offer income tax assistance for Oak Lawn seniors. Before calling for an appointment be sure to have all pertinent information. Documents needed would be your Social Security statement, interest and dividend statements, Real Estate property tax bill for 2006 and last year's tax return. Our volunteers are trained by the IRS and can prepare simple tax forms. Call 499-0240 for an appointment.

Monday, Jan. 22nd at 10 a.m.

A speaker from the Cook County State's Attorney's Office will present a short seminar. Senior citizens are extremely vulnerable to specific types of criminal activity. The audience will be made aware of the many ways that they can avoid victimization of crime. By giving the seniors the knowledge to protect themselves, they will have the tools to live a more productive life.

Thursday, Jan. 25th at 10:30 a.m.

The last Thursday of every month is designated Box Lunch Day. The sponsor of this lunch will be the Morningside Group. They create premier residential and mixed-use communities in urban locations throughout the Midwest. Long recognized as a leader in the design and construction of highly acclaimed condominiums, Morningside excels at both attending to homeowners' needs and gloriously fulfilling their dreams. Following the success of Arbor Court on 96th St., Morningside is pleased to announce their newest condo development, Prairie Town Center, which will be located at 9530 S. Cook Ave. Morningside will be at the Center for the Box Lunch Day with further information. Thanks to our sponsor, the cost of the lunch is only $3 for the senior. Space is limited and a ticket may be purchased at the Center by Jan. 15th. Along with lunch, bingo will be played. Lunch will consist of baked ham, potatoes au gratin, corn and a roll.

For further details or assistance, you may call 499-0240 or drop by to pick up a schedule of events and activities and monthly movie schedule.

Oak Lawn Library Book Sale Donations

The Friends of the Oak Lawn Library are now accepting donations of "gently used" books, magazines and audio visual material to sell at their Ongoing Book Sale located within the library, 5300 W. 95th St.

Patrons may drop off donations on a designated table near the library's Cook Ave. entrance. In addition to books, the Friends welcome CDs, records, audio cassettes, DVDs, VHS tapes and other forms of media. Due to space limitations, the Friends will not accept Readers Digest Condensed Books, encyclopedias and out-of-date textbooks. Patrons may fill out a form at the Reception Booth to receive a tax letter in the mail to acknowledge their donation.

The Friends Ongoing Book Sale provides an ever-changing variety of books, magazines and audio visual material at bargain prices. Hardcover books cost 50 cents each, paperbacks are 25 cents, and magazines cost five cents each. Other items are priced as marked. Funds collected by the book sale support library programming and purchases that are beyond the library's budget. Since 1978, the Friends have provided more than $250,000 in gifts to the library.

For more information, call (708) 422-4990.

AMBER Alert Awareness Day

Governor Rod R. Blagojevich announced that Illinois joined several other states across the nation to recognize Jan. 13th as AMBER Alert Awareness Day. The day marked the 11th anniversary of the abduction and brutal murder of Amber Hagerman, who was kidnapped while riding her bicycle in Arlington, Texas. As a tribute to her, the AMBER Alert System began in 1997 and today is in place in all 50 states to help find abducted children.

To mark the anniversary in Illinois, a poster contest for grades K-12 is being sponsored by the Illinois AMBER Alert Task Force. The contest will conclude on May 25 (Missing Children's Day). This year's poster theme is "Bringing Our Missing Children Home," with a fifth-grade winner's entry being submitted in the National Missing Children's Day Poster Contest. The competition will also provide teachers with an additional resource to teach students about safety issues. Information relating to the contest can be found on the Illinois AMBER Alert Task Force website, www.amberillinois.org.

Gov. Blagojevich created the Illinois AMBER Task Force in April 2003. At that time, Illinois was one of only two states in the nation to create a partnership with the National Weather Service and the Broadcasters Association. Through the partnership, the Illinois State Police have been able to send information on abducted children to radio and television outlets throughout the state for immediate broadcast.

"The response to a tragedy 11 years ago has become one of law enforcement's most valuable tools when a child has been abducted," said Illinois State Police Director Larry G. Trent. "The concept has grown from media alerts, to highway message boards, and most recently, to text messages on cell phones. The number of children recovered through the use of the AMBER Alert is remarkable."

The Illinois AMBER Alert Notification Plan is a voluntary partnership between law-enforcement agencies, broadcasters, and the National Weather Service designed to assist children under the age of 16 who have been abducted and are at risk. It does not apply to missing children in general and specific criteria must be met for activation by the local police agency. There must be enough information available about the kidnapper or the child, such as appearance or vehicle description which could potentially lead to apprehension of the suspect and recovery of the child.

"As first responders, Illinois' broadcasters welcome their critical role as members of the AMBER Alert team and applaud the professionalism of the rest of the team represented by the Illinois State Police and the National Weather Service," remarked Dennis Lyle, President and CEO of the Illinois Broadcasters Association. "Clearly, every AMBER Alert activation in Illinois illustrates the importance and effectiveness of local broadcasters and the Illinois Emergency Alert System."

The Governor's announcement will help educate the general public about AMBER Alert. AMBER stands for America's Missing: Broadcast Emergency Response. It is a tool used by law enforcement, in combination with other means, to bring about the safe return of an abducted child. The goal of the AMBER Alert is to instantly notify an entire community to assist in the search for and safe return of the child. According to the U.S. Department of Justice, the AMBER Alert system, is a proven success and has helped rescue more than 308 children nationwide.

"What's great about the AMBER Alert system is that through coordination of existing resources we are able to make a difference," said IDOT Secretary Timothy W. Martin. "We have our changeable message boards in place to assist travelers, but through coordination with our AMBER partners, we are able to turn them into a valuable tool to assist law enforcement in a moment."

In the event a child, adult, or vehicle fitting the AMBER Alert description is spotted, immediately call the telephone number given in the AMBER Alert and provide authorities with as much information as possible.

If you would like to have additional information on AMBER, visit the Department of Justice website: www.ojp.usdoj.gov/amber/alert/home.html.

Cardinal George Honors Influential Residents

Hundreds gathered at the recent St. Joseph College Seminary's 16th Annual Seminary Salutes Dinner which featured the presentation of the 2006 Rerum Novarum Awards. Relishing in the evening's festivities were (left to right) Justice resident Elizabeth Drea, Cardinal Francis George, OMI, and Elizabeth Drea's husband Tim from U.F.C.W. Local 181.

The 16th Annual Seminary Salute to Labor, Business and Government featured the presentation of the Rerum Novarum awards by Cardinal George, to honor men and women in labor, business, and government who have proven outstanding in their support of the following ideals: respect for the dignity of the human being and human labor, the right to organize and the right to a living wage. The 2006 recipients are: labor recipient Frank Harmon, a principal account executive at Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Illinois; Charles P. Carey, Chairman of the Chicago Board of Trade and partner in the commodity trading firm Henning and Carey, representing the business sector and Terrence J. O'Brien, President/Commissioner of the Metropolitan Water Reclamation District of Greater Chicago (MWRDGC), representing government. These individuals were selected based on their outstanding contributions to the community and demonstrated devotion to social responsibility and justice.

The "Seminary Salutes" dinner benefited St. Joseph College Seminary at Loyola University of Chicago, with all proceeds supporting the St. Joseph College Seminary Scholarship Funds and Programs.

Achieving Your Financial Goals

Imagine putting aside extra money each month. Don't think it's feasible? Look no further than the coins rattling around in your pocket. Starting small is ok, as long as you start.

Whether you're saving for your own home, starting your kid's college fund, or adding to your retirement nest egg, saving your spare change and making small changes in your spending habits can add up to big money. Learn about the different ways you can develop and improve your savings, investment, and retirement strategies with the free Financial Planning kit from the Met Life Consumer Education Center and Federal Citizen Information Center.

Begin by using the handy worksheet to map out your monthly spending plan. Fill in your total income and subtract your expenses such as housing, food, clothing, gas, and entertainment from this total. If you want to increase the amount you're saving, look over the plan to see where you can reduce your expenses.

Here are a few ideas to help you get started. Take your lunch to work and have more meals at home. Shop around for a free checking account or one with no minimum balance requirement. Use coupons when you shop, compare unit prices, and always grocery shop with a list. And ask your physician about switching to generic drugs.

With all of your savings, you need to make sure you choose the best savings and investment options. That's why the Financial Planning kit features useful information on certificates of deposit (CDs), stocks, bonds, mutual funds, and more. This informative kit also gives you the facts on the different types of retirement savings accounts, such as 401(k) plans, and how to make the most out of your contributions.

You may think having a will is only for the wealthy or those with children. But a will is important because it ensures that your assets, whatever they are, are distributed according to your wishes after you die. Find out what you'll need to consider when creating your will, including designating a guardian for any minor children and naming an executor, with the Financial Planning kit.

So round up your lucky pennies and start achieving your financial goals. Send for the free Financial Planning kit today. There are three easy ways to get your free publication:

Visit www.pueblo.gsa.gov/rc/n54financialplanning.htm to read or print out this and hundreds of other federal publications for free.

Energy Hog Efficiency Campaign

With electricity efficiency education a growing priority, the Illinois Electric Council (IEC) is pleased to announce its partnership in the national "Energy Hog" Campaign. IEC is the first Illinois partner of the national program.

The Alliance to Save Energy's collaboration with the Ad Council raises awareness of the benefits of energy efficiency and conservation through the use of a dastardly spokes-villain - the energy wasting Energy Hog. The Energy Hog illustrates the acts of wasting energy and is designed to have broad appeal to youth audiences aged eight to thirteen years old, as well as adults who pay the energy bills and are decision-makers for home efficiency improvements.

IEC is listed as a campaign partner on the Energy Hog Web site, www.energyhog.org, with a link to the IEC site. Likewise, IEC provides a link from the IEC Web site, www.IECouncil.org, home page and Efficiency section. IEC will also use the traveling Energy Hog mascot costume for two events in 2007. Having the Energy Hog make appearances at the Illinois State Fair and Farm Progress Show will be great additions to the other IEC educational activities at the events.

Compelling TV and radio public service announcements (PSAs) were recently distributed by the Ad Council. An array of available print materials include classroom guides for teachers, activity books for students, bookmarks, tattoos and more. A cornerstone of the campaign is the Energy Hog Web site, www.Energyhog.org.

The Energy Hog Web site, which is aimed at children, also includes resources for parents and teachers, as well as Internet versions of the Energy Hog ads. The Web site's main attractions are the Energy Hog Training Camp and its five training games, where children can train to become Energy Hog Busters and learn fun and simple ways to use energy more efficiently.

CAGW's Analysis Of Earmark Reforms

Citizens Against Government Waste (CAGW) recently released Guide to Earmark Reform. The report evaluates the recently passed House ethics package (H. Res. 6) and the president's proposal for earmark reforms, and compares each with CAGW's recommendations.

Proposed by the new Democratic majority and approved on Jan. 4th, the House ethics rules will be in effect for the duration of the 110th Congress. The earmark restrictions go much further than the rules change passed by the Republican-led House in September 2006. In an editorial and speech on Jan. 3rd, President Bush offered his own ideas for earmark reforms.

Guide to Earmark Reform gauges the new measures against ten "gold standard" recommendations long favored by CAGW, covering details such as the definition of an "earmark," the extent of transparency, and the practice of "air-dropping" earmarks into conference reports.

Guide to Earmark Reform is available at www.cagw.org. The Senate plans to take up its ethics reform legislation this week. The report will be updated with Senate provisions as they are proposed and approved.

Citizens Against Government Waste is a nonpartisan, nonprofit organization dedicated to eliminating waste, fraud, mismanagement and abuse in government.

Mayor Stranczek Dinner Dance

Final preparation for the 37th Annual Dinner Dance honoring Crestwood Mayor Chester Stranczek are being made by the dinner dance committee.

This event is being held Friday, Jan. 26th at the Double Tree Hotel, 5000 W. 127th St. The evening will begin with cocktails at 7 p.m. followed by dinner. The entertainment for the evening is comedian, Mike Toomey, with pleasurable listening and dancing music to follow.

Tickets are still available through Nancy Benedetto at $60 per person, including open bar.

Healthcare Refunds

Mark Donahue, President of the Fraternal Order of Police, Chicago Lodge #7, recently presented refund checks to retirees who overpaid their healthcare contributions. When President Donahue saw the substantial increases in contributions for retired Chicago Police Officers that were to take effect in March of 2005 he knew something was amiss. The Fraternal Order of Police had just recently completed bargaining on a new work agreement with the City and being aware that the City healthcare costs had not increased dramatically in Chicago as they had elsewhere across the country, the F.O.P. dispatched their lawyers and accountant to investigate the City's rate hikes that went into effect in September of 2003.

To date, more than $15,000,000 has been returned to City of Chicago retirees because of the F.O.P.'s actions.

Applications For Summer Internships

Students enrolled in college or business technology schools and in good academic standing are encouraged to apply for summer internships with City Clerk Miguel del Valle's office. Applications for student internships with the Clerk's Office will be accepted online only at www.cityofchicago.org/careerworks now through Feb. 9th.

"Student interns will gain valuable work experience in my office performing various administrative functions and assisting with vehicle sticker sales," said del Valle. "We are accepting applications now so that students can apply during their winter break."

The paid internship is a temporary position for full-time employment during the summer. There are 3 eight-week programs during the time periods of May 16th through July 15th, June 1st through July 31st, and June 16th through Aug. 15th. The entry rate is $7.50 per hour. The position will be listed as "Student Intern - City Clerk" on the City of Chicago's Human Resources web page at www.cityofchicago.org/careerworks.

Selection for employment will be based on information provided on the application. Qualified applicants will be placed on an employment list and names will be drawn from the list through a lottery drawing conducted by the Chicago Dept. of Human Resources. Student applicants must be actual residents of Chicago; however, those attending colleges or business schools outside the city are still eligible to apply. Please note that applicants must be available to work for the entire 8-week program.

Proceed With U.S. Bid For 2016 Games

Following an 18-month evaluation process that has involved five United States cities and in-person interviews with more than 100 leaders in international sport, the United States Olympic Committee (USOC) announced today that it intends to proceed with a U.S. bid for the 2016 Olympic and Paralympic Games.

Later this year, the USOC will formally nominate either Chicago or Los Angeles to the International Olympic Committee (IOC) as the United States Applicant City for the 2016 Games.

"We began our evaluation process 18 months ago with one specific goal in mind, which was to assess whether or not a U.S. bid for the 2016 Games could be competitive internationally," said USOC Chairman Peter Ueberroth. "Based on our analysis, we believe the time is right for a U.S. city to bid, and we fully intend to proceed with a unified, national effort to bring the Games back to America in 2016."

"In Chicago and Los Angeles, we have two outstanding cities that are working every day in partnership with the USOC to develop bids that are of the highest technical merit," added Ueberroth. "These cities understand that, if chosen as the U.S. Applicant City, the competitiveness of the international process will be beyond anything they have ever experienced. The unprecedented global competition to host the Games is a reflection of how far-reaching and important the Olympic Movement is to our world today."

USOC Vice President, International Bob Ctvrtlik (stuh-vert-lick), who is guiding the domestic bid process, lauded the decision as another example of how the United States Olympic Committee has become a more active and engaged partner in the world of international sport.

"Our decision to bid is just one aspect of a much larger international relations strategy designed to create more meaningful partnerships and a greater level of engagement with the worldwide Olympic Family," said Ctvrtlik. "The Chicago and Los Angeles bids are led by passionate teams who believe, as do we, that the Olympic Movement holds more hope and promise for the future than any other international movement at work today. It is active 365 days a year in more than 200 countries around the world, instilling the values of fair play, mutual respect, friendship and peace through sport in millions of young people - young people whose values will shape our world tomorrow. From our collective perspective, that is something worth campaigning for."

The USOC evaluation process began in July 2005 shortly after the 117th International Olympic Committee (IOC) Session in Singapore, at which London was selected to host the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games. Domestically, the USOC has pared a field of five candidate cities to two - Chicago and Los Angeles - in order to select the one U.S. city that has the best chance of succeeding in the increasingly competitive global competition to host the Games. Internationally, the USOC has surveyed IOC members and other influential sport leaders to determine 1) how a U.S. bid for the 2016 Games would be received and 2) voters' impressions of the U.S. cities under consideration.

"Our process, which is patterned directly after the process the International Olympic Committee employs in its assessment of bid cities, has been effective in driving our cities toward plans that specifically address the full scope of requirements measured by the IOC," said USOC Chief Executive Officer Jim Scherr. "I believe that when our domestic process is complete, America will have a bid for the 2016 Games that is both technically excellent and visionary in what it offers the Olympic Movement. I am optimistic about our chances in this marathon."

There are four more critical steps in the USOC process: on Jan. 22, Chicago and Los Angeles will submit their domestic bid books to the USOC; at the end of February and the beginning of March, following a comprehensive review of the domestic bid books, a USOC Evaluation Team will conduct a two-day technical evaluation in each city; on April 14, the Evaluation Team will present its findings to the USOC Board of Directors and in addition, the Chicago and Los Angeles 2016 Bid Committees will make their final presentations to the USOC Board of Directors; on April 14, the USOC will select and announce its Applicant City for the 2016 Games.

The deadline by which a National Olympic Committee must nominate its 2016 Applicant City to the IOC is Sept. 15. The international campaign will last two years, concluding in October 2009 at the IOC Session in Copenhagen, Denmark when the 2016 Host City is selected.

New Video Game

The National Fire Protection Association (NFPA) launched a new Sparky the Fire Dog game to help children learn about emergency preparedness. The game, "Look and Learn," is now available free online. It stresses the importance of being prepared for an emergency by teaching children about items that should be included in an emergency supplies kit.

Each year natural disasters disrupt the lives of hundreds of thousands of children and their families. NFPA developed Risk Watch®: Natural Disasters to help children and their families deal with disasters before, during and after the event. Sparky's® new game is the latest addition to support this effort and is available by visiting NFPA's Risk Watch® Web site at <http://www.riskwatch.org> and entering the "Kids Only" section of the site.

"Everyone runs the risk of experiencing a natural disaster and that includes children," said Amy LeBeau, NFPA's communications manager of public education. "Sparky's new game is a great way for parents and teachers to educate children about emergency preparedness with a fun interactive lesson."

Players of Sparky's "Look and Learn" visit six different fun and interactive scenes as they are tasked with assisting Sparky by locating hidden items to complete his emergency supplies kit. During their search for the hidden items, players travel through a Hideaway Island, Campground, Safari, Haunted House, Underwater Adventure and Prehistoric Park to locate things like flashlights, batteries, extra clothing, a whistle, canned food and other items that are often necessities in an emergency. After finding all of the emergency supplies in each section of the game, children will be able to download and print out an emergency supplies checklist that they can use to make their own emergency supplies kit.

Sparky's "Look and Learn" game provides a fun and safe learning experience for kids and there is no advertising on the kids section of the site. The game is most appropriate for children in kindergarten through second grade, but may be of interest to all ages.

Sparky the Fire Dog, recognized the world over for his efforts to educate children and adults about fire prevention and life safety, has been the official spokesdog for the NFPA since 1951. Sparky's award-winning Web site, <http://www.sparky.org>, gives kids a safe environment to learn about keeping safe from fire and other hazards while at the same time, having fun. Sparky® and Sparky the Fire Dog® are registered trademarks of NFPA.

Quitclaim Deed, a Trap for the Unwary

The Quitclaim deed is a popular document in real estate parlance. Both lay and professional persons use it for a variety of purposes in the Real Estate Industry. However, in spite of its popularity and its benign appearance, it has an insidious history of abuse and misapplication where the unwary falls victim to its subversive character. To appreciate the character of the quitclaim deed we must compare it to its first and second cousins and its collateral relatives. The first cousin to the quitclaim deed is the Warranty Deed or as it is popularly known "General Warranty Deed." The General Warranty Deed possess all the character traits that a bargained for conveyance of real estate should have, i.e.:

Warranty of seisin. The grantor guarantees the grantee the right of possession.

Quiet enjoyment. The grantor guarantees that no one will encroach upon or challenge his possession.

Defense of Title. The grantor guarantees that he will defend all challenges to the title prior to the grantee's conveyance.

Freedom of encumbrances. The grantor guarantees the property to be free of liens, etc. at the time of conveyance.

Right to convey. The grantor guarantees the grantee the right to convey the property.

And the guarantees are from the beginning of time to current. The Special Warranty Deed is the second cousin. This document differs from the General Warranty Deed in one respect. Its guarantees are limited to the period in which the grantor held title to the property. The quitclaim deed possesses none of the guarantees or warranties of the General Warranty Deed of the Special Warranty Deed. The grantor of a quitclaim deed conveys to the grantee exactly the interest he or she has in the real property; "if he or she has no interest, they convey no interest." The grantor of a quitclaim deed does not guarantee warranty of seisin, quiet enjoyment, defense of title, freedom of encumbrances or the right to convey. A quitclaim deed is really an instrument of release. An example would be where one spouse disclaims an interest in property of the other spouse, or where in a divorce one spouse releases his or her interest to the other spouse. Or where there is a need to correct title, a quitclaim deed is used. In most common-law jurisdictions, a quitclaim deed is not considered a deed at all. And in some jurisdictions a buyer who receives a quitclaim deed is not considered to be BFP (bona fide purchaser for value). Instead a quitclaim deed is considered to be an instrument of estoppel, which means it estops or prevents the grantor of the quitclaim deed from later claiming that he or she has an interest in the property. Remember, the grantee of a quitclaim deed receives no better title than what the grantor possessed. This is reason enough for cause and concern when executing or receiving a Quitclaim Deed.

Respectfully yours,
S/S Eugene "Gene" Moore
Cook County Recorder of Deeds

Collins Sworn-In

State Senator Jacqueline Y. Collins (D-Chicago) was joined by friends and family as the 95th General Assembly commenced with the beginning of the spring 2007 session. The start of the spring session will mark Senator Collins' second term in office as a representative of the families of the 16th Senate District.

"I am looking forward to beginning my second term in the Illinois State Senate," said Collins. "Having the chance over the past four years to represent the people of the 16th District is something that I am most proud of in my life and I am eager to continue working on issues that will work to better the everyday lives of my constituents."

"Affordable housing and affordable health care for everyone will continue to be issues that I feel strongly about and will work toward making a reality for the citizens of this state," said Collins. "We must also continue to provide safeguards for people in our neighborhoods - whether it is protecting them from fraudulent lenders in the financial arena or it is protecting our children from the drug-dealers on the corner. We must continue to explore these areas and look for more ways to give families peace of mind in their homes."

Collins has been involved with a wide array of issues since joining the Senate in 2003. She fought for improvements to LIHEAP for the benefit of its members, helped more Illinois senior citizens qualify for the Homestead Exemption; imposed stricter regulations on the pay day loan industry; and combated the rising incidence of mortgage rescue fraud where homeowners have been increasingly swindled. Her most prolific accomplishment involved suspending state investment in companies doing business in the Republic of the Sudan - the first of its kind in the nation to pressure Sudan to end its policies of genocide and terrorism in Darfur.

As a former journalist and Emmy-award nominated editor at CBS-TV, Collins has used her journalism experience and communication skills to support progressive agendas in the General Assembly that seek to create economic and social welfare policies that reduce inequality, expand opportunities and strengthen communities.

All Points Southwest

By THOMAS E. GAVIN

Last week Governor Rod R. Blagojevich gave his 2007 inaugural address in which he thanked Illinois voters for the great confidence and honor they have once again bestowed upon him. He highlighted his administrations past four years' successes and offered a vision of future goals and expectations. We will attempt to recap the high points of his speech.

The Governor recognized veterans for their service, past and present, as well as their loving families for their sacrifices both home and abroad. He also thanked the gold star families who have made the ultimate sacrifice in defense of the nation.

He reminded attendees to think back to the workers who built the nation's industrial might, and how much we have inherited from them.

After a series of personal memories Governor Blagojevich chose to remind listeners about the government he inherited four years previously. He cited "a bloated bureaucracy, costing taxpayers millions, showing no results; a pension system built on a foundation of false promises; an educational system, under funded and children under challenged; debt and deficit and the promise of higher taxes. How could a state have been so betrayed, possessing a $5 billion budget deficit and no relief in sight?"

The Governor then offered a variety of positive responses to the above conditions that allowed his administration to balance the budget without raising income taxes or sales taxes. They included: closing corporate loop-holes which increased funding for schools; cutting the state workforce for the first time in modern Illinois history; consolidation of 20 agencies and eliminating 20 commissions, while adding a record $14 billion into the state pension fund; raised the minimum wage twice; and made Illinois the first state in the nation to make health care for every child a right.

Governor Blagojevich views Illinois government as smaller, more efficient, and fairer to the citizenry. He stated, "we changed a system of government that was more interested in serving itself instead of the people it was supposed to serve." And his proudest accomplishment? "Giving every child in Illinois access to health care," stated Blagojevich.

The Governor concluded by pronouncing that his activist government will focus on two challenges. "You will see a continued effort to cut waste and deliver the services our constituents demand and deserve, and since I still find our tax system regressive and unfair, we will do more while not raising taxes on the working people of this state."

Comprehensive, bi-partisan legislation that would make Illinois workplaces and indoor public places smoke-free has been introduced in the Illinois Senate, by co-sponsor State Senator Christine Radogno (R-Lemont).

Radogno joined a number of Senate and House lawmakers, as well as representatives from more than 400 public health and social service organizations in sponsoring Senate Bill 500, which calls for all indoor public places and workplaces in Illinois, including bars, casinos and restaurants, to be 100 percent smoke-free.

"I don't think that we can dispute that second-hand smoke does have a negative impact on people's health," said Radogno. "At this time, 16 states and hundreds of municipalities have passed comprehensive smoke-free workplace laws. I believe that a state-wide ban is inevitable, and there is popular support for a ban."

This year's Southside Irish Party at St. Margaret of Scotland will be held on Saturday, Feb. 24th, following the 6 p.m. mass in the Parish Hall. St.

Margaret of Scotland Parish is located at 99th and Throop St. in Chicago. Several hundred present and former parishioners will meet, greet and enjoy the camaraderie of old friends and the music and entertainment provided by Frank O'Hara, Sean O'Donnell and O'Loughlin Irish Dancers. A $20 ticket includes all entertainment, corned beef buffet, Budweiser, Pepsi-Cola, and more.

This year's party will be dedicated to the memory of one of the founders of the St. Margaret of Scotland Parish, Mrs. Donna Earner. For more information and tickets call Gene Earner at (708) 636-8827.

The Avon Walk for Breast Cancer Chicago "Great Start Party" will be held Saturday, Jan. 27th, from 1 to 3 p.m. at the Sears Tower - Metropolitan Club, 233 S. Wacker Drive, in Chicago. At the "Great Start Party" individuals and teams can register to walk or crew for the 2007 event, meet other participants, find out about local training walks, learn about the impact of past funds raised and more.

The Avon Walk for Breast Cancer Chicago is an annual noncompetitive event which offers women and men a choice of walking a marathon (26.2 miles) or a marathon and a half (39.3 miles) over the June 2-3 weekend to raise money and awareness to fight breast cancer. For more information call (800) 510-WALK or go to www.avonwalk.org.

Catholic Charities will join with more than 50 vintners on Sunday, Jan. 28th to host a d'Vine Affairs to bring its guests a sublime wine-tasting experience and raise money for its Self Sufficiency Programs.

The tasting, which begins at 1 p.m. at the Union League Club of Chicago, will feature 200 wines, gourmet hors d'oeuvres and desserts, a silent auction of exemplary wines, distinctive wine accessories and entertainment. Tasting will last until 5 p.m. During this time, guests may also attend a Wine Seminar, which will discuss pairing wine with food and educate attendees on tasting techniques.

For an additional cost, guests can attend a Vintner Dinner, during which they can enjoy specially selected wine paired with each course, in the company of expert vintners.

All proceeds will benefit Catholic Charities Self-Sufficiency Programs in Cook and Lake counties. These programs provide housing for homeless families and assist them in obtaining secure employment. Tickets are $100 per person. To purchase a ticket, or to make a donation, call (312) 655-7907.

The Jewish United Fund/Jewish Federation of Metropolitan Chicago has relocated its headquarters to 30 S. Wells St., at the northwest corner of Monroe and Wells.

The move was initiated by the need for major renovations at the JUF/Federation facility. The move is projected to save an estimated $18 million over 25 years. JUF/Federation has created a private lobby and entrance on the Wells Street side of the building. All phone numbers and e-mail addresses remain the same. Additionally, the honorary name of Ben Gurion Way has been transferred from the One South block of Franklin St. to the One South block of Wells St.

For more information call (312) 346-6700.

Holiday Debt Tips

Opening gifts during the holidays is fun; opening the resulting bills is no fun at all. Yet every holiday season millions of consumers use their credit cards to finance gifts they don't have the cash to pay for. Around the middle of January, holiday bills start arriving and a strong case of post-holiday remorse sets in.

When faced with the post-holiday blues, debt can seem overwhelming and impossible to handle. If you are feeling sick from your holiday hangover, consider the following advice from the experts at Consumer Credit Counseling Services of Greater Chicago, a division of Money Management International (MMI):

- Create a damage sheet. List the names of your creditors, the amount owed to each and the interest rates, then total it all up. Update your damage sheet monthly and put it in a place where you will see it regularly. A damage sheet will help track the progress you have made towards eliminating your holiday debt.

- Create a budget and a 90-day repayment plan. Track your expenses for two weeks so you can be sure that every expense is included. Look out for unnecessary expenses that can be eliminated and apply the extra funds towards your debt.

- Shelve your credit cards. Take them out of your wallet and leave them at home. In fact, store them with your damage sheet to remind you of your balances. If you have to use credit, avoid charging anything that cannot be paid off in 90 days.

- Remember to pay at least the minimum amount on all accounts each month to avoid costly late charges and damage to your credit report. Send any extra funds to the credit cards with the highest interest rates.

- Establish a 2007 holiday savings account so that relying on credit next year won't be necessary. Take the total amount spent during the holidays in 2006 and divide by twelve months. This is the amount you should save each month.

- Take a good look at your spending habits and create a plan so that all your spending can be accomplished with cash. Remember, credit is not an extension of your income!

- If you feel overwhelmed, or don't have the resources to handle your post-holiday debt, consider credit counseling from a reputable source such as Money Management International (www.moneymanagement.org). A credit counselor can help you develop a plan to pay off your current debt and build savings to help cover future expenses.

"Treat this year's holiday charges as a learning experience and resolve to do better next year," said Cate Williams, vice president of financial literacy for CCCS of Greater Chicago. "Make certain that in January 2008, you can focus on starting the New Year debt free."

Consumer Credit Counseling Services (CCCS) is a non-profit, full-service credit-counseling agency, providing confidential financial guidance, counseling and debt management assistance to consumers since 1958. CCCS helps consumers trim their expenses, develop a spending plan and repay debts. Counseling is available by appointment in branch offices and 24/7 by telephone and Internet. Services are available in English or Spanish. To learn more, call 800-762-2271 or visit their Web site at www.moneymanagement.org.

Expands Emerald Ash Borer Quarantine

The Illinois Dept. of Agriculture has expanded its emerald ash borer quarantine to include all of Kane County.

Detection of the tree-killing beetle outside the boundaries of the original quarantine prompted the expansion. The detection occurred in Hampshire, Elgin, Plato and Blackberry Townships and resulted from tree surveys to determine the extent of the Kane County beetle infestation.

"The surveys, which involved the inspection of ash trees throughout the county, were a collaborative effort of local, state and federal partners," Agriculture Director Chuck Hartke said. "While we were hoping the results would show the infestation was contained to the area where it was first discovered, the exhaustive work of survey participants will help us to develop a strategy to manage this destructive pest."

The quarantine was established after the emerald ash borer was discovered in Campton Township last June and originally encompassed 51 square miles, a territory that included the rural subdivision west of St. Charles where the beetle was first found in Illinois.

It prohibits the removal of the following items from the county:

- The emerald ash borer in any living stage of development.
- Ash trees of any size.
- Ash limbs and branches.
- Any cut, non-coniferous firewood.
- Bark from ash trees and wood chips larger than one inch from ash trees.
- Ash logs and lumber with either the bark or the outer one inch of sapwood, or both, attached.
- Any item made from or containing the wood of the ash tree that is capable of spreading the emerald ash borer.
- Any other article, product or means of conveyance determined by the Illinois Dept. of Agriculture to present a risk of spreading the beetle infestation.

Anyone convicted of moving prohibited items from the quarantine area without prior certification by an Illinois Dept. of Agriculture nursery inspector may be fined up to $500.

Forty-one trees in Kane County are confirmed to be infested with the beetle, including 31 in Campton Township. Seven of the 41 were identified through a survey method known as bark peeling. After a tree is removed, inspectors using this technique strip the bark from its trunk or branches and examine the bare wood for beetle larvae. Three infestations were detected using trap trees, a survey method where a ring of bark is removed from a tree to distress it, which makes the tree more attractive to the ash borer beetle. The rest were identified through visual inspections.

In addition to Kane County, the beetle, which has killed more than 20 million ash trees in North America, also has been found in the Cook County communities of Wilmette, Evanston and Winnetka.

"Tree surveys are underway to determine the extent of the infestation in Cook County," Warren Goetsch, bureau chief of Environmental Programs, said. "Significant progress has been made, but because the beetle was discovered there in July, a month after the detection in Kane County, the work will take longer to complete."

A beetle quarantine also is in effect in northern Cook County. Its boundaries extend north to south from the Lake County line to the northernmost city limit of Chicago and east to west from Lake Michigan to Interstate 294.

The Kane and Cook county quarantines regulate the intrastate movement of potentially contaminated wood products. The states of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Michigan have been placed under a federal quarantine. It prohibits the interstate movement of these same products.

How the emerald ash borer arrived in Illinois is unknown, but the department suspects it may have been transported here in contaminated firewood. To avoid the accidental introduction of the beetle to new areas, the department encourages Illinoisans to purchase only locally grown nursery stock and locally cut firewood.

Anyone who suspects a tree has been infested is urged to contact their county Extension office or their village forester for a consultation.

Strictly Sail® Chicago Docks

The largest annual gathering of sailors in the Midwest will be held Feb. 1st to 4th in Chicago at Navy Pier, 600 E. Grand Ave. Hours are 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Thursday and Friday, Feb. 1st and 2nd; Saturday, Feb. 3rd from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Sunday, Feb. 4th from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. The show expects more than 20,000 sailing enthusiasts of all skill levels to attend, in addition to over 250 exhibitors on-hand to showcase the latest sailboats and sailing accessories on the market.

Launched in 1996, Strictly Sail Chicago has become an annual tradition for the local and regional sailing community to discuss the upcoming season, as well as view, board and buy the newest sailboats, gear and accessories.

"Strictly Sail Chicago is the largest indoor sailboat show in the country and has become a highly anticipated gathering place for sailors around the country in the middle of winter," says Kevin Murphy, show manager. "This show has grown considerably in exhibitors and attendees over the course of eleven years and prides itself on offering sailing enthusiasts of all skill levels the opportunity to enjoy the sport."

The latest 2007 sailboat models will be one of the hottest tickets at this year's show. In addition to access to the latest sailboats, accessories and gear, attendees will have the opportunity to attend more than 200 educational seminars.

Strictly Sail Chicago's comprehensive seminar series has become one of the show's top features. Seminars allow sailing novices to learn the basics, while seasoned seafarers can discover new techniques. Sailing celebrities will also be available to share tales of their experiences at sea.

Some symposia require enrollment to attend, including: Marine Weather Workshop: Part 1, Feb. 1st, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., Part 2, Feb. 2nd 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Learn to make informed weather decisions for safer, self-reliant offshore voyaging in this 2-day workshop led by marine meteorologist, Lee Chesneau. Limited enrollment through strictlysail.com. You must complete part one before signing up for part two.

Ultimate Sailing: Feb. 1st, 1:30 to 2 p.m., Feb. 2nd, 12 to 12:30 p.m. & 1:30 to 2 p.m. This is a series of seven topics highlighting the most dramatic moments in sailing, which includes Newport-Bermuda Race, The Olympic Games, 2005 Rolex Transatlantic Challenge, 2006 College Sailing Nationals, Paradise Found: Sailing the BVI, The America's Cup and the Volvo Ocean Race. Sponsored by Jobson Sailing and conducted by Gary Jobson. Call 1-800-221-4326 or e-mail sail@offshore-sailing.com.

Coastal Navigation: Feb. 1st to 4th. If you're new to sailing and want to learn more about navigation, if you already have the basics down and want to become a skilled navigator, an exciting opportunity awaits you this winter - at the best all-sail boat shows held in the United States. Sign up for our four-day US SAILING Coastal Navigation course and immerse yourself in sailing. Call 1-800-221-4326 or e-mail sail@offshore-sailing.com.

Learn to Sail in a Day: Saturday Feb. 3rd, 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Top-notch learning experience for sailors of all levels with five hours of professional classroom instruction, including content and visuals from Offshore Sailing School's highly respected Learn to Sail program. Sponsored by Hunter Marine and conducted by Kevin Wensley, Steve and Doris Colgate. Call 1-800-221-4326 or e-mail sail@offshore-sailing.com.

Show attendees are also encouraged to bring the kids along and enjoy the Kids' Club, an activity center designed for junior sailors. Children will have the opportunity to build their own sailboat models, draw "sailboats of the future," learn knot tying and race boats in the makeshift "lake" on the show floor. Strictly Sail Chicago is designed to accommodate families and children, especially those that are newcomers to sailing looking to be introduced to the sport.

Admission: is $12 on Thursday and Friday (Adults); $15 on Saturday and Sunday (Adults); $24 for a Two-Day Adult Pass; $25 for a Family Pack (2 Adult, 2 Child Tickets) - available online only; free for children 15 years and under (when accompanied by an adult); and $75 for VIP Club (4-day pass; exclusive member benefits) - available online only.

Chicago Neighborhood Tours

The Chicago Office of Tourism is proud to announce its 2007 season of Chicago Neighborhood Tours with motor coach tours departing from the Chicago Cultural Center, 77 E. Randolph St. at Michigan Ave., on Saturday mornings throughout the year. With its core Neighborhood Tour series, its popular Special Interest Tours, along with the new Summertime Sampler Tours, the Chicago Neighborhood Tours calendar offers more in-depth perspectives of the city's neighborhoods and cultural offerings than ever.

The heart of the program is the Neighborhood Tour series. Here guests have a chance to take an insider's look at Chicago's neighborhoods and communities with local residents as tour guides. Each tour takes visitors off the beaten path and provides a look at the traditions, stories and people of the city.

The Special Interest Tours are better than ever as visitors venture into a specific topic of interest. New this year is the Chicago's Magnificent Churches Special Interest Tour. Tour goers gain insight into the city's past and present at great historic churches, led by architectural expert Thomas O'Gorman. Other Special Interest Tours explore the Great Chicago Fire, historic cemeteries, Literary Chicago, and the history of Greek, Polish and Irish culture in Chicago. Returning this year is The White City Tour, where once a month beginning in February and continuing through November, visitors travel to the original site of the 1893 World's Columbian Exposition.

The Summertime Sampler Tours are a way to spice up your summer. Taking place every Thursday from May 31st through Aug. 30th, each three-hour tour visits three neighborhoods.

The great flavors of the city have not been forgotten. Guests can taste their way through Chicago's neighborhoods on a mouthwatering Taste of the Neighborhoods Tour. Formerly known as Neighborhood Sampling, this popular Special Interest Tour takes place every month except December as guests go on a culinary safari to numerous ethnic restaurants throughout the city.

To make reservations for Chicago Neighborhood Tours or to receive a 2007 calendar of upcoming Chicago Neighborhood Tours, call (312) 742-1190 or visit www.ChicagoNeighborhoodTours.com.

Beverly Theatre Guild Presents 'The Rainmaker'

The Beverly Theatre Guild (BTG) presents "The Rainmaker," written by N. Richard Nash and directed by Amanda Barclay of Evergreen Park, at the Beverly Arts Center, 2407 W. 111th St., Chicago, Jan. 19, 20 and 21.

The cast includes Brian Leo (left) of Mokena as Noah Curry; Phil Carlin (center) of Beverly as HC Curry; Jason Murphy (right) of Evergreen Park as Jimmy Curry; also Cathy Kennerk of LaGrange Park as Lizzie Curry; Gil Ojiva of Burbank as File; John Neumann of Beverly as Sheriff Thomas and Dan Murphy of Darien as Starbuck.

"The Rainmaker" is the story of Lizzie Curry who learns that love is there only if you believe and Starbuck the con man who finds magic when he least expects it. It is an optimistic romantic comedy about miracles, drought, family and love. Performances are Friday, Jan. 19, 8 p.m.; Saturday, Jan. 20, 8 p.m., and Sunday, Jan. 21, 2 p.m. Tickets are $16. For tickets call (773) 445-3838; for more information, call (312) 409-2705 or go to www.beverlytheatreguild.org.

The Beverly Theatre Guild is a not-for-profit community theatre belonging to the League of Chicago Theatres. Members volunteer their talents and services in many areas of each production. BTG has been performing on the southwest side of Chicago for over 40 years, though its roots can be traced back to 1929 making BTG Chicago's oldest community theatre group in existence.

'Bassprov' Angles For Laughs

Saturday Night Live alum and former Second City troop member Tim Kazurinsky joins Chicago improvisers Joe Bill and Mark Sutton for Bassprov, an original comedy improv show set in a fishing boat, at the Beverly Arts Center, 2407 W. 111th St., Chicago, Saturday, Feb. 3, 8 p.m. Mission Improvable, the nation's fastest and funniest touring improv show, will open.

A hilarious show that spins off two simple audience suggestions, Bassprov was originally created by Bill and Sutton on the stage of the 2001 Chicago Improv Festival. The bit was so successful, the pair keeps getting reeled back on stage to fish for more laughs. From their seats in the bass boat, best friends Donny and Earl find refuge from the chaos of the world and discuss the issues of our time, based on audience suggestions. Their motto: Solving life's problems, one beer at a time.

Tim Kazurinsky is a former cast member of Saturday Night Live and Second City comedy troupe (1978). He played Officer Sweetchuck in the Police Academy films, and had a guest role on two episodes of "Curb Your Enthusiasm." Kazurinsky appeared in the John Belushi/Dan Aykroyd movie "Neighbors" and the cult classic "Shakes the Clown."

Should you choose to accept it, the audience will find Mission Improvable a hilarious opening act for the show. One of the most popular comedy acts appearing on college campuses, the Mission Improvable touring company hit the road in 1999 and has entertained at hundreds of campuses and corporate events throughout the US. The five member cast specializes in short-form improv, engaging the audience for ideas throughout the always changing show.

Bassprov, which was described in the Chicago Reader as "a show in the tradition of Mark Twain," is long form improv, which works audience suggestions into one comic scenario. "There was just something about those characters that the audience loved," said Bassprov's Sutton, a founding member of the Annoyance Theater and longtime comedy performer, teacher, writer and director. "No matter what they did, or what they talked about, the audience went along for the ride."

Sutton and fishing partner Bill, also a founding member of The Annoyance Theater and a comedy performer since 1977, have been performing Bassprov on tour and at festivals around the United States ever since they originated it in 2001.

Tickets to this evening of improv at the Beverly Arts Center are $15 in advance or $20 at the door and available from the box office, (773) 445-3838 or online at www.beverlyartcenter.org.

"The Best Of Dance Chicago"

World-renowned professional dancers will return to Orland Park when the Village of Orland Park Arts Commission presents "The Best of Dance Chicago" at the Carl Sandburg High School Performing Arts Center, 13100 S. LaGrange Road (US Route 45), in Orland Park.

Representatives from the best dance companies in the Chicago area will perform on Saturday, Jan. 27 beginning at 8 p.m. Founded by Fred Solari and John Schmitz, "Dance Chicago" celebrated its tenth anniversary in 2004. "Dance Chicago" has become the most diverse and comprehensive exposition of dance in the history of Chicago and is the only festival of its kind in the nation.

Schmitz, who serves as artistic director and curator for "Dance Chicago," explained, "With each show, we tailor it for what the audience enjoys." Schmitz added, "This is a completely different show than what we presented last year," noting that the Orland Park show will feature a range of genres.

"We are very fortunate to have a number of different genres performing on Jan. 27," said Orland Park Arts Commission Chair Colleen Panega, who is again coordinating the village's dance event. "This is a magnificent collection that will appeal to all ages, from the very young on up to our seniors," she added.

A dance veteran, Panega has taught and performed all types of dance for more than twenty years. She has been teaching dance for the village's Recreation and Parks Department since 1991.

"Students in Carl Sandburg High School's dance group, Orchestras, will share the stage with talent from throughout the world," she noted.

Reserved seating tickets are available at Orland Park's Frederick T. Owens Village Hall, 14700 South Ravinia Avenue. The cost is $15 for adults, $10 for seniors/students. The Cashier's Office at the Village Hall is open Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. and on Saturday from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m. A limited number of tickets may be available at the door. For more information, call the Village of Orland Park at (708) 403-6140.

ANOTHER EUROPEAN INVADES THE GREAT LAKES: A species of shrimp previously found only in the seas of Eastern Europe has now been discovered in the Muskegon, Michigan channel of Lake Michigan.

The mysid, Hemimysis anomala, was discovered in the channel in November. It is the most recent addition to the list of Great Lakes invader species that now number 183. Researchers at the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration's Great Lakes Environmental Research Lab who found swarms of bloody red mysid said the half-inch-long shrimp were likely brought into the Great Lakes in the ballast water of an oceangoing freighter. "It came from the Ponto-Caspian region - the same area that gave us zebra mussels, quaga mussels and the goby," said Steve Pothoven, a NOAA fisheries biologist who documented its presence here.

TRIGGER FINGERS WEARING NAIL POLISH: In 2006, NSSF's Scholastic Clay Target Program, in its sixth season, broke records in participation, continuing an annual pattern of growth. In fact, the number of shooters this past year exceeded the record-breaking crop of 2005 participants by 41 percent.

More than 8,000 young shooters in 41 states, high school-age and younger, now enjoy the camaraderie of being on a team with coaches, scheduled practice and challenging competition.

Of those, a higher percentage of trigger fingers were wearing nail polish in 2006. Participation among young women rose about 50 percent last year. More than 1,600 young trapshooters from 26 states, along with parents and supporters, converged on the World Shooting and Recreational Complex in Sparta, Illinois to compete in this year's SCTP championships. It was the largest infusion of youth in the event's history, accounting for 27 percent of the total participation.

Alliance To Promote Amateur Sports

The City of Chicago and Chicago 2016 announced the formation of World Sport Chicago, a long-term alliance that will promote the development of amateur sport and international competition in the Chicagoland area. The announcement was made at a press conference by Mayor Richard M. Daley and Chicago 2016 Chairman Patrick G. Ryan, who were joined by area student-athletes, Olympians and local partner organizations.

"As we have said all along, Chicagoans are passionate about amateur and international sports, and World Sport Chicago will display this passion for all to see," said Mayor Daley. "This organization demonstrates that the city's commitment to sports and the Olympic Movement will continue well past 2016."

"World Sport Chicago was formed when we realized the need for a more coordinated effort to promote the development of amateur sport across Chicago," added Pat Ryan. "We intend to provide to this organization, and its leadership, the resources and expertise to show the world how passionate Chicago is about supporting, and hosting, international sport."

World Sport Chicago will work to enhance the image, awareness and participation in Olympic and amateur sports across Chicago with the goal of giving athletes the opportunity to see and experience sport across all levels. Michael Conley, former Olympic and world champion in the triple jump, who most recently has been serving as the Executive Director of Elite Athlete Programs for USA Track & Field, has been named the executive director of the organization.

"The formation of World Sport Chicago displays the city's long-term commitment to international and domestic amateur sports; both before and after the 2016 Olympic Games," said Conley. "As an Olympian, I will ensure this organization strives to abide by the Olympic Movement and spirit while promoting sport at all levels throughout the Chicagoland area."

Through strategic partnerships with organizations such as the United States Olympic Committee, International Olympic Committee, National Collegiate Athletic Association and other national governing bodies, World Sport Chicago will work to promote the development of recreational and competitive sports throughout the region.

A major component of the organization's programs will be hosting clinics that provide kids the opportunity to train with world-class athletes.

The organization will be established as an independent 501(c)(3) corporation, and the Athlete's Advisory Council (AAC) of Chicago 2016 will provide strategic counsel, as appropriate. Conley will manage the day-to-day operations of the organization. Wrestling world champion and Olympic Medalist Bill Scherr will serve as chairman of the board.

The first major event hosted by World Sport Chicago will be the "Chicago Cup," an exhibition wrestling match between the U.S. national team and Russia, the defending world champions. The event, which is in partnership with USA Wrestling, will take place at 7:15 p.m. on February 6th at the Welsh-Ryan Arena on the campus of Northwestern University in Evanston.

The event will also include four exhibition matches featuring world-class athletes in Greco-Roman and women's freestyle. Two U.S. Greco-Roman wrestlers will face opponents from China with two American women battling top opponents from Canada.

"The USA vs. Russia wrestling match is a great example of the type of event World Sport Chicago will bring to the area," said Scherr. "Fans will have the chance to see our national team take on the very best wrestlers in the world in a major international competition that will make for a historic day in Chicago sports."

Women's Boating Survey

A recent online survey of over 400 women by BoatU.S. shows that parents play an important role in teaching their daughters recreational boating skills. But when girls grow up, many women believe there aren't enough boating educational opportunities, especially those that are tailored for women.

The newly released results of the BoatU.S. "Boating Learning and Education Survey for Women" showed that nearly half of all women respondents (47%) said it was a parent who they first remember teaching them boating skills, and 47% also said they had first gone boating before age 10.

"What the survey essentially tells us is that families play an important part in introducing boating to young girls, but as adults they want to learn more in relaxed settings, perhaps away from a well-meaning spouse," said Elaine Dickinson, Executive Editor of DIY Boat Owner magazine (a BoatU.S. publication for do-it-yourself boaters) and the leader of the BoatU.S. Women in Boating initiative.

Over two-thirds (67%) of women said they had taken some type of formal classroom boating training and 73% had some hands-on instruction, but there was clear support for more all-women courses (59%). Forty-two percent said that there aren't enough opportunities for girls and women to learn how to operate a boat, and when asked what kind of learning opportunities are needed, 80% said more hands-on events for women.

Also of interest was that three times as many women found a women-only course, seminar or training "effective" as those who didn't (33% to 11% respectively). "While there is much debate on whether women-only instruction is better, there is no doubt that women boaters prefer to learn in an environment that doesn't have the pressure associated with co-ed instruction," said Dickinson.

The topics that female respondents said they want instruction in include boat systems such as engines or electrical (71%); navigation (62%) and upgrading boat-handling skills (52%).

The respondents to the survey were not just first mates. Over three-quarters (78%) currently own either a powerboat (55%) or sailboat (53%). To see full survey results, go to BoatUS.com/women.

BoatU.S. - Boat Owners Association of The United States sponsors two annual women's sailing conventions that teach a variety of boating skills in women-only settings. For information on the next one, the 18th Annual Women's Sailing Convention presented by the Southern California Yachting Association (SCYA) on Saturday, Feb. 3 at the Bahia Corinthian Yacht Club in Corona del Mar, CA, go to <http://www.BoatUS.com/women>. The other event is held annually in early June at the Corinthian Yacht Club in Marblehead, MA.

United Way Nights With The Chicago Bulls

Discount Tickets are available on two special nights for everyone to join the United Way at the Bulls Games at 7:30 p.m. on Wednesdays, Feb. 20 vs. Atlanta Hawks and Feb. 28 vs. Golden State.

Tickets regularly priced at $40, are available at $25 and a portion of the proceeds will benefit the South-Southwest Suburban United Way.

Tickets must be ordered three weeks in advance and purchased with a special designated form.

For an order form contact: Karen Leluga, South-Southwest Suburban United Way, 4711 Midlothian Turnpike, Suite 17 Crestwood, IL 60445, or call (708) 371-1328 ext. 11.

Indoor Duathlon

Both experienced and non-experienced athletes are invited to participate in the Village of Orland Park Recreation and Parks Department's Fifth Annual Indoor Duathlon on Saturday, March 3. The competition will begin at 8 a.m. at the Village of Orland Park Sportsplex, 11351 West 159th St., in Orland Park.

The 13-mile duathlon consists of a 1.5-mile run, a 10-mile stationary bike ride, and ends with a second 1.5-mile run. Prizes will be awarded to the first and second place finishers, both men and women. Each participant will receive a long sleeve T-shirt.

"Each year, we have more and more people registering for the village's duathlon," said Village of Orland Park Fitness Manager Deborah Graham. "It's a great way to stay competitive and fit during the winter months," she added.

Pre-registration is required for the event before Feb. 14 and includes a fee of $15 for Sportsplex members, $20 for Village of Orland Park residents and $35 for non-residents.

"We've had people from all over the Chicago area and some from Michigan and Indiana come to Orland Park to compete in our duathlon," Graham said. "One year, we had a number of Navy Seals from the Great Lakes Naval Base travel to Orland Park to compete. They were looking for something unusual to do indoors and Orland Park's duathlon was just right for them," she added.

Registration for Orland Park's Indoor Duathlon is available at the Loebe Recreation Center, 14650 South Ravinia or at the village's Sportsplex, 11351 West 159th St. For more information, call the Village of Orland Park Sportsplex at (708) 645-PLAY.

Beware Of Credit Scams

Senior adults are unfortunate targets of easy-credit offers which can trap them into mounting debt, according to Comcor Mortgage.

It is not uncommon for seniors to receive 30 or more pre-approved credit card solicitations through the mail each year. Some include a check for $5,000 to $10,000 as an advance against their credit limit. All that is required is to deposit or cash the check. Simple enough until the payments are due.

"For many senior adults living on a fixed income with little savings and the need to pay medical expenses for an ailing spouse, higher housing costs, or rising day-to-day expenses, an offer of instant cash can seem like a blessing," Mary Pat Legler, Director Reverse Mortgage, Comcor Mortgage, said. "But it can lead to big trouble!"

These offers take advantage of seniors by promoting a low introductory rate and then in the hard-to-read small print disclose that the rate will adjust up as high as 24%. All that most seniors can afford to pay each month is the minimum payment, with very little going to reduce the balance. Seniors can find themselves making payments the rest of their lives. So, what started off as a blessing quickly turns into a nightmare.

Households headed by someone 75 or older, with debt, increased substantially in 2004 to 40.3 percent from 29.0 percent in 2001, according to a recent study by the Employee Benefit Research Institute. This mounting debt is putting their ability to finance their remaining retirement at risk.

For many seniors, there is another option. A Federally-Insured Reverse Mortgage enables homeowners 62 and older to turn part of their home's value into immediate cash for any purpose and with no repayment for as long as they live in their home: a program designed to help seniors maintain their independence and stay in their home. Since there are no monthly payments, there is never any risk of losing the home. With five plans to select from, senior homeowners may customize their reverse mortgage to best meet their needs.

Unlike high-interest credit cards or consolidation loans, the reverse mortgage program offers a low interest rate. Past credit history and income are not used in qualifying for the program, and the money received is tax-free and does not affect Social Security or Medicare benefits. Seniors may use this money to pay off debts or an existing mortgage to eliminate the payments. Also, they may receive extra money they need for medical expenses, home repairs, or unexpected financial needs.

"Once senior adults start taking on credit card debt they quickly find themselves trapped. Their monthly payments decrease the money they have to live on, causing them to fall deeper and deeper into debt. Some even find themselves using one credit card to make the payments on another. With a reverse mortgage they have no monthly payments to worry with, so they are able to get the money they need without falling into a trap. Plus, seniors retain ownership and control of their home. It's smart money for many senior homeowners!" Legler said.

For a free informational package on the reverse mortgage program, call Comcor Mortgage toll-free at (877) 370-7533.

South African Choreographer

As part of its ongoing commitment to presenting the work of African artists, The Dance Center of Columbia College Chicago, 1306 S. Michigan Ave., presents the Chicago debut of Association NOA/Company Vincent Mantsoe from South Africa from March 8th to 10th at 8 p.m. The company also will participate in The Dance Center's eighth annual FamilyDance Matinee Series, presenting a family-oriented performance on Saturday, March 10th, preceded by a free movement workshop for children and their families.

Vincent Mantsoe, award-winning dancer and one of South Africa's premier choreographers, shares the stage with an international ensemble of dancers in the Chicago premiere of Men-Jaro (township slang for "friendship"). Drawing upon the unique heritage of the French, American, Japanese and South African performers, Men-Jaro explores relationships between cultures and dance forms, infusing contemporary dance with traditional tribal movement, ritual and music. With sinuous delicacy, the ensemble performs to music by composer Anthony Caplan, performed live by the African Music Workshop Ensemble playing indigenous South African instruments.

As part of Association NOA/Company Vincent Mantsoe's residency, Mantsoe will teach a DanceMasters class in Afro-Fusion on Tuesday, March 6th from 6 to 8 p.m. at the Dance Studio at the Cultural Center, 78 E. Washington St. Mantsoe will use his cross-cultural dance form to explore the process of translating ritual into performance, helping to create a deeper connection to one's inner energy, personal rhythms, body, spirit and soul. DanceMasters is a series of community master classes presented by The Dance Center's Community Outreach and Education office in collaboration with the Dept. of Cultural Affairs in partnership with Hedwig Dances; Links Hall; and Lou Conte Dance Studio, studio of Hubbard Street Dance Chicago and Hubbard Street 2. Classes are for dancers at the intermediate level or higher. The registration fee is $15.

On Thursday, March 8th, there will be a post-performance discussion with the artists.

Tickets are $22-$26. Subscription discounts of 20 percent are available when ordering tickets for three or more performances during The Dance Center's 2006-07 season. The FamilyDance Matinee takes place on Saturday, March 10th at 3 p.m. with the free movement workshop at 2:15. Tickets are $6 for children 12 and younger, $10 for adults. For tickets and more information, call (312) 344-8300 or visit dancecenter.org.

Cast includes Cheyenne Pinson, Loren Connell, Sharon Carr, Matt Rudy, Kelley Addis, Ray Brazaski, Kate Brown, Chad, Marquicia Jordan and Lauren Wolf. Writer/director is Jesus Perez; composer/musical director is Paige Coffman and stage manager is Rainbow Weldon.

Single Tickets are $8 and group rates range from $6.25 to $7 with one free ticket with every 25 purchased. For more information, call (773) 205-9600 or visit www.ChicagoKidsCompany.com.

Coming To Beverly Arts Center

Off Broadway and Dirty Dan Buck of The Boyzz, popular Chicago rock bands, will perform Saturday, Jan. 27, 8 p.m. at the Beverly Arts Center, 2407 W. 111th St., Chicago. Coming up to the BAC stage in February are Blues legend Lonnie Brooks and rock pioneer Alejandro Escovedo.

Off Broadway gained popularity in the 1970s with music that mixed Beatles-style melodies with rock in hits like "Stay in Time" and "Full Moon Turn Your Head Around." Opening for Off Broadway at the BAC are rough and tumble rockers Dirty Dan Buck of The Boyzz. Buck's riveting stage presence and energy have won him audience and critical acclaim throughout the heartland. He has toured with Aerosmith, The J Geils Band, Meatloaf, Cheap Trick, Reo Speedwagon and others. Tickets for Off Broadway and Dirty Dan Buck of the Boyzz are $20.

Lonnie Brooks combines Louisiana blues, Texas swing and Chicago blues for a dynamic performance at the BAC on Fri., Feb. 2, 8 p.m. Brooks began performing in the 1950s, recording a string of popular singles including "Family Rules" and "The Crawl." On tour with Sam Cooke in 1959, Brooks landed in Chicago, was swept away by the blues here and stayed. Brooks has toured with blues legends Buddy Guy, BB King, Koko Taylor, Junior Wells and others. He also headlined at the Chicago Blues Festival. Tickets are $25 in advance ($30 for seating in first four rows), and $30 at the door.

One of contemporary music's true originals, Alejandro Escovedo puts on an unbeatable show of rock n' roll, folk-blues, and ballads on Friday, Feb. 9, 8 p.m. After a stint as lead guitarist for country-punk pioneers Rank and File, he started The True Believers, a guitar-driven roots rock band. In the early 1990s, Escovedo embarked on his successful solo career. He has released eight albums, all of them praised by critics. Opening for Escovedo is evocative singer, composer, and violinist Carrie Rodriguez. Tickets are $25 in advance ($30 for seating in first four rows), and $30 at the door.

For tickets and information, call the Beverly Arts Center box office, (773) 445-3838 or buy tickets online at www.beverlyartcenter.org.

Moments In Photography

Exploitative, beautiful and provocative: exposed film captures it all. The Museum of Contemporary Art (MCA), 220 E. Chicago Ave. in Chicago, presents MCA Exposed: Defining Moments in Photography, 1967-2007 on view Feb. 24th to July 29th. This is the first of several collection exhibitions leading up to the MCA's 40th anniversary in the fall. The exhibition, comprised mostly of conceptual photographic works from the strong holdings in the MCA collection, documents how photography came into its own as a fine art medium over the last forty years.

When photography started to become accepted as an art form equal to that of painting and sculpture in the mid-twentieth century, artists began to explore it in ways that diverged greatly from photography's documentary tradition. The function of photographs was examined within a larger cultural and social context. Photographers questioned the truth of images in the mass media; juxtaposed text and image; manipulated the photographic process; and greatly enlarged the scale of printed photographs. The result was prolific conceptually based images and the introduction of new digital technologies.

MCA Exposed occupies the entire fourth floor of the MCA and begins with an early work by Dan Graham, Bedroom/Dining Room Model Home (1967), to mark the year the MCA was founded. The exhibition is not arranged chronologically; rather it is divided into three thematic sections: appropriated images, staged photographs, and the figure and portrait, with an emphasis on the conceptual thread that runs throughout the works.

Thoughts On Health & Nutrition

by
Lucinda K. Lysen, RD, RN, BSN

DRY MOUTH CARE

Have you ever awakened to "cotton mouth", or spend your days reaching for water and other beverages to moisten your tonsils? Many of us have this problem, and can't seem to get rid of it. Over time, this can become very detrimental to your teeth and gums. Most people don't know how to treat this, or what the consequences can be.

Dry mouth is a serious problem, because it happens gradually, and often goes unnoticed. If left alone, dry mouth may lead to:

- *Rampant bacteria growth
- *Oral infection and ulcers
- *Increased tooth decay
- *Bad breath and dryness discomfort

Your mouth is an open gateway to your body and vital to your overall good health. Without saliva's natural protection, you could lose your teeth at a young age, and hurt your ability to maintain necessary nutrition intake. And harmful bacteria can go unchecked and lead to common illnesses.

Did You Know

*The saliva that normally lubricates, cleanses and neutralizes acids in the mouth, comes from three pairs of glands.

*There is also a naturally occurring antibacterial system in saliva that protects the mouth day and night against harmful amounts of bacteria associated with yeast and fungi infection, and tooth decay.

*Over 400 commonly used medications often cause dry mouth. Some examples include: allergy medicines, inhalers, chemotherapy drugs, and diuretics, which are taken alone or as part of a medication for heart disease or high blood pressure.

Fortunately there are now products on the market which can combat the side effects of dry mouth. Both toothpastes and mouthwashes are among them. One such example which I have found effective is Biotene. There are other products on the market as well.

Since there are good bacteria and bad bacteria in your mouth, you will want to make certain you choose a product which selectively kills the bacteria that you do not want. Regular mouthwash products on the market burn and contain alcohol which kills both, so you will want to avoid them. Sodium Laurel Sulfate, found in regular toothpastes, is another culprit of problems such as canker sores and mouth ulcers. These special products have eliminated this as well.

If you are looking for a product to deal with your dry mouth issues, the simplest thing to do is to ask your dentist or pharmacist to direct you to the right shelf in the market!

Making Heart Health A Priority

February is generally thought of as the month of romance...The American Heart Assn. (AHA) along with the Cook County Dept. of Public Health (CCDPH) is hoping that the heart you romance will be your own.

For the third year the AHA February campaign is "Go Red for Women," a nationwide initiative to encourage women to love - and save - their hearts by making their health a top priority. Red is the symbol for women and heart disease.

"We are encouraging women to take heart health seriously," said CCDPH chief operating officer Stephen A. Martin, Jr., Ph.D., M.P.H. "This advice bears repeating: lose a few pounds, get some regular exercise, quit smoking and see a doctor on an annual basis. These few steps can make a significant difference in the quality of a woman's life."

According to the AHA:

- Annually, heart disease claims the lives of women more often than breast cancer - about 500,000 women.

- The death rate due to cardiovascular disease is substantially higher in black women than in white women.

Risk factors that contribute to heart disease include:

- Cigarette and tobacco smoke
- High blood cholesterol levels
- High blood pressure
- Physical inactivity
- Obesity and overweight
- Diabetes

Other risk factors include age; about four out of five people who die of coronary heart disease are 65 or older. Heredity also plays a crucial role in heart disease. Children of parents with heart disease are more likely to develop it themselves. African-Americans have a higher percentage of high blood pressure than whites, putting them at greater risk of heart disease.

The AHA recommends women:

- Celebrate life with a checkup. Let each birthday remind you that it's time for your yearly checkup and a talk with your doctor about how you can reduce your risk for heart disease.
- Get off the couch. Step, march or jog in place for at least 30 minutes most days of the week - you can even do it while watching TV.
- Quit smoking in four steps. Can't go "cold turkey"? Cut the number of cigarettes you smoke each day in half; then cut that number in half; cut it in half again; finally, cut down to zero!
- Drop a pound or two. Cutting out just 200 to 300 calories a day - about one candy bar's worth - can help you lose up to two pounds per week and gradually bring you closer to a heart-healthy weight.
- Become a salt detective. Check out the Nutrition Facts panel on packaged foods to see how much sodium (salt) they contain. Aim for a total intake of no more than 2,300 milligrams (about a teaspoon of salt) per day.

CCDPH has asked local beauty shops and churches in suburban Cook County to display "Go Red for Women" posters and distribute educational information to raise heart health awareness. The health department is also encouraging employees at participating businesses to wear red to show their support of the movement.

Non-Surgical Options For Prostate Cancer

There are many decisions to be made when faced with a prostate cancer diagnosis, including which treatment option is best for them. Many men do not realize that there are non-surgical options available. Join Dr. Paul Y. Song, radiation oncologist at Little Company of Mary.

Dr. Song came to Little Company of Mary from the Center for Prostate Disease Research at Walter Reed Army Medical Center where he was the chief of the brachytherapy service. He was named one of the top doctors in Washington, D.C. by both Washington Magazine and Consumer Checkbook. Dr. Song attended George Washington University School of Medicine and completed his residency at the University of Chicago.

Non-Surgical Options for Prostate Cancer will take place in Café 95 at Little Company of Mary on Wednesday, Jan. 24th. Dinner is served from 5 to 6 p.m. followed by Dr. Song's presentation at 6 p.m.

Anyone interested in knowing more about available treatment options for men diagnosed with prostate cancer is welcome. For reservations, call (708) 229-6001. This free program is co-sponsored by Astra Zeneca and the Cancer Center at Little Company of Mary.

Will you be applying this year for the extra assistance available to help pay premiums, deductibles and co-pays under the Medicare Prescription Drug Program? If you are a Medicare beneficiary with limited income and resources, you should consider it - you may be able to get extra help paying for prescription drugs.

If your annual income is below $14,700 for an individual ($19,800 for a married couple living together) and your resources are limited to $11,710 for an individual ($23,410 for a married couple living together), you may qualify for extra help with your monthly premiums and deductibles. Keep in mind that a slightly higher income limit will be determined in early 2007.

If you plan to apply for the extra help, the easiest and most convenient way is to go online. Just visit <http://www.socialsecurity.gov/prescriptionhelp/> and select the "Apply for help" link. You also can apply over the phone by calling us at (800) 772-1213, TTY 1(800) 325-0778. Or if you prefer to complete the paper application yourself, you can call the same number to request one to be mailed to you, or stop by your local Social Security office to pick one up. If you already received an application in the mail more than a few months ago, you should request a new form.

It is important to make sure you correctly complete the application. If there are any mistakes in the application, it could cause delays while we contact you to get an answer.

The handy "tips" below can help make sure that you complete the application correctly and get a response as quickly as possible.

You must include your Social Security number or Railroad Retirement Board number on the application. And please be sure that you have written these numbers correctly.

Many questions on the application ask you to mark an "X" in a Yes or No box. Please remember that you cannot mark both Yes and No.

Because computers will scan your application when you send it back to Social Security, it is important to use a pen with black ink or a #2 pencil. Pens with blue or red ink, or pencils with lead other than #2, will not be read by the computer.

Remember to send the entire application package back to us - not just the page that you signed.

Do not send us anything except your application. We do not need to see doctor bills, prescription lists, IRS forms or other documents.

You can find more information about the extra help online at www.socialsecurity.gov and more information about the Medicare Prescription Drug Program at www.medicare.gov. If you do not have access to the Internet, you can call Social Security at 1(800) 772-1213 and ask for more information.

Should You Consolidate Your Debt?

In a nation where consumers have accumulated more than $800 billion in high-interest credit card debt, it would be safe to say that Americans are obsessed with plastic.

Tack credit card debt onto mortgages, auto loans and student loans, and it's easy to see how regular monthly bills can become overwhelming. One solution: debt consolidation.

In an effort to reduce or eliminate debt, a consumer takes out a debt consolidation loan at a low or fixed rate in order to pay off additional forms of debt at higher interest rates. The loan used to consolidate debt is often a home equity loan; however, any loan or line of credit can be used, including credit cards.

"Debt consolidation may help some individuals and families get a grip on their daily finances, but it's certainly not for everyone," said Mike Sullivan, director of education for Take Charge America, a national non-profit credit counseling company. "If you have a friend or family member that has successfully consolidated debt, it doesn't mean the same process will work for you. Cookie-cutter solutions don't work when it comes to finances."

Sullivan examines the pros the cons of debt consolidation:

PRO: Take Control of Temporary Debt - Debt issues are not always associated with over-charging credit cards. A debt consolidation loan can help financially stable consumers who have acquired a large amount of debt that is associated with a temporary issue, like an illness, accident or job loss.

PRO: Opportunity to Save - As long as the monthly payment on your debt consolidation loan is less than the sum of the monthly payments on your individual loans, debt consolidation can help you take control of your daily finances. Making one lower payment can help a consumer get a reality check on the extent of his or her credit problem. If the payment is lower than the sum of the payments on the consolidated bills, it may free up extra money in the monthly budget to purchase necessities, start an emergency fund or contribute to a college fund, among other money-saving moves.

PRO: Tax Advantages - Consumers who take out home equity loans can reap advantages at tax time. Some or all of the interest on the loan may be deductible. However, individuals and families with poor credit histories or a track record of overcharging are generally advised to avoid home equity loans.

CON: You Can Get Deeper in Debt - Paying off your credit cards means you have credit available. If you keep charging, you'll just have more debt and fewer options for dealing with it. Consolidation only works if you stop charging.

CON: Lower Rate Doesn't Mean You Will Pay Less - Don't be fooled by low interest rates. If the term of your debt consolidation loan is longer than the terms of your smaller existing loans, you may end up paying more in total interest, even if the interest rate on your consolidation loan is lower. You won't be saving money in the long run, even though your monthly payments will be less.

CON: You Can Lose Your Home - If you use a home equity loan to consolidate your debts, the loan is secured by a lien on your home. That means the lender can foreclose on your home if you default on the loan.

Before consolidating debt, Sullivan suggests talking with a credit counselor.

"There is no magic formula when it comes to debt consolidation. Every financial situation is unique, and a credit counselor has the tools to help you decide which path is right for you," he said.

Abuelita Clotilde Turns 100

Mrs. Clotilde Gonzalez was born in Peru, South America, on Jan. 25, 1907. She was the 13th of 18 children in her family. On Aug. 8, 1930 she married her beloved spouse, Isalas, whom she called "cbollto." They had three children: Herman, Coty, and Fahlola.

Abuelita Clotilde came to the United States in 1965 with her husband and their loyal companion, Nico. She became a citizen of this country at the age of 92, and still resides at home with her daughter, Coty, and her son-in-law, Florian.

She has 11 grandchildren and 22 great-grandchildren, including the late Francis Steiner. Abuelita enjoys watching TV, particularly the daily Mass on EWTN. She also likes to share Peruvian recipes with her caregivers. She still does her daily exercises and socializes with visitors that remember her.

There will be a Celebration and Thanksgiving for Abuelita Clotilde at St. Fabian Church on Jan. 27th at 12 noon.

Pasta Dinner

The Christian Women's Fellowship (CWF) of the Hometown Christian Church, 4340 W. 87th St., will host their Annual Spaghetti Dinner on Friday, Jan. 26th at 5:30 p.m.

The meal, prepared by Hometown chef Sylvia Barnes, her family and others, will be followed by a bingo game. Bingo prizes will be provided by various CWF members.

The cost is $7 for adults, $3 for children ages 6-12, and under 6 are free. Tickets can be purchased at the door.

Flu-Like Illness On The Rise

Cook County Commissioner Joan Patricia Murphy and the Cook County Department of Public Health (CCDPH) once again is recommending that people who have not rolled up their sleeves to receive their shot should act now to prevent the flu.

"The health department is seeing a jump in the rate of flu-like illnesses that are being seen in suburban Cook County hospitals," said Stephen A. Martin, Jr., Ph.D., M.P.H., chief operating officer of CCDPH. "The information is received through an electronic reporting system that tracks illness patterns in emergency rooms. We know that influenza rates typically go up after the holidays and peak in February. When we see the numbers of flu-like illness begin to rise through our reporting streams, we begin to be concerned about people getting seriously ill from the flu."

Typically, flu shots are given in the autumn months so that protection can last during an entire season. But getting a shot now will offer protection throughout the season which generally ends in April.

The vaccines are available immediately (while supplies last) at immunization clinics in Rolling Meadows, Maywood, Bridgeview, Markham, and South Holland and are provided at no-cost to suburban Cook County residents by calling (708) 492-2185 to set up an appointment. Persons who are allergic to eggs or are sick with an infection or fever on the day of their appointment will not be immunized.

Influenza, commonly called the flu, is caused by a virus that infects the nose, throat and lungs. Generally, the flu includes symptoms such as fever, cough, sore throat, runny or stuffy nose, headache, muscle aches and fatigue. Flu is highly contagious and spreads easily from person to person, primarily when an infected person coughs or sneezes. The flu kills almost 36,000 people yearly in the United States, 90% of them age 65 and older.

Call for an appointment, (708) 492-2185; TDD, (708) 492-2002, or log on to www.cookcountypublichealth.org.

Relay For Life Of Oak Lawn

Because they can, friends, neighbors and cancer survivors are coming together on Feb. 2nd, for an energizing celebration to raise awareness of the American Cancer Society Relay For Life of Oak Lawn and answer questions about the event to take place on July 28-29. Anyone that would like more information about the event is encouraged to attend.

The Relay Kick Off will be held at 7 p.m. at St. Gerald located at 9310 S. 55th Court. Event plans and fundraising ideas for the American Cancer Society's 4th Annual Relay For Life of Oak Lawn will be discussed. This is also an opportunity to register as a cancer survivor for special recognition during the event, and register your Relay teams for free.

Relay For Life is a fun, family focused event where the community comes together in the fight against cancer. Anyone interested in learning about Relay is welcomed to attend the kick off.

Relay For Life is an overnight event where teams of local businesses, schools, churches, community groups and families raise funds - prior to and at the event - to fight cancer as well as designate at least one team member at a time to walk or run on a track throughout the night. The Relay For Life of Oak Lawn will take place on July 28-29, at the Oak Lawn Pavilion.

Volunteers are needed to organize and recruit teams, secure community support, coordinate logistics, obtain refreshments and prizes and plan entertainment activities for this exciting and energizing event, which celebrates cancer survivors while honoring those in the community who have lost their battle with cancer. This year, Relay For Life celebrates 15 years of advancing the fight against cancer throughout Illinois one Relay at a time.

The American Cancer Society is dedicated to eliminating cancer as a major health problem by saving lives, diminishing suffering and preventing cancer through research, education, advocacy and service. The Illinois Division has more than 120,000 volunteers and staff fighting cancer in the state. For the most up-to-date cancer related information and to join the fight against cancer, call 800-ACS-2345 or visit www.cancer.org.

For more information on the Relay For Life of Oak Lawn Kick Off, contact the American Cancer Society at (708) 633-7770.

Hit-And-Run Charges Expect To Be Upgraded

According to police reports, on Dec. 12th, John Mancuso, 47, of Oak Lawn was fleeing the scene of a minor traffic accident at 135th and Cicero, when he ran a stoplight near the Calumet Sag Road and stuck another car. Police caught Mancuso trying to walk away from the scene of the accident.

According to police reports, the driver of the second car, Armando Chico, 30, of Harvey was severely injured in that crash. On Sunday, Jan. 14. Chico was pronounced dead at Christ Hospital and Medical Center.

According to authorities, Mancuso was charged with driving under the influence of alcohol and driving with a revoked license. It was said that the charges are expected to be upgraded because of the fatality.

Grandmothers' Meeting

The Evergreen Park Grandmother Club #423 will hold its first meeting of the new year on Wednesday, Jan. 24th at 1 p.m. in the Hamilton B. Maher Community Center, 3450 W. 97th St., in Evergreen Park. Refreshments will be served.

Club officers are Lois Musselman, president; Sharon Horn, vice president; Josephine Greswood, treasurer and Maggie Donahue, secretary.

Charter #423 recently celebrated its 50th anniversary and is a member of the National Federation of Grandmother Clubs of America.

For more information about the club, call (708) 860-1531.

District 218 Saves Money

High School District 218 recently completed the transition of its group health and dental program to Blue Cross/Blue Shield of Illinois. Based on the district's prior claim history, the change in provider will yield an annual savings of about $1.8 million.

Mesirow Financial's Insurance Services Division approached District 218 with the proposal to change to Blue Cross/Blue Shield. The program matched the existing benefits program and increased network access to healthcare providers while offering a deeper provider discount on health insurance claims.

The approximate provider discount under the district's prior insurance program was 35 percent. The approximate provider discount under the new program is 60 percent.

District 218's business office and Mesirow Financial worked diligently over the past few months to both enroll and educate the population of 762 employees and retirees.

"Mesirow is delighted to have the opportunity to partner with District 218. Our team of insurance professionals worked with the administration and board members to implement a more comprehensive program that will be beneficial to all," said Patrick Sheahan, Senior Vice President of Mesirow Financial.

"This change in the medical coverage to Blue Cross Blue Shield of Illinois will benefit all of the district's employees at substantial savings to the community," said Ron Pratt, secretary of the Board of Education. "The district seriously considered three different options to maximize service while minimizing costs for the district. The district hopes this new association with Mesirow Financial's Insurance Division and Blue Cross Blue Shield of Illinois will continue to benefit both the community and the schools."

Free Sunday Family Program

Young children and their families are invited to experience Dave DiNaso's Traveling World of Reptiles from 3 to 4:15 p.m. on Sunday, Jan. 28th at the Oak Lawn Public Library, 5300 W. 95th St.

Welcomes First Baby Of 2007

One lucky mom and her family are beaming with pride today. Their baby boy has the designation of being the first baby of 2007 born at Little Company of Mary Hospital, the Chicago area hospital known as "The Baby Hospital." Parents, Willie and Keisha of Chicago welcomed baby boy, Willie James Peoples, III on Monday, Jan. 1, at 8:45 a.m. Little Company of Mary holds the honor of welcoming more newborns into the world than any other area hospital in the southwest suburbs. Pictured: Mom, Keisha stands next to her newborn, Willie James in Little Company of Mary's Neonatal Intensive Care Unit.

Veterans And Soldiers News

By Lori Taylor

Ph: 708.388.2425

I feel like a broadcaster - "Good morning, I'm Lori Taylor broadcasting from (some foreign land)..." Well, I am writing this Sunday morning, Jan. 14th, from Rest Haven Central, 133rd and Central Ave., where I am undergoing rehab with Marianjoy Rehabilitation. Marianjoy is fantastic and I have a wonderful therapist; her name is Bridget. I'm using this same opening paragraph in all three of my columns so mention of the special people I have met from this area will follow in the next paragraph.

I want to thank Mary Lou Haimann, our Messenger typist, because I'm writing longhand on the arm of my wheelchair and she graciously offered to type the columns for me. I also thank my son Dan Hansen for delivering them to the Messenger and for everything he is doing to speed my rehab along (he's been wonderful as always).

Being here for therapy and wanting to get home reminds me of a visit I made in 1990 during my year as state VFW auxiliary president. During that year I made an official visit to every hospital where we have volunteers assigned, including the ones in St. Louis, Wisconsin and Iowa where we have Illinois vets. I was walking through the hall at Hines VA toward the director's meeting room on my visit there when I saw a vet with a huge smile. I stopped to speak to him. He asked me to wheel him out onto a patio. This vet could not move and his head was in a brace to hold it up. I will never forget. He said something to this effect: "I am so happy to be alive and able to go out and see the beautiful sky, experience the wind on my face, enjoy the sunshine and rain. I make sure I at least get out once each day." He was so happy and positive even though my heart ached for him. We talked awhile (I didn't care if I was a little late for the meeting). He said, "Thank you, young lady, next to appreciating God's wonders I enjoy visiting with people."

This memory will stay with me forever, and it came to mind as I have watched people receive visitors and their families here at Rest Haven and the joy the visits bring when days become long and lonely. So many of our veterans have no family and the hospital is their permanent home. I know it's not everyone's thing or "cup of tea" but if we each visited a lonely hospitalized or homebound vet, I'm sure it would brighten up their day. They would love a visit from you vets to swap war stories or just to reminisce over old times. Every time I meet someone anywhere who seems to talk a lot (not those born that way) I know I have met a lonely person looking for someone to share their thoughts with.

Don Dalton of Midlothian is writing a book about veterans during World War II, which should come out soon. It is just such stories as Don tells that the lonely vet would like to hear.

Every time we go to the dining room for meals with all of the wheelchairs in a row it reminds me of a cartoon my late husband, George Taylor, enjoyed. There are no words on the caption - just a sign saying RESTAURANT SPECIAL and a whole line of frogs in wheelchairs coming out of the kitchen door.

George was a submarine veteran who served in World War II. He also had a sense of humor and a wonderful positive attitude toward life in spite of his serious disabilities. George was a past commander of Midlothian VFW 2580 and of the 16th District. He also served as Life Membership Director and was an assistant Judge Advocate on the state level for several years. George died Feb. 23, 1996.

Extraordinary Students Contest

Schools and individuals that have yet to submit nominations for the Kemps "Extraordinary Students" award have a little more time to send in their entries. Kemps, Minnesota's leading dairy company, has announced that it is extending the deadline for accepting nominations from Jan. 15 to Feb. 15.

Adults age 18 years and older can nominate an outstanding student for the opportunity to be selected as a Kemps 2006-07 "Extraordinary Student." Three grand prize student winners - one each from elementary school, middle/junior high school and high school - will receive $5,000 in cash from Kemps for their schools. The winners' photos also will be featured on special edition Kemps plastic gallon milk labels. Additionally, 15 student runners-up will each earn $500 to donate to their schools. All winners will receive a year's supply of Kemps milk.

"We are proud this year to recognize students who are performing extraordinary volunteer acts on behalf of their schools, community, family or friends," says Rachel Kylo, Kemps marketing vice president. "By honoring the contributions of these giving students, the Nickels for Schools 'Extraordinary Student' program illustrates Kemps' ongoing support for education and community spirit."

Students nominated for the Kemps "Extraordinary Student" recognition must attend a school that is enrolled in Kemps Nickels for Schools. Nomination essays should consist of 750 words or less that describe the student's volunteer efforts, which can encompass any facet of the student's life, and how the student's volunteer efforts make him/her a better student or the school or classroom a better place. Up to three supporting documents including photos, letters of gratitude or news articles can be submitted along with an essay nomination.

Nominations for Kemps "Extraordinary Student" can be

Coloring Contest Held

The 16th annual National Children's Dental Health Month Coloring Contest sponsored by the Illinois State Dental Society is currently under way. The contest is open to children in kindergarten through third grades and several prizes will be awarded in each category. Entry forms are now available from participating members of the Illinois Dental Society, and no purchase is necessary to be eligible to participate or win.

This year's contest features the theme "Fight Tooth Decay 24/7!" The Illinois State Dental Society sponsors the coloring contest to remind children about the importance of oral health as a contributor to overall health. The coloring sheet features "Flossie," the Illinois State Dental Society mascot. Participants may use any medium they like to complete the entry form, including crayons, markers, paint and/or pencils.

Entry forms must be returned to the Illinois State Dental Society at P.O. Box 276, Springfield, Illinois, 62705 and postmarked by Feb. 28th. Winners will be notified by April 15.

For a list of Illinois State Dental Society member dentists in your area or for additional information about the contest, check its website at or call (217) 525-1406.

AARP Meeting

The AARP Oak Lawn Chapter 3558 will meet on Monday, Feb. 12th at 1 p.m. at the Johnson-Phelps VFW Hall, 9514 S. 52nd Ave. in Oak Lawn.

If you are a paid-up member of AARP, you are invited to join the Chapter, you do not have to live in Oak Lawn. Members are from Chicago and other suburbs. Dues for the year are $5.

For the meeting, Janet Moss, a nurse from Christ Medical Center, will give a talk on "Pain Management."

Refreshments will be served after the meeting.

For more information, call Felix Waitches at (708) 422-4121.

sent by U.S. mail to Kemps Nickels for Schools "Extraordinary Student" Program, c/o Maccabec Group, 211 N. First Street, Suite 425, Minneapolis, MN 55401, or by email to NickelsforSchools@Kemps.com.

All nominations must be received by Feb. 15. Winners will be notified by March 15. For a complete list of Nickels for Schools "Extraordinary Student" nomination guidelines, visit www.kemps.com.

Since its launch in April 2002, Kemps has given $2.5 million to more than 4,000 schools throughout the Upper Midwest, enabling schools to better support their students and staff. Schools can raise up to $10,000 in cash, and Nickels for Schools allows educators to use proceeds to pay for anything that the school decides.

Participation in the program is easy: Consumers save specially-marked caps from Kemps plastic gallon and half-gallon milk containers, and the proofs of purchase symbols from Kemps cottage cheese, sour cream and paper milk containers, and turn them in to their local school. Schools redeem the caps and proofs of purchase for cash. For more information, visit www.kemps.com.

Animal Welfare League Tag Day

The Animal Welfare League will be holding AVID Microchip Tag Day on Saturday, Feb. 24th from 1 to 5 p.m. at its facility, 10305 Southwest Highway in Chicago Ridge. No appointment needed.

For only $15, pet owners can protect their pets by having an identifying microchip administered. This procedure, normally priced $30.75, is quick and harmless to the animal.

A.V.I.D. stands for American Veterinary Identification Devices. The AVID microchip is a tiny computer chip which has an identification number programmed into it. The chip is encased in a smooth, strong biocompatible glass, and is small enough to fit into a hypodermic needle. Once an animal is injected with the chip, he can be identified throughout his life by this one-of-a-kind number. His identification cannot be lost, altered or intentionally removed.

The microchip is generally injected deeply under the skin. It sits safely there, totally inert. A special scanner is used to send a radio signal through the skin of the animal to read the chip. The animal feels nothing as the scanner is passed over him. The microchip sends its number back to the scanner. It appears in the viewing window as, for example, AVID 220*609*321.

The microchip has no power supply, battery or moving parts. It is designed with an operating life of over 25 years and is guaranteed for the life of the animal. Once injected, the microchip is anchored in place as a thin layer of connective tissue forms around it. The chip requires no care. It does not pass through or out of the body.

Ladies Auxiliary Awaits State Presidential Visit

Linda Meader, National President of the Ladies Auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars will make her official visit to Illinois on Feb. 8th through 11th in Springfield. State President Maureen Hayden of the VFW Auxiliary Department of Illinois and the visit committee have planned special events for the weekend.

The Department of Illinois Ladies Auxiliary will host a reception in her honor Friday, Feb. 9th from 2 to 4 p.m. in the Diamond Room of the Crown Plaza. Members and guests are invited to attend to meet the National President.

Friday evening President Meader will join the District Presidents who reached 85% in membership at their special "Night on the Town."

Saturday morning President Hayden will conduct the Council of Administration Meeting. Following the council meeting the Past District Presidents Club luncheon will take place. The annual Pilgrimage to Lincoln's Tomb will be held Saturday afternoon.

Linda Meader, Concord, New Hampshire, was elected National President of the Ladies Auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States at its 93rd National Convention in Reno, Nev., on Aug. 31, 2006.

In accepting the position, Linda introduced her theme, In the Spirit of America—We are the Champions of America's Cherished Heroes, which she developed to honor her late father, Edward C. Colby, who served in the U.S. Army in the South Pacific during World War II. She honors his service to our country as well as that of all other veterans and the national heroes from her area, such as Christa McAuliffe.

With the sacrifices of America's Cherished Heroes as their inspiration, she hopes Auxiliaries will achieve 100% in membership for the first time in 14 years and top previous program records.

She brings a wealth of experience to her new position including leading her Auxiliary as President at the young age of 19. As District and Department President, she was named Outstanding President of the Year. She served as Captain of Alliance State Color Guard and three terms each as Department Secretary and Chief of Staff.

During the last five years, she has served in the offices leading to the National Presidency and represented the National Organization at events throughout the country. Prior to that she was National Americanism & Loyalty Day Director and Junior Girls Units Director, and was elected as National District Council Member #1 to serve on the National Council of Administration which runs the Auxiliary between National Conventions.

The Auxiliary has always played an important role in her life. Her parents joined when she was an infant and before she was old enough to join, she worked on Buddy Poppy drives, suppers, bake sales and marched in parades carrying the name banner for the Auxiliary.

With a Bachelor of Arts degree in paralegal studies and a minor in business, after graduating magna cum laude from Notre Dame College, she is the Legal Administrator of a two-office law firm, performing both paralegal and managerial duties.

She and husband, David, have a daughter, Bridget, who is the 4th generation of her family to serve as Concord Auxiliary President and the mom of Linda and David's first grandson Alan.

Education Scholarships

In the spring of 2007, the Will-South Cook Soil and Water Conservation District will be awarding three $1,000 scholarships to Will and South Cook County students who expect to major in Agriculture or a Natural Resource field at any accredited college or accredited school of higher learning. One of the scholarships, the Allan May Memorial Scholarship, will be awarded for the first time this year. Allan, who passed away this past summer, served both Will and Cook Counties as the District Conservationist for 30 years.

The purpose of the scholarships is to further the cause of soil, water and natural resources conservation by helping a deserving student pursue the subject at an advanced educational level.

Application forms may be picked up at the local high school guidance offices in Will and South Cook Counties, and are also available at the District office, located at 1201 S. Gougar Road in New Lenox. The application form may be picked up during normal business hours, 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., or the application can be sent by request by calling (815) 462-3106, ext. 3.

To be considered, the completed application form must be submitted by April 1st. The letters of recommendation, which are to be sent directly to the District by their writers, must also be received by April 1st.

Application guidelines:

- Applicant must live within the boundaries of the District (i.e. in Will County or in South Cook County, south of 22nd St.). See the map at the District office if in doubt.
- Applicant must be a high school senior or graduate (diploma or GED certificate).
- Applicant must attend an accredited college or accredited school of higher learning in the 2007-08 school year.
- Applicant will be expected to be interested in environmental science, horticulture, wildlife, soil, water, or other natural resources.
- There is no requirement to substantiate financial need.
- Successful candidates will be announced in May. The decision of the Will-South Cook Soil and Water Conservation District's Board of Directors will be final.
- Scholarship money will be paid directly to the institution for the second term of the 2007-08 school year.
- It is the recipient's responsibility to inform the District on the details of how to make the scholarship payment.
- Incomplete applications may be disqualified.

Blagojevich Lauded For Healthcare Programs

The Kaiser Commission on Medicaid and the Uninsured, one of the nation's most respected independent health policy research organizations, released a new report recently crediting Gov. Blagojevich's administration for sparking a national movement to provide healthcare to all children. Over the last year, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts have moved to provide healthcare to all uninsured children, and California Gov. Arnold Schwarzenegger announced his proposal to do the same. The Kaiser Commission also found that Illinois, for the third year in a row, ranks #1 in the nation for providing healthcare to working parents who need it. Illinois' ranking comes as a result of Gov. Blagojevich's continued efforts to expand access to affordable, comprehensive healthcare to working men and women and their children.

In the report released, "Resuming the Path to Health Coverage for Children and Parents: A 50 State Update on Eligibility Rules, Enrollment and Renewal Procedures, and Cost-Saving Practices in Medicaid and SCHIP in 2006," Illinois is recognized as a national leader in providing healthcare to children. The report wrote, "The Illinois All Kids program has sparked what appears to be a new movement to provide universal health coverage for children. Either independently or inspired by the bold step in Illinois, a number of other states, including Massachusetts and Pennsylvania, also have embarked on their own brands of health coverage expansions."

The "SCHIP Program Enrollment: June 2005 Update" report, released in December, shows that between June 2004 and June 2005, Illinois led the nation in enrolling parents in FamilyCare. The report wrote, "From June 2004 to June 2005, adult enrollment in SCHIP more than doubled in Illinois." During that time, Illinois saw a 102 percent increase in adult enrollment. In addition, Illinois had the 3rd largest increase in the number of children enrolled in the State Children's Health Insurance Program.

Shortly after taking office, the governor increased the income threshold for children in KidCare from 185 percent of the Federal Poverty Level to 200 percent, and in November 2005 the governor signed All Kids into law, making healthcare affordable for the families of every uninsured child in the state. All Kids made Illinois the first state in the nation to offer affordable, comprehensive health coverage to every uninsured child. Under Gov. Blagojevich, the state has provided health coverage to more than 313,000 children who didn't have it before.

Lincoln's 200th Birthday

Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich recently announced that the Abraham Lincoln Presidential Library and Museum (ALPLM) hired a Lincoln Bicentennial Coordinator who will be responsible for overseeing Illinois' efforts to celebrate Lincoln's 200th birthday in February 2009. The ALPLM tapped Kay Smith, who has vast experience in management, event planning, and serving as a liaison between large and diverse groups.

"This milestone is 200 years in the making. Lincoln's Birthday in 2009 will be a national celebration, and it's extremely important to have the right person coordinating our efforts on the state level. I'm confident Kay Smith and the Bicentennial Commission will work very hard to make Illinois proud as we pay tribute to our favorite son," said Gov. Blagojevich.

"We are very pleased to have someone of Kay Smith's talents coordinating the planning efforts for the Lincoln Bicentennial in Illinois," said Rick Beard, ALPLM Executive Director. "Although we have a lot of work to do in the next several months, I am confident that Kay is going to provide the leadership and energy we need to assure that Illinois' celebration of our greatest president will be second to none."

The Illinois Lincoln Bicentennial Commission serves to promote a deeper knowledge, understanding and engagement in the life and times of Abraham Lincoln through conferences, publications, preservation of Lincoln sites, and local, statewide and national observances commemorating Abraham Lincoln's birthday on Feb. 12th, 2009.

Gov. Blagojevich also worked to further expand FamilyCare by increasing the eligibility level for benefits on three occasions, from 133 percent of the FPL (annual household income of $25,740 for a family of four) to 185 percent of the FPL (annual household income of $35,796 for a family of four). Under Gov. Blagojevich, more than 500,000 Illinoisans now have healthcare that did not before.

Since the All Kids program was signed into law in November 2005, the governor's office and the Illinois Dept. of Healthcare and Family Services (HFS) have been aggressively reaching out and traveling to communities across the state to make sure eligible families know about the program and local healthcare providers, social service agencies and community leaders are armed with the information they need to help families enroll. Families can apply for the program by calling 1(866) ALL-KIDS to receive an application form by mail or by visiting www.allkids.com.

The governor's All Kids program makes comprehensive health insurance available to all uninsured children, and All Kids covers immunizations, doctor visits, and many other healthcare services such as hospital stays, prescription drugs, vision care, dental care, as well as medical devices like eyeglasses and asthma inhalers. Parents pay monthly premiums and co-payments for a variety of services.

Studies have shown that children with health coverage are more likely to get preventative care, stay healthy and succeed in school.

To Chair New Subcommittee

A restructuring of the Senate Appropriations Committee will place U.S. Sen. Dick Durbin (D-IL) in the position of overseeing much of the funding for the nation's financial services, as well as oversight of the U.S. Treasury Dept. The new subcommittee, announced by Senate Appropriations Chairman Sen. Robert C. Byrd (D-WV), will be known as the Financial Services and General Government Subcommittee.

Durbin will be the Chairman of the new subcommittee, which will have jurisdiction over the U.S. Treasury Dept., Internal Revenue Service, the Federal Trade Commission, the Securities and Exchange Commission, the Small Business Administration, the Commodities Futures Trading Commission, GSA, the U.S. Mint and the Bureau of Printing and Engraving, among others. Sen. Sam Brownback (R-KS) will serve as Ranking Member of the subcommittee.

The subcommittee will also have jurisdiction over the federal courts system, including the issue of judicial security, which Durbin has worked on since the tragic shooting of the family of a federal judge in Chicago two years ago.

Additionally, the subcommittee will have jurisdiction over the Commodity Futures Trading Commission (CFTC) which regulates both the Chicago Mercantile Exchange and the Chicago Board of Trade.

Durbin has served on the Appropriations Committees in the House and Senate for the past 20 years.

Inter-city Train Travel

Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich recently signed legislation to add Illinois to the Midwest Interstate Passenger Rail Compact (MIPRC), a regional association that promotes the development of inter-city rail. House Bill 4344 adds Illinois to the number of Midwestern states working to promote and advocate for passenger rail service on a federal, regional and local level. Last year, Gov. Blagojevich doubled funding for state-sponsored passenger rail in Illinois' partnership with Amtrak, more than doubling the number of daily round-trips on downstate routes.

For fiscal year 2006, which ended last June, a total of 955,529 passengers took state-sponsored trains, an increase of more than 11 percent from the previous year, also marking the second year in a row in which all state-sponsored routes set ridership records.

HB 4344 allows Illinois to join the MIPRC, an association of member states that works to promote improvements and long-range planning for interstate passenger rail, as well as to coordinate interaction between Midwestern state officials and the public and private sectors. Currently, seven other states are members of the Compact, including Indiana, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota and Ohio.

In 2006, Gov. Blagojevich and members of the Illinois General Assembly doubled the state funding to Amtrak for passenger rail service in Illinois to $24 million, second only to California. The increase more than doubled the state-sponsored rail service on downstate routes. The expanded service, starting Oct. 30th, comes after news that all four of the state-sponsored Amtrak routes posted record ridership levels for state fiscal year 2006.

By Rail Or By River

The construction of the Illinois Central Railroad in the mid-1800s and the replica riverboat Talisman that delighted thousands of Lincoln's New Salem visitors for nearly 40 years are featured in the latest issue of Historic Illinois, a publication of the Illinois Historic Preservation Agency (IHPA).

The 150th anniversary of the completion of the Illinois Central Railroad, which connected the northern and southern parts of the state, was observed during 2006. The 705-mile railroad set the stage for Illinois' tremendous growth in the 1800s and the Illinois Central, now with 11,500 miles of track, remains one of the five largest railroads in the United States. The Illinois Legislature in 1851 gave a charter to the Illinois Central Railroad Company to build the line stretching from Cairo to Galena, with a branch line from Centralia to Chicago. However, the charter demanded that the railroad be completed in six years, a daunting task at the time. Bonds were sold, mainly to investors in England, to raise the $10 million needed for construction. Ten thousand workers, many of them German and Irish immigrants, were hired for the job, many of whom ended up purchasing land along the railroad and settling there. When the Illinois Central was completed in 1856, a full year ahead of the deadline, it was the longest railroad in the world. The article was written by Stanley Changnon, a semi-retired professor at the University of Illinois at Urbana who has authored numerous books and articles about Illinois railroads.

The steamboat Talisman, a replica of the riverboat captained in the 1830s on the Sangamon River by Abraham Lincoln, is the subject of another article. Brothers Dennis and Robert Trone, natives of Schuyler County along the Illinois River, grew up hearing the fascinating tales of Lincoln's river exploits. In 1958 Dennis got the idea to build a Talisman replica and enlisted his brother's help, and in 1962 the completed steamboat made its maiden voyage, a 530-mile trek from Dubuque, Iowa where it was built to Petersburg, Illinois. The journey was fraught with many of the perils Lincoln faced in his day, including obstacles, low water levels and emergency repairs. After its much-heralded arrival in Petersburg, the Trone family offered authentic steamboat rides for nearly 40 years on the Talisman for visitors to nearby Lincoln's New Salem, the reconstructed log village where Abraham Lincoln lived for six years. Permanent declines in the water level of the Sangamon River forced the operation to cease in 1998. The article was written by Keith A. Sculle, head of Research and Education for IHPA.

Historic Illinois is a bimonthly IHPA publication that features historically significant sites in Illinois. Subscriptions are $10 per year, which includes six issues of Historic Illinois and one full-color Historic Illinois Calendar. For more information, call (217) 524-6045, visit www.Illinois-History.gov, or write: Historic Illinois, Illinois Historic Preservation Agency, 1 Old State Capitol Plaza, Springfield, IL 62701-1507.

Inequity In Healthcare Access In Illinois

On Martin Luther King Jr. Day (Jan. 15th), and speaking before hundreds of African American community leaders and elected and appointed officials, Governor Rod R. Blagojevich urged for a grassroots movement to continue expanding access to healthcare to everyone in Illinois.

"One of Dr. King's most inspirational quotes is that 'Of all the forms of inequality, injustice in healthcare is the most shocking and inhumane.' Unfortunately, inequality in healthcare is still one of the greatest injustices we face," said the Governor who addressed the 17th Annual PUSH-Excel Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Scholarship Breakfast.

"Here in Illinois, we've made great strides towards the goal of making healthcare for all a fundamental right. We've made sure uninsured children have access to affordable health insurance. We've extended affordable healthcare for hundreds of thousands of working parents. We're helping our seniors save money on prescription drugs. But we must do more. There are 1.4 million adults in Illinois who do not have health insurance, nearly a quarter of them African Americans, and those who do have insurance are worried about the cost. But while Washington does nothing to help people, we are not going to sit on our laurels. I want everyone to have access to good, quality healthcare," the Governor added.

According to Milliman's 2006 Medical Cost Index Report in the U.S., a family of four spend $5,020 in total health care costs - including both premiums and co-pays/deductibles. With the rising cost of healthcare across the nation in Illinois, Governor Blagojevich emphasized that Illinois can do more for working men and women and their children by expanding access to health care so that not just children get coverage, but every family member has access to affordable, quality health care.

According to U.S. Census figures, 46 million Americans currently do not have health insurance. In Illinois, 20 percent of adults - 1.4 million people - are uninsured, and nearly a quarter of them are African American.

Governor Blagojevich has made expanding access to affordable healthcare his top priority since 2003. Recently, the Kaiser Commission on Medicaid and the Uninsured, one of the nation's most respected independent health policy research organizations, released a report crediting Governor Blagojevich's administration for sparking a national movement to provide healthcare to all children. The Kaiser Commission also found that Illinois, for the third year in a row, ranks #1 in the nation providing healthcare to working parents who need it.

Shortly after taking office in 2003, the Governor increased the income threshold for children in KidCare from 185 percent of the Federal Poverty Level to 200 percent, and in November 2005, the Governor signed All Kids into law, making healthcare affordable for the families of every uninsured child in the state. All Kids made Illinois the first state in the nation to offer affordable, comprehensive health coverage to every uninsured child. Under Governor Blagojevich, the state has provided health coverage to more than 313,000 children who didn't have it before.

Gov. Blagojevich also worked to further expand FamilyCare by increasing the eligibility level for benefits on three occasions, from 133 percent of the FPL (annual household income of $25,740 for a family of four) to 185 percent of the FPL (an annual household income of $35,796 for a family of four). Under Governor Blagojevich, more than 500,000 Illinoisans now have healthcare that did not before.

Additionally, nearly a quarter million low-income seniors and disabled individuals have been helped by the State through our "Illinois Cares RX" program, which also fills the "donut hole" in the Medicare Part D program; tens of thousands of people have saved more than $10 million thanks to the "Illinois RX Buying Club," which helps seniors, the disabled and the uninsured save an average of nearly 30% on hundreds of the most popular prescription drugs; the recently launched "Veterans Care" program is providing uninsured Illinois veterans access to the comprehensive and affordable healthcare coverage they have bravely earned.

Since the All Kids program was signed into law in November 2005, the Governor's Office and the Illinois Department of Healthcare and Family Services (HFS) have been aggressively reaching out and traveling to communities across the state to make sure eligible families know about the program and local healthcare providers, social service agents and community leaders are armed with the information they need to help families enroll. Families can apply for the program by calling (866)ALL-KIDS to receive an application form by mail or by visiting www.allkids.com.

This program makes comprehensive health insurance available to all uninsured children, and covers immunizations, doctor visits, and many other healthcare services such as hospital stays, prescription drugs, vision care, dental care, as well as medical devices like eyeglasses and asthma inhalers. Parents pay monthly premiums and co-payments for a variety of services.

2007 Small Business Expo

Chicago City Treasurer Stephanie D. Neely official announced the date for the 2007 City Treasurer's free Small Business Expo and a major change in the venue.

This year's expo will be held on Friday, Aug. 3rd, and will be held in expanded facilities at McCormick Place. Neely said, "This office remains committed to helping small business grow and thrive in Chicago, and after record attendance and capacity crowds at our workshops it was time for us to grow to meet the demand. The decision to move to McCormick Place gives us additional room and the opportunity for the biggest and best expo yet." The 2007 event will be the 6th annual Treasurers Small Business Expo.

The City Treasurer also announced that some of the materials from key marketing and business development workshops from the 2006 Expo this past August are now posted on the internet. Valuable content from the free business plan and marketing workshops are available by clicking the Small Business Expo icon on www.chicagocitytreasurer.com.

Filipino-Motif Tree For Holidays

Cook County Treasurer Marla Pappas and Estrella Ravelo Alamar, of the Filipino American Historical Society, stand before a Christmas tree decorated to reflect the culture of the Philippines. More than 90 trees and other holiday displays decorated by different ethnic groups were shown in Pappas' downtown Chicago office in "Holiday Trees From Around the World," an exhibit that recognized the diverse cultures of Cook County. From left: Pat Michalski, assistant to Pappas on ethnic affairs; Ms. Alamar and Treasurer Pappas.

Fire Risks Of Home Heating

As temperatures drop outdoors and people take steps to warm their homes, the National Fire Protection Assn. (NFPA) urges the public to be mindful of the risks associated with home heating which is second only to cooking when it comes to causes of home fires. Along with the colder temperatures that accompany winter, there is an elevated risk of dying from fire during this season with January and February generally being the deadliest months for fires.

According to a newly released NFPA study, heating equipment was involved in an estimated 53,000 reported home structure fires in the United States in 2003.

The study includes fires associated with chimneys and chimney connectors, space heaters, central heating, fireplaces, water heaters and heat tape. These fires accounted for 14% of all home fires and were responsible for an estimated 260 deaths, roughly 1,300 injuries and $500 million in direct property damage.

Although space heaters, excluding fireplaces and chimneys, were responsible for one-fourth (26%) of home heating fires in 2003, they were the most deadly, accounting for three-fourths (73%) of the fire deaths related to home heating. Space heaters also were responsible for three out of every five injuries (58%) in home heating fires in 2003 and half (51%) of the associated property damage.

According to the report, space heaters present a greater fire risk than central heating systems. Space heaters tend to be closer to household combustibles and the people occupying the home, and they tend to require a more direct role by occupants in fueling, maintenance and operation.

Even so, any widely used heating device can be used safely, if the rules of safety are followed.

For more information or a copy of the report, Home Heating Fire Patterns and Trends, visit NFPA's Web site, <http://www.nfpa.org>.

NFPA suggests the following for safe heating:

- Maintain a 3 feet (or 1 meter) separation between things that can burn and heating equipment.
- When buying a new space heater, make sure it carries the mark of an independent testing laboratory and is legal for use in your community. (Some communities do not permit portable kerosene heaters, for example.)
- Install your stationary (fixed) space heater according to manufacturer's instructions or applicable codes or better yet, have it installed by a professional.

- Plug your electric-powered space heater into an outlet with sufficient capacity and never into an extension cord.
- Use the proper grade of the proper fuel for your liquid-fueled space heater, and never use gasoline in any heater not approved for gasoline use. Refuel only in a well-ventilated area and when the equipment is cool.
- In your fireplace or wood stove, use only dry, seasoned wood to avoid the buildup of creosote, an oily deposit that easily catches fire and accounts for most chimney fires and the largest share of home heating fires generally. Use only paper or kindling wood, not a flammable liquid, to start the fire. Do not use artificial logs in wood stoves.
- Make sure your fireplace has a sturdy screen to prevent sparks from flying into the room. Allow fireplace and wood stove ashes to cool before disposing in a metal container, which is kept a safe distance from your home.
- Turn off space heaters whenever the room they are in is unoccupied or under circumstances when manufacturer's instructions say they should be turned off. Portable space heaters are so easy to knock over in the dark that they should be turned off when you go to bed, but make sure your primary heating equipment for bedrooms is sufficient to avoid risks to residents from severe cold.
- Do not use your oven to heat your home.
- Make sure fuel-burning equipment is vented to the outside, that the venting is kept clear and unobstructed, and that the exit point is properly sealed around the vent, all of which is to make sure deadly carbon monoxide does not build up in the home.
- Inspect all heating equipment annually, and clean as necessary.
- Test smoke alarms monthly; install a carbon monoxide alarm in a central location outside each sleeping area.

Pediatrics Unit Re-dedication

Children and families will be whisked away to a gentle jungle in the newly renovated Pediatrics Unit at Little Company of Mary Hospital and Health Care Center, unveiled in a recent blessing and re-dedication. On hand to commemorate the occasion was State Representative James Brosnahan (D-36th District). The renovations were made possible through a $200,000 state grant made available to Little Company of Mary with his assistance.

Little Company of Mary transformed the nurses' station into a friendly jungle and carried the whimsical characters into the unit. "Now the children will be soothed by the whimsical animals that spring out from the walls throughout the unit," said Pediatric Department Chairperson, Dr. Jean Schied.

The unit also features an updated Pediatric Critical Care Unit as well as a new family lounge complete with educational Internet access, microwave and a refrigerator to make visitor stays more comfortable.

Little Company of Mary's Pediatric Department is well suited to treat childhood ailments and diseases. To provide the most complete service to our pediatric patients, Little Company of Mary has a Pediatric Hospitalist available 24 hours, seven days a week in affiliation with the University of Chicago Hospitals.

Little Company of Mary not only cares for children's physical health. It also offers support groups that assist with a child's emotional and spiritual well-being.

Earn More & Not Lose Health Benefits

A state insurance program that helps individuals with disabilities retain health care services while increasing earnings will be discussed at the Thursday, Jan. 25th educational meeting of NAMI South Suburbs of Chicago at 7 p.m. in the Church of Christ, 206th St. and Crawford Ave. in Matteson.

John Spears, a representative of Health Benefits for Workers with Disabilities (HBWD), will explain the eligibility requirement for and benefits of the program as well as how individuals can apply. A Q&A session will follow the presentation.

"Working is considered one of the best activities in a recovery program for people with mental illnesses," said NAMI president John Rowley. "But they can face a limit on earnings if they have Medicaid coverage. With HBWD they get a so-called 'Medicaid Buy-In' and keep their critically needed coverage. It is a program of which individuals with mental illnesses and their families should be aware." In Illinois, those with mental illnesses are the largest group utilizing this program.

He added that currently there is advocacy in Illinois for increasing the income eligibility level, which here is one of the lowest in the U.S., an action that would allow individuals to earn more money and therefore become more self-sufficient.

There are no fees for NAMI meetings. For further information about the meeting or NAMI programs, call John Rowley at (708) 798-3862.

Hometown Airline Wins Bid

U.S. Sen. Dick Durbin (D-IL) recently announced that the Dept. of Transportation has selected United Airlines to be the first airline to offer direct daily service between Dulles International Airport, outside Washington, DC, and Beijing Capital International Airport. Several major airlines, including American, Continental and Northwest airlines, were in competition for the rights to the new service, which is expected to generate $100 million annually in revenue for United Airlines.

"China is emerging as one of the strongest markets for U.S. businesses in the world. The airline that provides the connection between U.S. business travelers and this emerging market will reap tremendous rewards," said Durbin. "This service is also important for improving U.S.-China relations. As China grows in global importance, face-to-face communications between our public leaders will become increasingly critical."

In September, Durbin and U.S. Sen. Barack Obama (D-IL) wrote a letter to the Acting Secretary of the DOT, Maria Cino, supporting United's application. In the letter, the Senators stressed that the new service would benefit local airline passengers. With the recently approved service between Springfield and Washington Dulles, many business and government leaders in Springfield will be able to utilize the capital to capital service, creating and strengthening important ties between the State of Illinois, Washington and China.

United will operate this route using a 347-seat Boeing 747-400 jet. Service will begin March 27th with one daily roundtrip between Dulles and Beijing. The service will allow Washington, DC to join 28 other world capitals in offering nonstop service to Beijing.

Community Award Recipient

AT&T Illinois recently announced that Elim Christian Services has earned special recognition for making a difference in improving the quality of life in the Chicago area. For their outstanding efforts, they are a recipient of an AT&T Illinois "Beyond the Call Community Award." AT&T Illinois executives presented a $2,500 stipend to Elim Christian Services for outstanding local community commitment and service programs.

The AT&T Illinois "Beyond the Call

Community Awards" was created to provide special recognition to organizations that are expanding economic development opportunities and providing essential community service programs to improve the quality of life in Illinois.

Local leaders and elected officials assisted AT&T Illinois in nominating recipients for "Beyond the Call Community Awards." Among those involved in the selection process was State Rep. James Brosnahan.

Landfill Capacity In Illinois Remains High

Disposal capacity available statewide at landfills in Illinois is sufficient for the next 19 years, according to recently released data from the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency contained in the annual Nonhazardous Solid Waste and Landfill Capacity Report. This level is considered very good by national standards.

The remaining landfill capacity is calculated by dividing the volume of wastes disposed during 2005 (52.3 million gate cubic yards) by the capacity remaining on Jan. 1, 2006 (980.4 million gate cubic yards).

This information, along with detailed statistics by region on landscape waste compost facilities, waste transfer stations, waste generation and recycling and solid waste planning efforts are provided in Illinois EPA's 19th annual report, "Nonhazardous Solid Waste Management and Landfill Capacity in Illinois," for 2005.

The report shows that overall the number of active landfills was 51. One new landfill opened in Region 3: Indian Creek Landfill #2, in Hopedale. Kankakee RDF, Cheshan closed in Nov. 2005, and expansions were approved at Lec County Landfill, Dixon and Roxana Landfill, Inc., Roxana.

While the number of active landfills in Illinois accepting waste remains good overall, regional capacity estimates vary significantly. Illinois EPA's Region 2, the Chicago Metropolitan region, has about nine remaining years, with the use transfer stations allowing much of the solid waste in the Chicago region to be sent to facilities outside the region. This contrasts with Region 7: Southern Illinois, which has a calculated remaining capacity of 51 years.

In addition, the report notes that citizens throughout the state continue recycling efforts to stretch out disposal capacity. Local recycling coordinators in Illinois report that nearly 9.6 million tons of municipal waste was recycled in 2005. Total municipal waste generation rate of 25.3 million tons equate to nearly 38 percent recycling in the state, a slight improvement from previous years. Although parts of Illinois are rural and far from recycling markets, many local governments continue their recycling education efforts, and collect recycling data from haulers as a necessary public service.

Additionally, in 2005 there were 102 active transfer stations and 40 active compost facilities that help manage the waste generated in Illinois.

Only 13 percent of solid wastes deposited in landfills in Illinois in 2005 came from 10 other states, with over 75 percent of that amount generated in Missouri. Although Illinois haulers also transported solid wastes to other states, they are not required to report this to the state of Illinois; therefore, the Illinois EPA cannot provide the volume exported.

Illinois EPA's seven regional offices, 18 delegated counties, the Ambrose Valley Solid Waste Agency and the City of Chicago have been given the authority to inspect landfills, transfer stations and compost sites in their jurisdictions, providing a needed service to the citizens of Illinois.

Additionally, through the Agency's new I-RID

Annual Benefit Auction

Lawsuit Alleges Consumers Were Misled

Attorney General Lisa Madigan recently filed a lawsuit alleging that Paul Kocourek and Progressive Care of Illinois, Inc. misled consumers at county fairs and local senior health fairs into undergoing blood tests to determine if they suffered from allergies.

Madigan's lawsuit, filed in Cook County Circuit Court, charges Paul Kocourek, doing business as American Institute of Allergy, a dissolved Arizona corporation, and Progressive Care of Illinois, Inc., an Illinois corporation, with multiple violations of the Illinois Consumer Fraud and Deceptive Business Practices Act.

Specifically, the lawsuit alleges that Kocourek and Progressive Care of Illinois set up booths at local county and senior health fairs and urged consumers to have their blood tested to determine if they suffer from allergies. The lawsuit alleges that Kocourek and Progressive Care of Illinois failed to inform consumers about the true cost of the allergy tests, which range from $1,568 to $1,681. The lawsuit further alleges that the defendants made misrepresentations to consumers that Progressive Care of Illinois would (1) only charge the cost of the test to the consumers' insurance companies, (2) accept the consumers' insurance companies' payments as payment in full, and (3) mail the allergy test results directly to the consumers' homes within 4-6 weeks.

However, according to the complaint, after drawing blood from consumers and billing their insurance companies, Kocourek and Progressive Care of Illinois never provided consumers with allergy test results. Additionally, the lawsuit alleges that in one instance, the defendants represented to a consumer that they would not bill her insurance, but did so anyway.

The lawsuit asks the court to prohibit the defendants from selling allergy tests and failing to provide test results, in violation of Illinois' consumer protection laws. In addition, the lawsuit asks the court to assess a civil penalty for each violation of the law and an additional penalty for each violation found to have been committed with the intent to defraud.

More Federal SCHIP Funding To Illinois

Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich recently called on Illinois' Congressional Delegation to work with his Administration to bring more federal funding to state healthcare programs by revising the formulas used to allocate the State Children's Health Insurance Program (SCHIP) funds. The current formulas punish states like Illinois that have worked aggressively to expand access to healthcare to more citizens, and instead prioritize funding based on which states have the highest uninsured populations. The governor's announcement came as healthcare leaders and state officials around the nation discussed the importance of the SCHIP program during the Campaign for Children's Health Care's National Town Hall Meeting on Children's Health Coverage, held at 35 locations nationwide, including Springfield and Chicago in Illinois.

The current SCHIP formula, which is partially based on the number of low-income children who do not have healthcare, penalizes Illinois for taking action to provide healthcare to more children. Gov. Blagojevich called on the Illinois Congressional Delegation and the U.S. Congress to revise the formula to be based on the total number of low-income children in the state and number of children and parents covered.

The Campaign for Children's Health Care organized the National Town Hall Meeting on Children's Health Coverage to raise awareness about the SCHIP program and to draw attention to children who are still uninsured and need access to quality health care coverage.

Deceptive Check Solicitations

Attorney General Lisa Madigan recently announced separate settlements totaling $14.5 million, with 16 states and Chase Bank and Trilegiant Corp., to resolve allegations that the companies unlawfully deceived consumers into paying for membership programs for discounts on car and home repair, shopping, and other goods and services. Joining Illinois in the settlements are the Attorneys General of Alaska, California, Connecticut, Iowa, Maine, Michigan, Missouri, North Carolina, New Jersey, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Vermont and Washington. The settlements also involve Chase Home Finance and TRL Group, Inc.

Under the settlements with Chase and Trilegiant, Trilegiant must pay $8.325 million in restitution to all consumers in the 16 states who either have complained to Trilegiant or the State Attorney General's Office, or who complain in writing within the next nine months. Of the 16 states involved in the settlement, approximately eight percent of the impacted consumers live in Illinois. Trilegiant and Chase also will pay $6.175 million to the settling states for consumer education and enforcement. Illinois' share of payment for consumer education and enforcement is $652,128.

The settlements resolve claims that Trilegiant, through a partnership with Chase, solicited consumers with offers of "free" trials in membership programs without adequately informing the consumers that Trilegiant would charge their Chase credit cards or Chase mortgage accounts if the consumers did not take action to cancel the "free" trial within a specific period of time. As part of their partnership, Chase and Trilegiant entered into agreements under which Trilegiant gained access to Chase's customers for the purpose of marketing the membership programs. In soliciting Chase customers, Trilegiant used Chase's name and provided Chase with the right to review and approve the marketing materials.

Under this settlement, consumers who (1) signed up for membership in a Trilegiant club through any bank or other company with which they did business and (2) were first charged membership fees on or after July 1, 2001 are eligible to receive a refund of membership fees they have paid. The settlement does not constitute an admission of wrongdoing by Chase or Trilegiant.

The names of the membership programs involved in these solicitations include, but are not limited to, AutoVantage Gold Service, AutoVantage Service, Buyers Advantage Service, CompleteHome Service, Just for Me, Pet Privileges Service, Shoppers Advantage Service and Travelers Advantage Service.

Consumers who are concerned that they may have unknowingly paid for a membership program, regardless of their bank, should carefully examine their credit card or mortgage statements for any of the program names listed and should also monitor their mail for any notices from Trilegiant. Consumers can also contact Trilegiant electronically at www.trilegiant.com or by mail at Trilegiant Corporation, 100 Connecticut Ave., Norwalk, CT 06850, Attn: K. Buonagurato.

Illinois consumers who would like to submit written complaints requesting restitution for unauthorized charges must submit those complaints to: Illinois Attorney General's Office, Consumer Fraud Bureau, 500 S. Second St., Springfield, IL 62706.

Illinois Fails Tobacco Control Report Card

Once again Illinois received failing grades in the 2006 annual tobacco control report card issued by the American Lung Association. Although the state was cited for minimal spending on tobacco education and a failure to prevent youth to tobacco, Illinois received positive comments for passing legislation that allows municipalities to go smoke-free.

"We're grateful that policymakers in Chicago, Cook County, Springfield and other municipalities passed smoke-free laws last year. But we need to save more lives and reduce health care costs by making Illinois a smoke-free state," said Joel J. Africk, President and CEO of the American Lung Association of Metropolitan Chicago.

The American Lung Association State of Tobacco Control 2006 report graded the 50 states, District of Columbia and Puerto Rico in four categories: smoke-free air, tobacco taxes, prevention funding and restrictions on youth access to tobacco products.

The report gave Illinois the following grades: Smoke-free air, Grade: F; Tobacco taxes, Grade: D; Tobacco prevention and control spending, Grade: F; and Youth access to tobacco products, Grade: F.

Despite these failing numbers there were positive moves made in 2006. Thanks to a law passed in 2005, as of Jan. 1, 2006 municipalities in Illinois were allowed to regulate smoking in public places. Springfield started the year by adopting a 100% smoke-free law on Jan. 17th. The momentum has continued, with 28 other cities approving new smoke-free laws and another 50 to 60 cities, towns, villages and counties in the process. In March, Cook County passed a 100% smoke-free law (effective March 2007). Two of the largest municipalities surrounding Chicago, Evanston and Oak Park, passed comprehensive smoke-free air ordinances that took effect July 1, 2006.

The Lung Association report found the following: A record 26 states and the District of Columbia earned passing grades ("C" or better) for having laws that make workplaces free of tobacco smoke, unfortunately, another 23 states received "F" grades in that category; cigarette taxes rose in eight states in 2006, New Jersey now has the highest tax at $2.575 per pack and the national average has risen to $1 per pack; and while overall funding for tobacco prevention and cessation programs increased in 2006, 34 states, including Illinois, received "F" grades for the amount they spend to help people avoid smoking or quit. Only nine states received "A" grades for spending a significant amount on smoking prevention and cessation, up from six states in 2005.

Record Breaking Year

In another record-setting year for consumer service the BBB of Northern Illinois has seen the number of complaints closed increase by over 13% from the previous year.

With over 47,000 complaints filed in 2006 the services provided by the BBB are more critical than ever to help maintain a level playing field in the marketplace. Those consumers and businesses put their trust in the BBB to help resolve their disputes in an equitable manner. Businesses and consumers working in concert with the BBB resolved over 78% of the complaints.

Steve J. Bernas, president & CEO of the BBB, says, "It has been an unbelievably busy year with an over six-fold increase in instances of service in the same number of years. BBB member companies make these services possible with their execution of best practices with each customer. BBB members must resolve complaints to retain their membership and customers recognize that this membership is the mark of integrity and is a factor in their purchasing decisions."

Pre-purchase information has been another huge growth area for the BBB with over 80,000 reports on companies in northern Illinois and linked to the national BBB database with over 2 million Reliability Reports, the BBB is the clear leader with information resources.

Bernas says, "The empowerment of consumers has been helped substantially by the Internet and more sophisticated consumers know the BBB has the information to educate them in decisions before they make a purchase or sign a contract."

The 2.9 million instances of service were delivered during 2006 as compared to 2005, which reflected 2.6 million. The enhanced usage of BBB shows that about 70% of visitors to the BBB site, www.chicago.bbb.org, are seeking information prior to making a purchase.

The Internet is revolutionizing the way we gather information, shop and do business, and with it how consumers view the marketplace. Consumers have this advantage available to them through the BBB every day.

The top ten types of businesses subject to complaints for northern Illinois in 2006 were: Movers, Construction and Remodeling Services and Roofing Contractors, Contractors (General), Mortgages, Financial Services, New Car Auto Dealers, Heating & Air Conditioning Contractors, Windows-Installation/Service, and Insurance Companies.

The Oak Lawn Village Board Discusses

Smoking Ban Options

The Oak Lawn Village Board of Trustees visited its options for a community smoking ban at its Tuesday night meeting. The village attorney advised the board that the village will need to vote on the issue before the county or state implements their version of the smoking ban which would then have to be followed. The board reviewed several points of the proposed ordinance noting that the ban would effect establishments that earn 65 percent of their income from liquor sales whether they are restaurants or bar and grills.

The board explored whether they can exempt establishments like taverns and bars. Part of the proposed ordinance on the state level says that bars and taverns would have to install air purifiers that would rid the premises of smoke. However, it was noted again that people who go to bars and taverns know that when they walk into the establishment, there will probably be smoke and they choose to be there.

In a restaurant, there is no choice if you want to eat there. The proposed ordinance will have the bar facilities in any restaurant be separated from the main eating area.

Consensus of opinion on the board is that trustees do not want the same situation as happened in Orland Park, Tinley Park and Oak Forest, who recently rescinded their smoking ban after reports of eating and drinking establishments losing business because of the ban. Trustees wanted to study the effects of the ban on business.

Mostly, trustees echoed the sentiment that it was not right for Government to tell business owners how to conduct their business. The smoking ban creates a lot of issues and they don't want to handicap businesses. It was reported that several community taverns have already complied with the proposed ordinance and many want to be able to take care of the situation on their own.

It was suggested that the board continue to study the issue. Mayor Dave Heilmann said that several versions of the ordinance would be presented to the board that would try to be fair to the village's businesses as a whole. It was also suggested by the village attorney that the board could vote to postpone the issue until 2008 and go with the state's program. Trustee Streit stated that the board should continue to review this issue with logic and common sense.

In other business, it was announced that Trustee Tom Phelan and his wife, Sue, had just had their baby, Matthew who was six weeks premature. Both mom and son were doing well. Matthew was 5 lbs. at birth.

Trustee Hurckes reported on reports he received from residents concerning phone calls for donations from the fire department and the VFW. He said that the calls were not scams, but that most of the money collected from these calls went to administration and not to the programs that they were collecting for. He suggested that residents be wary of these calls.

Trustee Olejniczak reported that the village had met with the Metropolitan Water Reclamation District regarding the Stony Creek and Melvina Ditch and the flooding problems that the village experienced during the summer and fall. The MWRD said that they would help the village clean up both sites, but they would not dredge the Stony Creek. It was reported that the village and the MWRD took a 'field trip' to both sites. They found much debris and even a beaver dam which contributed to the drainage problems.

Olejniczak said that this was a small accomplishment with the MWRD, but it was a beginning. There will be several more meetings with water reclamation representatives in the near future to address the Melvina Ditch. It was also stated that the MWRD suggested that part of the problem was due to illegal hook ups to the sewer system. The village will look into proposing inspections when a home is sold to see if there were any hook ups in place.

Neighborhood Meeting

Residents of the 4th District by Trustee Steve Rosenbaum. of Oak Lawn are invited to attend a Town Hall Neighborhood Meeting to be held at 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday, Feb. 6th. The meeting will be held at Salem United Church, 9717 S. Kostner Ave., and is hosted following the meeting.

Free Training

Corazon a Corazon (Heart to Heart) is bursting at the seams with adults who want to learn English. If you speak English, you can help by offering your time and talent (just one hour a week) for a rewarding opportunity to serve the community. Helping an adult learn English opens up job opportunities, helps people provide for their families, and become an active member of the community.

Volunteers are offered an expanded free training program from ProLiteracy America to tutor an Adult in English as a Second Language. Participants will become certified in only two days. This certification has been used toward study/work/travel abroad.

Training will take place at Corazon a Corazon (Heart to Heart), 9525 S. Commercial Ave. on Friday, Jan. 26 from 6 to 9 p.m. and Saturday, Jan. 27th from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Those interested but can't make these times, call or e-mail for other accommodations. For information call (773) 221-0620 or e-mail akcorazon@lycos.com to learn more and sign up. Materials, coffee and donuts will be provided.

Corazon a Corazon partners with Literacy Works, Hispanic Literacy Council, Southside Literacy Council, and Citywide Literacy Council to provide free and low cost educational opportunities throughout Chicago. The programs are funded by the Secretary of State, Springboard Foundation, Hispanics in Philanthropy, & Individual donors.

"The Great Garden Debate"

Horticulture magazine, together with The Chicago Botanic Garden, will host a special symposium, "The Great Garden Debate: When Collector Meets Designer Can They Find Common Ground" on Thursday, Feb. 1st at the Chicago Botanic Garden. Registration for the day-long event is available online at www.hortprograms.com or by calling toll-free (877) GDN-PROG (877-436-7764).

For 15 years, Horticulture has delivered a series of prestigious gardening symposia, in collaboration with leading botanic gardens and plant groups, to garden enthusiasts around the country. Thousands of participants have benefited from Horticulture's tradition of bringing together an international panel of experts to address the newest design ideas, the most exciting plants, and the best in international trends in garden making.

The 2007 program promises to be livelier than ever. Speakers at the "Great Debate" include Joe Eck and Wayne Winterrowd, garden designers, authors and makers of the famous garden North Hill in Vermont; Mat Reese, Assistant Head Gardener at Great Dixter, the renowned English garden created by the late Christopher Lloyd; ornamental horticulture specialist, lecturer and photographer Carol Reese who has recently been appointed Horticulture magazine's Q&A expert; and Nan Sinton, director of programs for Horticulture magazine.

"It's the classic dilemma faced by every gardener, whether they've been gardening for years or are starting their first garden," said Sinton, who is herself a hands on gardener and experienced designer. "You'll learn how our speakers deal with the problem, and where their priorities lie when they discuss, declaim, and debate which comes first, the plants or the design - and show you how to put their ideas into practice in your own garden."

Registration for the symposium is available online at www.hortprograms.com, along with complete details

Brookfield Zoo's Benefit Auction

It isn't every day you see a dolphin out of water, but on Sunday, Jan. 28th 21 of the marine mammals can be seen at Brookfield Zoo's Discovery Center. They are not actually real dolphins, but rather fiberglass statues that will be up for auction at the zoo from 2 to 4 p.m. Proceeds from the silent auction will go toward the care and feeding of the zoo's animals, including the Atlantic bottlenose dolphins that reside at the Seven Seas exhibit.

Measuring 5 feet, 2 inches tall and weighing approximately 70 pounds, the statues were on display in and around the village of Hinsdale from Nov. 24 through mid-January for the Chamber of Commerce's holiday promotion - "Dolphins on Parade." Now each of the highest bidders at the upcoming auction can be the proud owner of one of these colorful dolphins.

Where does one put such a unique piece of art? It could be displayed on a front lawn, by a pool, at a summer home, in an office, or even in a child's bedroom. The possibilities are endless.

The figures, created by Cowpainters Inc. of Chicago, were sponsored by Hinsdale companies and stores and painted by local school groups, artists, and businesses. Each is distinctively themed such as a pirate named "One-Eyed Jack"; "I Spy....." named after the popular board game; and "Steve DAHL Fin," named after WCKG-FM's radio personality.

Those unable to attend the silent auction can place a bid on eBay for the fiberglass figure titled "Monster of the Midway" sporting number 54 of the Chicago Bears, beginning Jan. 28th at 4 p.m. The highest bidder at the conclusion of the online auction on Sunday, Feb. 4th at 4 p.m. can add the dolphin statue to his or her Chicago Bears memorabilia.

Admission to Brookfield Zoo is free on Sunday, Jan. 28th. Those attending the auction will also receive free parking. For further information about the auction or to view images of the 21 fiberglass dolphins, visit www.BrookfieldZoo.org.

The mission of the Chicago Zoological Society, which manages Brookfield Zoo, is to inspire conservation leadership by connecting people with wildlife and nature. Open every day of the year, the zoo is located off First Ave. between the Stevenson (I-55) and Eisenhower (I-290) expressways and is also accessible via the Tri-State Tollway (I-294), Metra commuter line, CTA, and PACE bus service.

Reauthorizing Amtrak

U.S. Sen. Dick Durbin (D-IL) recently joined a bipartisan group of Senate colleagues in introducing The Passenger Rail Investment and Improvement Act of 2007. The legislation re-authorizes Amtrak funding for 2007 through 2012.

Amtrak's reauthorization expired in 2002. Since that time no consensus has been reached on Amtrak policy and Amtrak reform efforts and funding have stalled while Congress and the Bush Administration decide Amtrak's fate. Passage of an Amtrak Reauthorization measure will help build a consensus around increased Amtrak funding while introducing needed reforms.

Durbin noted that Illinois benefits, both directly and indirectly, from Amtrak jobs and service. An average of 48 Amtrak trains run each day on more than 1,000 miles of track in Illinois. Amtrak employs more than 2,000 Illinois residents and annually spends $56 million for goods and services in the state. Illinois is the central rail hub of the North American continent, bringing 2.5 million passengers through Amtrak's Midwestern hub in Chicago each year.

Heart Of The School

Before the close of the semester last fall, Queen of Peace High School announced the 2006-2007 recipient of the Heart of the School Award. The honor went to English teacher and moderator of the Poverty and Hunger Task Force, Colleen Cichon-Mulcrone (pictured).

The Heart of the School Award is given out once a year to an experienced teacher with outstanding creativity and heart. This is Mulcrone's 11th year working in Catholic education and fifth year at Peace. She teaches English IV, Women's Psychology and Literature and Advanced Placement Literature and Composition. Mulcrone's students admire her teaching style and dedication. "I love her creativity, her patience, and her excitement when it comes to helping students," noted senior Rachel Volk.

The Heart of the School Award is an annual honor, and the winner is nominated and chosen by his or her colleagues. Mulcrone's colleagues respect her passion for teaching. Last year's Heart of the School honoree, Joanne Paprocki, had this to say about Mulcrone. "She is positive and energetic. She loves to share ideas, and I love the way you can always laugh with her. Colleen uses her voice wisely and strongly to speak out against injustice."

In response to receiving the honor, Mulcrone was surprised and deeply humbled to be named Heart of the School. She believes deeply in the importance of women's education in a challenging, nurturing environment that encourages risk-taking, leadership, service and using one's voice and abilities for good. Mulcrone hopes to foster the growth of these qualities in Peace students.

Valentines For Seniors

Catholic Charities needs your help to brighten the lives of more than 53,000 seniors in its care this Valentine's Day. The agency is organizing a Valentine drive now through Feb. 14th, Valentine's Day, at its office in Chicago. Individuals - as well as local grade schools and high schools - are asked to create homemade Valentines with a cheerful note inside and deliver them to: Dept. of Communications, Valentine Drive, 721 N. LaSalle St., Chicago, IL 60610.

Catholic Charities will then distribute the Valentines to seniors within its services.

Ends Pay-To-Play

City Clerk Miguel del Valle detailed his strong stand on ethical fundraising that will restore integrity to the City Clerk's office. Del Valle's position ends pay-to-play politics and restores trust after the conviction of the past two City Clerks for using their office for their own personal gain. His pledge mirrors legislation that he championed while serving in the Illinois General Assembly.

Del Valle adopted unprecedented fundraising standards that eliminate donations from current Clerk's office and City of Chicago vendors as well as any contributions from the Clerk's office employees. These restrictions far and away exceed the limits placed on him by city and state law.

"Taking a stand for open and transparent government is nothing new for me - it's the reputation I'm proud to say I've earned," City Clerk del Valle added. "My actions today must restore the broken confidence of the people whose hard earned wages pay our salaries. I've asked my staff to perform an ongoing audit of our contributions to ensure these strict guidelines are met."

City Clerk del Valle, who served more than three untarnished decades as an Illinois State Senator, has a long track record of reducing the influence of money in politics. Of particular note, is the fact that he championed legislation banning campaign contributions to any state constitutional officer as well as to any member of the General Assembly from any vendor with a state contract. The restrictions del Valle placed on himself as City Clerk mirror those restrictions he fought for in Springfield.

The City Clerk is the second highest-ranking official and the most visited office in City Hall. A victory in the Feb. 27th municipal elections would make Miguel del Valle Chicago's first elected Latino Clerk in a career which began with the independent, reform movement of the Harold Washington administration.

State To Use Electronic Hiring System To Expand Access To Employment

Top officials from Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich's office and the state's Dept. of Central Management Services (CMS) announced the State will move to a web-based electronic hiring system that will significantly expand access to state employment while increasing transparency and consistency in the state hiring process. Upon completion, all state agencies under the governor's authority will convert to a centralized, electronic system for posting job openings, accepting applications and tracking status. Processing all job applications through a uniform electronic system will reduce the potential for human error as well as intentional manipulation.

At a recent press conference, Administration officials provided a demonstration of the concept, which was developed in coordination with Deloitte Consulting and the law firm Schiff Hardin after an extensive review of the state's hiring systems as well as best practices across both public and private sectors.

EXPANDING ACCESS TO STATE EMPLOYMENT

Under the new system, the state will provide a single online repository of all open state positions. Interested candidates will be able to browse openings and apply online. Those without home access to the Internet will be able to visit dozens of state facilities across Illinois to apply on-line, or submit a paper application that will then be entered into the electronic system by a data entry group separate from the personnel department. Currently, the state accepts only paper applications for most positions.

If an interested candidate does not find a specific position they wish to apply for, they have the option of submitting a profile with their professional background and interests. As openings become available that meet their criteria, the system will send a message notifying the candidate about the opening and how to apply. The application will contain questions and fields for information specifically required for the position that is open.

REDUCING POTENTIAL FOR ERROR OR MANIPULATION

An electronic system will help ensure that hiring decisions are based only on qualifications and other required considerations like veterans' status. When applicant information is forwarded to the CMS Examination group to be graded, the system will conceal personally identifiable information and only provide information required for assessing a candidate's background and experience in relation to the specific requirements of the open position.

In addition, when state agencies request an "eligibility list" of all candidates who meet the requirements for a specific position, the list will not include any personally identifiable information about candidates.

Under the existing paper-based system, the entire application, including the candidate's name and referral information, is forwarded to graders. Eligibility lists generated for agencies contain candidates' names.

STRENGTHENING TRACKING AND ACCOUNTABILITY

Converting to an electronic hiring system will make it easier for candidates to track their progress. Once a person has applied for a specific position, he or she will be able to log on to a secure section of the system at any time to check the status of his or her application.

In addition, having a central database of all job candidates, grades, eligibility lists, interview results and selections will make it easier for auditors to review the fairness and effectiveness of the hiring process.

Job applicants will enjoy a higher level of security as their personal information is stored in a secure electronic database rather than paper files.

IMPROVING EFFICIENCY AND REDUCING REDUNDANCY

Using an electronic hiring system will help reduce redundancy for CMS as well as for candidates and - as a result - reduce delays or backlogs in the input and grading processes.

Job-seekers will be able to register their personal profile and basic professional background in one place, and each time they apply for an open position, the previously-entered profile information will automatically be included in the application, eliminating the need to re-enter the same information in every application. The change cuts down on the time needed to fill out an application and improves accuracy. Last month, CMS had to return more than 500 applications to job seekers because they were incomplete or illegible.

By only accepting applications for open positions, rather than the longstanding practice of accepting applications for all titles regardless of whether positions are actually open, CMS will dramatically reduce the demand on its grading division. Since January 2003, CMS has received and graded approximately 550,000 applications - many came in for titles or positions that were not open. Only about 9,400 people, or less than 2% of all applicants, were hired.

CMS posted a Request for Information (RFI) inviting interested vendors to provide information about their electronic recruiting and application-tracking products. A Request for Proposals is expected to be posted early this spring, after RFI responses have been reviewed. CMS' goal will be to have the new system in place by the end of 2007.

While the new electronic system is being developed, the state is taking steps in the interim to expand access to state jobs. Beginning Feb. 15th, all open state jobs will be posted at www.cms.illinois.gov. Applications for high-demand, high-turnover positions will be available online. Also beginning in mid-February, all lists CMS generates for eligible external candidates will not contain the name or identifying information about the candidates.

The new electronic hiring system is the latest and most comprehensive step in the Blagojevich Administration's effort to improve the integrity and fairness of the state hiring process.

McAuley Principal Announces Retirement

Sister Rose Wiorek, RSM, who for the past decade has served as president and principal of Mother McAuley Liberal Arts High School, 3737 W. 99th St., formally notified the school and the Sisters of Mercy she will not seek reappointment for the coming academic year.

According to Sister Rose, "I've considered this for more than two years and postponed making my decision until after we celebrated the school's 50th anniversary last year." In a letter being sent to the Mother McAuley community, she explains she plans to "take some personal time, upgrade my skills and explore what new ministerial path I will take."

"It's going to be a challenge to find her successor," said Laura Shallow, chair of the school's board of trustees. "Sister Rose has made so many significant contributions to our school and its academic standing and mission during the 31 years she has been there." Sister Rose earlier served as a counselor and junior and senior-level dean.

Shallow has formed a search committee of board members to seek out and interview qualified candidates. "Sister Rose has assured us she will remain in her position until her successor is hired and takes office," said Shallow.

The Catholic liberal arts school is noted for its students' high scores on SAT and ACT; they surpass national levels for students in coeducational schools. In fact, 99 percent of its graduates continue their education. The school's strong community service component also prepares students for their roles as adults.

CCAGW To Senate: Include Line-Item Veto In Ethnics Reform

Recently the Council for Citizens Against Government Waste (CCAGW) urged the Senate to pass Sen. Judd Gregg's (R-N.H.) amendment to The Legislative Transparency and Accountability Act of 2007 (S. 1). The amendment, called "A Second Look at Wasteful Spending," would give the President a modified form of the line-item veto without usurping congressional spending authority.

"Of the budget reforms now being debated in Congress, the line-item veto is the only proposal that has the potential to actually reduce the number and cost of earmarks," CCAGW President Tom Schatz said. "The line-item veto is a proven tool for eliminating waste and saving taxpayer dollars."

The amendment would allow the President to propose the elimination of individual expenditures and special tax breaks in legislation without having to veto the entire bill. For any such rescission package to become law, both chambers of Congress would have to approve it without amendment by majority vote. Any member of Congress could fast-track consideration of the rescissions for a vote in that chamber within eight days.

The House approved a line-item veto bill last year. Sen. Gregg was able to pass a bill similar to his amendment out of the Budget Committee last summer, but it was never brought to the Senate floor for a vote despite the more than 20,000 petitions and 13,000 e-mails from CCAGW members and supporters sent to the Senate in favor of the line-item veto. Before it was struck down by the Supreme Court in 1998, President Clinton was able to use the line-item veto to cut 82 items to save $2 billion over five years. Sen. Gregg's version would be constitutional.

The 2006 Congressional Pig Book identified 9,963 pork projects costing a record $29 billion in the fiscal 2006 appropriations bills. These projects included $1 million for the Waterfree Urinal conservation Initiative and $500,000 for the Sparta Teapot Museum in Sparta, North Carolina. Earmarks have also played a central role in a wave of ethics and lobbying scandals on Capitol Hill.

"The jury is still out on whether Congress will pass genuine reform or window dressing. The line-item veto would be a significant check against wasteful and egregious pork-barrel spending," Schatz concluded.

The Guide to Earmark Reform, which compares reform proposals of the House, Senate, and Administration, is available at www.ccagw.org.

The Council for Citizens Against Government Waste is the lobbying arm of Citizens Against Government Waste, a nonpartisan, nonprofit organization dedicated to eliminating waste, fraud, mismanagement and abuse in government.

Safest Year On Illinois Roadways

Governor Rod R. Blagojevich announced that 2006 was the safest year on Illinois roadways in more than 80 years as traffic fatality numbers dropped below 1,300 for the first time since 1924. Nearly 100 fewer people were killed on Illinois highways during 2006 than 2005, while at the same time safety belt usage neared 90 percent.

"We had one primary goal in mind when we signed a law giving police the power to pull drivers over for not wearing safety belts - saving lives. Now, only three and a half years later, we recorded the fewest fatalities on Illinois roadways since 1924. These numbers represent clear and convincing evidence to us that the law is working and seat belts really do save lives," said Gov. Blagojevich.

Preliminary data shows 1,267 traffic deaths on Illinois roadways in 2006, the lowest total since 1,065 deaths recorded in 1924. Since 2003, traffic fatalities have dropped from 1,454 to 1,355 in 2004 and 1,363 in 2005. During the same time-frame safety belt usage has increased each year from 76 percent usage in 2003 to 88 percent usage in 2006.

"While increased safety belt usage is certainly a key to saving lives on our highways, it's not a magic bullet. That's why we're working closely with the Illinois State Police and local agencies for increased enforcement and motorist education," said Timothy W. Martin, Secretary of the Illinois Department of Transportation. "Gov. Blagojevich challenged us to try new things aimed at saving lives and for the first time we now have a Comprehensive Highway Safety Program, we've added a new Motorcycle Enforcement Bureau, photo radar and aggressive enforcement and public information campaigns to get motorists to buckle up, slow down and not drive impaired."

Illinois State Police have aggressively been targeting what are known as the "Fatal Five" violations in an effort to reduce highway fatalities. The "Fatal Five" include: speeding, safety belts, improper lane usage, following too closely and driving under the influence.

Recently, Illinois was named by Advocates for Highway and Auto Safety as one of the four "Best Performance States" in its fourth annual highway safety report. The Governor has made improving traffic safety issues a top priority for his administration and has actively supported legislation to reduce fatalities on the state's highways.

Governor Rod Blagojevich has appointed John Filan as Chief Operating Officer, completing his new senior management team, which includes Deputy Governors Sheila Nix, Louanner Peters and Chief of Staff John Harris. Filan, who served as director of the Governor's Office of Management and Budget (GOMB) throughout the Governor's first term, will oversee economic development, infrastructure, business regulation, and environment agencies, as well as government operations, capital planning and public finance.

Filan joined the administration in January 2003 after serving as co-chair of the Governor's budget transition team. He helped spearhead several key management and budget initiatives including the sale of the state's $10 billion pension obligation bond, the elimination of 13,000 positions in the state's workforce, the consolidation of 19 state agencies and commissions; the restructuring of nearly 100 duplicated accounting, personnel and payroll systems, maintained the state's AA rating with bond agencies, despite a historic fiscal crisis, and managed the state's $22 billion debt portfolio, all of which enabled historic investments in health care and education.

Prior to joining the Blagojevich administration, Filan served as the managing partner of an Illinois-based accounting and consulting firm. He began his career at Price Waterhouse, later IBM. Filan earned an MBA from the University of Chicago and served as a member of the Chicago Board of Education.

The Governor also announced that Ginger Ostro will replace Filan as his new budget director. Prior to her appointment, Ostro served as Deputy Director for GOMB. She had also served as GOMB's Education and Child Welfare Director. She has two decades of experience in public policy and state government, which includes budget director for Governors State University, budget director for Chicago Metropolitan 2020 and positions with the Department of Children and Family Services and Public Aid (now Healthcare and Family Services).

Ostro was born and raised in the Chicago area and received a bachelor's degree from the University of Chicago and a master's degree in Public Policy from Harvard University's John F. Kennedy School of Government.

Last week Cook County Board President Todd Stroger announced the release of a $3 billion budget which included no tax increases. The tentative budget reflected on elimination of 1,492 County jobs, many of which are presently unfilled. Also included were some $70 million in cuts at county hospitals and outreach facilities, $31 million in public safety cuts, and the privatization of services at Oak Forest Hospital and the juvenile detention center. The cuts are necessary to address a projected $500 million budget shortfall in fiscal 2007.

The Cook County Board of Commissioners has until Feb. 28th to approve a budget. We'll keep you posted.

Earned Income Tax Credit

As workers prepare for the April 15 income tax return deadline, Governor Rod R. Blagojevich and Carol L. Adams, Ph.D., Secretary of the Illinois Department of Human Services (IDHS) are reminding workers to see if they qualify for the Earned Income Tax Credit, which can help boost their take-home pay, and to take advantage of newly-expanded tax preparation services being offered for free through the state. This year the state will offer free tax counseling at 60 locations across the state, the most ever.

"The Earned Income Tax Credit, the major federal benefit for low and moderate-income families, can be worth as much as $4,536 to a family with two or more children," Gov. Blagojevich said. "In addition, the state EITC can provide up to $226 in state income tax relief. Together, these benefits put money back into the pockets of Illinois' working families."

Secretary Adams said IDHS is reaching out to the people it serves, as well as those who have left DHS programs for jobs. IDHS is encouraging these individuals to take advantage of the Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) and free tax counseling provided by the Tax Counseling Project and the Tax Assistance Program. Most sites will open on Jan. 27th and provide services through April 14.

IDHS provides funding to the Tax Assistance Program and the Tax Counseling Project, which is administered by the Center for Economic Progress. These programs offer free tax assistance and promote the EITC to low-income workers. The services are provided free of charge to families with incomes less than $40,000 and to individuals with incomes under $15,000.

Low-income working families, many of whom may be new to the workforce, often do not have access to affordable, professional tax preparation. Many taxpayers use tax preparation services that charge high fees. Some are also persuaded to apply for "rapid refund" loans with high interest rates and fees which can greatly reduce their actual benefits.

The Tax Counseling Project trains volunteers to provide free tax services to families and individuals at 15 locations in Chicago and 19 other sites throughout Illinois. DHS also funds the Tax Assistance Program (TAP), which has 25 locations in Chicago and the suburbs. TAP recruits tax professionals to volunteer to assist low-income families.

Volunteers will prepare federal and state returns, for the current year and, if necessary, for the past tax years. Volunteers also provide counseling and advise workers about withholding allowances, filing status, and other tax benefits (such as Child Credit and Child Care Credit) for which they may qualify.

For more information on the Tax Counseling Project, contact the Center for Economic Progress in Chicago at (312) 630-0273. Outside Chicago call (217) 753-1641, or call the toll-free statewide number at (888) 827-8511. For information on the Tax Assistance Program call (312) 409-1555. Details are also available on the IDHS website at www.dhs.state.il.us and the Department of Revenue site at www.revenue.state.il.us.

Field Museum's African Heritage Festival

Explore the community and culture of Africa through The Field Museum's African Heritage Festival from Feb. 3rd through 24th. The annual festival is part of the museum's mission to educate visitors about Africa and its people. This year, guests will experience the amazingly diverse cultures of Africa through song, speech and film.

Families will enjoy West African drumming while watching and joining in with the Muntu Drumming Masters on Saturday, Feb. 3rd at 12 noon. Learn how this evocative art form is connected to Chicago and its communities. This performance is free with museum admission.

The John Work Chorale will wow visitors when these vibrant singers demonstrate "Sorrow Songs" of early 19th century African-American literature on Saturday, Feb. 10th at 12 noon. Listen and learn more about the importance of Negro Spirituals in literature. Free with museum admission.

Professor William W. Cook of Dartmouth College will trace the history of "Sorrow Songs" in early African-American literature on Saturday, Feb. 10th at 2 p.m. Drawing on works by Frederick Douglass and other former slaves, Cook will explore musical tradition as it relates to the issues of bondage and freedom, literacy and illiteracy. Free with museum admission.

The Field Museum offers the unique opportunity to screen the fascinating film, "Music is My Life, Politics My Mistress: The Oscar Brown Jr. Story," on Saturday, Feb. 17th at 1:30 p.m. The movie follows the life of political activist Oscar Brown Jr. Following the film, director Donnie L. Betts and performer Maggie Brown, daughter of Oscar, will discuss Oscar Brown Jr.'s contributions to blues, jazz, politics, black theater and the African-American struggle and experience in Chicago. Free with museum admission.

Visitors will take in the dynamic performances of Kwame Steve Cobb and Chavunduka and Maggie Brown as they blend jazz, blues and neo-soul with history, politics and social commentary on Saturday, Feb. 24th at 7 p.m. The eclectic mix can only be described as a cross-cultural fusion of all things spiritual and funk-ridden. The cost is $15, members $10.

Visitors can also explore African culture in both the past and present by visiting the museum's permanent Africa exhibit. Visitors can have a taste of multiple regions of Africa as they go from Dakar, Senegal, to a Cameroon palace, cross the Sahara and sail to America through the eyes of Africans sold into slavery. The exhibit's highlights feature a diverse collection of artifacts, video and hands-on activities.

The Field Museum is also offering a special exhibition, Impressions of Tsavo, from now until July 7th. The exhibition presents the remarkable wildlife, landscape and people of the Tsavo region in the East African country of Kenya. Dazzling color photographs by The Field Museum's own scientists and resident photographer expose viewers to the breathtaking variety of life in the Tsavo region in East Africa. The exhibition presents a close encounter with the famed wildlife of Tsavo, while also providing a glimpse into the lives of the region's human residents. This exhibition is free with general admission to the museum.

General admission is $12 for adults, $7 for children 4-11, seniors and students with ID.

For more information, call (312) 922-9410 or visit www.fieldmuseum.org.

Crystal Heart Ball

You are invited to attend Chicago's premier social event of the season, Little Company of Mary Hospital's 17th Annual Crystal Heart Ball that will take place on Saturday, Feb. 3rd at The Field Museum.

Fred and Kathy Berglund will chair this year's gala along with their co-chairs, Mary Rose and David Roth, M.D. Guests will also enjoy a cocktail reception beginning at 6:30 p.m., followed by a gourmet meal prepared by Carlyn Berghoff of Artistic Events. Berghoff is the granddaughter of the famed Berghoff Restaurant family. After dinner, guests will enjoy dancing to the music of The City Lights Orchestra. The event will feature extravagant raffle prizes along with a silent auction including an autographed Chicago Bears helmet signed by Brian Urlacher and an authentic handcrafted Chicago White Sox bat bench donated by Ron Kittle, former White Sox player and 1983 American League Rookie of the Year. Mr. Kittle is being honored for his work in founding Indiana Sports Charities, a charitable foundation focused on assisting cancer research institutions throughout metropolitan Chicago and Northwest Indiana. Also at the Crystal Heart Ball, Little Company of Mary will present the Sister Nancy Boyle Award for Excellence to the Beverly Breast Cancer Walk Leadership Team.

The Little Company Medical Staff generously donated to the grand raffle the "Choose Your Destination Prize" - either a 10-day spectacular Spain tour including Madrid, Torremolinos and Seville, or a seven-day Hawaiian Island Cruise on Norwegian Cruise Lines. Other exquisite raffle prizes include a stunning diamond necklace and carrying set donated by Coren Jewelers located in Evergreen Park and a Toshiba 41-inch high-definition plasma television donated by Florida Plastics of Evergreen Park. Other lavish raffle items generously donated by community retailers include Waterford crystal, courtesy of O.C. Tanner; a weekend package and a Chicago sports package that includes an overnight stay, a variety of sports tickets, dining, and sports memorabilia. Raffle tickets can be purchased for $50 each or three tickets for $100.

Tickets to this black-tie event are $275 per person with proceeds benefiting Little Company of Mary's Comprehensive Breast Health Center. Attendees can treat friends and/or clients to an elite Diamond Table for $7,500, a Heart of Gold Table for $5,000, or select a Crystal Heart Table for $2,750. For Crystal Heart Ball information, contact the Little Company of Mary Hospital Foundation at (708) 229-5067.

A Long Bridge Over Deep Waters

Students in the Theatre Seminar II class will perform A Long Bridge Over Deep Waters on Friday, Jan. 26 and Saturday, Jan. 27 at 7:30 p.m. and Sunday, Jan. 28 at 3 p.m. in the McAuley Auditorium. The play is about the various religions in our world today. It deals with faith and how it both unites and divides us. The many characters struggle with finding themselves in their religion and with finding their faith. The religions include Tongva, Catholic, Jewish, Methodist, Buddhist, Atheist, Baha, Hindu, Muslim and Gibr.

In ten different scenes the play attempts to show the relationships found between people of different religions. From astronauts to heart transplants, the play takes real life situations and real life tragedies and tries to make sense of them.

The play is directed by Theatre Department Chairperson, Patricia Haynes. All the performers are students from the Theatre Seminar II class and include students from St. Rita High School and Brother Rice High School. Ticket are $4.

Girls Nite Out Benefit

Girls Nite Out Pre-Auction Acquisition Party benefiting the Beverly Arts Center's 36th Annual Auction was held Thursday, Jan. 18, at Beverly's Pantry, 1907 W. 103rd St., Chicago. Edris Hoover (left), and Penny Burns, an artist who is contributing the box she is holding to the Auction, both of which anticipated show at Gaelic Chicago (Beverly) were among the nearly 100 women who enjoyed fine food and drinks plus a chance to preview some of the items to be offered at the Auction on Saturday, Feb. 24 at the Beverly Arts Center. Hosted by the Antique Guild of the Beverly Arts Center and Beverly's Pantry, Girls Nite Out raises money, auction items, volunteer support and interest in the BAC's biggest fund raiser of the year. Burns is among more than 30 area artists who are creating and contributing original works on the Auction theme ArtSide of the Box. These works will be offered for bidding in the silent and live auctions. Planned and presented by the BAC Auxiliary, auction tickets are $40 in advance or $50 on the day of the event, and include hors d'oeuvres by Dish Catering, music by Marilyn Giza's Jazz All Stars, and more. For information or tickets, call (773) 445-3838 or visit www.beverlyartcenter.org.

The Merry Ploughboys

Direct from Dublin, The Merry Ploughboys will perform Irish rebel songs, ballads and more in a highly anticipated show at Gaelic Park, 6119 W. 147th St. in Oak Forest, on Saturday, Feb. 3rd, with doors opening at 7:30 p.m., show beginning at 8:30. The cost will be $20 per person. The Merry Ploughboys are Irish enthusiasts and enjoy classical as well as contemporary approaches of music making. With the sounds of the fiddle, bluegrass banjo, bodhran, bass guitar, piano accordion, and the distinct sounds of the mandolin, The Merry Ploughboys will definitely rouse the crowd's high spirits with not only music but also a reverence for Ireland. Call Gaelic Park at (708) 687-9323 or visit the web site at www.gaelicpark.org to reserve tickets or for more information.

For those who have taken adventurous vacation photographs that turned out good enough to be in a magazine, here's your chance! National Geographic ADVENTURE magazine will once again hold its "Wild Angle Photo Contest," providing amateur photographers the chance to win a fabulous Grand Prize 5-day/4-night trip to Mexico as part of the Adventures in Travel Expo, which is coming to the Donald E. Stephens Convention Center in Rosemont, Jan. 27 & 28.

The contest is co-sponsored by Adventures in Travel Expo - the world's largest active and adventure travel show -- and National Geographic ADVENTURE magazine. The contest has a tremendous success in past years and has secured entries by promising photographers from around the country.

Amateur photographers are invited to submit their best adventure photos to be judged by a panel of award-winning ADVENTURE photographers for the chance to win a 5-day/4-night stay for two at Hotel Las Brisas Huatulco and roundtrip airfare to Mexico connecting through Houston, courtesy of Continental Airlines. The photos are initially judged by an elite panel at each of the individual shows -- NYC/January 13 - 14, Chicago/January 27 - 28, Los Angeles/February 10 - 11 and Washington, DC/March 3 - 4. The winning photos will move on to the finals, with the winner being awarded at the Washington, DC show on March 4. In addition to the Grand Prize, there are 10 runners up, who receive a one-year subscription to National Geographic ADVENTURE magazine.

For more details, visit the Adventures in Travel Expo web site www.adventureexpo.com or the National Geographic ADVENTURE website. www.nationalgeographic.com/adventure.

LOCAL OUTDOOR WRITER GETS LONG OVERDUE AWARD: At the opening ceremonies of the Chicagoland Outdoors Show in Rosemont, Duke O'Malley, longtime outdoor writer for the Daily Southtown, received the coveted "Youth Mentoring Award."

Among the many reasons cited for receiving the award were his 20 years of running the "Duke O'Malley's Free Kids Fishing Derby" - giving thousands of kids the opportunity to experience the joy of fishing for the first time, while accompanied by their parents and other relatives.

Duke O'Malley (right) receives "Youth Mentoring Award" from Don Dziedzina at opening ceremonies of Chicagoland Outdoors Show.

Every kid is a winner in this derby. They all get a fishing pole, a "goody bag," a lucky fishing cap and soft drink. A free raffle takes place with many great prizes including tackle boxes, rods and reels, and even fishing trips awarded.

Over the years I've had the pleasure of hunting and fishing with Duke. I met him in 1995 at an outdoor writer's convention in La Crosse, Wisconsin. After comparing notes we discovered we were raised a half-block apart, he at 63rd Place and St. Louis Ave. and I at 64th and St. Louis. Who said it isn't a small world?

In putting his Free Kids Fishing Derby together, he uses his contacts to get many of the prizes and other necessities to make the event a success for the kids. However, there is always a shortfall to cover so many extras. To solve that problem, Duke puts on his free "Let's Talk Fishing Show" every Saturday, January through March.

The show features fishing pros and prominent outdoor personalities giving very interesting seminars and demonstrations. He ties this in with a voluntary raffle, giving away a variety of outdoor-related prizes. Any profits from the raffles are spent on his Kids Fishing Derby.

Duke's fishing show this coming Saturday, Jan. 27th features outdoor TV and radio personality Chauncy and walleye guru Larry Conn. The show runs from noon to 3 p.m. at the Evergreen Park American Legion Hall, 9700 S. Kedzie Ave. His next show on Feb. 3rd will showcase Canadian Pike expert Jim Crowley and Sun-Times outdoor columnist Dale Bowman.

STOP AQUATIC HITCHHIKERS: A national campaign that helps recreational users to become part of the solution in stopping the transport and spread of aquatic invasive species. Aquatic hitchhikers can spread in many ways, such as on aquatic plants, recreational equipment and in water.

*Inspect your boat motor, trailer and equipment and remove visible aquatic plants, animals and mud before leaving the water access.

*Drain water from your boat, motor, bilge, live wells and bait containers before leaving the boat ramp.

*Report new sightings. If you suspect a new infestation of an invasive plant or animal, save a specimen and report to a local natural resource agency.

*Spray, rinse or dry boats and recreational equipment to remove or kill species that were not visible when leaving a water body, before transporting to another water.

BOOK REPORT: After nearly a century of record keeping, the Boone and Crocket Club has dug deep into its record archives and produced the ultimate history book for whitetail deer enthusiasts. A Whitetail Retrospective is a first-of-its-kind whitetail book that will take you back through the evolution of whitetail deer hunting and big-game record keeping, from the late 1880s through 1980 and is packed with amazing photos, historic score charts and portraits of award-winning whitetails.

A Whitetail Retrospective sells for $34.95 ($27.95 for B&C members) and is available at major retailers. Order direct: (888) 840-4868 or www.booneandcrocketclub.com.

Earns Scholarship

St. Xavier University freshman goalkeeper Danielle Wagner (Worth, University of Illinois) was recently awarded a $1,000 Brine Method and NAIA Champions of Character Scholarship when the honor was announced at the National Soccer Coaches Assn. of America (NSCAA) Convention on Jan. 11th in Indianapolis, Ind. The first-ever award is given to a student-athlete who demonstrates character and dedication both on and off the field.

The NAIA Champions of Character program has established five core values that go well beyond the playing field to the daily decisions of our student-athletes. These character values help young people - and those associated with their development - make good choices in all aspects of their life and reflect the true spirit of competition. The five core values are respect, responsibility, integrity, servant leadership and sportsmanship.

"I think that when people look at Danielle both on and off the playing field, she displays all five of the Champions of Character core values," said St. Xavier women's soccer coach Derek Begich. "She is a born leader with tremendous character and a commitment to excellence. I think it is a great honor for both Danielle and our program to have her as the award's first recipient."

Wagner had a stellar debut season with the Cougars starting 20 of the team's 23 games in goal and posted 104 saves and school-record tying 10 shutouts. She also had a 0.60 goals-against-average, the lowest average ever by an SXU women's soccer goalkeeper. Following the season, she was named a NAIA First Team All-American, a first in the 10-year history of the SXU women's soccer program.

Led by Wagner, St. Xavier earned its first-ever trip to the NAIA National Tournament last fall and finished with a school-record 19-4 overall record.

Passport Program Expands

City Clerk Miguel del Valle's office will expand its U.S. Passport application services to the satellite facility located at 5430 W. Gale St. effective Feb. 1st. As an official U.S. Passport acceptance agency, the City Clerk's satellite office will offer passport application services, including passport photos, at the northwest side facility on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. and on Wednesday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Del Valle's office is expanding passport services to accommodate increased demand for U.S. Passports as a result of new federal travel requirements that took effect Jan. 23rd. The new regulations require U.S. citizens to present a valid passport when traveling by air between the United States and Canada, Mexico, Central and South America, the Caribbean, and Bermuda.

In addition to the north side City Clerk satellite office, residents are reminded that there are several locations to apply in person for a new U.S. Passport including the Office of the City Clerk, Room 100, City Hall, 121 N. LaSalle St.; the City Clerk's satellite office located at 5301 S. Cicero Ave.; the Office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court; and most U.S. post offices.

Passport fees at City Clerk facilities: Regular processing (8-10 weeks), Adults (age 16 & older) $67, Children (under 16) $52; Expedited Processing (2 weeks), Adults (ages 16 & older) $127, Children (under 16) $112.

The passport fee must be in the form of a check or money order only. Cash or credit card will not be accepted for the passport fee. Make check payable to the U.S. Department of State. There is a separate $30 execution fee that can be paid in cash, check or money order payable to the City Clerk.

For information about accepted forms of ID, passport photo requirements and a link to the Passport section of the U.S. Dept. of State's web site, visit the City Clerk online at www.chicityclerk.com. You may also call the Clerk's office at (312) 744-2020 for more information about the City Clerk's U.S. Passport program.

Saint Xavier University & Prairie State College Agreement

Saint Xavier University and Prairie State College have signed a dual-admission agreement to provide a smoother transfer for nursing students between the two schools.

Under the agreement, Prairie State College students earning an associate in applied science degree in nursing can complete their bachelor of science degree in nursing at Saint Xavier's Orland Park campus. Student progress is facilitated through timely completion of program requirements and improved sequencing of learning experiences.

"With the significant national nursing shortage, our dual-admission agreement with Prairie State College allows students to move quickly into the baccalaureate nursing courses and bring special skills to the patients," said Anne R. Bayler, Ph.D., dean of the School of Nursing at Saint Xavier University.

Receiving guidance from both institutions, students will have access to a wider array of choices for academic planning to meet their personal goals, preferences and needs.

"I am very pleased to have the opportunity to provide the graduates from Prairie State College's nursing program the opportunity to articulate to Saint Xavier University," said Gwen Dean, dean of Health Professions and director of Nursing at Prairie State College.

"The faculty and I continue to encourage our graduates to advance their education beyond the associate's degree level. Saint Xavier's fine reputation for the delivery of nursing education at both the bachelor's and master's degree level is the type of educational experience we hope many of our graduates will seriously consider," Dean said.

Saint Xavier University President Judith A. Dwyer, Ph.D., said the agreement benefits all involved. "Saint Xavier is delighted to enhance the ability of nurses from Prairie State College's fine associate's degree program to complete Saint Xavier University's baccalaureate program," Dwyer said.

"It reinforces one of our key values of lifelong learning by guiding students into SXU prerequisites while they complete their PSC nursing courses."

Prairie State College President Paul J. McCarthy agreed. "By expanding an already beneficial association with Saint Xavier, we can bring this wonderful opportunity to our students."

Students in Prairie State's nursing program interested in participating in the partnership program are encouraged to take prescribed "bridge" courses in preparation for the RN-BSN program. Courses can be taken either at PSC or Saint Xavier prior to or concurrently with their enrollment in the RN-BSN program.

Students who successfully complete the associate of applied science degree in nursing with a cumulative grade-point average of at least 2.5 out of a possible 4.0 from Prairie State and have passed the NCLEX-RN exam will be fully admitted into Saint Xavier's RN-BSN program at the Orland Park campus. Application fees will be waived for participants in this program.

For more information, contact Saint Xavier University's Robert Weierman at (708) 802-6200 or Carol Yukich at yukich@sxu.edu.

Saint Xavier University and Prairie State College officials signing the agreement are Saint Xavier University President Judith A. Dwyer, Ph.D., and Prairie State College President Paul J. McCarthy, Ph.D. (both seated). Joining them for the event are (left to right) Carol Yukich, associate professor of nursing, Saint Xavier; Richard Vennieri, associate provost at Saint Xavier; Dominick Hart, provost, Saint Xavier; Anne Bayler, dean of the School of Nursing, Saint Xavier; Sister Ida M. Green, chair of nursing, Prairie State; Linda Uzureau, vice president of academic affairs, Prairie State; Gwen Dean, dean of health professions and director of nursing, Prairie State; and Michaela Reinke, transfer coordinator and chair of counseling and instructional services, Prairie State.

Oral Healthcare Strives To Keep Up

With age comes wisdom and, hopefully, good oral health.

Unfortunately, there are serious hurdles to overcome in protecting the oral health of America's aging population. While research indicates that a greater number of older adults have all or most of their natural teeth than in earlier decades, interrelated health issues, economic changes and barriers to dental care now present our society with important challenges to the oral health of seniors.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) and the National Institutes for Health (NIH) recently reported a nearly 29 percent reduction in the number of adults who had lost all of their teeth. Their research found improved oral health in all age groups, even though the time periods compared were recent history: 1999-2002 and 1988-1994.

People, governments and the oral healthcare industry have adopted disease prevention and health promotion strategies that helped create this success. Today, more people also understand their oral health can be associated with, and reflect on, conditions elsewhere in their bodies.

Most people connect regular check-ups and preventive maintenance with preventing the need for more extensive and expensive treatments later. The word is out that in many cases oral health problems typically associated with getting older - chronic pain, disability, disfigurement and inadequate nutrition - can be prevented or overcome. Enter economic issues to complicate the oral health of our seniors. Many people retire with no dental benefits. To cut costs, companies are cutting or eliminating benefits to retirees. Access to primary dental services is becoming an increasing challenge to the oral health of senior citizens.

Drawing attention to the plight of Americans without dental and other health coverage is a first step. The American Dental Association and other organizations recently conducted a series of activities, "Cover the Uninsured Week," as a national call for steps to help the millions of Americans who lack adequate access to health care.

Some seniors have found a solution through dental coverage recently introduced by AARP, a nonprofit organization for people age 50 and over with over 35 million members. Provided by the Delta Dental Insurance Company, the AARP Dental Insurance Plan offers seniors dental insurance with reduced out-of-pocket costs, the freedom to choose their dentists and claims convenience, among other benefits.

Participating AARP members in many parts of the country can receive immediate coverage for most preventive, diagnostic and basic restorative services, root canal treatments and oral surgeries. After the first year, coverage expands to include major restorations, gum treatments and dentures.

But challenges to improving the oral health of seniors remain. In addition to economically disadvantaged seniors, seniors from minority groups and people residing in rural communities and nursing homes remain at risk from poor oral health and untreated dental problems.

Access To Care Completely Eliminated

Access to Care is a charitable program that provides a delivery system for primary health care to the medically indigent of suburban Cook County and northwest Chicago. The proposed Cook County budget completely eliminated funding for Access to Care. In 2006 the program served nearly 14,000 individuals with an average of 10,000 per month. This vital health program is designed for low income, uninsured residents of suburban Cook County and northwest Chicago.

- Access to Care provides approximately 10,000 low income, uninsured individuals with affordable primary health care services annually.
- Without Access to Care these people would be thrown to the already over-burdened County Health system by the end of the year.
- Access to Care has nearly 700 participating physicians who donate an estimated $3 million worth of in-kind services.
- Does the County want to eliminate a $3 million contribution?
- Access to Care doctors are in local communities throughout Cook County. Many patients are unable to travel the long distances to go downtown to Stroger Hospital.

If the Access to Care program is not in the County budget, communities will suffer. People unable to afford a private doctor will take time off from their jobs to spend a day at Stroger Hospital. They may lose their jobs. Employers suffer when people are not at work and ultimately the public loses, as they are not able to get service from their local merchants.

In order to be eligible for Access to Care, an individual must provide proof of address and proof of income. Eligibility guidelines are 1) live in suburban Cook County; and 2) family income below 200% of the federal poverty level (an example is $40,000 or less for a family of four). The individual must have no health insurance (or a per person deductible of $500 or more) and be ineligible for Medicaid or Medicare.

Access to Care provides the opportunity for low-income individuals to see a local primary care doctor in their private office for $5. Other services include prescription medication for $10 (generic), $20 (preferred-brand name) or $30 (non-preferred brand name) and basic lab and X-ray services for $5. Patients develop a relationship with their Access to Care doctor and report increased peace of mind.

Funded by both public and private sources, the program had received its primary source of funding from the Cook County Board of Commissioners and the State of Illinois. Townships and municipalities as well as private foundations, corporations, service organizations and individual donors also fund Access to Care. The Access to Care physicians annually donate services worth an estimated $3 million.

For more information about the Access to Care program, call (708) 531-0680.

Conduct Major Study

If it is true that knowledge is power, the South Suburban Council on Homelessness will soon have the power to engage the community in crafting solutions to homelessness as a benefit of a $50,000 grant recently awarded to the organization.

The Chicago Community Trust recently announced the award to the Council to assist in the development of a comprehensive report on the causes, conditions and trends existing in the south and southwest suburbs that have an impact on families and individuals facing homelessness.

"The support of The Chicago Community Trust will allow us to accurately document why more people are confronted by homelessness each year and what we can do to stem that tide. By understanding how regional factors such as economic growth, education and population trends lead to homelessness we can start determining ways to combat this growing problem," Fred Shannon, President of the South Suburban Council on Homelessness, said.

The South Suburban Council on Homelessness, established in 1995, is a coalition of 41 social service organizations serving people who are homeless. The Council began gathering information in October, 2006 when it held its first "Summit on Homelessness."

At that time over 70 different entities representing elected officials, municipalities, townships, libraries, police departments, businesses, social service organizations and community residents came together to share their insights on homelessness.

The first step of the project being underwritten by The Chicago Community Trust involves the gathering of existing research on the south suburbs which has been developed over the years. Dr. James Lewis, Director of the Metropolitan Institute at Roosevelt University, and Dr. Larry McClellan, Director of South Chicago, Inc., and well known as a former professor of Sociology and Community Studies at Governors State University, will head up the research team.

The information gathered by the research team will be compiled into a comprehensive report which will fuel the planning work of the Regional Advisory Group. "The foundation of the Regional Advisory Group will be those people who participated in the Summit on Homelessness. However, the Council is certain that the group will grow when the community understands the importance of their involvement," Shannon added.

Estimates predict that annually between 5,000 and 7,500 men, women and children become homeless in the communities which comprise the south and southwest suburbs. Homelessness is not limited to any race, age group, sex, ethnic group or community.

The South Suburban Council on Homelessness' effort is part of a large planning process being coordinated by the Alliance to End Homelessness in Suburban Cook County. Representing 125 suburban communities, the Alliance is working to develop an area wide 10-Year Plan to End Homelessness. To date communities across the United States have developed similar plans which seek to convert community resources into solutions. These plans include strategies to prevent homelessness, ways to house individuals and families who become homeless and concepts to rapidly re-establish people in permanent housing.

For more than 90 years, The Chicago Community Trust has connected the generosity of donors with the needs of the community by supporting organizations working to improve our community. With assets of $1.5 billion, the Trust gave its billionth dollar in grants in 2006. Last year, it made more than $81 million in grants. From strengthening community schools to assisting local art programs, from building health centers to helping lives affected by violence, the Trust continues to enhance our region. American Cancer Society Hosts Relay Kickoff

The committee for the relay for life of Evergreen Park is hosting the annual kickoff for the event on Thursday, Jan. 25, beginning at 5:30 p.m., in the cafeteria of Evergreen Park Community High School. Committee members, team captains, and relayers from past years are invited to attend. Individuals who have not participated in the past, but are interested in learning more about this all-community event, are also invited.

The planning committee will be introduced. Honorary chairman Mayor James Sexton of the Village of Evergreen Park, event chairman Laura Shallow of Fifth Third Bank, and other sub-committee chairmen, will present the highlights of the relay. This event provides an opportunity to raise money for the dreaded disease, while enjoying a night of fun with family, friends, neighbors, and others from the community. Last year, members of the steering committee, including (left to right, seated) chairman Laura Shallow and Sharon Dineen-Holland of Fifth Third Bank, Serene Rademaker and William McGuire of Evergreen Park Community High School, Chris Olenburger of H & R Johnson Brothers, Inc., Elise Ryan of Little Company of Mary Hospital, (back row, standing, sixth from left) and Peter Nielsen of Evergreen Benefit Brokerage, gathered with interested participants. They again encourage people to attend this year's kickoff, and to become involved.

The fourth annual relay is scheduled for the third weekend in July. A special dinner for cancer survivors begins the festivities at 6 p.m., and is followed by an opening ceremony at 7 p.m. Survivors are honored in the initial lap around the track, and are followed by relayers, who take turns representing their teams in walking the track throughout the night, to symbolize that cancer never sleeps.

Make-Up High School Entrance Exam

The chance to become a Pioneer is still available. St. Francis de Sales High School is hosting a make-up scholarship and entrance exam on Jan. 27th for 8th grade students who were unable to attend the first test date.

There is a $25 test fee for the exam which begins at 8 a.m. Students need to bring their test fee and a #2 pencil on the morning of the test.

Letter To The Editor

Editor:

Imagine if, after ignoring your mortgage payments, you convinced your bank to renegotiate the terms of your loan, dropping the interest rate and giving you more time to pay it off.

Then imagine that despite making only two payments in nearly a decade, you still owned your home. If you're an average homeowner, you're probably thinking "dream on."

But this scenario is very real for a particular group of influential investors who received a state-backed loan two decades ago and now owe more than $28 million after failing to pay up.

As Illinois' new State Treasurer, I serve as the state's banker. It is my job to protect the interests of the state's shareholders, the citizens of Illinois. When it comes to this sweetheart deal, I say enough is enough.

The foreclosure proceedings that are currently underway against the owners of the President Abraham Lincoln Hotel and Conference Center in Springfield will finally bring an end to this ugly chapter in Illinois politics.

In 1982, the hotel investors received $15.5 million from the state to build the hotel. Even after former state powerbrokers let them off easy by twice renegotiating the loan and inking favorable deals for their benefit, the investors have failed to make good on the loan.

The state has only received two payments since 1997 and none since 2002, resulting in $28.4 million owed in unpaid principal and interest.

After all the backroom deals and unfulfilled promises, the best course of action is to pursue foreclosure and receivership proceedings.

The hotel owners have failed repeatedly to honor their obligations to the state and do not deserve the opportunity to cut yet another deal at taxpayers' expense.

Placing the hotel in receivership is the equivalent of hiring a new manager. This is the best way to protect the hotel from falling into further disrepair, protect jobs and revive the operations so it can finally turn a profit.

At this point, foreclosure will allow the state to auction off the hotel to the highest bidder, generating the maximum return for taxpayers. The only parties harmed by the foreclosure action are the borrowers, who have to pay taxes on the loan and whom we cannot afford to let off the hook.

Having inherited this financial boondoggle when I took office earlier this month, I will not allow it to fester and cost the state and taxpayers more money than it already has.

Sincerely,
Alexi Giannoulis
Illinois State Treasurer

Copeland Lecture

M. Shawn Copeland, Ph.D., associate professor of systematic theology at Boston College, will discuss how people react to racial, political and religious differences as part of Saint Xavier University's 160th anniversary Catholic Colloquium lecture series at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, Feb. 6, in the Butler Reception Room, 3700 W. 103rd St., Chicago.

Titled "Appreciating Difference: The Catholic University in the Formation of Persons," Copeland's lecture will identify and examine the critical contribution that Catholic universities can make to a social aesthetic that does not merely recognize and negotiate difference, but appreciates and values difference as crucial to the flourishing of human life.

Copeland's academic research and publications include the areas of theological and philosophical anthropology, political theology, and embodiment, with special attention to gender and race. She is recognized as one of the most important influences in North America in drawing attention to issues surrounding African-American Catholics.

A graduate of Boston College (Ph.D.), Copeland specializes in systematic theology, with particular attention to theological anthropology, liberation and political theologies, and African-American religious experience and culture.

Copeland also serves as adjunct associate professor of systematic theology at the Institute for Black Catholic Studies at Xavier University of Louisiana in New Orleans and has taught theology at Yale Divinity School as well as Marquette University. She has written more than 70 articles, reviews and book chapters, and along with Elisabeth Schüssler Fiorenza has co-edited two volumes of the international theological journal Concilium: Violence Against Women (1994) and Feminist Theologies in Different Contexts (1996).

Copeland's lecture is the third in a five-part series that looks at what it means to "be in good standing" with the Catholic Church and the challenges facing Catholic universities since the Second Vatican Council. The lecture is free and open to the public and is supported by a generous contribution from the Lilly Fellows Program.

"In this series, we have invited renowned Catholic scholars to provide theological perspectives that could inform our thinking about social, political and religious issues that did not even exist at the time of the Second Vatican Council in the 1960s," said Sister Susan Sanders, R.S.M., vice president for University Mission and Heritage at Saint Xavier, who organized the event. "As an African-American Catholic and theologian, Dr. Copeland will talk about our differences and the role Catholic universities can play in helping our students and communities understand and celebrate them."

The series, which is funded in part by Saint Xavier's Office for University Mission and Heritage, is one of many events to celebrate Saint Xavier University's 160th anniversary. The series also celebrates the 175th anniversary of the founding of the Sisters of Mercy by Mother Catherine McAuley in Dublin, Ireland, in 1831.

If you would like to have more information about the lecture series, please feel free to contact Kathy Mareska at (773) 298-3981 or mareska@sxu.edu.

Participants will learn planting, propagation and care skills. The greenhouse is located at 5850 W. 103rd St. For more information and to register for this meeting, call (708) 857-2225.

Giovanni Speaks On Racial Diversity

World-renowned poet, writer and activist Nikki Giovanni will speak about racial diversity at 5:30 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 8, in the Butler Reception Room at Saint Xavier University's Chicago campus at 3700 W. 103rd St. The lecture is free and open to the public.

Giovanni's lecture is one of several events planned at Saint Xavier University to commemorate Black History Month. Prior to the lecture from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m., Giovanni will be available to sign copies of her book, The Prosaic Soul of Nikki Giovanni.

Giovanni will discuss the role a university can play in supporting racial diversity and dispelling racial stereotypes. A daughter, mother and professor of English, Giovanni serves as a strong voice for black Americans and has captured worldwide attention with her writings and lectures on civil rights and equality. She focuses on the individual's power to make a difference in oneself, and thus, the lives of others.

Giovanni has received honors and awards for many of her books. Her autobiography, Gemini, was a finalist for the National Book Award. Her other books - Love Poems; Blues: For All the Changes; and Quilting the Black-Eyed Pea - were honored with Image Awards from the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

The lecture is sponsored by Saint Xavier University's African-American Studies Program, Center for Religion and Public Discourse, Division of Student Affairs, and Black Student Union. For more information, contact David Bell at (773) 298-3881.

Other events scheduled at Saint Xavier to celebrate Black History Month include: Feb. 20, 2 to 4 p.m.: Videobrama with commentary by culture worker Mansong Kulubally, featuring video clips on great historians, spiritual leaders, reparations, economics, relationships and more, in Room S-101, Warde Academic Center; and Feb. 28, 6:30 to 9:30 p.m., Celebration of Music, featuring choirs from the Chicago area. McGuire Hall, Warde Academic Center.

Senior Fellowship Group

The Senior Fellowship Group in Oak Lawn is planning a catered Valentine's Party (buffet style) on Thursday, Feb. 15th. It will be held in the auditorium of Trinity Lutheran Church, 9701 S. Brandt, at 12 noon. Directly after the luncheon, Jacki Mari, psychic and numerologist, will be enlightening attendees about senior issues and dreams. She will also take questions from the audience.

For reservations call Mickey at (708) 422-2355 before Thursday, Feb. 1st. The cost is $12 per person.

Richards High School, 10601 S. Central Ave. in Oak Lawn, will host a seminar detailing the risks of steroid use on Saturday, Feb. 17th. Open to the public and free of charge, the 90-minute program will feature presentations by Dr. Michael Ankin, currently a team physician for the Chicago Bears, and Dr. Julian Bailes, Jr., formerly a team physician for the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Richards High School, 10601 S. Central Ave. in Oak Lawn, will host a seminar detailing the risks of steroid use on Saturday, Feb. 17th. Open to the public and free of charge, the 90-minute program will feature presentations by Dr. Michael Ankin, currently a team physician for the Chicago Bears, and Dr. Julian Bailes, Jr., formerly a team physician for the Pittsburgh Steelers.

The seminar, titled "When Winning Costs Too Much: The Science of Education and Nutrition for the Developing Athlete," will run from 1 to 2:30 p.m. For more information, call the Richards athletic office at (708) 499-2550, ext. 5700. Reservations are not required.

"Steroid abuse represents a grave danger to young people everywhere, not just athletes. We're very lucky to have two experts who have worked with professional athletes speak at Richards. We encourage parents, students and coaches to attend," said Richards athletic director Ken Styler.

Bailes, the chairman of the Department of Neurosurgery at the University of West Virginia, will open the seminar by discussing how students need better mentors.

Ankin, a pulmonary specialist, will continue with a presentation that addresses the hypocrisies that sometimes pervade professional athletics. Ankin's key discussion points will include:

- Athletes to students: Do as we say, not as we do.
- Truths and lies behind the NFL's Drug Testing Ban.
- Steroids and designer drugs.
- Solutions to the out-of-control drug problem in sports.

Finally, prior to taking questions from the audience, Bailes will discuss a range of topics relating to young athletes, steroid abuse, and nutritional supplements. His key discussion points will include:

- Caring for youth sports: Are we or are we not?
- Winning at all costs: What we're driven to do and why.
- Who's in charge? Administration and parents are part of the problem.
- The supplement boom: The natural way.
- Solutions: Winning without losing perspective.

Both Ankin and Bailes will allow time for audience members to ask questions.

The Oak Lawn Public Library, 5300 W. 95th St., will host a free lecture on the opera "Dialogues of the Carmelites" at 1:30 p.m. on Sunday, Feb. 4. At this informative session, a member of the Lyric Opera Lecture Corps will explain the plot, give background on the composer, Francis Poulenc, and play musical selections. Sponsored by the Friends of the Oak Lawn Library.

Author John Binder will present a free lecture covering 100 years of organized crime in Chicago at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 6 at the library. Binder is the author of "The Chicago Outfit," a 128-page book exploring the roots of organized crime, from the late 19th century to the present day. At this talk, you will learn about the evolution of Chicago's underworld, including mob business activities, their leadership and the violence and political protection that they employed to become the most successful of the Cosa Nostra crime families. Copies of "The Chicago Outfit" will be available for purchase and autographs.

The library will host "Guys Read," a free after-school program for boys in third through fifth grade from 4 to 5 p.m., Tuesday, Feb. 6. Participants will explore "guy-friendly" subjects and formats, while sharing what they like to read for recreation, not just books. Advance registration required at the Youth Services Desk. Limited to 30 members. Light refreshments will be served.

The library will host a Teen Chocolate Festival for students in grades six through ten from 7 to 8 p.m. on Wednesday, Feb. 7. Participants will taste, make and enjoy a variety of chocolate treats. Advance registration is required at the Youth Services

Hi, I'm still writing (Sunday, Jan. 21st) from the Rehab Center and have a tentative release date of Saturday, Jan. 27th, but it could be sooner. After I get home I'll still have 2 weeks of in-home therapy and 2 more weeks of going for therapy at Palos Hospital.

Two teenagers started a program called "Cell Phones for Soldiers" to help our soldiers call home. They are collecting old cell phones, prepaid calling cards and cash donations. The cell phones are recycled for cash and the proceeds are used to buy the prepaid calling cards for the soldiers. Daniels Printing and Office Supplies, 14800 Cicero Ave., Oak Forest, IL, is an official sponsor and cell phone collection center. Drop off any make or model cell phone. For further information, visit www.cellphonesforsoldiers.com.

Army National Guard Pvt. Brittany A. Franson graduated from basic combat training at Fort Jackson, Columbia, South Carolina. She is the daughter of Tammy Franson of Burbank and niece of Kathy Franson of Evergreen Park. Franson is a 2006 graduate of Reavis High School in Burbank.

Air Force Airman Michael J. Smith has graduated from basic military training at Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Texas. Smith earned distinction as an honor graduate. He is the son of Patti Smith of Chicago. The airman is a 2000 graduate of Mt. Carmel High School in Chicago.

Army National Guard Pvt. Christopher M. Williams has graduated from basic combat training at Fort Knox, Kentucky. He is the son of Carole Williams of Hometown, Ill.

Air Force Airman Kyle L. Wlazlo has graduated from basic military training at Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Texas. He is the son of Alexander and Yolanda Wlazlo of Worth. Wlazlo is a 2005 graduate of Brother Rice High School in Chicago.

Army Pvt. Robert W. Jurgensen has graduated from basic combat training at Fort Jackson, Columbia, South Carolina. He is the son of Isabel Satala of Alsip and grandson of Roberto Fonscca of Burbank. Jurgensen is a 2003 graduate of Alan B. Shepard High School in Palos Heights.

Evergreen Park American Legion Post 854 is asking anyone who has a flag to fly over the post at 97th and Kedzie Ave. in memory of a loved one can drop it off at the post. Also, submit the name of your loved one so they can mention it in the newspaper.

Hometown-Murray VFW Post 9773 is having a GI Breakfast on Sunday, Feb. 11th from 8 a.m. till noon at the 'Mess Hall,' 9092 Main St. The menu includes scrambled eggs, bacon, sausage, pancakes, toast and 'The Soldier's Blue Plate Special'-SOS-Chipped Beef on Toast, coffee and juice. A $5 per person donation benefits veterans, our military, their families and the community. Carry-outs are available. For more information, call (708) 422-9800 after 3 p.m. daily.

"In the Mood," a 1940s musical revue, will be at the Moraine Valley Fine and Performing Arts Center on the campus, 9000 W. College Parkway, on Feb. 12th at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are $25 for adults and $20 for seniors and students. To order tickets, call the Moraine Valley box office at (708) 974-5500. Phone orders are subject to a $1 per order handling fee.

Quote of the week: "Why is it that the first gray hairs stick straight out?" Ken Hubbard

My prayer for you today:
I said a Prayer for You Today
I said a prayer for you today
And know God must have heard.
I felt the answer in my heart
Although He spoke no word!

I didn't ask for wealth or fame
(I knew you wouldn't mind).
I asked Him to send treasures
Of a far more lasting kind!

I asked that He be near you
At the start of each new day:
To grant you health and blessings
And friends to share your way!

I asked for happiness for you
In all things great and small.
But it was for His loving care
I prayed the most of all!

Good-bye until next week. God bless you and your family and God bless America!

Programs To Reduce Juvenile Recidivism

Governor Rod R. Blagojevich announced a $1.6 million grant from the Illinois Criminal Justice Information Authority to the Chicago Police Department (CPD) that will help fight recidivism among juvenile delinquents by improving police communication systems and providing community-based programs and services.

The grant will help fund the development of a management information system at the CPD's Juvenile Intervention Support Center to give police the ability to access linked data from multiple agencies regarding juvenile arrestees. The Center deals with offenders below the age of 17 who have been arrested for misdemeanors or lesser felonies. The system will allow police officers to look up the young men and women's records and, based on the seriousness of the offense, work with parents and guardians to help decide which counseling services are necessary to help keep the youth from going back to prison. The system also allows for follow-up and monitoring of each case.

"If we can intervene at the very beginning to give young men and women another chance at having good, productive, and law-abiding lives, we should do it. Funding initiatives like this is crucial to keep juveniles from wasting their lives in crime," said Gov. Blagojevich.

On behalf of the Chicago Police Department, the City of Chicago received Juvenile Accountability Block Grant (JABG) funding administered by the Illinois Criminal Justice Information Authority (ICJIA) for programs intended to hold youth accountable for past criminal behavior and help prevent future arrests. ICJIA is the state agency designated by the Governor to administer JABG funds.

The Juvenile Intervention Support Center is the first of its kind, housing several agencies to allow more efficient coordination of services to at-risk youth. The Cook County Probation Department, Cook County State's Attorney, Illinois Department of Children and Family Services, Chicago Public Schools, and Chicago Department of Children and Youth Services maintain offices within the building. Since 2003, more than $6 million in JABG funding has been allocated to the Chicago Police Department to complete total renovation of, equip, and furnish the structure at 3900 S. California Ave.

The center offers programs targeting three types of juveniles: nonviolent offenders with prior arrests; juveniles at risk for gang involvement or having had contact with the juvenile justice system; and chronic, serious, and violent juvenile offenders. About 300 juveniles will be served monthly.

Juveniles detained for all except the most serious offenses, such as murder and sexual assault, will be screened to determine their risk to re-offend, their needs, and any protective services they may require due to violent situations in their home lives. The screening determines their qualification for station adjustment; detention, and referral to court.

A study conducted by the Chicago Police Department indicated that of 127 juveniles arrested for first or second-degree homicide between 1999 and 2003, only 19 percent had previous serious, violent arrests. Of 6,291 juveniles arrested for aggravated battery or assault were arrested within one year of their first nonviolent offense arrest, and 83 percent were rearrested within two years.

Based on their identified risk factors, needs, and strengths, station adjusted juveniles can be referred to appropriate community organizations providing career counseling and job placement assistance, education and training, mental health and substance abuse counseling, and counseling on violence issues, staying in school, and structuring their activities to stay out of trouble.

Community agencies selected by the Chicago Department of Children and Youth Services through competitive bids to provide intervention assistance include Canaan Community Complex, Institute for Positive Living, St. Paul Church of God, Holy Cross IMH Parish, Our Lady of Good Counsel, Union Avenue Community Church, St. Agnes of Bohemia, and Passages Alternative Living Programs, Inc.

"Programs offered by these agencies have a three-fold purpose—reducing juvenile recidivism, providing early intervention and comprehensive services to at-risk juveniles, and following the restorative justice philosophy that makes youth offenders responsible for their acts," said ICJIA Executive Director Lori G. Levin, who spoke as the Center was being dedicated by Chicago Mayor Richard M. Daley.

Balanced and restorative justice principles encourage offenders, victims, and communities to resolve incidents of criminal behavior with strategies that promote accountability, community safety, and competency.

Military Personnel

As a way to honor Illinois' military men and women, State Senator Dan Rutherford (R-Pontiac) is inviting Illinois residents to submit original stories, letters, vignettes and photos from any soldier who is serving overseas or away from home.

"I have a great deal of respect for our men and women of the military, and I believe it is important that we acknowledge their strength and commitment," said Rutherford. "This is an opportunity to recognize the soldiers who have sacrificed so much in order to serve this country."

Rutherford said that the messages and photographs can be sent to him at DanRutherford@DanRutherford.com. He will then post them on his Web site at <http://www.DanRutherford.com>.

The Senator also invites the public to visit the website and read of the experiences shared by the soldiers and view their photos. "It is a fascinating read and one I believe should be shared by many," said Rutherford.

It is requested that all submissions be in "first person," from the soldier personally, and contributors are asked to include the soldier's home town.

Lake Michigan Management Grant

Joined by officials with the Illinois Dept. of Natural Resources (IDNR) and the Lake County Forest Preserve District (LCFPD), Lt. Gov. Pat Quinn recently announced the state has secured a $350,000 grant from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (USFWS). The National Coastal Wetland Conservation grant will be used for coastal habitat enhancement by targeting the removal of aggressive invasive plant species on 240 acres of permanently protected, high quality natural areas within Adeline Jay Geo-Karis Illinois Beach State Park, IDNR property, and Spring Bluff Nature Preserve, owned by the LCFPD. Following the announcement, the lieutenant governor, state and county officials, and conservation partners met with USFWS Director Dale Hall, who was in Chicago to present the grant award to the state, to discuss various conservation issues in Illinois.

The Illinois Beach - Spring Bluff complex is Illinois' largest protected, undeveloped coastal natural area. The approximately 3,300-acre site contributes significantly to the national and regional biodiversity of the Great Lakes coastal wetland ecosystems. The complex provides habitat for four federally threatened or endangered species and has the highest concentration of state threatened and endangered species, rare community types, and coastal wetlands in the state.

Recovery efforts for rare species are a priority in this coastal area, and have been demonstrated by the successful reintroduction of the federally threatened Pitcher's Thistle at Illinois Beach State Park and ongoing population study of the state-listed Blanding's Turtle at Spring Bluff.

Madigan Joins Suit

Illinois Attorney General Lisa Madigan recently intervened in a lawsuit against several Chicago-area radiology centers over their payment of illegal kickbacks to referring doctors. The complaint alleges that the radiology centers entered into sham "lease" agreements with doctors under which the doctors pay a reduced rate for MRI and CT scans but charge the patient's insurance a higher rate, and then keep the difference.

In 2006, a private plaintiff, the owner of radiology centers in Illinois, filed the lawsuit in Cook County Circuit Court on behalf of the State. The court maintained the complaint under seal. Attorney General Madigan's office investigated the allegations and determined whether to join the case. The complaint names MIDI, LLC, a Virginia-based company that operates 13 Open Advanced MRI facilities in Illinois. The complaint also names several other Chicago-area radiology centers.

The lawsuit claims the defendants' actions violate the Consumer Fraud and Deceptive Business Practices Act, as well as Illinois' anti-kickback law, the Insurance Claims Fraud Prevention Act. It asks the court to order the defendants to stop paying the illegal kickbacks and seeks money damages, restitution and penalties.

"Illinois has a clear policy against kickbacks, and making payments to doctors for referral of patients is illegal, no matter how those payments are disguised," Madigan said. "Our investigation revealed evidence showing that this practice occurs among doctors and radiology centers in Illinois. This is an illegal practice that must stop."

Young Abe Look-Alike Contest

The Abraham Lincoln Presidential Library and Museum (ALPLM) announced a young Abe look-alike contest for boys and girls ages infant to 18 years. The contest will be held on Feb. 10th at 11 p.m. in Union Theater located inside the museum. The contest is part of the Lincoln birthday weekend events at the ALPLM.

Judging will be based on a young Abraham Lincoln; what he may have looked like between the ages of infant through 18 years - long before top hats and the presidency. Contestants will be admitted to the museum free the day of the contest. Guests accompanying contestants may purchase tickets upon arrival. Registration is not required; however, contestants are asked to present themselves at Union Theater at 10:45 a.m. the morning of the contest. Winners will be selected by a panel of judges, including Illinois State Historian Thomas F. Schwartz. The judging categories are: infants to 2 years, toddlers 3-5 years, children 6-12 years, and junior 13-18 years.

All prizes are donated by the Abraham Lincoln Presidential Museum Store. The grand prize, a $75 Museum Store gift certificate, will be awarded to the best overall contestant. For more information about the contest, call (217) 558-9016.

Designation as an Illinois Nature Preserve provides protection for Illinois Beach and Spring Bluff from development under the Illinois Natural Areas Preservation Act, the highest level of natural area protection offered in the state of Illinois. However, these nationally significant resources are not protected from damage caused by invasive species. The funding awarded, in addition to $174,000 in matching funds provided by the IDNR, LCFPD, and local partners, will provide the financial boost necessary to initiate an aggressive and comprehensive attack on invasive species.

The coastal habitat enhancement project is a cooperative effort of the IDNR, LCFPD, Friends of Illinois Beach, Johns-Manville Corp. and the Alliance for the Great Lakes. The Alliance will use the Great Lakes Adopt-a-Beach program to enhance educational offerings and volunteer participation in invasive control at Illinois Beach State Park.

The project supports the goals and objectives of the Illinois Wildlife Action Plan, the Great Lakes Strategy 2002: A Strategic Plan for the Great Lakes Ecosystem, the Chicago Wilderness Biodiversity Recovery Plan, and the Lake Michigan Lakewide Management Plan.

Receives PATH Award

Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich recently named Margaret A. Davis as the latest recipient of the PATH (Peoples Are Today's Heroes) Award, and first recipient of 2007, for her years of work as a registered nurse and health advocate helping to ensure quality health care for thousands of residents in Illinois.

The governor's PATH Award recognizes those groups or individuals who, through their hard work and commitment, have improved the lives of those in their community and have helped Illinois move forward in the areas of health care, public safety, education and economic development.

"Margaret is an example of what makes a hero. She has worked tirelessly as a nurse to help patients and has done even more to ensure that people have access to health care. She saw the need to improve the health care system and has worked very hard for a change," said the governor.

Davis is the Executive Director of the Healthcare Consortium of Illinois, a non-profit community-based health and human service organization that works to improve and enhance the quality of life in Illinois. The Healthcare Consortium of Illinois, and Margaret's work with the agency began in 1991 to address the health care needs of residents on the south side of Chicago, who were receiving fragmented and inadequate medical services.

Margaret Davis is also a member of the Adequate Health Care Task Force, a 29 voting member Board that was established by the Health Care Justice Act. The legislation, which passed in 2004, encourages Illinois to implement a health care plan that provides access to a full range of preventive, acute and long-term health care services, and maintains and improves the quality of health care services. She was appointed by Senate President Emil Jones, Jr.

Affinity Fraud

Don't let the fancy name confuse you. Affinity fraud is nothing more complicated than investment scams targeted to a specific group of people by someone who claims to be part of that group. Although the returns can sound solid, it pays to be wary. One hundred Texas seniors lost $2.5 million to fraudsters who encouraged them to liquidate their retirement savings and invest them in securities with higher returns. In another scheme, a group of 375 mostly African-American investors were told they could get profits of up to 300 percent with no risk to their principal. They lost at least $2.8 million. This type of fraud is real, and it can happen to you too.

Learn how to avoid becoming a victim with Affinity Fraud from the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission. For your free copy, send your name and address to the Federal Citizen Information Center, Dept. 592P, Pueblo, CO 81009. Or call toll-free 1(888) 878-3256 and ask for Item 592P.

Illinois Mathematics And Science Academy Campus Visit

The Illinois Mathematics and Science Academy (IMSA) has scheduled an IMSA Preview Day for Sunday, Jan. 28th. IMSA Preview Day is an opportunity for students, their parents and teachers to learn more about the Academy's academic and residential life programs.

IMSA's advanced college preparatory program enrolls 650 students (grades 10-12) who are academically talented and who demonstrate a passion for mathematics and science. All students live on campus. Tuition and most room and board are provided by state funds.

Prospective students and their families can learn about the admission process, take a student-led tour of the IMSA campus, speak with faculty, sit in on a mock class and meet IMSA residential staff, parents and alumni. Preview Day also includes a special segment for parents and students interested in IMSA 2007 summer programs for youths in grades three through nine.

The IMSA Preview Day segment showcasing IMSA's college preparatory program will be held from 10:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. and no advance reservations are needed. These are formal events. Arrive by 10:30 a.m. to take advantage of all offerings.

The IMSA Preview Day segment showcasing IMSA's 2007 summer programs will be held from 1 to 3 p.m. During that time, the IMSA Kids Institute will be presenting "Summer@IMSA Sneak Peek" featuring hands-on science programming for elementary and middle school students and the first opportunity to register for IMSA summer programs.

Preview Day also will include a "First Birthday" celebration of the IMSA-ComEd Cyberquiz 4Kids online math and science brainteasers for Illinois students in grades six through nine. Each student who submits a correct answer to a monthly brainteaser will receive a certificate, an invitation to a recognition ceremony in May and a chance to win an iPod Shuffle.

For more information about the IMSA Preview Day or about applying for IMSA's advanced college preparatory program, contact the IMSA Office of Admissions, 1500 W. Sullivan Road, Aurora, IL 60506-1067, (630) 907-5027, or in Illinois 1(800) 500-IMSA or visit the IMSA Admissions Web site at www.imsa.edu/admissions. Application deadline for the Class of 2010 is March 1st. To learn more about IMSA's summer programs for youth, contact the IMSA Kids Institute at (630) 907-5879 or visit <http://www.imsa.edu/programs/kidsinstitute/>.

Mother McAuley Seniors Named State Scholars

The Illinois Student Assistance Commission recently announced the State Scholars for the year 2007. Of this year's Scholars, 48 are students at Mother McAuley Liberal Arts High School. Although program participation by high schools is voluntary, nearly all schools participate and Illinois top students elect to have test scores and academic information sent to ISAC for consideration in this program. Approximately 10% of Illinois' high school seniors are designated state scholars and receive a Certificate of Achievement for the accomplishment.

In order to enter the competition, high school students must take the ACT and/or SAT college entrance examination between September 1 and June 30 of their junior year of high school and have the scores sent to ISAC. Generally, selection of State Scholars is based on a combination of their test scores and their academic achievement.

The following McAuley seniors have been recognized as State Scholars: Kathryn Adamonis (Oak Lawn), Julie Adams (Oak Lawn), Margaret Allison (Orland Park), Andrea Augustinas (Evergreen Park), Caitlin Barski (Morgan Park), Jacqueline Bilder (Palos Heights), Sasha Brnecki (Blue Island), Julia Carey (West Beverly), Brittany Cermak (Evergreen Park), Bernadette Chlipala (Archer Heights), Mary Cullina (Beverly), Jessica Doherty (Oak Lawn), Briana Dunne (Evergreen Park), Megan Dunne (Palos Heights), Maura Farrell (Orland Park), Danielle Fleckenstein (Oak Lawn), Megan Flynn (Midlothian), Lauren Garvey (Oak Lawn), Pamela Gronkowski (Beverly), Erin Knightly (Oak Lawn), Karen Kowalczyk (Oak Lawn), Katherine Latham (Mt. Greenwood), Steffi Leung (West Lawn), Diana Lorenzini (Palos Heights), Joanna Matuszkiewicz (Archer Heights), Anne McCarthy (Beverly), Katie McGowan (Mt. Greenwood), Michele McGuire (Mt. Greenwood), Eileen Meslar (Chicago Ridge), Maura Moran (Evergreen Park), Kaila Mueller (Beverly), Elynn Newell (Evergreen Park), Rana Nino (Oak Lawn), Kaleigh Nolan (Lemont), Ashley O'Brien (Oak Lawn), Heather O'Donnell (Midlothian), Danielle O'Meara (Alsip), Amy Paprocki (Evergreen Park), Amanda Pudil (Beverly), Patricia Radecka (Oak Lawn), Bridget Rohan (Mt. Greenwood), Brittany Rollheiser (Palos Park), Bridget Simpson (Evergreen Park), Kelly Stewart (Beverly), Ashley Vacchiano (Clearing), Katie Vanek (Chicago Ridge), Caitlin Walsh (Beverly), and Kathleen Walsh (Oak Lawn).

Wild Horse Adoption

The Department of Interior, Bureau of Land Management-Eastern States (BLM-ES) will hold a Wild Horse and Burro Adoption at the Wild Horse and Burro Holding Facility in Ewing, Illinois on March 2nd and 3rd.

The adoption will be from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Friday, March 2nd and Saturday, March 3rd. The facility is located 30 minutes from Mt. Vernon, Illinois, just east of I-57 at exit 77. All those who adopt at this event will receive a free halter. Anyone who gets pre-registered and qualified by Feb. 28th and adopts during the event will receive a Special Wild Horse and Burro halter. All other adopters will receive a plain halter.

Yearlings and horses under 5 years old will be available for this event. These horses are noted for their endurance, surefootedness and intelligence. All animals have been examined by a veterinarian, vaccinated, de-wormed, and blood-tested prior to being offered for adoption to good homes.

Since the Adopt-A-Wild Horse & Burro Program began in 1973, over 215,000 animals have been adopted nationwide. Gentle wild horses in the Midwest are used for trail riding, dressage, western events, and other disciplines. Of those 215,000 horses and burros adopted so far nationwide, 2705 have been adopted in Illinois, 2169 in Indiana, 4923 in Kentucky and 5889 in Missouri.

For applications, facility and trailer requirements, or other information about this event, contact the Bureau of Land Management-Eastern States 1-800-370-3936. Adopters' applications must be approved by a Wild Horse and Burro Specialist prior to being eligible to adopt.

You may also visit <http://www.wild-horseandburro.blm.gov/adoption.org> or <http://www.es.blm.gov/whb/> to get requirement information, download an application to become a qualified adopter, and view/print driving directions.

Prospective adopters must have sturdy corrals, at least 6 feet high for horses and 5 feet for burros and yearlings, shelter, transportation, and the means of caring for the animals. The adoption order will be determined by lottery, with an adoption fee of $125 per animal.

Adopters must provide their own stock-type, step-up trailer. BLM staff will sort, halter and load animals onto the adopters' trailers. Applications to adopt may be screened in advance by mail or fax and will be reviewed in person starting Friday. Adopters must be approved to adopt animals. To avoid waiting in the lines call early to be pre-approved before you come and get the Special Wild Horse and Burro halter when you adopt.

The facility is located 5 miles east of Ewing, Illinois, at 22295 Sheep Farm Rd. Directions to the facility are: From Interstate 57, take exit 77 east (S.R. 154), turn north on State Route 37 and go 1 mile, turn east (right) on Ewing Rd., go 8 miles (3 miles past the town of Ewing), and turn north (left) onto Sheep Farm Rd., go 1 1/2 miles, the facility is at the intersection of Sheep Farm Rd. and Bobtail Rd.

Funding For Asian Carp Barrier Projects

U.S. Senator Dick Durbin (D-IL) and Congresswoman Judy Biggert (R-IL) introduced legislation to authorize funding for the Asian Carp barriers in the Chicago Ship and Sanitary Canal.

Asian Carp, an invasive species, threaten the Great Lakes ecosystem by consuming large quantities of phytoplankton and competing with native fish for habitat. Originally, Asian Carp were introduced to the United States as a management tool for aqua culture farms and sewage treatment facilities. The carp have made their way north to the Illinois River after escaping from fish farms during massive flooding along the Mississippi River. Asian Carp can grow to an average of four feet and 60 pounds, and can consume up to 40 percent of their body weight in plankton per day.

The legislation will authorize the Corps of Engineers to: complete construction on a permanent barrier (Barrier II); upgrade and make permanent the original demonstration barrier (Barrier I); operate Barriers I & II simultaneously to optimize effectiveness; and study options and technologies to prevent the spread of this invasive species.

The demonstration barrier in the Chicago Ship and Sanitary Canal was authorized in 1996 under the National Invasive Species Act to prevent non-native species like the Asian Carp from moving between the Mississippi River and the Great Lakes. Since this barrier was designed to be temporary and is close to the end of its expected service life, a second permanent barrier is being constructed.

In June, 2006 Durbin and Obama worked to successfully secure $400,000 to operate the barriers that prevent invasive species from entering the Great Lakes. Twenty-eight other Great Lakes House Members joined Biggert in sending a letter to House appropriators in support of this effort. The funding was included to pay for the operation of Barrier I, a temporary barrier that keeps the invasive species out of the Illinois River and Lake Michigan by emitting an electric current that deters the carp from passing through. Funding to maintain the operation of Barrier I has been almost entirely depleted and the Corps of Engineers indicated that without additional funding they would have to shut down the temporary barrier.

Durbin was a member of the conference committee between the House and Senate versions on the emergency spending bill where the provision to fund barrier I was added. The bill was signed into law on June 15th, 2006.

Award Competitive Technology Grants

Celebrating its fifth year, AT&T Excelsior, a competitive technology grant program from the AT&T Foundation – the philanthropic arm of AT&T Inc. – announced it has awarded a $5,000 AT&T Excelsior technology grant to the South West Special Recreation Association.

Since 2002, the AT&T Excelsior program has provided more than 2,500 technology grants equating to over $38.8 million to organizations across the country. In 2006, more than 480 regional and local nonprofit organizations benefited nearly $6 million through the competitive program. The AT&T Excelsior program is a key component of AT&T AccessAll, a three-year, $100 million philanthropic initiative to provide technology access to the organizations that work to strengthen communities.

"The new video camera, digital camera, projector and laptop computer purchased with these funds will enable SWSRA staff to develop a more interactive website there by increasing program enrollment, volunteer recruitment and donor recruitment," said Executive Director Lori Chesna.

"The South West Recreation Association is a leader in providing quality recreation programs and services for individuals with disabilities and special needs. Incorporating new technologies into its operation will go a long way in better serving their clients and community," said State Senator Ed Maoney.

AT&T Excelsior is a major philanthropic initiative that helps nonprofits fully integrate technology into their ongoing operations and community outreach. AT&T Excelsior grants also help nonprofit organizations put technology tools into the hands of the underserved populations they work with, providing resources such as Internet access, computer training, math and reading programs, and job-skills development.

"For five years, the AT&T Excelsior program has underlined

American Cancer Society Seeks Volunteers

The American Cancer Society is seeking volunteers to participate in the Daffodil Days campaign by serving as a sales coordinator for their local business, school, community or religious group.

Volunteers encourage co-workers, friends and community members to purchase daffodils for themselves or as a gift to honor a cancer patient, survivor or caregiver through the Daffodil Days campaign. Daffodils provide a symbol of hope and new beginnings to those affected by cancer. While the flowers will be distributed the week of March 19th, daffodils can be purchased now through Feb. 28th.

New this year is the Garden of Hope Potted Daffodil Bulbs. Each pot contains three bulbs that can be cultivated into a lasting tribute by planting them after they the importance of how technology can benefit communities and organizations," said Jerry Mytych, external affairs director, AT&T Illinois. The South West Special Recreation Association will continue to use technology funded by this program to empower the community and change the lives of those they serve on a day-to-day basis. We commend Senator Ed Maoney for his dedication in assisting nonprofit organizations in the Chicagoand area and understanding the vital role technology plays in their success."

The 2006 grants will help nonprofit organizations across Illinois and the U.S. improve their operations and build stronger communities through: Internet Access, networked, high speed access to the Internet and e-mail; Data Networking, network connectivity enabling easy sharing of database applications and information systems; Online Outreach, Interactive, Web-based applications that support activities such as service delivery, volunteer recruiting and e-fundraising; Staff Technology Capacity, technology-training programs for nonprofit staff members; and Pooled Technology Resources, programs that work to address the technology needs of multiple nonprofits.

Since 1996, AT&T Inc. and the AT&T Foundation have contributed more than $439 million to nonprofit organizations across the country. With its strong giving record, the AT&T Foundation is among the five largest corporate foundations in the United States and was ranked by Forbes magazine among the most generous corporate foundations in 2006.

bloom. Also available for delivery is the second bear in the Boyds Bear collectors series, "Hugh R Hope," designed exclusively for the American Cancer Society. This 10-inch plush bear features the Society logo embroidered on one paw and a bunch of daffodils embroidered on the other. Hugh arrives with an armful of 10 live daffodil stems.

West Cook County hopes to deliver hundreds of daffodils this year, raising $28,000 for cancer research.

"Bear and a Bunch" costs $25. The flowers range in price from $7 for a bunch, consisting of 10 daffodils, to $300 for a case of 50 bunches. For more information on how to volunteer for the campaign or to order daffodils, call Stephanie Russell at the American Cancer Society at (708) 484-8541.

Landfill Capacity In Illinois Remains High

Disposal capacity available statewide at landfills in Illinois is sufficient for the next 19 years, according to recently released data from the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency contained in the annual Nonhazardous Solid Waste and Landfill Capacity Report. This level is considered very good by national standards.

The remaining landfill capacity is calculated by dividing the volume of wastes disposed during 2005 (52.3 million cubic yards) by the capacity remaining on Jan. 1, 2006 (980.4 million cubic yards).

This information, along with detailed statistics by region on landscape waste compost facilities, waste transfer stations, waste generation and recycling and solid waste planning efforts are provided in Illinois EPA's 19th annual report, "Nonhazardous Solid Waste Management and Landfill Capacity in Illinois," for 2005.

The report shows that overall the number of active landfills was 51. One new landfill opened in Region 3; Indian Creek Landfill #2, in Hopedale. Kankakee RDF, Chebanse closed in Nov. 2005, and expansions were approved at Lee County Landfill, Dixon and Roxana Landfill, Inc., Roxana.

While the number of active landfills in Illinois accepting waste remains good overall, regional capacity estimates vary significantly. Illinois EPA's Region 2, the Chicago Metropolitan region, has about nine remaining years, with the use transfer stations allowing much of the solid waste in the Chicago region to be sent to facilities outside the region. This contrasts with Region 7: Southern Illinois, which has a calculated remaining capacity of 51 years.

In addition, the report notes that citizens throughout the state continue recycling efforts to stretch out disposal capacity. Local recycling coordinators in Illinois report that nearly 9.6 million tons of municipal waste was recycled in 2005. Total municipal waste generation rate of 25.3 million tons equate to nearly 38 percent recycling in the state, a slight improvement from previous years. Although parts of Illinois are rural and far from recycling markets, many local governments continue their recycling education efforts, and collect recycling data from haulers as a necessary public service.

Additionally, in 2005 there were 102 active transfer stations and 40 active compost facilities that help manage the waste generated in Illinois.

Only 13 percent of solid wastes deposited in landfills in Illinois in 2005 came from 10 other states, with over 75 percent of that amount generated in Missouri. Although Illinois haulers also transported solid wastes to other states, they are not required to report this to the state of Illinois; therefore, the Illinois EPA cannot provide the volume exported.

Illinois EPA's seven regional offices, 18 delegated counties, the Ambrow Valley Solid Waste Agency and the City of Chicago have been given the authority to inspect landfills, transfer stations and compost sites in their jurisdictions, providing a needed service to the citizens of Illinois.

Additionally, through the Agency's new I-RID

Annual Benefit Auction

The 36th annual Beverly Arts Center Auction will be held on Saturday, Feb. 24, at the Center, 2407 W. 111th St., Chicago. ArtSide of the Box is the theme for the event, which will feature original boxes and artwork inspired by boxes created for the event by Chicago artists.

The BAC Auxiliary plans and presents the auction, which is its biggest fund raiser to benefit the Center.

Chicago artists who have promised to donate original works to be auctioned are Laurie Ach, Mathias Schergen, Judy Sullivan, Rebecca Healy, Kanani Caauwe, Mark Vancura, Mary Lenzini, Alice McMahon White, Nancy Plax, Susan Larsen, Ericka Turkes, Billi Traynor, Joe Leamanczyk, Abra Macellaio, Ericka Swift, Meribeth Wulff, Cathy Shepherd, James Filut, Scott Jordan, Cyn Fielding, Meg Simmerling-Faeh, Dale Vanderbloemen, Dionne Harrell, Jen Hall, Monica Balc, Nicole Marie Dudik, Thom Cicchelli, Victoria Sobcsak, Penny Golden, Jo Marie Fleming, Paul "Woody" Bauer, Karen Clodfelter, Kellogg School students, Trinity United Methodist Church, and the Keller School Art Club.

Girls Nite Out Pre-Auction Acquisition Party will be held Thurs., Jan. 18, 7 p.m., at Beverly's Pantry, 1907 W. 103rd St. Admission is $25 or the donation of an auctionable item of equal or lesser value at the door. An auction preview party hosted by the Morgan Park Junior Woman's Club, will be held Sunday, Feb. 11, 3 to 5 p.m., in the BAC Atrium. The event is open to the public.

Persons wishing to donate fine art, antiques, collectibles, furniture, and service and entertainment packages to the auction can drop off items during BAC business hours (Monday - Friday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., Saturday 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Sunday, noon to 5 p.m.) or call Nora Ferstead, Beverly Arts Center, (773) 445-3838, ext. 213, for additional information.

The Beverly Arts Center Auction features silent and live auctions, and is the Center's major annual fund raiser. The Center is a not-for-profit, regional facility that provides fine arts programming and education for children through adults. Donations to the auction are tax deductible to the extent allowed by law. For more information, visit www.beverlyartscenter.org or call (773) 445-3838.

Lawsuit Alleges Consumers Were Misled

Attorney General Lisa Madigan recently filed a lawsuit alleging that Paul Kocourek and Progressive Care of Illinois, Inc. misled consumers at county fairs and local senior health fairs into undergoing blood tests to determine if they suffered from allergies.

Madigan's lawsuit, filed in Cook County Circuit Court, charges Paul Kocourek, doing business as American Institute of Allergy, a dissolved Arizona corporation, and Progressive Care of Illinois, Inc., an Illinois corporation, with multiple violations of the Illinois Consumer Fraud and Deceptive Business Practices Act.

Specifically, the lawsuit alleges that Kocourek and Progressive Care of Illinois set up booths at local county and senior health fairs and urged consumers to have their blood tested to determine if they suffer from allergies. The lawsuit alleges that Kocourek and Progressive Care of Illinois failed to inform consumers about the true cost of the allergy tests, which range from $1,568 to $1,681. The lawsuit further alleges that the defendants made misrepresentations to consumers that Progressive Care of Illinois would (1) only charge the cost of the test to the consumers' insurance companies, (2) accept the consumers' insurance companies' payments as payment in full, and (3) mail the allergy test results directly to the consumers' homes within 4-6 weeks.

However, according to the complaint, after drawing blood from consumers and billing their insurance companies, Kocourek and Progressive Care of Illinois never provided consumers with allergy test results. Additionally, the lawsuit alleges that in one instance, the defendants represented to a consumer that they would not bill her insurance, but did so anyway.

The lawsuit asks the court to prohibit the defendants from selling allergy tests and failing to provide test results, in violation of Illinois' consumer protection laws. In addition, the lawsuit asks the court to assess a civil penalty for each violation of the law and an additional penalty for each violation found to have been committed with the intent to defraud.

More Federal SCHIP Funding To Illinois

Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich recently called on Illinois' Congressional Delegation to work with his Administration to bring more federal funding to state healthcare programs by revising the formulas used to allocate the State Children's Health Insurance Program (SCHIP) funds. The current formulas punish states like Illinois that have worked aggressively to expand access to healthcare to more citizens, and instead prioritize funding based on which states have the highest uninsured populations. The governor's announcement came as healthcare leaders and state officials around the nation discussed the importance of the SCHIP program during the Campaign for Children's Health Care's National Town Hall Meeting on Children's Health Coverage, held at 35 locations nationwide, including Springfield and Chicago in Illinois.

The current SCHIP formula, which is partially based on the number of low-income children who do not have healthcare, penalizes Illinois for taking action to provide healthcare to more children. Gov. Blagojevich called on the Illinois Congressional Delegation and the U.S. Congress to revise the formula to be based on the total number of low-income children in the state and number of children and parents covered.

The Campaign for Children's Health Care organized the National Town Hall Meeting on Children's Health Coverage to raise awareness about the SCHIP program and to draw attention to children who are still uninsured and need access to quality health care coverage.

Deceptive Check Solicitations

Attorney General Lisa Madigan recently announced separate settlements totaling $14.5 million, with 16 states and Chase Bank and Trilegiant Corp., to resolve allegations that the companies unlawfully deceived consumers into paying for membership programs for discounts on car and home repair, shopping, and other goods and services. Joining Illinois in the settlements are the Attorneys General of Alaska, California, Connecticut, Iowa, Maine, Michigan, Missouri, North Carolina, New Jersey, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Vermont and Washington. The settlements also involve Chase Home Finance and TRL Group, Inc.

Under the settlements with Chase and Trilegiant, Trilegiant must pay $8.325 million in restitution to all consumers in the 16 states who either have complained to Trilegiant or the State Attorney General's Office, or who complain in writing within the next nine months. Of the 16 states involved in the settlement, approximately eight percent of the impacted consumers live in Illinois. Trilegiant and Chase also will pay $6.175 million to the settling states for consumer education and enforcement. Illinois' share of payment for consumer education and enforcement is $652,128.

The settlements resolve claims that Trilegiant, through a partnership with Chase, solicited consumers with offers of "free" trials in membership programs without adequately informing the consumers that Trilegiant would charge their Chase credit cards or Chase mortgage accounts if the consumers did not take action to cancel the "free" trial within a specific period of time. As part of their partnership, Chase and Trilegiant entered into agreements under which Trilegiant gained access to Chase's customers for the purpose of marketing the membership programs. In soliciting Chase customers, Trilegiant used Chase's name and provided Chase with the right to review and approve the marketing materials.

Under this settlement, consumers who (1) signed up for membership in a Trilegiant club through any bank or other company with which they did business and (2) were first charged membership fees on or after July 1, 2001 are eligible to receive a refund of membership fees they have paid. The settlement does not constitute an admission of wrongdoing by Chase or Trilegiant.

The names of the membership programs involved in these solicitations include, but are not limited to, AutoVantage Gold Service, AutoVantage Service, Buyers Advantage Service, CompleteHome Service, Just for Me, Pet Privileges Service, Shoppers Advantage Service and Travelers Advantage Service.

Consumers who are concerned that they may have unknowingly paid for a membership program, regardless of their bank, should carefully examine their credit card or mortgage statements for any of the program names listed and should also monitor their mail for any notices from Trilegiant. Consumers can also contact Trilegiant electronically at www.trilegiant.com or by mail at Trilegiant Corporation, 100 Connecticut Ave., Norwalk, CT 06850, Attn: K. Buonagurato.

Illinois consumers who would like to submit written complaints requesting restitution for unauthorized charges must submit those complaints to: Illinois Attorney General's Office, Consumer Fraud Bureau, 500 S. Second St., Springfield, IL 62706.

Illinois Fails Tobacco Control Report Card

Once again Illinois received failing grades in the 2006 annual tobacco control report card issued by the American Lung Association. Although the state was cited for minimal spending on tobacco education and a failure to prevent youth to tobacco, Illinois received positive comments for passing legislation that allows municipalities to go smoke-free.

"We're grateful that policymakers in Chicago, Cook County, Springfield and other municipalities passed smoke-free laws last year. But we need to save more lives and reduce health care costs by making Illinois a smoke-free state," said Joel J. Africk, President and CEO of the American Lung Association of Metropolitan Chicago.

The American Lung Association State of Tobacco Control 2006 report graded the 50 states, District of Columbia and Puerto Rico in four categories: smoke-free air, tobacco taxes, prevention funding and restrictions on youth access to tobacco products.

The report gave Illinois the following grades: Smoke-free air, Grade: F; Tobacco taxes, Grade: D; Tobacco prevention and control spending, Grade: F; and Youth access to tobacco products, Grade: F.

Despite these failing numbers there were positive moves made in 2006. Thanks to a law passed in 2005, as of Jan. 1, 2006 municipalities in Illinois were allowed to regulate smoking in public places. Springfield started the year by adopting a 100% smoke-free law on Jan. 17th. The momentum has continued, with 28 other cities approving new smoke-free laws and another 50 to 60 cities, towns, villages and counties in the process. In March, Cook County passed a 100% smoke-free law (effective March 2007). Two of the largest municipalities surrounding Chicago, Evanston and Oak Park, passed comprehensive smoke-free air ordinances that took effect July 1, 2006.

The Lung Association report found the following: A record 26 states and the District of Columbia earned passing grades ("C" or better) for having laws that make workplaces free of tobacco smoke, unfortunately, another 23 states received "F" grades in that category; cigarette taxes rose in eight states in 2006, New Jersey now has the highest tax at $2.575 per pack and the national average has risen to $1 per pack; and while overall funding for tobacco prevention and cessation programs increased in 2006, 34 states, including Illinois, received "F" grades for the amount they spend to help people avoid smoking or quit. Only nine states received "A" grades for spending a significant amount on smoking prevention and cessation, up from six states in 2005.

Symptoms Of CO Poisoning

Chillier weather in many parts of the country has people turning up the heat and possibly increasing their chances of harming themselves and their families. Emergency physicians are warning the public of the dangers of carbon monoxide, or CO, an odorless and colorless gas found in the emissions of fireplaces, gas stoves, water heaters, kerosene heaters, furnaces and boilers.

"If you get bad headaches or suffer from fatigue, nausea, dizziness or confusion you may easily confuse those symptoms with the flu," said Dr. Brian Keaton, president of the American College of Emergency Physicians (ACEP). "So it's very important that people know the symptoms of dangerous levels of gas in their homes and, more importantly, know how to prevent the buildup of CO in their homes in the first place."

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), more than 500 Americans die each year from unintentional CO poisoning. Severe symptoms of CO poisoning include vomiting, loss of consciousness, heart irregularity and breathing difficulties, but these symptoms can vary widely based on the exposure level, duration and the health and age of an individual.

"Every home should have a carbon monoxide detector and you should never ignore the alarm or turn it off without having the sources of CO checked in your home," said Dr. Keaton. "It is much better to be safe than sorry when dealing with CO because it can be very dangerous."

To protect your family this winter, ACEP provides the following safety advice: install a carbon monoxide detector on each level of your home, especially near the sleeping areas; have gas appliances installed by a qualified professional; use only appliances that vent fumes outside; if you choose to use an unvented fuel-burning space heater, only use it while someone is awake to monitor it; never use a gas range or oven to heat a home; never use a charcoal grill inside; never leave the motor running of a vehicle parked in an enclosed garage; turn on the exhaust fan over your gas stove when using it; make certain the fireplace flues are open during use; have gas furnaces, water heaters, clothes dryers, fireplaces and flues inspected annually by a qualified service technician.

ACEP is a national medical specialty society representing emergency medicine with more than 25,000 members. ACEP is committed to advancing emergency care through continuing education, research and public education. Headquartered in Dallas, Texas, ACEP has 53 chapters representing each state, as well as Puerto Rico and the District of Columbia. A Government Services Chapter represents emergency physicians employed by military branches and other government agencies.

College Illinois!

Families interested in investing in their children's future college education at today's prices have until April 24, to participate in the ninth annual enrollment period for College Illinois!, the state's prepaid tuition program, according to State Senator Christine Radogno (R-Lemont).

Radogno explained that College Illinois! was developed to help families afford probable future increases in college tuition and fees.

"The cost of college increases every year, which is why families are encouraged to take steps now to prepare for their child's future," said Radogno. "College Illinois! is a great way to ensure that when your child or grandchild graduates high school, the funds will be available to finance their continuing education."

College Illinois! is completely tax-exempt in Illinois, and various payment options are available, including monthly and annual installments.

Participants can purchase from one semester at a community college, to nine semesters at a university. The benefits can later be used at any community college and university, public and private, in the nation.

Once a plan is purchased, anyone—grandparents, relatives, family friends—can make a payment on behalf of the beneficiary.

Since the program was established in 1997, more than 53,000 contacts representing 168,630 years of prepaid college have been purchased.

Information and applications are available by visiting www.collegeillinois.com or by calling toll-free at 1-877-877-3724.

Harris offers a 6.99% Annual Percentage Rate ("APR") on home equity loans of $25,000 or more with a loan-to-value ratio not exceeding 85% and a loan term of 5 years. This 6.99% APR fixed rate would result in 60 monthly payments of $19.80 per $1,000 borrowed for a 5 year term, and assumes a Harris checking account with automatic monthly payments. (For loan amounts of $25,000 or more without automatic payment deductions from a Harris checking account, for a 5 year term the APR would be 7.49% and would result in 60 monthly payments of $20.03 per $1,000 borrowed.) Funds will be disbursed after the federally mandated cancellation period. Property must be an owner occupied 1-4 family residence in IL, IN, and WI and is subject to no less than a second lien position on your property and is subject to our underwriting standards. This offer does not apply to any transaction used to purchase a 1-4 family residence. Property insurance required; flood insurance may be required. Rates and closing costs are subject to credit qualifications. Closing costs paid by Harris are limited to appraisal, flood determination, title insurance and recording fees. Costs to satisfy certain prior liens may be assessed. Consult your tax advisor regarding the deductibility of interest. This offer is non-transferable, cannot be combined with any other offer, and can be withdrawn at any time without notice. File Taxes Online

Nearly 300,000 Illinois taxpayers have already simplified their lives this year by filing their state taxes electronically, including more than 21,000 who used the department's free online WebFile program.

"Two out of three taxpayers will get a state tax refund," said Revenue Director Brian Hamer. "The easiest and fastest way for a taxpayer to get that refund is by filing electronically."

Illinois has options for those who use a tax preparer, those who use tax preparation software packages, as well as for those who do their own taxes, Hamer said.

"We built our WebFile system because we think all taxpayers should have a free electronic option," said Hamer. "It requires no special software, and taxpayers who try it tell us they are pleased at how easy it is to use."

Taxpayers who file their tax returns electronically and have their refunds direct deposited into their bank accounts will see their refunds in a week; those who file paper returns will have to wait while their returns are mailed, opened, sorted, and data entered, all manual processes that can take weeks.

So far this year 293,000 Illinoisans have filed their tax returns electronically, an increase of 6.7 percent over the same period last year.

Besides fast refunds, taxpayers who file electronically will make fewer mistakes that delay refunds; will get a confirmation number that proves that they filed, and can enjoy the convenience of filing from home.

Electronic returns and electronic refunds travel over secure connections directly to the Department of Revenue's computers without chance of being lost or misplaced in the mail.

Taxpayers can get more information on electronic filing by visiting www.tax.illinois.gov.

Leo Club Installs Officers

Lions Club International representatives hosted a ceremony installing the new officers of the Leo Club from Richards High School on Tuesday, Jan. 23rd at the Oak Lawn Hilton.

Lions Club District 1-A Vice Governor John Chisum, Oak Lawn Lions Club President Robin Kirar, Zone Chairman Frank Kirar, and Oak Lawn Lions Club member and Richards Leo Club sponsor Len Pearson presided.

The officers installed include President Sonam Tanna, Vice President Matt Erickson, Treasurer Erika Flores, and Secretary Melissa Taylor. Class representatives who took office include Brian Greco, Rebecca Calvillo, Lanita Warner, and Amanda Hanks.

Leo Clubs, the high school affiliates of Lions Clubs International, plan, organize and fund a range of service and volunteer projects to help those in need. The Richards club, for example, sponsors a year-round food drive; holiday parties for nursing homes and schools for the developmentally challenged; a pancake breakfast fund raiser; bell ringing for the Salvation Army; and, volunteering for Lions Club Candy Days.

Pryme Tymers Hold Meeting

The Pryme Tymers, a very active fellowship that meets at Trinity Church, 9230 S. Pulaski Rd. in Oak Lawn, invites the entire community to their meeting on Thursday, Feb. 8th at 11 a.m. Entertainment will include a musical presentation by the Evergreen Park Double-Nickel-Plus Chorus, including a few love songs for Valentine's Day. At noon, a roast chicken luncheon, prepared by Chef Pitluck, will be served. The cost is $6 and reservations are required. Call the church office at (708) 422-5111 or Tom Panush at (708) 636-7548 by Friday, Feb. 2nd. Transportation is provided upon request. Canned goods is also collected for the Salvation Army Food Pantry.

Pearson founded the Leo Club at Richards in 1969. The Richards group, which Pearson has sponsored since its inception, was the first Leo Club formed in Illinois.

Top 10 Consumer Complaints

Attorney General Lisa Madigan announced that for the first time in the history of the Illinois Attorney General's Top 10 Consumer Complaint List, identity theft complaints topped the list, exceeding the other categories by far. Madigan attributes the dramatic increase in consumer complaints concerning ID theft to her office's new Identity Theft Hotline, announced in February 2006.

Madigan also announced that her office's Consumer Protection Division received a record number of consumer complaints in the last year. In 2006, the Consumer Protection Division received 32,724 consumer complaints, a more than 18 percent increase over the 26,652 consumer complaints received in 2005. This increase follows a nearly 11 percent increase in consumer complaints in 2005.

In 2006, Madigan's Consumer Protection Division fielded 188,292 calls for assistance and recovered through mediation more than $7.7 million with litigation savings of more than $18 million for a total of more than $26 million in savings to Illinois consumers.

Of the complaints received in 2006, 5,327, or 16 percent, concerned identity theft. Just as in 2005, credit-related complaints ranked second on the Top 10 list, with 3,444 consumer complaints. Coming in third on the list are the 3,204 construction and home improvement complaints that Madigan's office revealed in 2006.

Along with the striking jump in the number of identity theft complaints, Madigan noted that the 2006 statistics reveal another significant new trend in consumer complaints. For the first time, her office received more than 700 complaints from homeowners with mortgage-related problems. Although the number falls just shy of the top ten, it marks a greater than 100 percent increase in mortgage-related complaints since 2005.

In a large number of these complaints, consumers contacted the Attorney General's office seeking help in problems with so-called "mortgage rescuers." In a typical case, the mortgage rescuer promised to help homeowners on the brink of foreclosure to save their home, but, instead, the rescuer purchased the property for a fraction of its value and stripped the equity from the home, leaving the homeowners with nothing.

In response to this disturbing trend, Madigan drafted and worked to pass the Mortgage Rescue Fraud Act in the last legislative session. This Act, which went into effect on Jan. 1, requires that mortgage rescuers either save the home as promised, or pay the homeowner 82 percent of the home's fair market value. Madigan also filed three law suits in 2006 against mortgage rescuers for allegedly engaging in illegal practices to deprive several Illinois homeowners of their homes.

No. 1: Identity Theft Complaints. Consumer complaints regarding identity theft raise a range of issues confronting victims of this rapidly-growing fraud. Specifically, the ID theft consumer complaints involved credit cards, 1,428 complaints; phone, internet, and utility company complaints, 736; bank fraud complaints, 439; collection agency complaints, 202. Consumers brought most of these complaints to Madigan's office by contacting her new Identity Theft Hotline (1-866-999-5630). Through this help line, trained advocates and attorneys have worked with consumer to help them restore their credit.

No. 2: Credit-Related Complaints. Complaints regarding credit came in second place including 2,210 complaints about collection agencies, reflecting consumers' ongoing and significant problems with collection agencies. While complaints regarding credit also came in second place on the 2005 Top 10 List, the 2,210 complaints involving collection agencies in 2006 represents a significant increase from 1,451 collection agency complaints received in 2005.

In addition to collection agency complaints, other credit-related complaints involved: credit cards (907), including complaints about unauthorized membership club charges appearing on credit card accounts, balance transfer and introductory rate problems, higher interest rates than expected, and unexpected fees; and erroneous entries on credit reports (178).

No. 3: Construction and Home Improvement Fraud Complaints. Construction and home improvement fraud came in third on the list and consistently has ranked as one of the top three consumer complaints since 1984. Complaints regarding construction and home improvement in 2006 include those related to remodeling (1,101); roofs and gutters (391), siding, windows, and doors (350); new construction (263); and plumbing and sewers (175). This category also includes 924 complaints about other construction-related issues.

No. 4: Telecommunications Complaints. These complaints included claims regarding wireless service and cellular phones (749), long distance service (394), cable and satellite service (376), do not call (372), Internet service providers and DSL (295), local phone service and repairs (277), and other telecommunications-related complaints (319).

The remainder of the Top Ten List includes: No. 5, Promotions and Schemes 2,261; No. 6, Financial Services, 1,695; No. 7, Motor Vehicles/Used Auto Sales, 1,486; No. 8, Mail Order, 1,475; No. 9 Business to Business Fraud, 815; and No. 10, Motor Vehicle/Non-Warranty Repair, 790.

For all consumer fraud issues, consumers can visit Madigan's website at www.illinoisattorneygeneral.gov or call the Consumer Fraud Hotline: 1-800-386-5438 and 1-800-964-3013 (TTY); Spanish Language Hotline: 1-866-310-8398. The Identity Theft Hotline is 1-866-999-5630 and 1-877-844-5461 (TTY).

2007 Historic Hotels Of America Directory

The 2007 Historic Hotels of America directory is available and includes enhancements to help people select the ideal historic hotel for their travels.

"Historic Hotels of America offers travelers a sense of place and diversity in experiences," says Thierry Roch, executive director of Historic Hotels of America. "With the 2007 directory, travelers can learn more about the hotels to ensure they select the one that best suits their needs and expectations."

Enhancements allow travelers to determine if the hotel was originally built as a hotel or if it has been converted into a hotel. Identifiers describe the type of hotel (inn, hotel or resort) as well as the style of service (charming, classic or luxurious). Icons showcase the historic charm and character unique to Historic Hotels of America members such as having historic tours, art collections, ghosts, presidential visits or gardens.

The directory highlights an interesting fact about each hotel. Here is a sampling: Cowboy turned artist Lon Megargee's home is now the Hermosa Inn in Paradise Valley, Ariz. Megargee is known for painting the picture, "The Last Drop" that can be seen inside any original Stetson hat; John Rutledge House Inn in Charleston, S.C., is one of only 15 homes of signers of the Constitution that stand to this day; and during the Cold War, The Greenbrier in White Sulphur Springs, W.Va., was home to a secret "bunker" intended to house Congress in the event of an attack.

Historic Hotels of America is a program of the National Trust for Historic Preservation. Historic Hotels has identified 207 hotels in 39 states, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico and the U.S. Virgin Islands that have faithfully maintained their historic integrity, architecture and ambiance.

To receive a copy of the 264-page Historic Hotels of America directory, send a $4 check or money order to National Trust/HHA, P.O. Box 320, Washington, D.C. 20055-0320. Or, request a directory online at www.historichotels.org. Rooms at any of the member hotels can be reserved by visiting www.historichotels.org or by calling (800) 678-8946.

Aggression Awareness

Jan. 16th kicked off Relational Aggression Awareness Week at Queen of Peace High School. At the beginning of the week, students learned the results of their anonymous relational surveys, which were taken earlier in the school year. During the presentation, students discovered that everyone to some extent participates in relationally aggressive behavior, which can range from eye-rolling, to excluding someone on purpose, to gossiping, to sending hurtful messages via the computer. According to Peace's Director of Guidance Counseling, Katherine Walker, girls often use RA as a protective factor in their struggle to find power and a voice in today's world.

Throughout the week, students learned how to avoid engaging in relationally aggressive behavior. In a home-room activity, students watched video clips from the film "Mean Girls." After viewing the clips, students analyzed the characters' relationally aggressive behaviors and explored the consequences of such behaviors on one's self esteem.

Relational Aggression Awareness Week at Queen of Peace stems from an effort to help students become more conscious of their behaviors and to understand how those behaviors affect others. "It's hard to be nice all of the time and probably not necessary. What we are learning here is how to vocalize our feelings and our needs in appropriate, not hurtful, ways," said sophomore Mollie Heath.

Community College Scholarship Fund

As part of its corporate citizenship program, Accenture (NYSE: ACN) will offer a new scholarship program to junior- and community-college students seeking four-year degrees. In addition to the scholarship funds, recipients at the junior-year undergraduate level may be eligible for summer internships at Accenture. Illinois is one of several states in which students are eligible to apply for the national scholarship program.

The Accenture Junior and Community College Scholarship Fund will support community college students entering bachelor's degree programs related to high technology and business. These scholarships are part of the company's commitment to providing access to higher education and developing a competitive U.S. workforce. In 2007, the scholarship fund will award up to 20 scholarships of $5,000 each, renewable up to one year or until a bachelors degree is earned.

Accenture has selected Scholarship America, the nation's largest nonprofit, private-sector scholarship and educational support organization, to administer the scholarship fund.

Commenting on the scholarship program, Dean Teglia, managing director of Accenture's Chicago office, said, "Like their counterparts across the country, the community colleges in the Chicago area are a gateway to the future for first-time students looking for an affordable college education, and for mid-career students seeking to get ahead in the workplace. I'm proud that Accenture has created a program designed to help everyone pursue their dream of completing a college education."

Successful candidates for the Accenture Junior and Community College Scholarship will have excelled academically and demonstrated leadership ability as well as commitment to community. To be eligible, candidates must: be enrolled in a full-time undergraduate course of study at an accredited two-year junior college or community college and plan to transfer to an accredited four-year college or university and pursue a baccalaureate degree; be attending school in one of the following states/regions, California, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Metropolitan New York/New Jersey, Texas or Metropolitan Washington DC/Maryland/Virginia; have a minimum grade point average of 3.0 on a 4.0 scale (or its equivalent); and be seeking degrees and careers in the high technology and business fields.

Financial need will also be considered. The application period for the Accenture Junior and Community College Scholarship program begins today. Applications must be received by Feb. 15. Detailed information on the scholarship, including eligibility requirements and an application, can be attained at: www.sms.scholarshipamerica.org/accenturecommunity.

Scholarship America is one of the nation's largest nonprofit, private-sector scholarship and educational support organizations. Its three primary programs – Dollars for Scholars®, Scholarship Management Services and ScholarShop® – are united in the mission to expand access to education. Scholarship America has awarded more than $1 billion to more than one million students since its founding in 1958.

Accenture is a global management consulting, technology services and outsourcing company. Committed to delivering innovation, Accenture collaborates with its clients to help them become high-performance businesses and governments. With deep industry and business process expertise, broad global resources and a proven track record, Accenture can mobilize the right people, skills, and technologies to help clients improve their performance. With approximately 146,000 people in 49 countries, the company generated net revenues of US $16.65 billion for the fiscal year ended Aug. 31, 2006. Its home page is www.accenture.com.

Aglow International

The Oak Lawn Chapter of Aglow International will meet on Thursday, Feb. 8th at Mama Luigi's Restaurant, 7500 S. Harlem in Bridgeview.

The speakers for February will be Pastors Joy and Scott Howard who serve as youth pastors under the leadership of Pastors Steel at Life Church in Palos Heights. They are also the parents of two children of their own.

In 1997 they dramatically accepted the Lord at Stone Church Assembly of God during extended revival time and became ordained through the Church of God.

Joy and Scott both came from an abusive childhood and turned to drugs to escape the reality of life before God intervened.

They have a special passion to minister to people from similar backgrounds of life struggles that are in need of healing and restoration.

Come and hear their testimony of God's work in their lives.

Dinner tickets are $13, available at 6:30 at the door. Dinner is served promptly at 7 p.m. Reservations are required by Feb. 5th. For additional information and reservations, call June at (708) 424-1656.

Marist State Scholars

The Illinois Student Assistance Commission recently named 76 Marist High School seniors Illinois State Scholars. The Illinois State Scholars Program recognizes the top 10% of the state's high school seniors for outstanding academic achievement.

Additionally, seniors Katie Reilly (left) and Dan Soso, both of Mt. Greenwood, were elevated to the distinction of National Merit Scholarship Semifinalists. Only 16,000 high school students in the country advance to this honor. It recognizes the top scorers in each state in standardized testing. They will be informed in April if they advance to the Finalist level.

In 2006, Marist also improved its average ACT score to 23.7. The state average is 20.5.

Founded by the Marist Brothers in 1963, Marist High School is a private Catholic school serving the young men and women of southwest Chicago and the surrounding suburbs.

Avila To Address O.W.L.S.

Commissioner Frank Avila, with the Metropolitan Water Reclamation District of Greater Chicago, will speak before the O.W.L.S. (Older, Wiser, Lutheran Seniors), Thursday, Feb. 8 at 10:30 a.m. in Christ Lutheran Church, 14700 S. 94th Ave., Orland Park.

Arlene Zimmerman, announced that the commissioner will explain the workings of the MWRD.

Commissioner Avila has over 40 years of experience as an engineer and land surveyor, lending his talent to over 300 engineering projects. He received his Bachelor of Science degree in Civil Engineering from the University of Illinois, Champaign-Urbana and a Master of Science from the University of Arizona.

Governor Blagojevich Promotes Hiring Military Veterans

Building on Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich's commitment to help Illinois' veterans get the opportunities they have bravely earned, the State of Illinois is promoting the hiring of the state's military heroes with a new tax incentive for businesses. Employers can now earn income tax credit of up to $600 for every qualified veteran they hire. The departments of Veterans Affairs, Revenue, Employment Security, Transportation, Central Management Services, and Commerce and Economic Opportunity will promote the tax credit in a variety of ways through their agency services.

Beginning in tax year 2007, Illinois employers can earn tax credits for hiring veterans who have recently been on active duty overseas. Employers can earn the new Veteran's Tax Credit of 5 percent of total wages paid, up to a maximum of $600 annually, for wages paid to each veteran hired after Jan. 1, 2007. The veteran must work at least 185 days during the tax year for the employer to qualify. The credit is available for veterans who were members of the Armed Forces, the Armed Forces reserves, or the Illinois National Guard on active duty in Operation Desert Storm, Operation Enduring Freedom, or Operation Iraqi Freedom.

For more information about the Veteran's Tax Credit, go to the Dept. of Revenue's web site, www.tax.illinois.gov and visit the Taxpayer Answer Center or call the Dept. of Revenue's toll-free assistance line at 1(800) 732-8866.

Rep. Lipinski Selected As Vice Chair Of House Science Committee

Last week, Rep. Dan Lipinski was selected Vice Chair of the House Committee on Science and Technology for the 110th Congress. In addition, Rep. Lipinski was selected to serve on the Energy and Environment Subcommittee and the Research and Science Education Subcommittee. These subcommittees oversee issues critical to maintaining economic competitiveness, national security, and the environment.

"As an engineer by training and a former university professor, it is a great honor to be selected as Vice Chair of the House Committee on Science and Technology," said Congressman Lipinski. "This position will provide me with a great opportunity to continue my leadership on issues critical to our future including reducing our dependence on foreign fossil fuels, improving math and science education in our schools, protecting the environment, and increasing American economic competitiveness."

Congressman Lipinski has put a tremendous emphasis on improving our economic and national security by investing in energy research and science education. Lipinski is the sponsor of the H-Prize Act of 2007 that establishes competitively awarded cash prizes for scientific breakthroughs in the advancement of hydrogen energy technology. This bill passed the House overwhelmingly last year and was reintroduced this week.

"Scientific advancement is one of the keys to U.S. competitiveness in a global marketplace. If we don't invest in tools that help our businesses and manufacturers compete, they can't create jobs," continued Lipinski. "This committee will remain extremely active throughout this Congress to address our many scientific and technological challenges."

The Research and Science Education Subcommittee has jurisdiction on all matters relating to science policy and science education, and exercises oversight over the Office of Science and Technology Policy (OSTP) and the National Science Foundation (NSF). The Energy and Environment Subcommittee has jurisdiction on all matters relating to energy research and development, and exercises oversight over Dept. of Energy (DOE) research and laboratories, Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) research and development programs, National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) activities, advanced nuclear, solar, and renewable energy technologies, and energy aspects of climate change.

Howard Sworn In

In a ceremony held recently in Springfield marking the beginning of the 95th General Assembly, state Rep. Constance a. "Connie" Howard (D-Chicago), was sworn in for her seventh term representing the 34th District.

First elected in 1994, Howard is one of the leading advocates in the state for assisting ex-offenders become productive citizens. Her other legislative priorities include: improving education and health care, increasing funding for and awareness of HIV/AIDS in the African American community and closing the digital divide in Illinois.

Over the next two years, Howard will continue to fight for more money for local schools, affordable health care and other programs that assist low-income families. Last year Howard was successful in securing funding for the new All Kids health insurance program, which provides affordable health insurance for uninsured children in Illinois, including children who don't qualify for other state programs.

To ensure all Illinois children receive an excellent education, Howard will continue her fight to increase funding for public schools. Last year, Howard brought home $83 million in new state money for schools in the city of Chicago and fought for a $2.9 million increase in funds for suburban schools in her district.

"My priority again this year will be to ensure state funds are appropriated to programs that stop the spread of HIV/AIDS in the African American community, assist ex-offenders in becoming productive citizens and help more people become computer literate," Howard said. "I am pleased with the progress we have made on all of these issues, but there is still more work to be done and I am eager to make progress in each of these areas during the 95th General Assembly."

Howard represents the 34th Illinois Representative District, which includes all or portions of the Chicago neighborhoods of Pullman, Chatham, Greater Grand Crossing, South Deering and Hegewich, as well as the suburban communities of Burnham, Calumet City and Lansing.

By THOMAS E. GAVIN

U.S. Senator Dick Durbin (D-IL) recently joined a bipartisan group of Senate colleagues in introducing the Passenger Rail Investment and Improvement Act of 2007. This legislation reauthorizes Amtrak funding for 2007 through 2012.

For background, Amtrak's reauthorization expired in 2002. Since then no agreement had been reached on Amtrak policy, and Amtrak reform efforts and funding have ground to a halt while Congress and the present administration consider Amtrak's fate. The passage of an Amtrak Reauthorization measure will help build a consensus around increased Amtrak funding while considering needed reforms.

Durbin suggested that Illinois benefits, both directly and indirectly, from Amtrak jobs and service. Amtrak employs over 2,000 Illinoisans and annually spends $56 million for goods and services in the state. Amtrak's Midwestern hub in Chicago brings 2.5 million riders into the city each year. According to Senator Durbin "more than 25 million people rode on Amtrak in 2006, the fourth straight year that ridership has increased. Amtrak has established itself as a vital element in our national transportation system," Durbin concluded.

Worth Village Mayor Ed Guzdziel and the Worth Integrity Party are hosting the annual "Mardi Gras Celebration" this Friday, Feb. 2nd from 7 p.m. to midnight at the Garden Chalet, 11000 S. Ridgeland Ave., Chicago Ridge. Hors d'oeuvres, appetizers, beer, wine and soft drinks are on tap. GG Productions will provide the music to celebrate New Orleans style. Tickets are $30 per person and are available at the door or you can call Anita at (708) 361-4673 for more information.

Governors State University is hosting a graduate programs open house on Saturday, Feb. 3rd from 9:30 to 11 a.m. for the College of Business and Public Administration. Faculty, advisors, administrators and current students will be available to discuss master's degree programs in business administration, accounting, management information systems and public administration. This event is open to the public and will be held on the University's main campus located at 1 University Parkway, University Park, Illinois.

For more information or to RSVP, contact Monica Miller at (708) 534-4934 or m-miller@govst.edu.

The Southwest Symphony Orchestra will offer its concert "Continental Crossroads" on Saturday, Feb. 10th at 8 p.m. in the Ozinga Chapel Auditorium at Trinity Christian College in Palos Heights. The theme of the evening reflects the last cross-cultural influences on music in which composers borrow from distant lands.

Trinity Christian College is located at 6601 W. College Dr. (Rte 83) in Palos Heights. Ticket prices: adults $20-25; seniors $16-$20; students $5; children under 12 are free. Groups of 10 or more may pay $10 per person. For more information, call (708) 424-2083.

The American Red Cross of Greater Chicago has requested that All Points remind Chicagoland residents to nominate their local heroes for the 2007 Heroes. Breakfast to be held on Tuesday, April 10th at the Fairmont, Chicago.

The American Red Cross of Greater Chicago believes outstanding people who present endless valor, compassion and humanity toward their community should be honored and they need the public's help in recognizing them. They will honor people who have demonstrated outstanding community service in nine categories: Citizenship, Community Impact, Disaster Response, EMS, Firefighter, Good Samaritan, Good Samaritan (youth under 21), Law Enforcement and Military.

Candidates must live or work in one of the seven counties that the American Red Cross of Greater Chicago serves (Cook, DuPage, Kane, Kendall, Lake, McHenry, or Will) and their heroic act must have taken place within the last 12 months.

Nominations must be received by Jan. 31st, to be eligible. Nomination forms can be mailed to ARCGC Heroes, 2200 W. Harrison, Chicago, IL 60612 or faxed to (312) 729-6305. Forms can also be submitted online at www.chicagoredcross.org.

Chicago Gaelic Park, the Irish Cultural Center located at 6119 W. 147th St., Oak Forest, will sponsor an essay contest, open to all students in good standing in the sixth grade through high school. The essay should address the topic "What does it mean to be Irish?"

Requirements for grades six through eight are a maximum of three typed pages (8 1/2 x 11) with awards of $1,000, $750, and $500. High school students are required to submit an essay with a maximum of five typed pages (8 1/2 x 11) with prizes of $1,000, $750, and $500.

A random draw awarding a $250 prize will reward the efforts of entrants and give recognition to other than the six winners.

Essays must be received at the Gaelic Park front office by Wednesday, Feb. 28th. E-mailed essays will not be accepted. Winners will be announced at Gaelic Park on Sunday, March 11th, at the 9 a.m. mass.

Awards will be presented to the winners on Sunday, March 25th at the Celtic Supper. The essays will not be returned. Winners will be notified by phone, and the awards are issued to both students and parents jointly. Essays will be evaluated by an independent academic committee. Call Gaelic Park at (708) 687-9323 for essay applications and any further information.

Nominations for the Illinois 2006-2007 "Teacher of the Year" award are now being accepted through March 1st. The announcement came via the award sponsor, Teachers' Insurance Plan™, a car insurance program exclusively for members of the educational community.

This award will include $1,000 to the winning teacher and a $500 grant to the winning teacher's school. The state winner will also be eligible for the National Award that includes a special recognition and a $2,500 travel certificate.

Teachers, students and parents can nominate any of the state's more than 160,000 accredited teachers. Nomination forms are available online at www.teachers.com/loty. To nominate an educator or yourself, explain in 250 words or less why this teacher should be the Teacher of the Year. Nominees will be judged on their ability to motivate students, their special talents, and their contribution to their school. Winners will be announced at the start of the next school year.

Brookfield Zoo To Debut Polar Bear Cub

There's a new bear in town, but you won't find it on a football field. The Chicago Zoological Society (CZS), which manages Brookfield Zoo, announced the birth of a polar bear cub, born Dec. 14th. Since the birth, the cub has been in a maternity den with its mom, Arki, growing by leaps and bounds and exploring its new surroundings. It will make its debut to zoo guests sometime this spring, at which time the public will be invited to help name the cub through a contest. Until then, video of the cub and Arki can be viewed on the zoo's Web site, www.BrookfieldZoo.org.

At birth, polar bear cubs weigh approximately one-and-one-half pounds and are about the size of a newborn puppy that can fit in the palm of a hand. Depending on its gender, when full grown the bear will weigh between 775 to more than 1,500 pounds if it's a male or 330 to 550 pounds if a female. They are blind and deaf for the first three to four weeks of life. Cubs stay in the den with their mother for several months, developing their motor skills and putting on weight nurtured by Mom's milk, which is 33 percent fat—the richest milk of all the bear species.

Arki, 22, born at Brookfield Zoo, has had five successful litters, including her most recent one. Her mate, Aussie, was born in 1985 at Adelaide Zoo in Australia and the following year he came to Brookfield Zoo to be paired with Arki. Polar bears are typically solitary animals, coming together only to breed. Arki and Aussie were reintroduced to each other in February on a recommendation from the coordinator of the Association of Zoos and Aquarium's (AZA) Species Survival Plan (SSP). An SSP is a cooperative population management and conservation program for select species in zoos and aquariums in North America. Each SSP manages the breeding of a species in order to maintain a healthy and self-sustaining population that is both genetically diverse and demographically stable.

Including this cub and two litters being reared at Toledo Zoo in Ohio, there are 96 polar bears in 35 U.S. zoos accredited by AZA. The sire of the three cubs in Ohio is Marty, Arki's first cub. "It's very rewarding for CZS staff to see one of its cubs mature and participate in the managed population," said Dr. Stuart Strahl, CEO and president of CZS.

In mid-summer, the two bears were separated in preparation for denning, a natural behavior for pregnant bears. Females exhibit delayed implantation, meaning the fertilized egg implants about five months after breeding. They stay in the maternity den for three to six months. Cubs are born from November to January and leave the den with their mother in March or April.

CZS has been a leader in successfully breeding polar bears. In the early 1970s, animal care staff researched literature on polar bear dens in the wild and replicated maternity dens in the bears' off-exhibit space. A tunnel leads to a semi-circular inner chamber, and the entrance faces away from service doors to provide the bears privacy. (In the wild, polar bears often den in packed snow or dry streambeds.) Since the dens were created, CZS has seen a dramatic increase in its polar bear cub success rate. In the last 10 years, CZS is one of only nine institutions to raise a cub.

When the cub makes its debut, the exhibit's pool will be drained and lined with bales of straw, as will the moat area. This precaution is only temporary while the cub explores its new environment. After several weeks, water gradually will be added to the pool, at which time Arki will teach her cub to swim.

It is estimated that between 22,000 and 25,000 polar bears are in the wild, though exact numbers are not known in their natural habitat of the circumpolar Arctic: U.S. (Alaska), Canada, Russia, Greenland, and Norway. In February 2005, several conservation organizations petitioned the U.S. Department of the Interior to list polar bears on the "threatened" species list of the Endangered Species Act. In late 2006, the Secretary of the Interior announced that the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service would be gathering additional information and scientific data during the next 12 months before making its final decision whether to list the species on the threatened list.

There has been a noticeable warming trend in portions of the polar bears' habitat, threatening the species with extinction by the end of this century. For instance in Canada's Hudson Bay, the ice that polar bears use to hunt seals—their mainstay of their diet—is melting two weeks earlier than it did 20 years ago, which means they have less time to hunt and store up needed fat. This is a particularly serious problem for the females because they use so much energy to nurse their cubs. Researchers report that there has been a 7 percent reduction in ice cover in just 25 years and a 40 percent loss of ice thickness. It is predicted there will be a mostly ice-free Arctic summer by 2080 if present trends continue. Other threats to the bears include pollution, poaching, and industrial disturbances. Also, hunting could become a threat if populations are not well managed.

"Since research shows that polar bears are in trouble in the wild, it is imperative that we at CZS try to make a connection between people and these incredible animals. In this way, people will understand that this species needs to be saved and that they can make a difference," Strahl added.

The mission of the Chicago Zoological Society is to inspire conservation leadership by connecting people with wildlife and nature. Open every day of the year, the zoo is located off First Ave. between the Stevenson (I-55) and Eisenhower (I-290) expressways and is also accessible via the Tri-State Tollway (I-294), Metra commuter line, CTA, and PACE bus service.

Sims Blasts Budget

In a rally recently held, County Commissioner Deborah Sims blasted the proposed budget released by Cook County Board President Todd Stroger, calling the proposed cuts irresponsible and unacceptable. The budget would reduce funding for the Bureau of Health Services by over $100 million, eliminate 16 medical centers, and eliminate over 6,000 county jobs.

Speaking onsite at the Cottage Grove Health Center, one of the centers targeted for closure, Sims was adamant about the importance of the medical center to the community. "Residents depend heavily on this medical center to address real life concerns and medical needs. These aren't statistics we are dealing with, they are people's lives."

A public hearing was overcrowded with concerned citizens voicing their concerns about the budget. The closure of Cottage Grove Health Center and Woody Winston Health Center in Phoenix, which the budget also targets, would leave Robbins Health Center as the county's only clinic in the south suburbs. The proposed budget does not provide new resources for Robbins.

"Without these clinics, residents here would simply have no immediate access to healthcare," continued Sims. "A lot of our residents rely on public transportation — are they supposed to wait for a bus in the event of a medical emergency? This is irresponsible and unacceptable and we are going to do everything we can to keep these clinics here."

The budget goes next to the County Board of Commissioners with a Feb. 28 deadline for passage.

Black History Month Events

Moraine Valley will spotlight the African-American culture during its February celebration of Black History Month. Free events will feature food, a steppers workshop, documentaries on civil rights, a service project, and a book discussion and movie showing of The Pursuit of Happyness. All events will take place in the Marge and Bob Bobb Student Life Center, Building C, on campus, 9000 W. College Pkwy., Palos Hills, unless otherwise stated.

The celebration will kick off with a Taste of Soul on Feb. 5 from noon to 1 p.m. Enjoy Creole/Cajun food and traditional African-American soul food while quantities last.

Learn a traditional dance style known in Chicago as Steppin' during a MECA Steppers Workshop led by instructor Eric Gordon on Feb. 7 from noon to 2 p.m. The workshop will be in the Café Moraine stage area in Building C.

The Library (Building L) will show two episodes of the documentary Eyes on the Prize—Mississippi: Is This America?, will cover the continuing civil rights struggle in Mississippi and will be shown on Feb. 8 at 12:30 p.m. The second film will feature the final year of Martin Luther King's life in Eyes on the Prize—The Promised Land, which will play on Feb. 21 at 1 p.m.

Cyndi Vasquez-Barrios, assistant dean of Student Life, will lead a book discussion on The Pursuit of Happyness, the tale of a single father who raise his son while homeless in San Francisco and eventually becomes a millionaire stockbroker and business owner, on Feb. 20 from noon to 1 p.m. The movie featuring Will Smith will be repeated all day on Feb. 27.

The Alliance of African-American Students will host

Blankets For Seniors on Feb. 22 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. During this service project, participants will make blankets for seniors involved in Robbins Park District programs.

Black History Month is sponsored by the Celebrating Diversity Task Group. All events are open to students, faculty, staff, and the community.

For more information about the events, call Multicultural Student Affairs at (708) 974-5475, or visit www.morainevalley.edu/transfer/events.

Forgotten Genius

A fascinating and largely unknown story of scientific triumph and racial inequality comes to television in NOVA "Forgotten Genius," the extraordinary life journey of Percy Julian — one of the great chemists of the 20th century.

The grandson of Alabama slaves, Julian met with every possible barrier in a deeply segregated America. He was a man of genius, devotion and determination. As a black man, he was also an outsider, fighting to make a place for himself in a profession and country divided by bigotry — a man who would eventually find freedom in the laboratory. By the time of his death, Julian had risen to the highest levels of scientific and personal achievement, overcoming countless obstacles to become a world-class scientist, a self-made millionaire and a civil rights pioneer.

NOVA reveals Julian's remarkable story in a special presentation: "Forgotten Genius" airs on Tuesday, Feb. 6th from 8 to 10 p.m. on WTTW11. Tony Award-winner Ruben Santiago-Hudson stars as Julian; actor Courtney B. Vance narrates. Through period reenactments, archival footage and interviews with those who knew him best, Julian's science and gripping biography come to life onscreen.

Percy Julian won worldwide acclaim for his work in organic chemistry and as the first black director of an industrial chemistry research lab. He broke the color barrier in American science more than a decade before Jackie Robinson did so in Major League Baseball. A brilliant chemist, his career was marked by scientific breakthroughs that improved lives. He converted soybeans into synthetic steroids on an industrial scale, and his innovative approach helped make drugs like cortisone affordable and available to millions.

For all his achievements, Percy Julian's legacy is largely unknown. Scholars have neither studied him nor written his biography. To tell his story, NOVA filmmakers launched one of the most ambitious research projects in the series' 34-year history, poring over thousands of pages of documents from dozens of sources and traveling around the nation to interview more than 60 of Julian's friends, co-workers, family members and former students. The resulting documentary chronicles Julian's life from childhood to his death at age 76 in 1975.

AT LAST - SOME ACTION ON THE BARRIER TO STOP THE ASIAN CARP INVASION OF THE GREAT LAKES: I have been advised that Senator Durbin and Rep. Biggert have recently introduced new stand-alone bills to authorize funding for the "Asian Carp" dispersal barrier project. I urge the immediate passage of this important legislation; we cannot wait one day longer for this dispersal barrier project to be completed. The Durbin/Biggert legislation will:

- Authorize the Corps to make the existing experimental "Barrier I" permanent.
- Authorize the under-construction permanent "Barrier II" as 100% federal.
- Authorize Barriers I and II as a single system.
- Authorize the appropriation of funds for the project.

The Asian Carp Prevention and Control Act (HR-83) also needs your support to prevent interstate transportation that presently provides a different vector for the introduction of Asian Carp into the Great Lakes. (Credit: The Lake Michigan Committee of Advisors)

Asian carp send boaters to the hospital. They have already sent many Illinois boaters to the hospital because they leap into the air at the sound of a passing boat motor. (Kirby comment: I have been knocked to the bottom of a boat by a leaping Asian carp.)

Asian carp are voracious filter feeders that could destroy the $4 billion recreational fishery in the Great Lakes. In the Illinois River, nine out of ten fish are Asian carp.

The electric barriers in the Chicago Sanitary and Ship Canal is the Great Lakes' last line of defense. Unless we invest in a solution today, the price we will pay tomorrow will be much higher and future generations may never experience the Great Lakes as we know them. Congress must authorize and fully fund the barrier!

Call your representative today. The capital switchboard will connect you to your member of Congress: (202) 224-3121. Tell him or her, the Asian carp will destroy the Great Lakes and urge them to support the Great Lakes Asian Carp Barrier Act of 2007.

■SNOWMOBILERS REMINDED TO PUT SAFETY FIRST: Though significant snowfall has not yet been a constant feature on the Illinois landscape this winter, the IDNR is reminding snowmobile operators to focus on safety when conditions allow for snowmobiling this season and in the years ahead.

According to statistics compiled by the IDNR, there were 14 accidents statewide involving snowmobiles during the winter of 2005-06. Of those accidents last year, five resulted in injuries to snowmobile operators or passengers, including one fatality in Kane County in December 2005.

So far during the winter of 2006-07, there have been six snowmobile accidents reported, one of which resulted in a fatality in McHenry County last month. Factors often cited in snowmobile accidents involve operating at excessive speed, poor visibility, failure to recognize obstructions, and use of alcohol. "From my own personal experiences, I recommend maintaining at least 10 snowmobile lengths separation between machines."

The IDNR offers free snowmobile safety education courses. The courses are required of young people ages 12-16 who want to operate a snowmobile alone. Children ages 10-11 may operate a snowmobile only if they are accompanied on the machine by an adult. Children under the age of 10 are prohibited from operating a snowmobile, even if under the supervision of an adult.

For information on safety education classes, contact the IDNR Safety Education Section by calling toll-free 1(800) 832-2599. For more information on snowmobiling in Illinois, visit the IDNR web site and click on "Snowmobile Safety" at <http://dnr.state.il.us/lands/education/safety/snowmob.htm>.

■SHOW TIME: Feb. 1-4 - Strictly Sail Chicago, Navy Pier, (401) 841-0900, www.strictlysail.com.

■ANIMAL RIGHTS EXTREMIST GETS PRISON SENTENCE: A well-known animal rights extremist was sentenced to eight months in federal prison for interfering with U.S. Forest Service agents who were trying to capture mountain lions in Arizona two years ago.

In the spring of 2004, federal officials were alarmed at a growing number of encounters between mountain lions and humans in Sabino Canyon. The U.S. Forest Service organized a hunt to trap the cats and move them out of the area.

The convicted individual has served prison time for setting fire to a mink researcher's offices at Michigan State University. In public speeches, he has advocated the use of arson and violence against hunters, farmers and demonstrated the proper way to build a firebomb. St. Rita Football Ranked 34th In The Nation

The St. Rita High School football team has finished 34th nationally for the 2006 season according to MaxPreps, a national high school sports media company.

The once-beaten Mustangs (13-1), who had a number of close calls along the way, beat Lake Zurich, 35-21, on Nov. 25 to claim the Illinois Class 7A state championship. St. Rita is one of 25 high schools nationwide being honored on the MaxPreps Tour of Champions presented by the Army National Guard.

"MaxPreps would like to congratulate St. Rita High School and Coach Todd Kuska on the fine season they enjoyed this year," said Andy Beal, MaxPreps' president. "The MaxPreps Tour of Champions presented by the Army National Guard is about recognizing leadership, success and teamwork as exemplified by St. Rita. The coaching staff, the players, the school administration and the community should be proud of these young men, who are our future leaders."

"This is great. To be honored nationally speaks volumes for the program we've built at St. Rita," said Kuska, who completed his ninth season as the Mustangs' head coach. "Our kids go on the Internet all the time to check out the MaxPreps web site to see how they rank and to have MaxPreps come here is even better."

St. Rita, which won its first state title since 1978, held six opponents to eight points or less this season. The Mustangs had some close shaves, though, winning three games by three points or less and the loss to the third game of the season.

Playing in one of the strongest conferences in the country, St. Rita's defensive unit was led by linemen Matt Conrath (6-foot-8, 280 pounds), who is headed to the University of Virginia, and junior Darius Fleming, who was a first team Chicago Catholic League performer. Conrath, named to the all state team, had 118 tackles, 24 tackles for loss and 16 quarterback sacks. Fleming recorded 100 tackles including 15 for losses, nine sacks and two fumble recoveries. Senior inside linebacker Matt Murphy, who is a two-time all-conference player, made 105 tackles and doubled as the team's punter.

The Mustangs offensive stalwarts were quarterback Pete Balsam, tailback Darion Hood and running back Cliff Moore. Balsam rushed for 846 yards and 10 touchdowns while passing for another 1,168 yards and 12 TDs. Hood ran for 1,478 and 20 TDs while Moore gained 967 yards and scored 14 times on the ground.

Coach Kuska was presented with the MaxPreps Tour of Champions National Ranking Trophy, an 18-inch tall bronze statue on a wood block base, by Sergeant Ernest Benson of the Illinois Army National Guard.

"The Army National Guard is honored to present the MaxPreps Tour of Champions," said CPT Greg Galligan, National Guard Bureau. "We've partnered with MaxPreps because we believe in recognizing determination and teamwork. The Guard serves the communities in which we live and work, while always maintaining readiness to serve should our nation issue the call to serve."

MaxPreps uses a sophisticated computer program to determine team rank. The system utilizes the huge number of game results stored in the MaxPreps database. Generally, the more a team wins the higher the ranking, but the system takes into account quality wins (against other highly ranked opponents), margin of victory, and strength of schedule.

Founded in 1993, MaxPreps, Inc. is a Sacramento, California area based company, that publishes the most comprehensive sports information Web site in the world; featuring statistics, stories and photos, starring high school athletes and the outstanding men and women who spend countless hours coaching them.

MaxPreps is the first company to track high school football in every state. MaxPreps publishes schedules and standings for all 15,574 varsity high school football teams in America; and scores from each of the 78,750 games. In addition, MaxPreps offers football fans a national power ratings system for every team in the country. For more information, visit www.maxpreps.com.

The Army National Guard is an elite group of warriors who dedicate a portion of their time to serving their nation, state and local community. It is a tradition of American service dating back to 1636. Guard members have a long and noble history of serving at home and abroad to ensure the safety and freedom of their fellow citizens. They have combated natural disasters, supported active duty troops, and when called upon, taken up arms against

Statewide Mutual Aid System Successfully Assists Area Officials

A statewide mutual aid system designed to strengthen public health efforts during emergencies successfully helped the Kane County Health Department provide medicine to people potentially exposed to hepatitis A at an area restaurant. Health workers through the Illinois Public Health Mutual Aid System (IPHMAS) helped local health department officials distribute immune globulin, a solution to protect against various infectious diseases, to more than 1,700 people. IPHMAS provides equipment, personnel, supplies and services to an area stricken by an emergency through local health departments who joined the mutual aid system.

Under Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich, the state's emergency response capabilities have been bolstered by the formation of statewide mutual aid agreements in public health, law enforcement and emergency management. Along with existing statewide mutual aid in the fire services, these agreements make Illinois the only state in the nation with statewide mutual aid in those four major disciplines. This provides Illinois with a greater ability to respond to acts of terrorism or other disasters anywhere in the state.

Nursing assistance was provided by Boone, Champaign-Urbana, Cook, DeKalb, DuPage, Kendall, Macon, McHenry, McLean, Vermilion, Whiteside and Will county health departments, along with the Illinois Department of Public Health (IDPH), East Side Health District and Stickney Municipal Health Department to Kane County as part of the IPHMAS agreement. The assistance was provided at no cost to Kane County.

Immune globulin has been given to more than 1,700 people who may have been exposed to hepatitis A at Houlihan's Restaurant in Geneva from Jan. 8 through 19 due to possible contamination of ice by a restaurant worker. IDPH sent a voice mail message through its Health Alert Network to approximately 160 ice skating teams throughout the country that recently participated in a skating competition in Geneva and may have eaten at the restaurant. The Kane County Health Department currently has a sufficient supply of immune globulin.

In an effort to strengthen the preparedness of the public health system in Illinois, the IPHMAS was created in 2004, and all certified local health departments have signed the agreement. Any local health department in Illinois which has signed the IPHMAS agreement can request assistance from any other local health department in Illinois that has also signed the IPHMAS agreement. Local health departments request IPHMAS assistance from the Illinois Department of Public Health which disseminates the request to health departments around the state using the Health Alert Network.

IPHMAS was previously activated this past July at the request of the East Side Health District, located in St. Clair County, due to storms and power outages. There sanitarians from the St. Clair County Health Department assisted in that event.

Outstanding Contribution

Cardinal Francis George recently honored Commissioner/President Terrence J. O'Brien of the Metropolitan Water Reclamation District of Greater Chicago for his outstanding contribution to the community. O'Brien has demonstrated devotion to social responsibilities and justice over the years as a public official.

The 16th Annual Seminar Salute to Labor, Business and Government featured a presentation of the Rerum Novarum Awards by Cardinal Francis George.

O'Brien expressed his gratitude when accepting the award and was delighted that the proceeds of the event will be given to St. Joseph College Seminary of Loyola University of Chicago for Scholarships.

Create More Opportunities

Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich announced that the Illinois Dept. of Transportation (IDOT) launched a groundbreaking new Mentor-Protégé Program designed to help disadvantaged business enterprises (DBE), small and minority owned companies, to succeed and compete for larger road construction projects.

The new program has been approved by the U.S. Dept. of Transportation's Federal Highway Administration (FHWA) as a three-year pilot project. It will be offered in four of IDOT's Districts around the state, including D-1 in northeastern Illinois, D-4 based in Peoria, D-6 based in Springfield, and D-8 in Metro East.

The federally approved Mentor-Protégé pilot program compensates mentor companies for the administrative expenses associated with the effort and teams up a larger, experienced firm with contractors that are certified as a Disadvantaged Business Enterprise in Illinois. The deadline for potential mentor and protégé firms to apply for the first round of the program is Feb. 16th.

Under the new program, once a mentor firm and a protégé are teamed up, they will jointly establish a Development Plan that outlines their goals and expectations, sets benchmarks and creates a monitoring and reporting mechanism that will be used to judge the effectiveness of the effort.

The plan may include training in the following areas: business planning, record keeping, technical assistance and use of equipment, capital formation, loan packaging, financial counseling and bonding. The mentor and protégé will work together toward the goal of winning contracts for the protégé, and the two contractors will have the option of forming joint ventures to bid on projects.

To qualify for the new Mentor-Protégé Program, the mentor must have at least five years of experience as an IDOT contractor. The protégé must have at least three years of highway construction experience and also be certified as a DBE through the Illinois Unified Certification Program.

For more information, interested parties should go to the IDOT web site at www.dot.state.il.us/obwd/mentor.html.

Cancer Support Center Classes

The Jennifer S. Fallick Cancer Support Center has announced their second location in Mokena is now open on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. They are offering weekly, daytime support for people with cancer. They will also present a relaxation and guided imagery class for stress management every Thursday from 10 to 11 a.m. For more information on these programs, call (708) 478-3529. The new center is located at 19250 Everett Lane in Mokena.

The Cancer Support Center, 2028 Elm Road in Homewood, is offering Spirituality and Religion: Exploration in the Face of Illness on Monday, Feb. 5th from 7 to 8:30 p.m. Facilitator Rev. Douglas W. Dickson will hold a general discussion about how spiritual or religious beliefs can be affected after a cancer diagnosis is received. All faiths and beliefs are welcome to attend.

On Feb. 12th from 7 to 8:30 p.m. the Center will offer Feminine Identity after Breast Cancer: Reflecting on Intimacy and Sexuality with facilitator Valerie Piazza, RN, MA, LPC. Breast cancer treatments affect women both physically and emotionally, yet sexuality is a subject that is often difficult to address with a partner and health care team. This program will focus on communication related to intimacy and ways to deal with treatment side effects.

Adult children who care for a parent with cancer may find this to be a physically and emotionally daunting experience. The Center is offering a program, When a Parent Has Cancer, on Feb. 19th from 7 to 8:30 p.m. presented by Erica Gresko, MA, and Sara Bielek, MA. This is an evening to share ideas and discover new ways to live through this journey. The program is intended for adults 18 and older. Refreshments will be provided.

The Cancer Support Center invites you for a Family Fun Night to beat the winter blues with a Beach Party. The festivities will take place on Feb. 26th and be facilitated by Cheryl Pickering, LCSW. Grab the kids and bring the family for an evening of fun. Limbo, hula-hoops, beach balls, games and luau food will take you away from the winter doldrums. Join in for an evening of fun and fantasy.

Registration is being taken for a program entitled Bereavement in the Classroom: an Educational Workshop to be held on Thursday, March 1st from 10 a.m. to 12 p.m. Cheryl Pickering, LCSW, coordinator of Child and Family Services, will present the program. This is a program designed to teach professionals how to meet the needs of a grieving student. Who should attend? School social workers and other school professionals. Two CEU credits will be available on-site for Illinois social workers.

For more information on these programs and all programs offered at the Cancer Support Center, call (708) 798-9171.

Booklets Teach How To Avoid Sports Injuries

Andre Agassi may be a professional athlete in great physical shape, but he's probably got some of the same soreness and stiffness that you do. If you're active like so many of today's adults, you've probably had a few twinges that spring up unexpectedly. To learn how to prevent injuries and what to do if you are hurt, order the free Sports Injuries package from the National Institutes of Health, the Food and Drug Administration, and the Federal Citizen Information Center.

Whether you've always been active or just recently decided to exercise more, congratulations! Along with eating right, exercising on a regular basis can do wonders for many aspects of your health. But you need to treat your body a little better than you did when you were in your teens or twenties. The tendons and ligaments around your joints become less stretchy with age, so warming up and cooling down properly is important. Accepting your body's limits can also prevent needless injuries. You may not be in the same shape you were 10 or 20 years ago, but if you follow the prevention tips in this package and increase your activity levels gradually, you'll have a better chance of exercising without getting injured.

If you do get hurt, don't ignore the injury. You can take care of minor pain at home using the RICE method - rest, ice, compression and elevation. But if the pain persists or there's a lot of swelling, see a doctor. A small fracture or torn ligament left untreated could quickly become a chronic source of pain that is difficult to treat.

Use the booklets in this package to learn more about the injuries you should watch out for, including shoulder problems. And find out what treatments are available, whether you need a cast for a broken bone or joint replacement surgery for your arthritic knee.

Learn how to avoid injuries and recover the right way if you do get hurt by ordering the Sports Injuries package.

There are three easy ways to get your free publications:

Send your name and address to Sports Injuries, Pueblo, CO 81009.

Visit www.pueblo.gsa.gov/rc/n55sportsinjuries.htm to place your order online or to read or print these and hundreds of other Federal publications for free.

Call toll-free 1(888) 878-3256 weekdays 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Eastern Time and ask for the Sports Injuries package.

Women's Health Issues

The Northwest Indiana Group of Y-ME Illinois, an organization dedicated to breast cancer education and support, will hold its next Open Door Meeting on Saturday, Feb. 10th, in the Doctors' Meeting Room on the west side of Community Hospital's cafeteria, 901 MacArthur Blvd., Muncie, Indiana, at 10 a.m. This meeting will feature one lecture entitled "Cyberknife" given by Matt Matushek, regional director of Radiation-Oncology of Community Health Care Systems. Breast cancer patients, their families and friends and health professionals interested in the topic are welcome at Open Door Meetings. This session is free and reservations are not necessary.

The mission of Y-ME is to ensure, through information, empowerment, and peer support, that no one faces breast cancer alone. Y-ME Illinois provides assistance to the nearly 10,000 persons newly diagnosed with breast cancer in Illinois each year, with a special emphasis on the underserved populations in Illinois. Y-ME Illinois offers the following free, local programs and services: mammography screening, support groups, educational workshops for adults and teens; wig and prosthesis salons, a resource library and ongoing advocacy and educational work throughout the state.

For more information about Y-ME Illinois, call (312) 364-9071, or visit www.y-me.org/illinois.

"Disability Etiquette" Publication

More than 56 million Americans have a disability, according to the American Association of People with Disabilities. Acknowledging October as Disability Awareness Month, United Spinal Association is offering an informative pamphlet entitled Disability Etiquette. The guide was developed to help people interact effectively and respectfully with the disability community. Copies of Disability Etiquette can be obtained by calling 800-444-0120. The pamphlet may also be downloaded at www.unitedspinal.org. Disability Etiquette is also available in Spanish.

People with disabilities are no different than anyone else—they have families, jobs, hobbies, likes and dislikes, problems and joys. And while disability is an integral part of who they are, it does not define them. People with disabilities don't want to be seen as heroes or victims—they want to be treated as individuals. Practicing disability etiquette is an easy way to make people with disabilities feel welcome.

Disability Etiquette addresses a variety of situations that people with disabilities encounter and suggests the proper etiquette for each. It is filled with useful reminders such as asking before attempting to help a person with a disability and always speaking directly to the person, not to his or her companion, aide, or sign language interpreter. These simple and clearly explained tips will help anyone understand what is appropriate and what is not when interacting with a person who has a disability.

United Spinal's mission is to provide expertise, create access to resources and strengthen hope; thereby enabling people with SCI/D to fulfill their potential as active members of their communities. Here are some helpful tips from Disability Etiquette about interacting with all people with disabilities:

United Spinal Association's Disability Etiquette Tips Avoid outdated terms like "handicapped" or "crippled." Use instead, "person with a disability," or, for specific disabilities, say "person with multiple sclerosis."

Say "wheelchair user," rather than "confined or bound to a wheelchair."

Don't make decisions for people with disabilities about what they can or can't do. Instead, ask if you can assist and listen to their perspective.

Don't push or touch a person's wheelchair. Remember: The chair is part of their personal space.

Don't pet or touch a person's guide or service dog. The dog is working and needs to concentrate.

Membership to the organization is free and open to all Americans with a spinal cord injury or disorder. For more information about United Spinal Association visit, www.unitedspinal.org, or call (800) 404-2898.

Bears Are Role Models

Parents questioning whether children with asthma can participate in sports need look no further than the Super Bowl-bound Chicago Bears. Center Olin Kreutz and long snapper Patrick Mannelly may have lived with asthma since childhood, but they're the longest tenured Bear players.

From the moment Kreutz and Mannelly signed with the Bears in 1998, they've set records for dependability. Going into 2006, Kreutz started 54 consecutive games and is one of only six players in franchise history to be named to five Pro Bowls. Mannelly, one of the NFL's most accurate and consistent long snappers, has played more games than any current Bear.

"I want to encourage people to take the offensive against asthma," said Kreutz at a World Asthma Day event sponsored by the Chicago Asthma Consortium. "With the right action plan and the right medication, asthma can be managed so that you can perform at your best. Don't let asthma keep you at the sidelines."

Mannelly has tips for young athletes with asthma. "First off, you've got to tell the coach and your trainer before you go out on the field. When I go to practice in the morning I can tell right away if my chest is tight from freshly-cut grass or the dew."

"I'll go to the training room, take a couple puffs from the inhaler and go back out there," he continued. Mannelly spoke at an "Athletes and Asthma" educational initiative sponsored by the American Lung Assn. of Illinois and the Suburban Asthma Consortium.

Asthma is a chronic inflammatory disease of the airway that afflicts more than 315,000 adults and 120,000 children in Cook County. The asthma hospitalization rate in Chicago is nearly double the national average.

"Asthma does not mean you can't participate in sports. If your child's asthma is under control, there's no physical limit to what they can do," said Maureen Damitz, Director of Community Education for the American Lung Assn. of Metropolitan Chicago and parent of children with asthma. "A child with asthma should carry their 'quick relief' medication with them at all times."

Leaders Join Forces Against Cook County Budget Cuts

An unprecedented alliance of labor and community leaders stood together on Monday, Jan. 29th and urged the Cook County Board to reject the budget proposed by board president Todd Stroger. Leaders from health care, law enforcement, the religious community and the legal system joined unions representing frontline county workers to decry Stroger's suggested cuts and massive layoffs that would decimate county health services, court system and public safety.

"The working men and women who provide county services stand shoulder to shoulder with those who depend on their work," said Dennis Gannon, president of the Chicago Federation of Labor. "Together we're urging the commissioners to say no to these drastic cuts. Support a fair budget that protects county services and the jobs of the frontline workers who provide them."

Gannon's comments came at a news conference preceding the third of four public hearings on the county budget. He was joined by Chief Eugene Kraczewski of the Riverside Police Dept., executive director Laura McAlpine of the Health and Medicine Policy Research Group, Rev. Tyrone Crider of Mt. Calvary Baptist Church, trial lawyer and former assistant state's attorney Martin Dolan, Stroger Hospital nurse Martese Chism and county juvenile probation officer Francisco Arenas.

Chief Kraczewski said steep cuts to the office of the county sheriff would jeopardize public safety in his suburban community. Rev. Crider spoke for a group of ministers that has opposed the Stroger cuts because they will disproportionately affect low-income residents who rely heavily on county services. And McAlpine and Chism addressed the dramatic reduction in health services and loss of hundreds of doctors, nurses and other health care workers that would result if Stroger's budget is approved, forcing the closure of 16 community clinics and curtailing care at county hospitals.

Dolan spoke to the threat posed by the Stroger cuts to the county's court system. "We who work in the justice system each day are deeply concerned about these cuts," he said. "Eighty state's attorneys and more than 40 public defenders may lose their jobs, plus investigators and support staff. The system will break down. Costs will rise, criminals will have the edge and taxpayers will lose."

Juvenile probation officer Francisco Arenas painted an equally grim picture of potential repercussions for public safety. "The proposed budget would cut dozens of probation officers and support staff who are vitally important to the criminal justice system in Cook County," Arenas said. "Let's be clear about what cutting probation means: It means more crime, and it means more incarceration."

Following the news conference, CFL president Gannon led a massive picket and rally of county employees who gathered on Daley Plaza, marching and chanting.

"We need real leadership from our county commissioner and board president," Gannon said. "Don't cut essential county services. Don't lay off the men and women who make Cook County work. This budget proposal is a recipe for real pain felt by real people - the county residents who need services and the workers who provide them. We want a fair alternative that protects frontline workers, cuts management waste and raises enough revenue to fund essential services."

Seek Senior Nominations

Illinois Dept. on Aging (IDoA) Director Charles D. Johnson recently announced the Department is seeking nominations for the 2007 Illinois Senior Hall of Fame, an honor that recognizes contributions made by older persons in the state.

The General Assembly established the Illinois Senior Hall of Fame in 1994 to honor adults who excel in four categories: Community Service, Education, Performance and/or Graphic Arts and the Labor Force. Since then, 68 people have been inducted into the Hall of Fame.

Winners will be inducted into the 2007 Illinois Senior Hall of Fame during a special ceremony at the Governor's Mansion in Springfield in the fall. Eligibility is based on the nominee's past and present accomplishments in the category of choice. The candidate must be age 65 or older and a current Illinois resident or a former citizen who has lived in the state most of his/her life. Posthumous nominees will be considered.

Nomination forms are available at local Area Agencies on Aging, by calling the Senior HelpLine at (800) 252-8966 and visiting www.state.il.us/aging.

IDoA will accept nomination forms by fax and mail through Aug. 25th.

NFC Champions Day

Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich proclaimed Jan. 22nd as Chicago Bears NFC Champions Day in Illinois, honoring the Bears' remarkable 2006 season. On Sun., Jan. 21st, the Chicago Bears defeated the New Orleans Saints 39-14 to win the National Football Conference Championship and earn a trip to the Super Bowl for the first time since the 1985 season.

"Coach Lovie Smith and the Chicago Bears scored an extraordinary victory last night. I wish to congratulate them for their hard work and dedication, and for representing the best of Illinois during this season," said Gov. Blagojevich. "We look forward to going to Miami and bringing the Vince Lombardi Trophy back home."

The 13-3 Bears had the best record in the NFC during the regular season and are known for their strong and relentless defense. Seven Bears players have been selected to play in the NFL Pro Bowl.

The Bears will face the 12-4, Indianapolis Colts in Miami for Super Bowl XLI on Sun., Feb. 4th.

For the past 8 years, Trustee Hurckes has taken the lead in showing his appreciation to the residents of his District for all their hard work and fabulous displays for the Christmas season.

This year's winners are: Vardalos family at 6028 W. 92nd St., the Harrison family at 6220 W. 94th St., the Krzystof family at 8950 S. Melvina, the Schapiro family at 6223 W. 89th Pl., the Zawada family at 6518 W. Crescent, the Garza family at 9318 S. Nordica, the Wasilewski family at 8993 S. Natoma, the Gatz family at 9632 S. Rutherford, the Augle family at 6455 W. 89th Pl. and the Paprocki family at 9200 S. McVicker.

The award winners will be invited to attend the Jan. 23rd meeting of the Board of Trustees to be congratulated by the entire board.

Trustee Hurckes stated, "That these residents have gone beyond the normal range of decorating and make our village look so beautiful during the Christmas holidays, I think it is appropriate to congratulate them and let them know it does make a difference. I would also like to thank the judges of this contest who traveled throughout the District looking at the decorations and making the difficult decisions."

Rubber-Stamping Workshops

Learn the easy art of rubber-stamping at the Oak Lawn Park District. Workshops will be held on Tuesday, Feb. 6. To fit everyone's busy schedule, participants can choose either the morning or evening session. Morning session is from 9 to 11:30 a.m. and the evening session is from 7 to 9:30 p.m. Participants will complete several projects, including greeting cards and gift bags, using various techniques. Samples of how to add stamping to your scrapbook pages will also be shown. Please bring your own colored pencils and scissors. Workshops are open to those ages 18 and up. Fee for each session is $9.50 for Oak Lawn residents and $11.50 for non-residents.

For more information, call the Oak View Center at (708) 857-2200.

Honor South American Visitors

On Wednesday, Jan. 17, Queen of Peace High School (Burbank) hosted 13 students and two teachers from South America. Peace students led the visitors on tours of the campus and offered them a chance to sit in on classes in order to get a taste of what a day in the life of an American high-schooler is like. The Columbian students also presented in Spanish and World Literature classes, sharing their own experiences with the American students. Pictured (from left) Joy Jones (Oak Lawn), Luisa Cadavid, Andrea Calderon, and Maggie Geracl (Blue Island) head to a Spanish II class.

Veterans And Soldiers

By Lori Taylor Ph: 708.388.2425

I've been released from the Rehab Center and I've done so well I'm going directly to outside therapy; no two weeks in-house as predicted. As a precaution to make sure I do the right domestic moves I'm staying with my cousin Jean Reilly in Oak Lawn for a week. We plan on doing a few outings on the way from therapy (can't drive my own car for about 6 weeks so I'll need designated drivers to get me to and fro).

I want to thank all of the wonderful people I met at Rest Haven and Marianjoy. They were all great and the care was excellent.

My roommate Margaret Malowski of Oak Lawn left a few days before I did and my new roommate Garnita Metz shared a relative with Marge in a roundabout way. What a coincidence! Hi, Marge, I miss you and your loving family.

Illinois Department of Veterans Affairs (IDVA) acting Director L. Tammy Duckworth and Veterans Care representatives kicked off the statewide Veterans Care Training Tour on Jan. 16th in Machesney Park. The Crestwood National Guard Armory, 13838 Springfield Ave. in Robbins, was one of their stops on Jan. 18th. They informed community leaders, veterans' organizations, medical providers and social service agencies about Veterans Care and other new or recently expanded healthcare programs offered by the state. Veterans Care is currently expanding its insurance eligibility requirements to further ensure the state's military heroes have access to affordable and comprehensive healthcare coverage.

Jointly created in September by Governor Blagojevich and Lt. Gov. Patrick Quinn, Veterans Care is designed to provide affordable, comprehensive health care to thousands of Illinois veterans who do not qualify for coverage through the federal Veterans Administration.

To be eligible for Veterans Care, a veteran must meet the following criteria:

- Be between the ages of 19 and 64.
- Be ineligible for VHA and other healthcare programs like FamilyCare.
- Have a household income based on the VHA threshold plus 25% of the Federal Poverty Level at the beginning of the program, and if funds permit after 6 months of operation based on the VHA threshold plus 50% of the federal poverty level.
- Not have been dishonorably discharged from service.
- Be willing to pay a monthly premium of $40, plus co-payments for doctor visits and prescriptions.
- Have been uninsured for the past six months. This requirement does NOT apply to Veterans who have:
 - * post active-duty coverage under TriCare.
 - * lost insurance coverage because of the loss of their employment or their spouse's employment.
 - * exhausted their coverage's lifetime benefit.
 - * purchased coverage under COBRA.
 - * been unable to access a spouse's health insurance plan.
 - * lost coverage under the state's medical programs - FamilyCare, AABD, rebate, etc.

State Senator Dan Rutherford (R-Pontiac) is inviting Illinois residents to submit original stories, letters, vignettes and photos from any soldier who is serving overseas or away from home.

Rutherford said the messages and photos can be sent to him at DanRutherford@DanRutherford.com. He will then post them on his Web site at <http://www.DanRutherford.com>. The Senator also invites the public to visit the Web site and read of the experiences shared by the soldiers and view their photos.

It is requested that all submissions be in "first person," from the soldier personally, and contributors are asked to include the soldier's hometown.

The National President of the Ladies Auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars Linda Mcader will make her official visit to Illinois on Feb. 9th through 11th.

A reception in her honor will take place on Friday, Feb. 9th in the Diamond Room of the Crown Plaza in Springfield from 2 to 4 p.m. The reception is sponsored by the Ladies Auxiliary Department of Illinois under the leadership of State President Maureen Hayden. Several more events have been planned. National President Mcader will attend the Council of Administration meeting, a "Night on the Town" with the District Presidents who have made 85% in membership by Dec. 28th. Nineteen Districts are eligible for this honor. President Mcader will also take part in the annual Pilgrimage to Lincoln's Tomb and the Voice of Democracy banquet honoring the 19 District Champions where the state winners will be announced.

Good-bye for this week. God bless you and your family and God bless America.

I Heart My Soldier Program

After a great success last year, the Manhattanville College My Soldier program initiative, I Heart My Soldier, asks civilians to send a heartfelt greeting to a soldier deployed far from home for Valentine's Day. The program aims to ease the hardship for soldiers who are spending yet another holiday away from family and friends and was designed in response to the letters and emails received from soldiers at www.mysoldier.com that said the frequency of letters and packages dramatically declines after the December Holidays.

"Traditionally Valentine's Day is a time to reach out to loved ones, family and friends," said My Soldier co-founder, active duty army sergeant and Manhattanville College student Juan Salas. "We are asking that you consider adding another group of recipients to your list. Please send a valentine to let a soldier know you are thinking of him, or to thank her for all she has done."

While the regular My Soldier program attempts to foster an ongoing pen-pal relationship, I Heart My Soldier is tailored to those groups or individuals who want to send some support without making a continuing commitment.

Participants may opt to adopt one soldier or an entire platoon but must be willing to send each a care package that includes the following items: Homemade Valentines; traditional Valentines Candy such as Sweetheart Conversation Hearts and/or Hershey Kisses; and a small "friendly" gift such as warm socks or a stuffed animal.

Salas, who spent 14 months in Iraq, where he saw active combat duty and was commended for his part in saving the life of a child, has first-hand knowledge of what such a project means to soldiers there. His mission was to "win the hearts and minds of the Iraqi people." "It was long," says Salas. "But the thing that kept me going was getting letters and cards, from families, kids, Boy Scouts, students, my teachers and yes strangers. Receiving heartfelt messages from unfamiliar people who cared about me was uplifting. Each letter was like a piece of gold. Something you will keep for the rest of your life."

Those wishing to participate are asked to contact Manhattanville My Soldier Operations Director, Mike Seminara, by phone at (914) 323-5172 or email mysoldier@mvill.edu to select a soldier or platoon for whom to provide Valentine cards and gifts. The My Soldier team has assembled a Hot List with suggested items for a Valentine Care Package that stresses the importance of handmade cards since they demonstrate you care more than a store-bought card ever could.

"Homemade cards are the best," he said, "Soldiers are really touched when they get handwritten cards with personal messages, or an individual's artwork. This is such a simple way to express gratitude and show support for our troops while providing them with something they will truly appreciate, even cherish."

For more information about the I Heart My Soldier program or how to participate - visit www.mysoldier.com and click on the "I Heart My Soldier" link.

My Soldier is a program that puts politics aside and lets U.S. soldiers know that someone back home cares. The goal of the program is to show support for troops serving in hardship areas-Iraq, Afghanistan, Africa-by establishing pen-pal relationships with them. When a person enrolls in the My Soldier program, they agree to adopt a soldier. They receive a "starter kit" with guidelines for writing letters to their deployed United States Armed Service person and a red My Soldier bracelet to publicly show their support for American troops. The program is free, but donations are encouraged from those participants that can afford it. Since Manhattanville President Richard A. Berman and active U.S. Army Sergeant Juan Salas, who also is a Manhattanville student, launched My Soldier, at a Veterans' Day press conference in 2004 over 400,000 participants have signed up to adopt over 175,000 deployed military personnel.

Tax Breaks

Military personnel receive special tax breaks in certain circumstances that affect Earned Income Credit and Additional Child Tax Credit. Both of the credits are refundable credits and based on total income which will increase your refund and that means more cash in hand for you. Child Care Expenses, a non-refundable credit, is also affected by military and combat pay on the W2. This credit may reduce the tax liability for an individual that will reflect in their refund.

Military W2s are able to be downloaded at any Jackson Hewitt Tax Office and be imported into our software as of Jan. 21st. Get all the tax breaks you deserve. Jackson Hewitt Tax Service has always supported our American Heroes and now we would like to help you out in the area we specialize in. We also award our military personnel with 50% off discounts to make our services affordable.

Milt Sees Named Acting Secretary Of Transportation

Governor Rod R. Blagojevich accepted the resignation of Timothy W. Martin, Secretary of the Illinois Department of Transportation (IDOT) since 2003. The Governor named IDOT's current Director of Highways, Milt Sees, as acting secretary until he nominates a permanent secretary.

"I appreciate Tim's efforts at the Department of Transportation over the past four years. He was instrumental in modernizing and making IDOT more efficient, and focused the agency on better using technology to accomplish its goals. By keeping safety at the forefront of everything that IDOT does, Tim was instrumental in guiding us to making 2006 the safest year on Illinois highways in more than 80 years," said Gov. Blagojevich.

Under Secretary Martin's leadership during Gov. Blagojevich's first term, IDOT has become one of the national leaders in transportation agencies implementing a number of initiatives to increase accountability and safety. In addition to 2006 having the fewest fatalities on our state's highways since 1924, IDOT became the first state transportation agency in the nation to achieve ISO 9001:2000 certification, international recognition of excellence for the quality of key processes involved in and supporting its road and bridge planning and design work. This has resulted in improved program delivery and full public accountability as well as improved communication, staff development and training within IDOT. In 2006, IDOT reached a record level of program delivery for motorists and other taxpayers, successfully achieving a 97.4 percent rate of accomplishment on the annual program for state road and bridge improvements.

Effective immediately, Milt Sees will take over the Secretary's responsibilities for IDOT. Sees is a licensed, professional engineer and joined IDOT as Director of Highways in 2006. Previously, he served as General Manager of Crisp Container Company, Vice President and General Manager for Southern Illinois Concrete Products Co., Inc., President and Chief Lobbyist for North American Wire Reinforcement Institute, Inc., Executive Director of the Illinois Concrete Pipe Association and Deputy Director and Assistant Chief Engineer for the Capitol City Railroad Relocation Authority. Milt Sees lives with his wife in Springfield.

Bears Fight Song

The Chicago Symphony Orchestra announced that it is offering a free download of "Bear Down, Chicago Bears," on its Web site www.cso.org to celebrate the Chicago Bears' return to the Super Bowl and to help the city energize its Bears spirit. The free MP3 file is a copy of a live recording from a 1986 performance at Orchestra Hall that featured the Chicago Symphony Orchestra and Chorus, conducted by Sir Georg Solti. The download is available at www.cso.org/chicagobears.

The legendary performance from Jan. 23, 1986, caught Chicago by surprise. "Bears Fever" had invaded the city as the team was on its way to the NFL championship. At the end of a Tchaikovsky-Liszt orchestral concert with music director Georg Solti conducting, members of the Chicago Symphony Chorus - wearing Bears sweatshirts - suddenly streamed onstage, and Maestro Solti led the Orchestra and Chorus in a surprising performance of the Bears fight song "Bear Down, Chicago Bears." The audience joined in singing, and people backstage, Chicago Symphony Orchestra staff, and others - including Lady Valerie Solti - crowded in to sing along.

"Bear Down, Chicago Bears" was recorded live with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra and Chorus in Orchestra hall on Jan. 23, 1986 by 98.7WFMT with conductor Solti and chorus director Margaret Hillis. It was released on the 1998 CD Chicago Symphony Chorus: A Fortieth Anniversary Celebration: From the Archives, vol. 13 in conjunction with the CSO's annual Symphonython fundraiser.

The Chicago Bears fight song, "Bear Down, Chicago Bears," was written in 1941 by Jerry Downs. Although Downs is listed as the composer, it is a pseudonym for prolific songwriter Al Hoffman, who is best known for the song "If I Knew You Were Coming I'd Have Baked a Cake."

Complete lyrics of "Bear Down, Chicago Bears"
 Bear down, Chicago Bears,
 Make every play clear the way to victory!
 Bear Down, Chicago Bears,
 Put up a fight with a might so fearlessly.
 We'll never forget the way you thrilled the nation
 With your "T" formation.
 Bear down, Chicago Bears,
 And let 'em know why you're wearing the crown.
 You're the pride and joy of Illinois,

Chicago Bears, bear down!

Shedd Honors Bears

Shedd Aquarium is saluting the 2006 NFC Champion Chicago Bears by remembering past champions and rooting on the city's current Miami-bound team.

Through Super Bowl Sunday, Feb. 4, in honor of the 1985 Super Bowl Champs, the first 85 guests to Shedd Aquarium every day will receive free general admission to the Aquarium. In addition, all guests visiting the aquarium on those days can register to win a 'Trainer For A Day' session for two. The drawing for the 'Trainer For A Day' package will take place an hour before kick-off of Super Bowl XLII.

Supporting the Bears' current bid for the Lombardi Trophy, Shedd's marine mammal trainers will don Bears jerseys during the marine mammal presentation, along with Shedd divers in the Caribbean Reef throughout the 10-day celebration.

Shedd Aquarium opened its doors in 1930 and shortly afterward, the Bears relocated to Chicago. Both organizations have helped to shape the City's rich history and the grand lakefront - which they both call home.

Shedd is open seven days a week from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. during the week and 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on weekends and holidays - including Super Bowl Sunday - until May 28. For more information, call (312) 939-2438 or visit www.shedd-aquarium.org.

Accommodate Adult Learners

Debbie Hoyt of Oak Lawn, is a 54-year-old mother of two sons who decided to enrich her life by enrolling in classes at Moraine Valley Community College. She's one of 7,100 adult learners - 40 percent of the student body - who attend classes to advance their career or begin a new one, upgrade or learn new skills, develop personally, or simply learn about a topic that interests them. She encourages adults not to be afraid to take classes because they don't know exactly what they want to do. "Student my age should not be intimidated about starting," said Hoyt. "Registering is as simple as getting on a computer and signing up. Take classes in a subject that interests you, and they will lead you to where you want to be. Look at the programs Moraine Valley offers, and you'll see there's something for everyone. Once you get going, you'll become comfortable taking more classes."

Moraine Valley strives to make the transition easier for adult learners by offering a wide range of services specifically for them, starting with Adult Information Sessions. Sit down with an Admissions recruiter who will explain in detail how to enroll, pick the right classes, obtain financial aid, and answer individual questions. The next session will be Wednesday, Feb. 21st at 6 p.m. in the College Center, Building C, second floor, Moraine Room 4, on campus, 9000 W. College Pkwy., Palos Hills.

Alternative learning options provide flexibility for those working full-time, raising a family or bogged down by other responsibilities. The college offers daytime, evening and weekend classes that start throughout the year on campus and at extension sites located throughout the college's district. Online classes allow students to complete coursework at a time most convenient for them. Students in the Fast Track Program enroll in five-week courses and can earn a degree in 18 months. Short term and one-night-a-week classes, as well as telecourses taught primarily via videotapes or DVDs, offer even more convenience.

Women who are returning to college or going for the first time can find comfort from other women who may be experiencing the same issues in the Returning Woman Program. This community of learners enrolls in Communications 101, a composition course, and Psychology 101 together to begin developing connections with each other and the college. Through interaction and connection with other adult women comes the sharing of ideas and solutions while meeting the challenges of being a student and balancing the demands of a busy adult life.

Denise Domagala, 53, Orland Park, never went to college, but as a single parent she wanted to take classes and thought, "Why not me? Why not now?" She enrolled in the Returning Woman Program despite her fear. Did she belong there? Were all eyes on her because of her age?

"It is hard to walk onto a campus in your mid-50s, and most of the people around you are just out of high school or in their 20s," said Domagala. "But the Returning Woman Program has been a great experience. A dozen women sit and talk about the same challenges. It felt great to be with a group where everyone was in the same boat, feeling you made the right decision."

For more information on the Returning Woman Program call Paula Adduci, coordinator, at (708) 974-5722 or visit www.morainevalley.edu/WomanProgram.

Adult learning services don't stop with classes. Parents can feel comfortable leaving their children with state-certified caregivers in the Children's Learning Center, the Tutoring and Writing Center is open late for assistance in most subjects, Financial Aid has information on grants and loans available, and the library is equipped with updated educational resources and technology.

Moraine Valley believes in helping its students every step of the way, including getting assistance in finding employment through the Job Placement Center and the Illinois Employment Training Center (IETC). The Job Placement Center helps students with resumes, interviewing and short- and long-term employment plans. It helps students make effective job and career decisions and provides linkages with businesses. For more information about the Job Placement Center, call (708) 974-5737 or visit www.morainevalley.edu/jpc.

The IETC meets the needs of both employers and job seekers by offering assistance to unemployed and underemployed individuals in securing gainful employment. Through the Workforce Investment Act and Dislocated Workers program, students can take advantage of employment-finding resources and get information on vocational training programs. The Illinois Support, Training and Employment for Displaced Homemakers helps displaced homemakers - those who have lost income due to divorce, separation, death, or the primary earner becoming disabled or laid off - get access to the education and training they need to rejoin the workforce and become economically self-sufficient. For more information about the Illinois Support Training and Employment Program, call (708) 974-5738, or visit www.morainevalley.edu/wia.

Moraine Valley will host the 2007 Employment and Adult College Fair on Tuesday, March 27th from 4 to 7 p.m. Adults in the community can get information on educational and career opportunities at Moraine Valley and three other colleges and can visit with employers. Registration is not required. Small class sizes, a convenient commute from the home or office, caring and understanding faculty, and an abundance of services, assistance and resources demonstrates Moraine Valley's dedication to adult learning success. For more information on any of these services, visit www.morainevalley.edu/adultissue or call Admissions at (708) 974-5355.

Lawsuit Against Debt Collector

Attorney General Lisa Madigan filed a lawsuit on Jan. 25th in Cook County Circuit Court alleging that a debt collector used unfair tactics and deceptive practices to collect money from consumers.

Madigan's lawsuit names as the defendant Arrow Financial Services, LLC, an Illinois limited liability company located in Niles. Arrow is a debt buyer and attempts to collect monies ranging from approximately $100 to over $10,000 per debt from consumers nationwide. Since 1999, Madigan's Consumer Fraud Bureau has received 669 consumer complaints against Arrow.

Madigan's lawsuit charges Arrow with multiple violations of the Illinois Consumer Fraud and Deceptive Business Practices Act. The suit specifically alleges that Arrow attempts to collect on time-barred debts over ten years old, attempts to collect on debts that have been discharged in bankruptcy or that have been settled, engages in abusive practices in an attempt to collect, such as using profanity, attempts to obtain payment without proof of debt, refuses or fails to provide proof of debt, illegally contacts consumers' family members and workplace, and withdraws money without authorization from consumers' bank accounts.

Madigan's suit contains a number of specific examples of consumer complaints concerning Arrow's conduct. For example, according to Madigan's lawsuit, Arrow allegedly contacted one Franklin Park Illinois consumer through the mail, informing him that he owes approximately $600 on a Montgomery Ward account that he had cancelled ten years ago. Soon thereafter, the consumer allegedly began receiving calls and notices regarding the debt approximately once a week for several months at a time. When the consumer explained to Arrow that he had cancelled the credit card ten years ago and did not owe any debt, Arrow responded that if he once owned the credit card, then he was obliged to pay for the debt. The consumer disputed the debt and asked for written proof. In response, Arrow threatened to sue the consumer and never provided any evidence of the debt allegedly owed.

Arrow's conduct has come to the attention of other state enforcement offices. In November 2005, the Minnesota Department of Commerce imposed against Arrow Financial Services, LLC, a $125,000 fine, the largest civil penalty ever imposed against a collection agency licensed in Minnesota. As part of this process, Arrow was required to implement a compliance program to: (1) designate a compliance officer in charge of all regulatory compliance matters, (2) implement a training program for all Arrow debt collectors, which includes the Fair Debt Collection Practices Act and Minnesota debt collection laws, (3) require Arrow debt collectors to sign a statement in which they acknowledge training completion, which includes debt collection law, and (4) establish written policies and procedures for screening debt collector applicants and conduct criminal background checks. "Consumers should not be harassed or intimidated by unscrupulous debt collectors. We are focused on protecting Illinois consumers and others affected by businesses that use unfair and deceptive debt collection tactics," Madigan said.

Madigan's lawsuit asks the court to prohibit Arrow from engaging in deceptive debt collection activities and further violating Illinois' consumer protection laws. The lawsuit seeks a civil penalty of $50,000 and additional penalties of $50,000 for each violation found to have been committed with intent to defraud. Finally, Madigan's lawsuit asks the court to order Arrow to pay restitution to consumers and to pay all costs for prosecution and investigation of this case.

Consumers who believe they have been the victim of unfair or deceptive collection practices or another consumer fraud can download a complaint form at www.IllinoisAttorneyGeneral.gov/consumers or call the Attorney General's Consumer Fraud Hotline at 1-800-386-5438; TTY 1-800-964-3013.

Consumers can get tips to protect themselves against unfair or deceptive debt collection practices on Madigan's website at <http://www.ag.state.il.us/consumers/debtcollection.html>.

Assistant Attorney General Junko Minami is handling the case for Madigan's Consumer Protection Division.

Planned Parenthood Makes Awards

Two top healthcare officials from Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich's administration were honored recently with Planned Parenthood/Chicago Area's 2007 Richard J. Phelan Profile in Courage award for their commitment to expanding access to healthcare in Illinois. Barry Maram, Director of the Illinois Dept. of Healthcare and Family Services, and Anne Marie Murphy, Director of Healthcare Programs for Gov. Blagojevich, were honored for their leadership in initiating the All Kids healthcare program, expanding family planning services through the Illinois Healthy Women program, and increasing access to life-saving breast and cervical cancer screening through the Illinois Breast and Cervical Cancer Program. The awards were presented at Planned Parenthood/Chicago Area's 6th Annual Roe v. Wade Anniversary Celebration, celebrating 34 years of reproductive freedom.

Planned Parenthood/Chicago Area's annual Profile in Courage award is named for Richard J. Phelan for his consistent support of women's access to quality health care services during his tenure as Cook County Board President.

"The 2007 Richard J. Phelan Profile in Courage award is quite an honor," said Steve Trombley, President and CEO of Planned Parenthood/Chicago Area. "We award those who have truly made it their mission to help those most in need, and these two absolutely deserve it for their dedication to continually expanding access to family planning services and their leadership in collaborating with health care providers to ensure their needs are effectively and efficiently met."

As Director of Healthcare and Family Services, Barry Maram has helped expand access to healthcare for over half a million Illinoisans, and was instrumental in creating the All Kids program. In addition, Maram coordinated the state's hospital assessment plan, which will bring $1.8 billion in new federal funding to Illinois hospitals and other Medicaid providers.

Dr. Anne Marie Murphy was recently appointed by Gov. Blagojevich as Director of Healthcare Programs. Prior to that, she was the Illinois Medicaid Director, where she oversaw the delivery of healthcare to over 2 million people statewide. Dr. Murphy was also instrumental in developing All Kids, as well as expanding the Illinois Healthy Women and the Illinois Breast and Cervical Cancer programs.

Understanding Credit Scoring

There's a lot of confusion around credit reports and credit scores - what they're used for, how they're calculated and why they're so important if you want to buy a car or house. Lenders, insurers and even employers review your credit history to decide if you're a worthwhile risk, so here's some background information that may help demystify the whole credit scoring process:

Credit bureaus. There are three major credit bureaus: Equifax www.equifax.com, Experian www.experian.com and TransUnion www.transunion.com. Each tracks how many and what types of credit cards and loans you have, how long your accounts have been open and whether you've paid your bills on time.

Credit report. Upon request from you or a potential lender, a credit bureau will compile a credit report - basically a snapshot of your credit history at that moment. You can order one free credit report a year from each of the three bureaus. (Order through www.annualcreditreport.com; otherwise you'll pay a small fee.) They are required by law to investigate any disputed item and correct inaccuracies.

It's wise to order a free report from one of the bureaus every four months; that way, you'll keep regular, year-round tabs on what's being reported about you. Another tip: If you're planning to borrow to make a major purchase, order your credit reports beforehand so you'll know what lenders will see about your credit history.

It's vital to know what's in your credit reports so you can spot fraudulent activity or errors before they damage your credit standing. For more information on what to do if you suspect identity fraud, go to Practical Money Skills for Life, a free personal financial management site sponsored by Visa USA www.practicalmoneyskills.com/security.

Credit scores. Credit bureaus use information in your credit report to create a three-digit credit score. The higher your score, the better your credit rating is. The most commonly used credit scores are called FICO scores, named for Fair Isaac Corporation (FICO), which developed the proprietary software.

Five factors are used to determine your FICO score: payment history, amount owed, length of credit history, newly opened credit accounts, and types of credit used. Scores take into consideration information in all five categories, both positive and negative, but may weigh them differently depending on your individual circumstances.

When you apply for credit or a loan, lenders evaluate one or more of these bureaus' scores along with their own criteria (which may include income, length of employment or other factors), to determine if you are a worthy credit risk. Your overall credit score may affect not only whether or not you get the loan, but also the amount, term length and interest rate.

The differences between excellent, good, fair and poor credit scores can really add up. For example, someone with a top-notch FICO credit score - say above 720 - might qualify for a mortgage rate one or more percentage points lower than someone with poor credit. For a typical 30-year, $200,000 mortgage, this could add up to an extra $50,000 in interest payments over the life of the loan.

For more information on how credit reports and credit scores work - and to purchase a copy of your score - go to www.myfico.com. Remember, it's always a good idea to know what's in your reports ahead of time so you can correct errors before they harm your credit rating.

Bridging The Gap

Four bilingual Queen of Peace students began volunteering at St. Mary Star of the Sea grammar school this school year in an effort to help bridge a language gap.

Pictured: (from left) Peace students Maria Bernal, Bianca Rojas, Maricarmen De Leon and Claudia Valencia - all Advanced Placement Spanish students - give their time every Monday after school to work with St. Mary students who are English-language learners. The grade schoolers are less exposed to the English language because they speak primarily Spanish at home with their families. They come to school with a limited English ability. Each week, Peace students make it their goal to help the children learn to speak, write, and understand English a little bit better.

"I enjoy using my time outside of school to help others. I am always excited to share my talents and abilities with others," exclaims De Leon. "I love being around kids. They are so much fun. I teach them, and I learn so much from them too," Bernal noted.

St. Mary Star of the Sea teachers report improvement in their students' ability to speak English, resulting in more classroom participation. Peace Spanish teacher and Program Coordinator, Heidi Hansen finds this tutoring program to be an enriching experience for the students. "This is a great opportunity for the elementary students to see successful older students who overcame language frustrations, as well as for high school students to give back to children who are in the very same position that they once were."

Text Message Lawsuit

Attorney General Lisa Madigan recently filed a lawsuit in Federal court in Springfield against C & C Global Enterprises, L.L.C., www.resortssellers.com, Neela Pundit and Charles Rossop, the operators of www.webuyresorts.com and www.resortssellers.com, alleging that they sent millions of unsolicited text messages to Illinois consumers and wireless phones across the country in violation of the federal Telephone Consumer Protection Act and the state Consumer Fraud and Deceptive Business Practices Act.

Beginning on about Nov. 3rd, 2006, Illinois residents began receiving unsolicited text messages alerting them that "We have someone interested in buying or renting your Time Share" and directing the recipient to log on to www.webuyresorts.com or www.resortssellers.com for more information. The web sites vanished from the Internet a few days after consumers began complaining about the unsolicited messages.

Madigan's Consumer Protection Division has received 66 written complaints and 190 complaints by phone from consumers complaining that they received these unsolicited text messages from the defendants.

Blanketing cell phone customers with unsolicited text messages costs consumers. Depending on a consumer's cell phone plan, the consumer either is charged a fee for each message received or her monthly bucket of text messages, for which she pays a monthly fee, is reduced. In addition, receiving and viewing text messages uses precious battery power, which could leave consumers unable to make necessary calls, including emergency calls.

Madigan's lawsuit also raises allegations concerning other aspects of the defendants' business. Specifically, the suit alleges that the defendants' unsolicited text message tells consumers they have a buyer or renter for their time share, but many of the recipients of the unsolicited text message do not own a time share. In addition, Madigan alleges that the defendants accept payment for time-share listing services and then fail to provide the listing. The defendants could not possibly provide the time share listing because they do not request sufficient information from customers to develop a time share sale listing, such as the address of the time share and the unit number, the complaint alleges.

Madigan's lawsuit seeks a nationwide injunction against the defendants, prohibiting them from violating consumer protection laws. In addition, the lawsuit seeks civil penalties of $50,000 and additional civil penalties of $50,000 for each violation of the Consumer Fraud Act found to be committed with the intent to defraud. Madigan also requests that the court order the defendants to pay restitution to affected consumers.

No-Interest Loans Available

Governor Rod R. Blagojevich announced $1.9 million in no-interest loans to help fire departments and fire protection districts purchase much-needed fire trucks. This is the second phase of a loan program that has already helped 63 fire departments obtain new fire trucks.

The Fire Truck Revolving Loan Program, administered by the Office of the State Fire Marshal (OSFM), provides no-interest, 20-year loans to local fire departments and fire protection districts for the purchase of fire trucks. The maximum loan award is $250,000. The loan program was created by legislation signed by Gov. Blagojevich in 2003.

Applications for the loans are available on the OSFM website at www.state.il.us/osfm. The agency also will mail applications to each fire department in Illinois. Applications will be accepted from Feb. 1 through April 15. A nine-member review committee comprising representatives of the banking industry and the fire services will review the applications. Loans will be awarded on the basis of need.

In August 2004, 63 fire departments were selected to receive the initial revolving loans. Payments on those loans go into the revolving loan fund, and will be used for this second round of loans.

Food Check Out Day 2007

Cook County Farm Bureau Leaders will be meeting with Ronald McDonald House Charities of Chicagoland and Northwest Indiana to present a "ton" of food, monetary donations and pounds of pop tabs to the 3 Cook County Area Houses on Feb. 5th in celebration of Food Check-out Day.

The event will be held at the Ronald McDonald House located on the grounds of Hines VA Hospital near Loyola University Medical Center. The event will include a tractor/trailer hauling the donated goods, a House tour, tractor rides for the kids and a dinner with families and guests residing in the House.

Food Check-out Day 2007 is the day when the average American will have earned enough income to pay for their family's food for the entire year. "Not only is America's food supply the world's safest, but it is also the most affordable," said James Brandau, president of Cook County Farm Bureau. "Why is America's food so affordable? Because of the efficiency of the American farmer and all those who help bring healthy and delicious food to your table."

Celebrate this Food Check-out Day by contributing what you can. Donations can be dropped off at the Loyola Ronald McDonald House from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Feb. 5th. For location information, contact the Cook County Farm Bureau at (708) 354-3276.

Cold Weather Killer

Each year, nearly 5,000 people in the United States are treated in hospital emergency rooms for carbon monoxide (CO) poisoning. This number is, however, believed to be an underestimate of those poisoned because many people exhibiting the symptoms of CO poisoning mistake these symptoms for the flu or are misdiagnosed.

CO poisoning can kill without warning, as your family sleeps. CO gas has no warning properties - you can't smell it, see it, or taste it - even at harmful or life threatening levels. And, since so many deaths occur as the result of defective or poorly operated home heating devices, CO has been termed the "silent cold weather killer."

CO is a colorless, odorless, toxic gas. It is produced by the incomplete combustion of solid, liquid, and gaseous fuels. Appliances fueled with gas, oil, kerosene, or wood may produce CO. If such appliances are not installed, maintained, and used properly, CO may accumulate to dangerous and even fatal levels in cars, homes, or poorly ventilated areas like basements.

CO is produced when fuels are burned, therefore, any fuel-burning appliance in your home is a potential CO source. Electrical heaters and electric water heaters, toasters, etc., do not produce CO under any circumstances. Under normal circumstances, CO should not be detectable in the typical home or workplace.

When fuel-fired appliances are kept in good working condition, they produce very little CO. But improperly operated or improperly vented appliances can produce elevated - or even fatal - CO concentrations in your home. Likewise, using kerosene heaters or charcoal grills indoors, or running a car in a closed garage, can cause levels of CO high enough to result in CO poisoning or even death.

Common sources of CO include the following wood- or gas-fueled appliances: room heaters; furnaces; charcoal grills; cooking ranges; water heaters; automobiles run in closed garages; fireplaces; portable generators; and wood-burning stoves.

Any person or animal in spaces shared with a device capable of generating CO should be considered at risk of CO poisoning. CO exposures especially affect unborn babies, infants, and people with anemia or a history of heart disease. Breathing low levels of the chemical can cause fatigue and increase chest pain in people with chronic heart disease.

Although not always experienced, the initial symptoms of CO poisoning are similar to the flu, but without the fever. They include: dizziness, fatigue, headache, nausea, and irregular breathing.

It is critical to note that death from CO poisoning can occur with some or all of these symptoms never being experienced, in which case the overexposed victim simply falls asleep and never regains consciousness.

Dangerous levels of CO can be prevented by proper appliance maintenance, installation, and use. Timely inspections of potentially CO-producing equipment, and the use of CO toxic level concentration alarms, are also key to avoiding a CO fatality.

Richards Students Talk With Journalist

John Kass, the celebrated columnist for the Chicago Tribune, shared wisdom and preached work during his return to his alma mater, Richards High School, on Monday, Jan. 22nd. Richards administrators invited Kass to share his thoughts about personal success, career achievement, and journalism as a profession.

"Do what you love. That way, you're not really going to work," said Kass in his conversations with journalism and English classes. "I have the best job in the United States. Four times each week, I get to write what I want about any subject I choose. I kind of fell into journalism, but I did find a career in something I really enjoy."

Kass, who played football for coach Gary Korhonen at Richards, worked several jobs after graduating high school. He spent time as a merchant marine sailor and worked as a ditch digger and waiter before enrolling at Columbia College in Chicago.

His writing ability as a film studies major caught the attention of a professor, who had worked as an editor at the Chicago Daily News. The professor suggested he try journalism instead of script writing and arranged for Kass to work at the Daily Calumet. Soon, Kass found work at the Tribune and, after the death of Mike Royko, wrote as a guest columnist until his work earned him the permanent assignment as the Page Two commentator.

While Kass had many bits of wisdom to share with Richards students, perhaps his most important concerned perseverance and attitude.

"Like me, you're from the south side. Oak Lawn, Chicago Ridge, Calumet Park, Robbins - it doesn't matter, to everyone else, you're a southsider. Maybe we don't drive Mercedes to school or have lives of privilege, but we can outwork anyone. Don't ever let anyone tell you that you can't do something," said

Kass, who grew up near 55th St. and Halsted Ave. before moving to Oak Lawn.

Kass recalled his early days at the Tribune as an example. After working there for some time, an editor told him that he didn't have a job at the newspaper anymore. "He told me, 'you can't write, you can't report.' He didn't like me. I was about to get married and start a family. I had worked hard to get to this point in my life, and now this guy's going to take it away from me," Kass said.

Soon, Kass broke a huge story. His dedication secured his position at the Tribune. Later, he would become the newspaper's national political correspondent and, eventually, its most prominent columnist.

"It can be done. My grandfather was a shepherd (in Greece), my father owned a little supermarket in Chicago. I'm from 105th and Kedzie. After high school, I had no idea where I was going, but I was willing to work. It's hard to compete with people who have better educations or family connections, but the one thing we can do is work them to death. Kids from our neighborhoods can outwork anyone. Don't forget where you came from," Kass said.

Kass spoke to newspaper, yearbook, and English Honors students during his visit to Richards.

Tracy N. Lundy of Oak Lawn graduated from Loras College in Iowa, magna cum laude, with a bachelor's degree in Elementary Education, Instructional Strategist I.

Exemption Renewal Notices Mailed

Cook County Assessor James M. Houlihan announced that renewal exemption applications for the Senior Citizen and Senior Freeze Exemptions have been mailed to close to 260,000 senior citizens.

"I strongly encourage all seniors who receive these renewal notices to reapply to ensure that they continue to receive these valuable, money-saving exemptions," Houlihan said.

The Senior Citizen Exemption is available to all Cook County homeowners who were born prior to or in the year 1941 and who use their homes as their primary residences. This exemption entitles a senior to a reduction in the equalized assessed value of his or her property resulting in hundreds of dollars in tax savings.

The Senior Freeze Exemption is available to all Cook County homeowners who were born prior to or in the year 1941 and who have total household incomes of $50,000 a year or less. Requirements also state that eligible seniors must have used their homes as their primary residences and have resided there Jan. 1st of 2005 and 2006. This valuable exemption protects limited-income senior citizen homeowners from increases in the equalized assessed values of their properties.

The deadline to return the senior exemption renewal applications is Feb. 21st. An informational letter from the Assessor written in English and Spanish is included with renewal instructions. All exemptions will appear as deductions on second installment tax bills, which will be due in the fall.

Seniors who wish to apply for the senior exemptions for the first time this year will have an opportunity to do so when they receive a comprehensive Taxpayer Exemption Booklet which is due to be mailed in March.

"We are making every effort to be certain that all seniors are aware of these exemptions and encourage them to return their renewal applications to our office as quickly as possible," Houlihan said.

Woman Questioned In Shooting Death

Juan Miranda, 48, of Chicago's Lakeview neighborhood was shot multiple times at about 8:00 a.m. on January 28th in the 9100 block of Komensky Avenue. Police are holding the owner of the Oak Lawn home where he was shot.

The homeowner, a 51-year-old woman, told police that she shot Miranda in self-defense when he tried to choke her during an argument over money. Police found six bullet casings and the weapon at the scene.

The Oak Lawn Police said that the case is still pending as a death investigation and that the female homeowner is a "person of interest." No charges have been filed on Monday.

*Harris offers a 6.99% Annual Percentage Rate ("APR") on home equity loans of $25,000 or more with a loan-to-value ratio not exceeding 85% and a loan term of 5 years. This 6.99% APR fixed rate would result in 60 monthly payments of $19.80 per $1,000 borrowed for a 5 year term, and assumes a Harris checking account with automatic monthly payments. (For loan amounts of $25,000 or more without automatic payment deductions from a Harris checking account, for a 5 year term the APR would be 7.49% and would result in 60 monthly payments of $20.03 per $1,000 borrowed.) Funds will be disbursed after the federally mandated cancellation period. Property must be an owner occupied 1-to-4 family residence in IL, IN, and WI and is subject to no less than a second lien position on your property and is subject to our underwriting standards. This offer does not apply to any transaction used to purchase a 1-4 family residence. Property insurance required; flood insurance may be required. Rates and closing costs are subject to credit qualifications. Closing costs paid by Harris are limited to appraisal, flood determination, title insurance and recording fees. Costs to satisfy certain prior liens may be assessed. Consult your tax advisor regarding the deductibility of interest. This offer is non-transferable, cannot be combined with any other offer, and can be withdrawn at any time without notice. Subject to credit approval, which includes verification of application information and receipt of collateral documents. Offer applies to new applications received from January 2, 2007 through February 28, 2007. Harris™ is a trade name used by Harris N.A. and its affiliates. Member FDIC.

Heartland Centers Facing Shortages

Inventories of O negative, B negative and AB negative are at less than a one-day supply. Inventories of A positive, A negative, and B positive are at only a two-day supply. Optimal inventory is at least a three-day supply. For Heartland, a three-day supply means that we have enough blood to cover what is typically transfused over a three-day period amongst our 35 system hospitals. The month of January trends as a high transfusion month primarily because many patients schedule elective surgeries during this time. A sluggish return on blood donations during January is severely affecting not only Heartland Blood Centers, one of the nation's oldest blood centers, but most blood centers nationwide.

"We have not received the normal response from our blood donors post holidays that we have in the past and our blood supply is suffering. At this point, Heartland will need at least four weeks of solid collections in order to restore an optimal inventory level," said Ann McKanna, Vice President of Marketing and New Business Development at Heartland.

Heartland Blood Centers relies solely on our volunteer blood donors to meet the needs of patients in the 35 area hospitals that we supply. Annually, Heartland donors must collectively give 160,000 units of blood to meet the supply demands of these hospitals.

"While we are facing shortages of several types, we are struggling most to meet our hospital needs for O negative and B negative blood types. Because O negative is the universal donor, it is the most transfused in hospitals. B negative accounts for only about 1.4% of the U.S. population, so only about 1 out of every 100 people will have this rare blood type. We need all donors to give, especially our O negative and B negative donors," said Doug Winsor, Director of Hospital Services at Heartland.

Donors can schedule a time to give by calling 1-800-7 TO GIVE. Donors can also visit our Web site at www.heartlandbc.org for listings of blood drives in the community and listings of our 14 center locations. Blood drive sponsors and donors also have the opportunity to join the Four Seasons Club during February and March. To learn more about this program and Heartland's Lifesaver Club, call or visit our web site.

To be a blood donor, individuals must be at least 17 years old or 16 with written parental permission; weigh at least 110 pounds; be symptom free of cold, flu and allergies; and be in general good health. Donors who have traveled outside the United States within the past 12 months should contact Heartland at 1-800-7TO-GIVE to determine eligibility.

McAuley Luncheon & Fashion Show

The annual Mother McAuley High School spring luncheon and fashion show, "McAuley Magic" will be held at the Oak Brook Drury Lane on Saturday, March 10th. Mothers Club members Donna Aguilar (Oak Lawn), Brenda Guy (Chicago) and Teri Miller (Evergreen Park) are the chairpersons of this event that honors senior students. Fashions from Kimberly Bond Boutique in Orland Park, That Girl Boutique in Worth, My Sister and Me Boutique in Frankfort and Hansen's Villa in Manhattan, Anne's Ltd. in Oak Lawn, Eva's Bridal in Oak Lawn and Ms. Priss in Beverly will be shown. The men's fashions will be provided by After Hours Formal Wear.

Senior students Julianna Alexander (Chicago), Aileen Antonsen (West Beverly), Liz Cullnan (Beverly), Autumn DeGard (Lansing), Katie Fadden (Oak Lawn), Laura Garvey (Oak Lawn), Pamela Gronkowski (Beverly), Ryan Hernandez (Archer Heights), Patricia Holland (Beverly), Briana Holland (Gresham), Danielle Hummel (Oak Lawn), Precious Jackson (Archer Heights), Amanda Lopacinski (Hometown), Laura Mayer (Beverly), Michele McGuire (Mt. Greenwood), Jennifer Miller (Gresham), Ashley Moroz (Mt. Greenwood), Kelly Murray (Oak Lawn), Tess Obermeier (Beverly), and Bridget Snyder (Tinley Park) will be modeling both prom and graduation dresses. For ticket information call Maureen Obermeier at (773) 445-3686.

Chicago Bears Week

Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich issued a proclamation declaring the week of Feb. 5th as Chicago Bears Week in recognition of their spectacular season. The governor also commemorated Bears Head Coach Lovie Smith on his remarkable achievement as the first African-American NFL head coach to lead a team to the Super Bowl.

"Words cannot fully express how excited everyone in Illinois was to see the NFC Champion Chicago Bears return to the Super Bowl. Though the outcome was less than hoped for, there is no shame for what this amazing team accomplished," Gov. Blagojevich said.

"Together, they united Chicago and Bears fans all over the state who have waited more than 20 years to get back to the Super Bowl. They should take pride in what they achieved. I want to congratulate them for a stellar season. And I want to especially congratulate Lovie Smith for taking the team all the way to the Super Bowl."

The Chicago Bears had a remarkable 2006 regular season. Their 13-3 record was the best in the NFC, which earned them a first round bye in the playoffs, as well as home field advantage throughout the NFC postseason. In honor of their amazing run, the governor declared Feb. 5th to 11th as Chicago Bears Week.

Garden Club

The Oak Lawn Garden Club will hold its February meeting on Thursday, Feb. 22nd at the Oakview Center from 9:30 to 12:00 at 4625 West 110th Street. Carol Wenzel will be the guest speaker and she will be discussing which native plants are suitable for your backyard. Hope to see you there. Guests are welcome.

Any questions, call Lynn Terri at (773) 779-5685.

Happy Valentine's Day!

37th Annual Mayoral Ball

The Crestwood Village Improvement Party recently honored Mayor Chester Stranczek at his 37th Annual Mayoral Ball which was held at the Doubletree Hotel.

An overwhelming attendance representing the business community, organizations, accompanied by dignitaries and elected officials paid tribute to the Mayor. The highlight of the evening was when Mayor Stranczek addressed his guests sharing his concerns that our federal government is eroding our rights with constant mandates and becoming too socialistic. He also reminisced about his 50 years in public office and thanked the many people that helped him throughout these years.

Dinner was followed by comedian Mike Toomey and dancing music was provided by Record Spinners.

Announce Partnership To Establish Energy Bioscience Institute

Governor Rod R. Blagojevich joined California Governor Arnold Schwarzenegger and top executives from BP at the University of California, Berkeley to celebrate a new, innovative partnership through which BP will be investing $500 million over the next 10 years to establish an Energy Biosciences Institute (EBI), the first of its kind facility in the world, to expand the energy supply and reduce the impact of energy use on the environment. BP selected the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign and the University of California, Berkeley, two of the world's top public research institutions, along with the Lawrence Berkeley National Laboratory, to host this state-of-the-art institute, which will advance radical research aimed at probing the emerging secrets of bioscience and applying them to the production of new and cleaner energy. University of Illinois Urbana-Champaign Chancellor Dr. Richard Herman and First Lady Patricia Blagojevich celebrated the news with state officials and university faculty at a simultaneous announcement event at the new Illinois home of the EBI on the campus of the University of Illinois Urbana-Champaign.

The Energy Biosciences Institute will perform groundbreaking research aimed at the production of new and cleaner energy, initially focusing on renewable biofuels for road transport. However, the EBI will also pursue research in three other key areas: the conversion of heavy hydrocarbons to clean fuels, improved recovery from existing oil and gas reservoirs, and carbon sequestration.

Dedicated facilities on the campuses of the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign and UC-Berkeley will house EBI research laboratories and staff. The Lawrence Berkeley National Laboratory will carry out supporting research. Up to 50 BP staff located on the two campuses will work in partnership with university faculty and researchers. BP and its partners will share governance of the EBI and guidance of its research programs.

The primary role of the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign in the Energy Biosciences Institute will be to lead the development of the new crops, cropping systems and machinery needed to provide the biomass or feedstock for the generation of renewable liquid fuels. A major part of this effort will be the application of genomic technologies to the development of these new crops. This initiative will allow the University and the State of Illinois to contribute to a cleaner environment and a nation that doesn't depend on foreign oil.

Illinois is a leading producer and among the most aggressive promoters of agriculture-based biofuels and other forms of renewable energy. Illinois is the nation's #2 ethanol producer and #2 biodiesel producer. In 2007, Illinois' 10 ethanol plants will produce more than one billion gallons and three biodiesel plants will produce more than 120 million gallons. Gov. Blagojevich has supported a rapid expansion of the 85 percent ethanol fueling infrastructure, and by the end of 2007, Illinois will have more than 200 E-85 pumps. In 2003, the Governor signed legislation making Illinois the first and still only state to completely eliminate the state sales tax on E-85 and biodiesel blends of 11 percent and higher ("B11"), dramatically increasing E-85 sales and biodiesel sales.

Last summer, Gov. Blagojevich announced a comprehensive Energy Independent Plan to reduce our dependence on imported energy, which will allow Illinois to meet 50 percent of its fuel needs with alternative, homegrown sources by 2017. The Governor's plan would invest $25 million to help build five new biodiesel plants, boosting the state's production by 200 percent to 400 million gallons per year, or the equivalent to 25 percent of the state's annual diesel fuel needs, by 2017. This additional biodiesel production will generate another $225 million in business investment in Illinois.

The Governor also proposes investing $100 million over the next five years to build up to 20 new ethanol plants across Illinois, which would generate an estimated $100 million over the next 10 years to build four plants in downstate Illinois using new technology to create ethanol made from plant waste materials like corn husks and wood pulp - or "cellulosic ethanol." This means boosting the state's annual ethanol production by more than 200 percent and meeting 50 percent of gasoline needs by 2017. This plan would create almost 20,000 construction jobs and 10,000 permanent jobs.

The Governor has also made important investments in biosciences research and development in partnership with the University of Illinois. This includes $75 million for the Institute for Genomic Biology, which is expected to open this spring and to house more than 300 researchers, who will lead the basic research necessary for next-generation, advanced science-based biofuels technology. The Governor has also committed $3.2 million to design the state-of-the-art Bioprocessing Research Laboratory that will bring together academia and industry and scientific and engineering expertise to advance processing technologies and scale-up promising new biofuels' technologies to assure their rapid commercialization.

Business Facilities Magazine rated Illinois the top state in the nation for biotech growth in 2005, and last April, Illinois hosted BIO 2006. This was the first time one of the world's most prestigious biosciences convention was held in the Midwest, which brought in almost 20,000 attendees from across the United States and 62 countries. The BIO conference will be coming back to Chicago in 2010.

America Remembers

Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich announced a $100,000 grant to help local Citizen Corps Councils through the state better prepare their communities for disasters. Funds for the grant come from fees paid for special "America Remembers" vehicle license plates, which pay tribute to the victims of the Sept. 11, 2001 terrorist attacks.

"We're very fortunate to have so many volunteers across the state who are willing to give their time and effort to help their communities prepare for emergencies," said Gov. Blagojevich. "After the federal government cut funding for Citizen Corps Councils by 25 percent this year, we decided we needed to step up to make sure they have the resources they need to keep their communities safe."

For every "America Remembers" license plate purchased or renewed, $25 is donated to the Sept. 11th Fund. The fund was created to support public safety initiatives related to acts of terrorism or other disasters in Illinois. The $100,000 grant will be used by the Illinois Terrorism Task Force's (ITTF) Illinois Citizen Corps Council to provide grants to local Citizen Corps Councils to support their training, community preparedness and public information efforts.

The Illinois Citizen Corps Council will conduct a grant application process this spring for grant funds that become available on July 1st. Funds will be divided equally between all local councils requesting the grants.

Intergovernmental Panel On Global Warming

"The Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change of the United Nations has just reaffirmed what we already know - that global warming is upon us. The global community is acknowledging the problem and here in Illinois, despite inaction by President Bush, we have begun to address it.

"Last fall, I announced a new global warming initiative to combat global climate change that builds on steps we're already taking to reduce greenhouse gas emissions. The Illinois Climate Change Advisory Group I created will begin its work this month to recommend strategies to cut greenhouse gases statewide.

"Last summer, I unveiled an ambitious plan to meet our energy needs by investing in clean, homegrown energy sources that will cut our greenhouse gas emissions. My plan calls for investing in pollution-free wind power and cleaner burning renewable fuels made from crops like corn and soybeans. It also calls for a significant increase in energy saving technologies that will reduce greenhouse gases while cutting utility bills for families and businesses.

"And just yesterday, I joined Gov. Schwarzenegger of California and top executives from BP to announce a landmark partnership. Over the next ten years, BP will invest $500 million to establish an Energy Biosciences Institute (EBI) housed at the University of California in Berkeley and the University of Illinois in Urbana Champaign, to research next-generation biofuels that will further cut greenhouse gas emissions and reduce our dependence on foreign oil.

"By doing these things, we can cut greenhouse gases that contribute to global warming, rising sea levels, and deadly storms like Hurricane Katrina, while also conserving energy and preserving the environment for our children and all future generations. I urge the President and Congress to follow the lead of states like ours by acting on the latest global warming report and taking aggressive steps to curb this looming problem."

Cash Flow Workshop

Attend a half-day workshop on Tuesday, Feb. 20th from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., offered by SCORE, Counselors to America's Small Business. Gain an understanding of Cash Flow, Income Statements & Balance Sheets and how to use them to impact business results. A guest banker presents criteria to obtain financing. This workshop is one of four required for a SCORE Workshop Completion Certificate, helpful when seeking a loan. Attendees should be in business or planning to start one.

Putting On The Brakes

Illinois Attorney General Lisa Madigan and Illinois Secretary of State Jesse White are partnering with The Advertising Council on a new campaign aimed at putting the brakes on fatal car crashes involving teens and young adults. Madigan and White join the Ad Council and a coalition of State Attorneys General and Consumer Protection Agencies, and national partners such as Students Against Destructive Decisions (SADD) and American Automobile Assn. (AAA), to promote the new "UR the Spokesperson" campaign to prevent reckless driving and save lives.

Car crashes are the number one cause of death among teens and young adults. National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) data show that, on average, more than 300,000 teens are injured in car crashes each year, nearly 8,000 are involved in fatal crashes and more than 3,500 are killed. NHTSA research also shows that teen drivers are involved in more than five times as many fatal crashes as adults. Young drivers are more likely to speed, run red lights, make illegal turns and die in an SUV rollover.

With the message "Speak Up" the "UR the Spokesperson" campaign targets young adults between the ages of 15 and 21 and encourages them to be the spokesperson against reckless driving by empowering them to speak up when they are in the car with friends and don't feel safe. The campaign also seeks to increase awareness about the dangers of reckless driving and educate teens on how to be safe drivers by focusing on driving safe speeds, avoiding distractions and wearing seatbelts.

The "UR the Spokesperson" campaign includes a series of public service advertisements (PSAs), a new Web site and a soon-to-be launched contest. The PSAs target teen passengers, rather than the driver, and encourage them to speak up when they don't feel safe. Research shows that young drivers may be more likely to listen to their friends than to adults.

For more information on the campaign and to see the ads, visit www.URtheSpokesperson.com

All Points Southwest

By THOMAS E. GAVIN

This past Sunday I spent the better part of the day preparing for and viewing a soggy Super Bowl XLI, which featured our beloved Chicago Bears against the Indianapolis Colts in rain swept Miami, Florida. While I may have doubted the weather, I never doubted the Bears. And when rookie kick-return extraordinaire Devin Hester caught the opening kickoff and took it back 92 yards for an instant Bears lead, I was able to count every tooth in the family room, the smiles were so big! Some random impressions...

When Linebacker Brian Urlacher tipped the Colts first pass attempt of the game - I was optimistic. And when Defensive Back Chris Harris intercepted Peyton Manning's pass a while later, I got pumped. When Running Back Thomas Jones recorded a 50 plus yard romp, setting up a short touchdown pass, I was elated. We had the lead and were sure to keep surging to our second Super Bowl title. I was dreaming.

It was right about this time that one of my neighbors reminded the Bears coronation assembly: "Remember what happened to the #1 Ohio State Buckeyes in the National College Title Game against Florida!" Could lightning strike twice? Nah! We wrote his prophecy off as that of a jealous Colts fan.

The Bears had numerous opportunities but could not maintain momentum nor convert on third down opportunities. Regrettably, the Monsters of the Midway seemed to morph into the boxer who trains for a right-handed opponent, only to be greeted by a southpaw. The Bears seemed to be out of sync, and were soundly beaten upfront on both sides of the ball.

Give credit to the Colts scouting and coaching staffs. They exposed the Bears weaknesses and allowed Super Bowl MVP quarterback Peyton Manning and his fellow warriors to exploit the Bears deficiencies. On this day the Colts had more fuel in their tanks than the Beloved Bears. No excuses! Final score...Colts 29 - Bears 17.

We thank the Chicago Bears for their efforts, an entertaining season, a National Football Conference Championship, and the knowledge that they are potentially a Super Bowl candidate next season. Go Bears!

Last week Cook County Democrats met to select a new leader to replace their deceased Cook County Chairman Thomas Lyons. The longtime leader, Chairman Lyons died last month. State Democratic Chairman and House Speaker Michael Madigan chaired the exploratory meeting which initially found State Rep. Lou Lang (D-Skokie), Chicago Alderman Ike Carothers (29th) and Cook County Board of Review Commissioner Joseph Berrios interested in the chairmanship.

Rep. Lang was a favorite of several suburban committeemen; Ald. Carothers was the choice of the black caucus; and Commissioner Berrios represented several Hispanic committeemen and party regulars.

State Chairman Madigan met with several committeemen and orchestrated a compromise which helped to convince both Lang and Carothers to step aside so that Commissioner Joseph Berrios was unanimously elected Cook County Democratic Chairman. Chairman Berrios is the Democratic committeeman of the 31st Ward on Chicago's Northwest Side and the first Hispanic to ever hold the Democratic chairmanship.

Chairman Berrios named Rep. Lang and Ald. Carothers "executive vice chairs of the party." All three candidates stated they would work for unity and to end the practice of individual party leaders working against the slated candidates in the Democratic Primary Elections.

In other business, the central committee appointed Cook County Board President Todd Stroger the 8th Ward committeeman, replacing his ailing father, former Cook County Board President John H. Stroger Jr.

Locally, State Senator Louis Viverito (D-Burbank) stepped down from his committeeman's position and was replaced by Michael Looney. Viverito has served as Stickney Township Democratic Committeeman since 1969 and is responsible for building one of the most solid Democratic organizations in the state.

Closer to home in the 19th Ward, three candidates will vie for the Democratic aldermanic seat. Alderman Virginia "Ginger" Rugai has represented the ward since 1991 and seeks reelection. Rugai is being challenged by John Somerville, an assistant state's attorney who drew 41% of the vote in the 2003 Democratic primary, and Timothy Sheehan, a real estate agent who is making his maiden voyage politically.

Somerville acknowledges that the 19th Ward is "real stable and a great community" but he feels that more should be done, more quickly, to improve development in the ward. And Sheehan (no relation to the former 19th Ward Alderman and Cook County Sheriff Michael Sheahan) acknowledges that after seeing Somerville get 41% of the vote in the last primary, there must be a thirst for change in the ward!

Alderman Rugai, a former aide to state Senator Jeremiah Joyce, cites the building of a Panera Bread restaurant, Borders Bookstore and Chipotle Mexican Grill near 95th and Western, as well as a new Starbucks, a Jamba Juice and a Potbelly Sandwich Works shops slated for this fall as evidence of progress. New fire and police stations, the rebuilding of 111th St. and Western Ave. which include the Beverly Art Center, and numerous projects for citizens highlight her credentials.

The next Chicago Southland Chamber's Business After Hours will be on Tuesday, Feb. 13th from 5 to 7 p.m. at Audi of Tinley Park, located at 8021 W. 159th St.

Join Chamber colleagues and other business professionals from the community for refreshments, appetizers, and raffle drawings in a friendly networking atmosphere. Valet parking will be offered at no charge. Business cards and promotional material are encouraged for member display tables. Admission price is $5 for chamber members and $15 for non-members and is payable at the door.

The Chicago Southland Chamber is a regional organization that serves a population of 2.5 million in 85 communities in the area bounded by Chicago on the north, northwest Indiana on the east, Kankakee on the south and Joliet on the west.

Summit Drug Investigation

An eight-month undercover drug investigation into illegal narcotics sales near a Summit high school and public housing project has netted 26 arrests, the Office of Cook County Sheriff Thomas J. Dart announced.

"Operation Rocky Summit" was a joint investigation conducted by Sheriff's Police Gang Crimes/Narcotics officers and Summit Police beginning in May, 2006. The operation targeted both the dealers and customers operating in the 7400 block of W. 63rd Pl. and the 6300 block of S. 74th Ave.

During the first phase of the operation, undercover Narcotics officers made purchases of crack cocaine from multiple offenders, many admitted gang members, on nearly 40 separate occasions. During each transaction, officers purchased drug amounts ranging from $20 to $100. Each drug deal was also secretly videotaped by Sheriff's Police for use by prosecutors in court.

"Drug dealing is a scourge on our communities and we will do our best to help local law enforcement fight back with these types of undercover operations," Sheriff Dart said.

Between Jan. 23rd and Jan. 30th, officers from both departments fanned out throughout the community, taking 12 offenders into custody. In addition, all drug sales were conducted within 1,000 feet of Argo Consolidated High School, 7329 W. 63rd St. and the Robert Allison Homes, 7400 block of W. 63rd Pl., a Cook County public housing project. Under Illinois law, illegal drugs sold near a school, public housing project, park or church automatically increases each charge and penalty upon conviction.

Among those arrested was Michael Cooper, 46, of Summit. Cooper is charged with two counts of delivery of a controlled substance and was on parole at the time of his arrest. He has 10 previous convictions including eight for dangerous drugs and two for obstruction of justice. Danyael McDonald, 30, also of Summit turned himself in to police and faces one count of delivery of a controlled substance. He has 27 prior convictions including those for weapons, drugs and obstruction.

Others arrested during the first phase of the investigation are: Joshua Fitzer, 19 of Evergreen Park, two counts delivery of a controlled substance; Jeffery Hinton, 27, of Summit, one count delivery of a controlled substance; William Jones, 40, of Summit, one count delivery of a controlled substance; Maurice Lanier, 22, of Broadview, two counts delivery of a controlled substance; Price Mister, 45, of Summit, one count delivery of a controlled substance; Donnie Reynolds, 23, Summit, four counts delivery of a controlled substance; Cornelius Sawyer, 37, Summit, one count delivery of a controlled substance; Christopher Smith, 26, Summit, one count delivery of a controlled substance; Emmanuel Strother, 25, of Westmont, one count delivery of a controlled substance; and Patrick White, 28, of Maywood, one count delivery of a controlled substance.

During the second phase of the operation, undercover Sheriff's Narcotics officers posed as drug dealers in the same neighborhood and sold simulated narcotics to customers who were then promptly arrested. In all, 14 people were arrested during this second phase of the operation. The majority of these offenders face attempted possession of controlled substance charges.

This investigation was initiated last summer after Summit Police contacted Sheriff's Police for assistance dealing with the increasing problem of drug sales in the eastern area of town. Sheriff Dart thanked the Summit Police for their valuable assistance during this investigation.

Sponsors Cell Phone Donation

In an effort to provide at risk senior citizens with access to cellular 911 emergency service, the Cook County Sheriff's Office distributed free cell phones to more than 100 seniors in South Suburban Phoenix, Sheriff Thomas J. Dart recently announced.

The Sheriff's Cell Phones for Seniors program provides seniors with a free cellular telephone they can carry and keep at home and provides them access to 911 emergency service. The Sheriff's Office accepts public donations of cellular telephones at 70 county-wide locations, including five suburban courthouses and two Chicago sites.

According to Dart, proposed budget cuts by Cook County Board President Todd Stroger would eliminate this worthy program and leave seniors without this valuable safety tool.

Citizens interested in donating an old cell phone can drop it off at any designated locations during regular court business hours.

According to Dart the constant advancements in cellular technology often results in consumers continually upgrading and purchasing new telephones and discarding the old ones. "There are many seniors in our county who cannot afford to have a cellular telephone due to their limited budgets," Dart said. "That old cell phone sitting in the drawer could prove to be a lifesaver for an at-risk senior citizen." An alarming trend that has come to the Sheriff's attention during these highly successful giveaways is the fact that not only do many seniors not have a cell phone, they live without any phones in their home. These donated phones may provide them with their only access to emergency services.

The Sheriff's Cell Phones for Seniors Program accepts any brand, make or model of cell phone whether it is in working order or not. Even components of cellular telephones are accepted.

The Sheriff's Office is working with RMS, a Florida-based communications group that specializes in the recycling and remarketing of old cell phones. Under the agreement, the Sheriff's Office mails all collected phones to the company's 911 Cell Phone Bank Program. In turn, the company converts the donated phones for emergency 911 usage. The Sheriff's Office then receives a 911 phone for each phone that is converted.

The Sheriff's Office began a pilot collection program in March 2006 and has already collected more than 1,500 phones from Sheriff's employees. Approximately 2,000 911 phones have already been distributed to senior citizens, many of whom attended the Sheriff's Senior Citizen Law Enforcement Academy, an ongoing crime and safety awareness community-based program for seniors.

Dart met with a group of seniors recently at the Phoenix Police Station, 650 E. Phoenix Center Road, and distributed 911 phones to the group. In addition to the phone, each senior receives two batteries and a telephone charger along with instructions on how to access 911 service.

The Sheriff's Office distributes the telephones through senior centers and community groups throughout the county. The Sheriff's Office is interested in working with any community group or individual interested in sponsoring a collection drive, according to the Sheriff. For further information citizens can contact the Sheriff's Cell Phones for Senior Program at (773) 869-7878.

National School Counselor Week

National School Counseling Week, sponsored by the American School Counselor Association (ASCA) and the Illinois School Counselor Association (ISCA) was celebrated from Feb. 5-9 to focus public attention on the unique contribution of professional school counselors within U.S. school systems. National School Counseling Week highlights the tremendous impact that counselors can have in helping students achieve school success and plan for a career.

The special week honoring school counselors provides recognition for school counselors who "implement comprehensive school counseling programs, a vital part of the educational process for all students as they meet the challenges of the 21st century."

School counselors are being actively engaged in helping students examine their abilities, strengths, interests and talents; for working in a partnership with parents as they encounter the challenges of raising children in today's world; for focusing on positive ways to enhance students' social/personal, educational and career development; and working with teachers and other educators to provide an educational system where students can realize their potential and set healthy, realistic and optimistic aspirations for themselves. Professional school counselors are certified, experienced educators with a master's degree in guidance and counseling. The combination of their training and experience makes them an integral part of the total educational program.

Nearly 20,000 school counselors nationwide participated in the week's festivities. Many school counselors hosted special events and activities to call attention to the myriad benefits of a comprehensive counseling program.

The Illinois School Counselor Association (ISCA) is a statewide nonprofit organization. ISCA supports school counselors' efforts to help students focus on academic, personal/social and career development so they not only achieve success in school but are prepared to lead fulfilling lives as responsible members of society. The association provides professional development, publications and other resources, research and advocacy to more than 3,000 professional school counselors in Illinois.

Be Brave, Go Bald

St. Rita High School students are stepping up to the challenge made by FOX Chicago Morning News Anchor Patrick Elwood and joining the FOX High School Challenge by offering to shave their heads to raise funds for research of children's cancer. The FOX Challenge supports the St. Baldrick's Foundation, an organization created to raise awareness for children with cancer.

St. Rita students are pledging to shave their heads for donations to the St. Baldrick's Foundation. The official 'Shave Day' is scheduled for March 16th at St. Rita High School. Anyone wishing to sponsor a St. Rita student should call St. Rita High School, (773) 925-5029 or email pstrocchia@stritahs.com

Abraham Lincoln's Birthday Party

Several Lincoln sites administered by the Illinois Historic Preservation Agency have scheduled special events from Feb. 10th through 12th in honor of Abraham Lincoln's 198th birthday.

Two annual pilgrimages to honor Abraham Lincoln's birthday will be held on Saturday and Monday, Feb. 10th and 12th at Lincoln Tomb State Historic Site in Springfield's Oak Ridge Cemetery. Both events are free and open to the public. The 60th Annual Pilgrimage of the Veterans of Foreign Wars will take place at 2 p.m. on Saturday, Feb. 10th at Lincoln Tomb. A service at the Tomb will feature a eulogy for Lincoln. Military honors for the 16th President will follow, and uniformed soldiers will give Lincoln the traditional 21-gun salute. The 73rd Annual National Pilgrimage to Lincoln Tomb by members of Springfield American Legion Post 32 will be held on Monday, Feb. 12th. Dignitaries will assemble at 10:30 a.m. and wreaths from Legion posts across the state will be placed in the Burial Chamber. The American Legion National Commander and other officials will address those gathered for the event at 11 a.m.

A Lincoln's Birthday celebration featuring hands-on activities and special tours of the home's hidden spaces will be held on Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 10th and 11th from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the David Davis Mansion State Historic Site in Bloomington. The event is free and open to the public, and is suitable for both adults and children. The Mansion's Lincoln-related interpretation will be highlighted during the tours, which begin every half-hour. Visitors may see areas of the Mansion that are not normally shown to the public, and hands-on activities for children will be featured, along with funny stories about Abraham Lincoln and Judge David Davis. This Lincoln's Birthday event is part of an ongoing series of new Davis Mansion exhibits and programs examining the relationship between Abraham Lincoln and David Davis.

The annual Lincoln's Birthday observance is scheduled for Saturday, Feb. 10th from noon to 4 p.m. at Postville Courthouse State Historic Site in Lincoln. The event is free and open to the public. Period music will be provided all afternoon by Postville Express. Abraham and Mary Todd Lincoln impersonators will visit with guests, and volunteers will conduct tours and serve birthday cake and punch. Award-winning storyteller and musician Mike Anderson will perform at 1:45 p.m. and Bloomington attorney and author Guy Fraker will give power point presentations at 1 and 2:30 p.m. about the Eighth Judicial Circuit that Abraham Lincoln traveled.

Lincoln's Birthday weekend activities are scheduled at the Abraham Lincoln Presidential Library and Museum in downtown Springfield. Events in the Museum require paid Museum admission, while activities in the Library are free. The Vandalia Historical Society will hold its annual Lincoln's Birthday observance at 2 p.m. on Monday, Feb. 12th in the Supreme Court Room at the Vandalia Statehouse State Historic Site. Dale Timmerman, president of the Vandalia Historical Society, will present a program called "Lincoln's Congressional Career in Vandalia." Tom Mathis will have his collection of Lincoln memorabilia on display that day. Timmerman serves as a historian on the Vandalia "Looking for Lincoln" project. The Feb. 12th observance is free and open to the public.

Lincoln Log Cabin State Historic Site near Charleston will be open on Monday, Feb. 12th from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. in honor of Abraham Lincoln's birthday. The site is normally closed on Monday and Tuesday.

The annual Abraham Lincoln Symposium will be held on Monday, Feb. 12th at the Old State Capitol Historic Site in Springfield. The Symposium is free and open to the public.

Southside Irish Party

St. Margaret of Scotland is hosting its annual Southside Irish Party on Feb. 24th, after 6 p.m. Mass in St. Margaret's School Hall, 9837 Throop St. This annual Irish celebration, which was begun in 1988 with Gene and Donna Earner at the head, will be dedicated to Donna Earner who died May 27, 2006. Donna acted as treasurer for the committee; she died of pancreatitis in Florida.

There will be a St. Patrick's Mass at 6 p.m. in the newly painted church and will be celebrated by Father Dan Maillette who has been the Pastor of St. Margaret for 32 years. Father John Smyth of Notre Dame and Maryville Academy will celebrate mass with Father Maillette. The party will begin right after mass.

Entertainment for the evening will include Frank O'Hara and his Right Material Band, the Ali Ireland Accordionist, Sean O'Donnell and the Jerry O'Loughlin Irish Dancers plus many other surprises that are in store for the evening.

The evening's buffet is catered by the Maryville Caterers who will provide the food featuring Harrington's corned beef, beer, wine and soft drinks are included.

The price for this evening's food and entertainment is $20. Raffle tickets will also be sold in advance or before the party. For tickets or information, call Gene Earner at (708) 636-8827.

2007 Flower Show Series

The Chicago Botanic Garden's 2007 American Flower Show Series, which includes at least 24 major floral events, debuts on Saturday, March 3rd with the Ikebana International Show.

Members of Ikebana International will demonstrate techniques and answer questions about ikebana, a three-dimensional artistic expression composed of flower and plant material arranged in a container. Although it is based on Japanese tradition, ikebana is becoming recognized throughout the world as a sculptural form of art. Hours are from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on Saturday, March 3rd and Sunday, March 4th.

The American Flower Show Series is housed in Burnstein Hall, a beautiful exhibition space in the Garden's newly renovated Regenstein Center. The light-filled, 3,600-square-foot open display hall features ribboned windows, a cupola and special lighting to showcase floral design at its best.

The growing national horticultural program brings together amateur and expert gardeners and educators by offering floral exhibits and programs that focus on America's favorite flower groups. Juried flower shows, floral displays, complementary workshops, demonstrations, lectures and plant sales occur regularly. Plant experts and plant society members are available to answer all questions.

The Seigyoku-kai Sogetsu Ikebana Society of Chicago will hold a show from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on Saturday, March 10th and Sunday, March 11th. They will demonstrate sogetsu ikebana techniques and answer questions about this Japanese tradition.

On Saturday, March 17th and Sunday, March 18th, the Northern Illinois Gesneriad Society holds its annual show and sale, which features an educational display with information on types of gesneriads, including propagation and tips on how to grow these interesting plants. Hours are from noon to 4:30 on Saturday and from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on Sunday.

The Chicago chapter of the Ikenobo Ikebana Society presents an exhibition of traditional Japanese flower arranging on Saturday, March 31st and Sunday, April 1st. This year's theme is the "Classical History of Ikebana (1400-2007)." Hours are from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Additional flower shows on the 2007 schedule include: Midwest Daffodil Society Show and Mid-America Orchid Congress, April 28th and 29th; Midwest

Fruit Explorers Grafting Workshop, April 29th; Glenview/North Shore African Violet Society Display & Sale, May 5th and 6th; Central States Dahlia Society Sale, May 5th and 6th; American Rhododendron Society Show & Sale, May 12th and 13th; Midwest Bonsai Society Spring Show & Sale, May 19th and 20th; North Shore Iris & Daylily Society Iris Show & Sale, June 2nd and 3rd; Bromeliad Society of Greater Chicago Show & Sale, June 30th and July 1st; Wisconsin-Illinois Lily Society Lily Show, July 7th and 8th; North Shore Iris & Daylily Society Daylily Show and Sale, July 14th and 15th; Cactus and Succulent Society of Greater Chicago Show & Sale, July 28th and 29th; Gardeners of the North Shore Show, Aug. 11th and 12th; Midwest Bonsai Society 30th Annual Show & Sale, Aug. 17-19; Garden Clubs of Illinois District IX Show, Aug. 25th and 26th; Illinois Mycological Association Show & Sale, Sept. 2nd; Roadside Flower Sale, Sept. 14-16; Lakeshore African Violet Society Show & Sale, Sept. 22nd and 23rd; Illinois Orchid Society Show & Sale, Oct. 13th and 14th; and Midwest Daffodil Society Bulb Sale, Wisconsin-Illinois Lily Society Lily Bulb Sale, and Midwest Fruit Explorers Show & Sale, Oct. 20th and 21st.

The American Flower Show Series is endowed in honor of Louise Durham Mead and Walter Langworthy Mead. Admission to the flower shows and the Chicago Botanic Garden is free; select event fees apply. Parking is $12; free for members. For more information about any of the Chicago Botanic Garden's programs and events, call (847) 835-5440, or visit www.chicagobotanic.org.

Cabaret Night

"Cabaret Night" favorite Claudia Hommel returns to The Center, 12700 Southwest Highway in Palos Park, on Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 10th and 11th at 5:30 p.m.

Responding to past years' sold-out performances, The Center presents two evenings of Cabaret with singer Claudia Hommel and her three musicians.

Call (708) 361-3650 for dinner and show reservations, which cost $36 per person.

Described by Parisian impresario Didier Lepauw as "a love affair, Claudia brings to mind a bit of Audrey Hepburn, with something of Ginger Rogers and Leslie Caron, Maurice Chevalier and...Air Jordan. She is fresh, airborne."

Pierre Saka, author of the Larousse encyclopedia of French popular song through its hits says France "owes Claudia a debt of gratitude for bringing the best of French songs to the American public. Claudia brings a unique 'swing' to these songs."

Celtic Suppers

On Sundays in February attend the popular Celtic Suppers at Gaelic Park, 6119 W. 147th St. in Oak Forest, beginning at 4 p.m. The Celtic Suppers are the perfect meeting place for large groups, and for only $16 a buffet dinner including soup, salad and a main entrée is served. Children are welcome; under 12 years admission is $9. This month's musical guests will be John Gleason on Feb. 11th, Velvet Green on Feb. 18th and Sean O'Donnell on Feb. 25th.

Reservations are required for all Celtic Suppers so call Gaelic Park at (708) 687-9323 or visit the web site at www.chicagogaelpark.org to reserve seats or get more information.

Valentine's Day At Symphony Center

Symphony Center presents a special Valentine's Day concert by violinist Nadja Salerno-Sonnenberg and guitarists Sergio and Odair Assad on Wednesday, Feb. 14th at 8 p.m. The trio's performance will bring to life works by composers including Bach, Bartok, Ginastera and Piazzolla in a spirited program that intertwines traditional musical styles with Gypsy and folk song influences.

The collaboration between the Italian-born Salerno-Sonnenberg and the Brazilian Assad brothers began in 2000 when they recorded a collection of musical arrangements based on traditional and Gypsy folk tunes from around the world. Since then, the trio has made three highly successful tours of the United States displaying their unique chemistry, amusing interplay and stunning virtuosity. In January 2003, the St. Paul Chamber Orchestra premiered a triple concerto written for the trio by Sergio Assad and they joined the Seattle Symphony for performances of the work later that same year. The trio was also featured as soloists during an 18-city tour with the Orquestra de Sao Paulo.

Nadja Salerno-Sonnenberg is renowned for the electrifying performances, originality, musical depth and sensitive colorings of her interpretations.

Tickets are $18 to $96 and can be purchased by calling PhoneCharge at (312) 294-3000 or (800) 223-7114 or by visiting either the CSO's Web site at www.cso.org or the Symphony Center box office at 220 S. Michigan Ave.

TINLEY PARK FISHING AND OUTDOOR SHOW: This is the show you don't want to miss. It has something for every one of all ages. It's close to home, doesn't cost an arm and a leg and has plenty of free parking.

This show supports all of the student athletes at Tinley Park High School. With a show that draws literally thousands of visitors, it is no wonder that the big shows are taking notice.

On Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 10th and 11th, the 14th annual Tinley Park Fishing and Hunting Show will be back once again. The show is filled with exhibitors taking up well over 85,000 square feet of exhibitor space.

The show has grown every year since it started in 1994 with fishing tackle exhibitors and Charter Captains. Vacation resorts from Wisconsin, Minnesota, Kentucky and Canada can be found throughout the show. Outdoor specialty items can also be seen and purchased which is a real favorite. The line-up of seminar speaker features is very impressive.

Kids have a lot to do too! The show has a kid's casting competition and a treasure hunt. The main stage has great demonstrations, including dog obedience and agility. Snake and reptiles will be brought out for people to see and touch.

Visitors will have an opportunity to participate in the raffle for a brand new boat with trailer and outboard motor, courtesy of Basa's Marine in Bolingbrook. Other great prizes in the raffle include a $350 custom-made fishing rod from Rod Craft Components and vacation fishing trips and other fantastic prizes.

The Tinley Park Fishing and Outdoor Show will be on Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 10th and 11th from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Admission is only $4 for adults, $3 for senior, $2 for children 7 to 13, and kids 6 and under free. The show is held at Tinley Park High School, 6111 W. 175th St., just east of Ridgeland in Tinley Park. Ample free parking is available. For more details - www.tinleyparkfishingshow.com or call (815) 485-9199.

■WHAT'S HAPPENING - Feb. 9: Last day to apply for spring turkey, third lottery. Feb. 10: Raccoon and opossum hunting seasons close north zone. Feb. 14: Valentine's Day - remember your sweetheart, candy, flowers, or even a card will do!

■PHEASANTS FOREVER: The Orland Park Chapter of Pheasants Forever will hold their 2nd fundraising dinner on Thursday, March 1st at the Orland Chateau in Orland Park.

For tickets or information, call (708) 349-1423. Okay pheasant hunters, this is your chance to help bring back these birds. The chapter is looking for volunteers to help make this banquet a success.

■AVIAN FLU SURVEILLANCE: The Illinois Department of Natural Resources announced plans to participate in the national surveillance effort for highly-pathogenic (HP) Asian H5N1 avian influenza by collecting samples from hunter-harvested waterfowl this fall. Illinois has been awarded $75,000 by the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) to pursue statewide surveillance of certain wild birds for the disease.

Through federal funding obtained by the state, the IDNR plans to collect a total of 750 samples this fall as well as during the spring migration. Samples will be taken from several species of ducks and geese, which were selected based on migratory connections to other continents where HP Asian H5N1 is known to occur. Currently, HP Asian flu has not been detected in North America.

■CHECK-OFF FOR CONSERVATION: Anglers, hunters and other outdoors enthusiasts now have a new, easy way to support fishing and hunting programs, thanks to an Illinois Conservation Foundation (ICF) donation check off option through DNR Direct, the IDNR automated license, permit and registration system.

Those using DNR Direct to buy Illinois hunting, fishing or sportsmen's combination licenses, permits and stamps will be offered the option of including a voluntary donation of $3 or more to the ICF to support fishing and hunting programs throughout the state.

The new check-off contribution option will be available at more than 800 DNR Direct license and permit vendor locations throughout Illinois - and as a pop-up option on DNR Direct online through the IDNR web site www.dnr.state.il.us. Those using DNR Direct through the toll-free telephone system at 1(888) 673-7648 can also designate a minimum $3 donation to the ICF as part of their transactions.

■BOATING FATALITIES RISE: The latest report from the Coast Guard Office of Boating Safety shows an increase in boating accidents in 2005, but industry leaders say that coincides with an increase in the amount of boating activity.

The Coast Guard reported 4,969 accidents, 697 fatalities, 3,451 injuries and about $387 million in property damage in 2005. The number of registered boats also increased in 2005, to 12,942,414 from 12,781,476 the year before.

Fish Consumption Advisory

The Illinois Dept. of Public Health announced the 2007 consumption advisories for sport fish caught in Illinois waters follow the same guidelines as 2006.

While there is no known immediate health threat from eating contaminated fish from any body of water in Illinois, there are concerns about the effects of long-term, low-level exposure to pesticides and chemicals, such as chlordane, PCBs (polychlorinated biphenyls) and methylmercury, found in fish listed on the advisories. Methylmercury, which results from mercury emitted primarily by coal-burning power plants, has been found to cause reproductive damage and have adverse effects on the central nervous system, including developmental delays.

Because eating fish with high mercury levels can pose serious health risks, Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich proposed significant reductions in mercury emissions from Illinois' coal-fired power plants. Illinois now requires power plants in Illinois to reduce their mercury emissions by 90 percent by June 30, 2009, and prohibits power plants from purchasing allowances or trading emissions credits with other companies or states - practices that can lead to toxic "hot-spots" around individual plants.

The advisories are based primarily on protecting sensitive populations, including women of childbearing age, pregnant women, fetuses, nursing mothers and children younger than 15 years of age. They may be overprotective for women beyond childbearing age and men older than 15.

The statewide mercury advisory cautions sensitive populations to eat no more than one meal per week of predator fish, which pose a greater risk because they feed on other fish and accumulate higher amounts of methylmercury. Predator fish include all species of black bass (largemouth, smallmouth and spotted), striped bass, white bass, hybrid striped bass, flathead catfish, muskellunge, northern pike, saugeye, sauger and walleye.

Some mercury occurs naturally in the environment and more can be released into the air through industrial pollution. When it falls into surface water, bacteria in the water cause chemical changes that transform the mercury into methylmercury, which is then taken up by fish as they feed on aquatic organisms.

Phillip Hawke Signs

The Windy City ThunderBolts will have some extra left-handed power when they take the diamond at Hawk Ford Field with the addition of infielder Phillip Hawke. The 23-year-old Hawke was originally drafted by the Texas Rangers and spent two years in their minor league system. Hawke debuted with the Rangers' rookie-level affiliate in 2005 and hit .386 with four home runs and 17 RBI in 19 games before being promoted to Class A Spokane. He added six more home runs and 14 RBI while batting .250 in 26 games for the Indians.

Last season Hawke played for Class A Bakersfield in the California League. In 36 games with the Blaze, Hawke hit .220 with two home runs and 15 RBI as both a first baseman and a designated hitter.

Prior to being drafted, Hawke played for four seasons at the University of Louisiana-Lafayette. For his career, he hit .319 with 30 home runs, 170 RBI, 42 doubles, and 133 runs scored. His best season came in 2005 as a senior when he batted .357 with 12 home runs, 16 doubles, and 68 RBI in 65 starts. Current ThunderBolt John McCarthy was teammates with Hawke on the 2005 Ragin' Cajuns squad.

The ThunderBolts have released the team's 2007 schedule and will host the Rockford RiverHawks for opening night at Hawk Ford Field on May 23rd.

Hustling Up Hancock

Over 4,000 firefighters, lung cancer survivors, former smokers, lung-transplant patients, people with asthma and weekend athletes will climb the 94 floors of the John Hancock Center on Sunday, Feb. 25th in a fundraiser to benefit research programs of the American Lung Assn. of Metropolitan Chicago.

The 10th-annual OfficeMax Hustle Up the Hancock, Chicago's most popular stair climb, will also include 237 firefighters running in memory of those lost in the World Trade Center disaster.

Steve Ferkau, a double-lung transplant recipient, who received the lungs of Kari Westberg, a 17-year-old volleyball star, will be leading a team of 90 including friends and relatives of Kari. The heartwarming story is depicted at www.climbingforkari.org.

Terry Purcell, an Australian living in Springfield, Illinois, has been the fastest climber five years running. In 2006 he set a blistering pace by bounding the 1,632 steps to the 94th floor Hancock Observatory in a record 9 minutes, 39 seconds, taking less than 6.2 seconds per floor.

Climbers will enjoy a post-climb party at the nearby Hilton Suites Chicago, live music from the U2 tribute band Vertigo USA, goody bags and entry into the Hancock Observatory.

A group of 36 'elite' climbers will kick off the Hancock assault and volunteers will be on hand to dispense 3,500 bananas and 393 gallons of water. Almost $4 million has been raised for lung research and educational programs since the climb's inception.

The OfficeMax Hustle Up the Hancock on Feb. 25th is one of the most popular stair climbs in the United States. Registration for the sold-out 2007 event opened and closed within 31 minutes in November. Hustle will raise more than $1,000,000 to support research and education programs of the American Lung Assn. of Metropolitan Chicago. For more information or to sponsor a climber, visit www.lungchicago.org or dial (312) 243-2000.

Woodwind Workshop

Chamber music requires a set of specific musical skills and the mastery of performance techniques achieved only through intimate ensemble experiences. The emphasis on teamwork, communication and reading skills – in addition to daily personal attention – improves the student's practice and rehearsal skills and fosters unlimited musical growth.

The Dept. of Music at Benedictine University is sponsoring a Woodwind Chamber Music Workshop from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Thursday, Aug. 2nd and from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Friday, Aug. 3rd for high school and college students who play the flute, oboe, clarinet or bassoon.

The cost of the workshop is $150. For more information, call Andrea R. DiOrio at (630) 829-6320 or e-mail her at adiorio@ben.edu.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor,

There has been a great deal in the press recently regarding my position on the smoking ban in Cook County. I would like to take this opportunity to make my position clear. I AM IN FAVOR OF A SMOKING BAN. I wholeheartedly support it, but when it puts everyone on equal ground. The Chicago ordinance does not take effect until July 1, 2008. That date gives businesses enough time to begin compliance and slowly phase the ban in over time. My amendment to the Cook County ban seeks to give the same opportunity to our suburban communities and businesses. It also gives government the opportunity to find a common sense solution, a solution that protects public health while protecting the interests of small businesses.

Certain municipalities began a smoking ban on January 2, 2007 and many restaurants and bars in those communities immediately saw a major decline in their business. Since not all communities began the ban, customers had the option, and exercised it, to simply cross municipality or county borders to patronize establishments where they could smoke. Personally, I wish everyone would quit smoking as I, in fact, lost my father-in-law and grandfather to diseases associated with smoking. There is no question smoking is a health hazard. Wishes, however, do not make it so and we must look at the realities of this situation. Many small businesses in our suburban communities have been put in jeopardy because these smoking bans are not universal.

There are many common sense solutions that have been presented recently and were not considered by the framers of this ordinance, including allowing exemptions for those businesses that have a primary customer base consisting of smokers. Even while granting exemptions, it is still possible to require the installation of smoke-eliminating equipment. Using criteria such as the presence of minors, service of food and square footage for exemptions is another possibility. All I am doing is asking that everything be considered. It is the only way to protect the rights of everyone.

While I am a firm believer in local control, the only way to make a smoking ban fair and give all a level playing field is for the Illinois General Assembly to pass a statewide smoking ban. What the press has not reported is that at the same time I proposed postponing the County ban until July, 2008 (to match the City of Chicago) I also presented a resolution strongly urging the State to pass such a statewide smoking ban.

Protecting the public health is of vital importance, but the economic welfare of small businesses in our suburban communities is also important. With the County facing a $500,000,000 budget deficit, we can ill afford to lose more businesses to bordering counties. As more businesses and patrons leave Cook County, the greater the responsibility is that falls on homeowners to fund public services.

Urging the Illinois General Assembly to pass a statewide ban is a sensible plan to provide the best opportunity for a healthy environment for both the public and local businesses. Please join me in this endeavor and visit my website at www.lizgorman.com. There you will be able to leave your comments and locate your State Representative and Senator to urge them to pass a statewide smoking ban.

MWRD Budget Award

Terrence J. O'Brien, President of the Board of Commissioners of the Metropolitan Water Reclamation District of Greater Chicago, announced that the Government Finance Officers Assn. has awarded the Distinguished Budget Presentation Award to the District for the 2006 Budget, the 22nd consecutive year that the District has received this prestigious award. The GFOA also awarded the District, for the 31st consecutive year, the Certificate of Achievement for Excellence in Financial Reporting for the Comprehensive Annual Financial Report for 2005.

Commissioner Gloria Alitto Majewski, Chairman of the Committee on Finance, said, "This is the highest form of recognition in governmental budgeting. On behalf of the taxpayers, we are very proud to be recognized for the budget and the CAFR. These documents reflect the sound financial management of the Board of Commissioners and the professional expertise of the staff."

Thoughts On Health & Nutrition

by
Lucinda K. Lysen, RD, RN, BSN

HAND WASHING, HAND WASHING, HAND WASHING

We are in the heart of wintertime, and all of us are surrounded by people with contagious infections. Taking precautions is of utmost importance during this time. The number one way to prevent catching a communicable disease? Frequent hand washing. The Center for Disease Control (CDC) has established guidelines for recommended washing. They are common sense, but, sadly, many of us are guilty of noncompliance from time to time, because we forget, are in a hurry or don't have convenient access to soap and water.

They are:

Before and after you prepare food

Before you eat

After you use the bathroom

After handling animals and animal waste

After coughing or sneezing

When your hands are dirty

More frequently if someone in your home is sick

To wash properly:

Wet your hands and apply liquid or clean bar soap. Place bar soap on a soap dish that allows it to drain. (Liquid soap is better because you are not sharing the same bar with someone else.)

Rub your hands together vigorously, scrubbing all surfaces for 15 to 20 seconds. That's about how long it takes to hum "Happy Birthday" twice.

Rinse well and dry your hands. In a public restroom, use the air dryer or paper towels.

If you don't have soap and water, use alcohol-based disposable hand wipes or gel sanitizers.

The Antibacterial Soap Debate

Antibacterial soaps kill germs on contact while ordinary soap releases germs from the skin so that they are washed down the drain or wiped off on towels. The jury is out on whether antibacterials, which now account for one-third of the soap market, are more effective against germs than soap and water. Manufacturers claim they are but a recent CDC study of 224 households over a one-year period showed that antibacterial users were no healthier than soap users.

The jury is also out on whether overuse of antibacterials promotes the development of "super-germs" resistant to antibiotics. The FDA will hold hearings to address both questions.

Learn About Cancer Prevention

As millions of Americans embark on New Year's resolutions to live a healthier life, many resolution makers think that there is little they can do to avoid getting cancer. In fact, at least 50 percent of cancer deaths could be prevented through healthy lifestyle factors.

To help individuals learn more about cancer prevention and keep their commitment to a healthier lifestyle year-round, the American Cancer Society is launching the Great American Health Challenge. Research indicates that cutting cancer death rates by 50 percent nationally would save about 280,000 lives every year in the United States, including 13,000 lives in Illinois. Healthy lifestyle factors that help prevent cancer include maintaining a healthy body weight, eating a healthy diet, getting sufficient physical activity, limiting consumption of alcohol, not smoking or using other tobacco products, and getting cancer screening tests.

"An American Cancer Society survey found that 47 percent of adult Americans think they have little or no control over reducing their cancer risk, but that is not the case," said Clement Rose, M.D., president of the Society's Illinois Division. "The Great American Health Challenge will help raise awareness about how Americans can prevent cancer in their own lives, and will give them the information and tools to embark on, or maintain, a healthy lifestyle."

The American Cancer Society's Great American Health Challenge asks Americans to make a commitment to take the following actions to reduce their cancer risk:

- Check - Find out which cancer screening tests are appropriate based on age and family history, and discuss these with your doctor. Screening can prevent cancer or detect it at its earliest, most treatable stage. In January, take the Great American Health Check.

- Move - Be physically active most days of the week, and strive for 30 minutes of exercise on five or more days.

- Nourish - Eat a healthy, well-balanced diet that includes whole grains, five or more servings of fruits and vegetables daily, and limit consumption of red meats, especially high-fat and processed meats. In August, participate in the Great American Eat Right Challenge.

- Quit - Stop smoking, or join the fight against tobacco as an advocate for smoke-free communities. In November, participate in the Great American Smokeout®.

"The Great American Health Check is the first step in the year-long Health Challenge," Rose said. "Through the Health Check, we are encouraging Americans to log onto our Web site at www.cancer.org/greatamericans to learn more about how they can live a healthier life and make informed decisions to help reduce their risk of cancer."

The Great American Health Check (www.cancer.org/greatamericans) assesses an individual's risk for cancer. Easy-to-use and confidential, this interactive online tool allows users to enter data about themselves, then to receive an individualized action plan that provides guidance on which cancer screening tests are appropriate, as well as day-to-day lifestyle suggestions on how to eat healthy, get the right amount of exercise, limit alcohol use and quit smoking.

The five-year survival rate for cancers that can be prevented or detected earlier by screening is about 86 percent, which reflects real reductions in cancer deaths as well as earlier diagnosis because of screening. The Society estimates that in 2006 about 170,000 cancer deaths were expected to be caused by tobacco, and scientific evidence suggests that about one-third of the cancer deaths that occur in the U.S. each year are due to nutrition and physical activity factors.

The American Cancer Society is dedicated to eliminating cancer as a major health problem by saving lives, diminishing suffering and preventing cancer through research, education, advocacy and service. The Illinois Division has more than 120,000 volunteers and staff fighting cancer in the state. For the most up-to-date cancer related information, anytime night or day, call 800-ACS-2345 or visit www.cancer.org.

Botox Not Just A Cosmetic Drug

Botox isn't just for removing unwanted wrinkles and other facial imperfections. While the drug has gained extensive media attention for its cosmetic uses, it has many medical benefits, including treatment for individuals with neurological injuries.

Mark Tracy (pictured), MD, staff physician at St. Francis Hospital & Health Center in Blue Island who specializes in physical medicine and rehabilitation, says

Botox injections can help people who have had a stroke, spinal cord or traumatic brain injury. In children, it can lessen the effects of cerebral palsy, a neurological disorder that permanently affects body movement and muscle coordination.

"Botox is used to treat muscle spasticity and pain by blocking the transmission of nerve impulses to muscles," Dr. Tracy said. "It temporarily weakens the muscle, making it easier to stretch out contracted joints and muscles with less pain. The result is reduced muscle contractions due to spasticity, or involuntary muscle contractions."

Botox, or botulinum toxin injection therapy, was approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration for cosmetic use in 2002. It has been approved for the treatment of several medical conditions since 1989.

"Botox is a natural bacterial toxin," Dr. Tracy explained. "When administered properly, side effects are rare. If there are side effects, they are usually not significant."

Since Botox blocks the transmission of nerve impulses to muscles, it can be especially beneficial to stroke patients, Dr. Tracy said. "Drooling is common in patients with neurological disorders," Dr. Tracy said. "Research shows that saliva secretion and drooling can be effectively treated with botulinum toxin injections into the salivary glands."

Patients with neurological injuries receive a Botox injection approximately every three months. Any sooner, and the patient may become immune to the drug, Dr. Tracy said. Depending on the severity of the condition and how effective the medication proves to be for the patient, one or two additional injections are administered over time. Botox injections used for treating neurological injuries are generally covered by insurance.

"This drug therapy is definitely not something that someone would be getting for the rest of their life," Dr. Tracy said. "In order for the drug to work, it has to be combined with an aggressive stretching program with a physical therapist."

People who should not consider Botox for neurological treatment include patients with amyotrophic lateral sclerosis (ALS) or Lou Gehrig's disease, myasthenia gravis, a chronic neuromuscular disease, nursing mothers, and women who are pregnant.

Offer MRI-Guided Breast Biopsy

St. Francis Hospital & Health Center in Blue Island is using new, image-guided technology to quickly and accurately diagnose cancerous breast tumors and other suspicious lesions in women that cannot be accurately detected with traditional mammography or ultrasound.

The new Mammotome MR system at St. Francis is an MRI-guided breast biopsy device that gently removes suspicious breast tissue for evaluation. A magnetic resonance imaging (MRI) scan is performed first to determine the precise location of the suspected tissue. Then, a needle equipped with a vacuum device is inserted into a small, quarter-inch incision in the breast and the tissue sample is removed.

St. Francis is one of the first hospitals in the South Suburbs to offer MRI-guided breast biopsy.

"Previously, if MRI detected a lesion in a patient's breast that could not be visualized by ultrasound or mammography, we would have to send the patient to have it surgically removed in order to biopsy it," explains Ronald Kunst, M.D., board-certified interventional radiologist and Medical Director of Radiology Services at St. Francis. "But with our new system, the invasive surgical procedure is not necessary."

"This technology can be especially beneficial for pinpointing lesions or tumors in women who have very dense breast tissue," he added. "With the MRI, we also look for other affected areas that may not have shown up on a mammogram or ultrasound."

The new Mammotome MR Biopsy System at St. Francis eliminates the need for general anesthesia; eliminates the risk of distorting breast tissue, which makes subsequent mammograms difficult to read; and minimizes pain and recovery time for the patient.

Instead of having to take a golf-ball-size piece of tissue or larger from the breast as common in surgical biopsy, the new system's precision allows physicians to procure significantly smaller tissue samples. After the tissue is removed, the device inserts a tiny clip into the breast (about the size of a grain of rice) so that when the patient returns for subsequent biopsies, physicians will be able to easily see the exact location where suspicious tissue was previously removed.

With the new Mammotome MR system at St. Francis, a breast biopsy can be performed in an outpatient setting under local anesthesia. A doctor can make a precise analysis with minimal pain, scarring and recovery time. The biopsy procedure takes less than an hour, and patients can return to their normal daily activities immediately.

"The MRI allows us to obtain similar information to that of a surgical biopsy, but without the cost, risks and scarring to the patient." This can lead to better treatment for the patient," Dr. Kunst added. "This is a win-win situation for both physician and patient."

According to the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, breast cancer is the most common cancer in women (not counting some kinds of skin cancer). The disease strikes regardless of race or ethnicity, and is the most common cause of death from cancer among Hispanic women.

"Many women have a family history of breast cancer, so genetics is a factor in their cases," Dr. Kunst added. "Early detection is key. We can now offer these patients an effective screening tool with MRI and MRI-guided biopsies as necessary. That means peace of mind, and for some it could mean the difference between life and death."

The Mammotome MR Biopsy System was launched in May 2006 by Ethicon Endo-Surgery Inc., a Johnson & Johnson company. St. Francis was selected as one of the first locations to receive the new Mammotome MR system, based on its extensive experience with the Mammotome needle biopsy system used under mammographic and ultrasound guidance.

"I've been practicing MRI for 20 years, and that was the first time I've ever seen a breast biopsy done in an MRI setting," added Sandi Spencer, RT, Lead MRI Technologist at St. Francis. "It's exciting. It offers the female patient another option for her health care."

St. Francis Hospital's on-site MRI provides full-body scanning, and is the area's only MRI system to diagnose heart problems. The 1.5-Tesla MRI provides more magnetic strength than other traditional MRIs, with greater detailed imaging (including three-dimensional anatomy studies) and significant noise reduction. The MRI has the largest bore opening available, providing a less confining feeling for the patient.

Tapped For Scholarship

Rachel Ribich and Nicole Moser, Oak Lawn Community High School seniors and members of the Oak Lawn Community High School National Honor Society, have been nominated to compete in the National Honor Society scholarship sponsored by the National Association of Secondary School Principals (NASSP).

Michael Riordan, principal at Oak Lawn Community High School, announced the nomination, which places Ribich and Moser in the national competition. This year the program will once again award $200,000 in college scholarships. As a new feature for the 2007 program, special recognition and additional awards will be presented to state and regional winners, along with the selection of one national recipient who will receive an additional $10,000 award.

High school National Honor Society chapters from across the country were eligible to nominate two senior high members to compete. Nominees were selected on the basis of their leadership skills, participation in service organizations and clubs, achievements in the arts and sciences, employment experience, and academic record. They were also required to write an essay.

"Students nominated for the NHS scholarship not only demonstrate academic excellence but also excel in the areas of service, leadership, and character," said Rocco Marano, director, NHS.

In recognizing leadership in co-curricular activities as well as academic performance, the NHS scholarship recognizes the importance of a well-rounded education. Co-curricular activities are an essential part of the school curriculum.

The National Honor Society (NHS) and the National Junior Honor Society (NJHS) are the nation's premier organizations that recognize outstanding middle level and high school students who demonstrate excellence in the areas of scholarship, leadership, service, and character. NHSTM and NJHSTM are proudly sponsored by NASSP. NASSP-the preeminent organization and national voice for middle level and high school leaders-also sponsors the National Association of Student Councils (NASC), which promotes and provides leadership development opportunities to prepare and empower students to serve their schools and communities. Announces Candidacy

On Monday, Jan. 29th, active community member and real estate consultant Erik Wiatr announced his candidacy for the Oak Lawn Library Board of Trustees, emphasizing his goals to ensure the quality of one of the village's prime assets.

"Oak Lawn's library is a quality public asset that is a great benefit to our community," Wiatr said. "As trustee, I want to use my experience in business and government to ensure fiscal responsibility to taxpayers and enhance service for residents by improving the overall quality of the library."

Wiatr is a homeowner and a graduate of Oak Lawn Community High School. He graduated from Southern Illinois University Carbondale, where he earned a bachelor's degree in history and a secondary teaching certificate. He was recognized by the university as one of the 25 most distinguished seniors of his graduating class. Wiatr currently is working in real estate for Coldwell Banker in Oak Lawn.

Wiatr stated that one of his goals is to use technology to increase the quality of service for residents. As trustee, Wiatr will seek community input by actively surveying residents about their wants and needs. He also would utilize technology to open additional means of communication between residents and their trustees. Wiatr will be a fiscal watchdog over taxpayers' money and assets by cutting unnecessary costs and allocating funds for more efficient uses. Wiatr will implement an atmosphere that encourages young people to use the library's resources.

"I have been a part of this community almost all my life and being a part of Oak Lawn's library is a way I can give back to our community," Wiatr said. "Attracting young people is a priority, and the library needs to continue to welcome and educate the next generation of residents. I am looking forward to this year's election and to working hard for the residents of Oak Lawn if they decide to elect me to the Board of Trustees."

On Monday, Jan. 29th, Wiatr submitted his candidacy petitions with 439 signatures from area residents. Library board candidates are required to submit 50 valid signatures from registered voters from the Village of Oak Lawn. Since Oak Lawn is a large community and trustees serve the entire village, Wiatr is expecting an energetic and competitive campaign. He already has been fundraising successfully and is planning an aggressive grassroots campaign to connect with as many Oak Lawn voters in the next 70 days before the general election on April 17th.

Woman Killed Husband In Self-Defense

The Oak Lawn woman who had shot and killed her husband shot him in self-defense. According to reports, Donna Miranda, 51, was arguing with her husband on Sunday, Jan. 28th. The argument was over who would pay for their daughter's dental work.

Miranda said that her husband, Juan Miranda, had begun choking her before she shot him. She said that when she fired, he kept coming at her.

Juan Miranda, 48, was pronounced dead at the scene. Police reported that he was shot six times. Donna Miranda dialed 911 to report the shooting.

It had also been reported that Mrs. Miranda had previously obtained an order of protection from her husband in 2002. It was stated that she had given her husband permission to stay in the family home on Saturday night, however, police weren't sure if he was a permanent resident in the home. He had another address on the north side of Chicago.

All evidence was given over to the Cook County State's Attorney's office that she probably acted in self-defense and they would not press charges. However, the Oak Lawn police department is continuing the investigation since multiple shots were fired.

Maria 2006 Snow Ball

Two hundred and forty guests attended Maria High School's annual fundraising event on Saturday, Jan. 20th. This year's Snowball honored 58 Sisters of St. Casimir who are also graduates of St. Casimir Academy/Maria High School with a special Induction in Maria's Hall of Fame. The Honorable Anne Burke, Illinois Supreme Court Justice and graduate of Maria High School, provided a memorable welcome address as well as presided over the official induction ceremony.

Leona Conforti, class of '59, received the Marla Kaupas Award for exemplifying the same unselfish attitude that Mother Marla Kaupas brought to life. Conforti offered a beautiful toast to the education and spiritual direction she received from the Sisters of St. Casimir during her four years at Maria High School. In return, the Marla community brought attention to Leona Conforti's willingness to do anything in her power to continue Mother Maria's dream of educating and nurturing young women.

The 240 individuals in attendance enjoyed a four course meal, followed by dancing. Thirteen segmented story boards, highlighting 100 years of the Sisters of St. Casimir educational mission, decorated the room.

Elshtain To Speak At St. Xavier University

Saint Xavier University will present its eighth annual Honors Program Guest Lecture on Tuesday, Feb. 20th at 6:30 p.m. in the Butler Reception Room of the Warde Academic Center, 3700 W. 103rd St.

This year's notable speaker will be Jean Bethke Elshtain, who will present a lecture titled, "What Does it Mean to be Human?: C.S. Lewis on 'The Abolition of Man'." During World War II, C.S. Lewis penned an essay called "The Abolition of Man" in which he argued that people in the last half of the 20th century faced the loss of their humanity. Elshtain will examine Lewis' essay and ask if we remain in the danger zone that he identified.

Elshtain is a professor of social and political ethics in the University of Chicago Divinity School. At times a controversial figure, she is known for her work with the "just war theory" and was initially supportive of the American invasion of Iraq. Throughout her career, she has focused on connections between human ethical and political convictions, as well as the powerful role of women in sustaining cultural values.

Author, lecturer and contributing editor for The New Republic, Elshtain has written more than 500 essays that have been published in scholarly journals and journals of civic opinion. Among her books are Jane Addams and the Dream of American Democracy (2002); New Wine in Old Bottles: International Politics and Ethical Discourse (1998); Democracy on Trial (1995); Women and War (1987); and Public Man, Private Woman: Women in Social and Political Thought (1981).

Her most recent book, Just War against Terror: The Burden of American Power in a Violent World (2003), was praised by the New York Times for challenging simplistic assumptions about the war against terror and offering instead "intellectual clarity." Publisher's Weekly named it one of the best non-fiction books of 2003.

The event is free and open to the public. The lecture is sponsored by Saint Xavier University's Honors Program, a program designed to provide an enriched academic experience for gifted and highly motivated undergraduate students. The event is co-sponsored by the Center for Religion and Public Discourse. For information about the lecture, contact Judith Hiltner, director of the Honors Program, at (773) 298-3230 or hiltner@sxu.edu.

Veterans And Soldiers

I spent the past week at my cousin's home in Oak Lawn. Sadly, we made the 5:30 a.m. news Friday on Channel 5. A car caught fire in the driveway, which spread to the house. The Oak Lawn Fire Department responded immediately and we were taken in by Jean's kind neighbors. A few hours later we were able to return to the house, which has exterior damage but luckily for my cousin the interior of her newly remodeled home did not suffer too much damage, but it is bad enough to cause distress. Thank God no one was hurt.

Recently a Congressional bill was signed into law recognizing Counselors as Mental Health Providers in the VA system.

Passage of the legislation - the "Veterans Benefits, Health Care, and Information Technology Act of 2006" S. 3421 - follows years of work by the American Counseling Association (ACA) and the American Mental Health Counselors Association to gain recognition of licensed professional counselors within the VA. Although rehabilitation counselors are recognized within the VA, licensed professional counselors have had only a limited role as mental health providers.

Until now the VA has not been able to hire counselors for mental health professional positions at the same pay grade as clinical social workers and others. Now these roadblocks will disappear.

Police Cadets Graduate

On behalf of Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich, Illinois State Police (ISP) Director Larry G. Trent recently announced the graduation of Cadet Class 113. The 51 new Troopers join 268 other officers who have graduated from the Illinois State Police Academy under Gov. Blagojevich's administration.

"The addition of these new Troopers to the State Police's ranks will help better protect Illinois residents, while also giving us the resources to increase safety on our roads," said Gov. Blagojevich.

Members of Cadet Class 113 began their training on Aug. 6, 2006 and were the first Cadets to attend the ISP Academy in fiscal year 2007.

"As these men and women accept the oath to protect and serve the citizens of our state, I take great pride in their accomplishments as they embark in their new assignments," said Director Trent. "With 2006 being the safest year on Illinois roadways in 80 years, the addition of these new Troopers will enhance our ability to continue to reduce traffic fatalities and save lives."

Help Great Lakes Naval Training Center

U.S. Senator Dick Durbin (D-IL) introduced legislation that would allow the five school districts serving the Great Lakes Naval Training Center to pool their students to maximize federal education assistance through the Impact Aid program. The legislation protects approximately $8 million in direct funding to the schools.

The Great Lakes Naval Training Center is a premier installation that brings roughly 1,800 children into the local school systems. North Chicago Community Unit School District 187 traditionally has served the majority of the students affiliated with the Naval Center. The concentration of students eligible for Impact Aid allows North Chicago school to qualify for a higher level of subsidy. The Navy plans to redistribute military housing in the area, however, which will result in the migration of many students out of the North Chicago school system and into Glenbrook High School District 225, Glenview Public School District 34, Township High School 113 and North Shore School District 112. Without the concentration of students affiliated with the Navy in the North Chicago school system, the North Chicago schools will lose its heavily impacted status and close to $8 million of federal assistance.

Many local school districts across the U.S. serve students affiliated with military families and include federally owned land exempt from local taxes which fund public schools. These school districts face special challenges, they must provide a quality education to the children in the area and meet the requirements of the No Child Left Behind Act, while sometimes operating with less local revenue than is available to other school districts. Impact Aid supplements the cost of educating those students whose families are part of the U.S. military.

Durbin's bill would allow North Chicago School District 187 to maintain its heavily impacted status and the associated federal assistance. It would also allow the schools in the community to distribute that assistance among school districts affected by the new distribution of Naval housing. Senator Barack Obama (D-IL) is a cosponsor of the bill.

In the 109th Congress, Durbin secured the measure in the Fiscal Year (FY) 2007 appropriated bill for the Department of Labor, Health and Human Services. The House version of the bill did not have a similar provision. Unfortunately, the Appropriations process was never completed and the bill was not passed.

IMSA Application Deadline

The Illinois Mathematics and Science Academy (IMSA) invites applications from Illinois students with a demonstrated interest and talent in mathematics and science. IMSA's tuition-free public residential educational program serves Illinois students (grades 10-12) talented in mathematics and science; most room and board expenses are provided by state funds.

IMSA offers a wide variety of challenging advanced level courses in mathematics, science, the arts and humanities, and opportunities for engaged learning in student research and student leadership development. In addition, the residential Academy also offers a wide variety of fine and performing arts, clubs and organizations, as well as inter-scholastic sports.

The application deadline to be considered for the IMSA Class of 2010, which will enroll next fall, is drawing near. Students can apply either online at www.imsa.edu/admissions/applyOnline or download a print application at <http://www.imsa.edu/admissions/apply/application.pdf>.

Talented Illinois students enrolled in the equivalent of a ninth grade program are eligible for consideration. Tuition and most room and board expenses are provided by state funds. The application and all supplemental materials must be completed and returned to IMSA, postmarked no later than March 1st.

For more information about IMSA or to request a printed application, call the Illinois Mathematics and Science Academy, Office of Admissions, 1500 W. Sullivan Road, Aurora, IL 60506-1067, (630) 907-5027, or in Illinois, 1(800) 500-IMSA or visit the IMSA admissions web site at www.imsa.edu/admissions.

Operation Location Unknown

Joined by the Director of the U.S. Marshal's Service and other members of the Illinois Sex Offender Registry Team (I-SORT), Attorney General Lisa Madigan announced the launch of "Operation Location Unknown."

"Operation Location Unknown is a coordinated strategy between the public and local, state and federal law enforcement to help track down and locate Illinois' most challenging non-compliant sex offenders," Madigan said.

Since the creation of I-SORT in December 2003, the team has worked consistently to improve the sex offender registry and locate offenders who violate the registration laws. While the Illinois Sex Offender Registry now contains more useful and accurate information than ever before, I-SORT continues to encounter groups of offenders whose information on the registry is inaccurate or their location is completely unknown.

Madigan announced a partnership between her office, the Chicago Police Dept., the Illinois Assn. of Chiefs of Police and the U.S. Marshal's Service to focus on tracking non-compliant offenders. As part of this initiative, these law enforcement agencies will work together to locate the most challenging group of non-compliant sex offenders - those who have failed to register upon release from prison.

Madigan said that during the past 18 months, a growing number of offenders discharged from prison have failed to register in the community in which they told the Illinois Dept. of Corrections (IDOC) they would be residing. This category of offenders is particularly difficult to locate because although they provided IDOC with an address, there is no information on where they actually reside. Because they have not registered properly, there is no "home" law enforcement agency to take the lead on investigating the case. Since January 2005, 252 offenders have failed to register after their release from prison.

As part of this effort to track these offenders, I-SORT is seeking the public's assistance. Specifically, each month, Madigan's web site, www.IllinoisAttorneyGeneral.gov, will spotlight 10 non-compliant sex offenders whose address is listed as "location unknown." The U.S. Marshal's Service also will include a link to Madigan's web site and the public will be able to access a dedicated e-mail address to report information they may have about each month's target offenders. The public will be able to e-mail Madigan's office at locationunknown@atg.state.il.us in addition to using the I-SORT Hotline at 1(888) 414-7778.

Madigan said anonymous tips are welcome, and the I-SORT partners will evaluate and respond to the tips. Ten new targets will be added to the web site each month.

"Every fugitive still on the street represents a victim whose case is not closed. Our job is to be the voice of that victim," said Marshals Service Director John Clark. "By launching Operation Location Unknown, we will focus on those unregistered sex offenders in Illinois who don't want to be found. This is another example of how the cooperation among various law enforcement agencies will ultimately lead to safer streets for our children."

The Illinois Sex Offender Registry can be located at www.isp.state.il.us

Go Jump In A Lake

Thick-skinned thrill seekers from across Illinois will brave the frigid Lake Michigan water at the 2nd Annual SUPER Plunge to benefit Special Olympics Illinois. The SUPER Plunge, where Some Unbelievable Plungers Enter Repeatedly, will kick-off the 2007 Law Enforcement Torch Run Polar Plunge season, as well as directly support the 20,000 Special Olympics athletes who compete in more than 175 sporting events throughout the year.

The special league of 25 plungers, which includes law enforcement officials, a Special Olympics athlete, Special Olympics representatives and other notables, will begin jumping into the lake at Northwestern University's North Beach in Evanston at 2 p.m. Friday, Feb. 23rd. The very cold but determined plunging elite will continue immersing themselves in the icy water once an hour for 24 hours until 1 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 24th. Each participant was asked to raise at least $2,500 in donations for Special Olympics Illinois, with a goal of raising $75,000 in total. The public is invited to come out to the site and cheer on the SUPER Plungers or make donations by visiting the fundraising site at www.firstgiving.com/2007superplunge.

Mother Nature did not cooperate at the first SUPER Plunge in 2006. Dangerous wind-chill temperatures of more than 20 degrees below zero forced the early halt of the SUPER Plunge. But not before each SUPER Plunger had braved the frigid waters 14 times! Despite the weather, the event raised more than $58,000.

"We have 16 SUPER Plungers returning from last year who are determined to finish what they weren't able to do last year. Jumping into a freezing lake 24 times in one day while getting very little sleep takes a special kind of enthusiasm and dedication for a cause," said Jeff Henson, Director of Special Events for Special Olympics Illinois. "These plungers are showcasing their commitment to the many Special Olympics athletes who often display the same perseverance when working to achieve both their athletic and personal goals."

The Law Enforcement Torch Run is the single largest fund-raising event benefiting Special Olympics Illinois. The donations raised through Torch Run events like the SUPER Plunge and the 16 other Polar Plunges provides funding for year-round sports training and competition opportunities for the 20,000 Special Olympics athletes in Illinois.

"Knowing the many struggles the Special Olympics athletes have to endure each and every day makes jumping into cold water seem insignificant," said Lake Bluff Police Officer Dave Thomas. "Whether it's plunging for a specific person or just to have fun, we're all in this to help some very special athletes."

The following three area SUPER Plungers will sacrifice warmth and sleep to help friends, families, co-workers and others with intellectual disabilities achieve their goals as Special Olympics athletes: Bruce Quintos, Chicago Ridge, Retired Police Commander, Cook County Forest Preserve Police and Current Village Trustee in Chicago Ridge; Robert Reilly, an Officer with the Orland Park Police Department; and Randy Schmitz, Orland Park, Chicago Tribune Warehouse and a sibling of a Special Olympics athlete.

To support the 25 SUPER plungers, visit the fundraising site at www.firstgiving.com/2007superplunge or contact Special Olympics Illinois at (800) 394-0562. Those interested in registering for one of the sixteen other Polar Plunges may do so at www.soill.org or by calling the above number.

Caution During Periods Of Extreme Cold

Snow, bitter cold and wind are just a few of the typical winter weather conditions in this region of the country that can contribute to health and safety issues. Vulnerable residents may be most adversely affected by the harsh temperatures that are expected over the next few weeks.

The Cook County Department of Public Health (CCDPH) offers some practical safety advice to make winter a little easier. When the weather is extremely cold, and especially if there are high winds, try to stay indoors.

"As a reminder, but most important, check on elderly or infirm neighbors and relatives often to ensure they are managing during a cold snap," said CCDPH chief operating officer, Stephen A. Martin Jr., Ph.D., M.P.H.

The Wind Chill Index is the temperature your body feels when the air temperature is combined with the wind speed. It is based on the rate of heat loss from exposed skin caused by the effects of wind and cold. As the speed of the wind increases, it can carry heat away from one's body much more quickly, causing skin temperature to drop. As a result, it's important to be properly dressed for lower temperatures.

Dressing for cold weather: wear a warm hat, most body heat is lost through the head; protect feet and hands, waterproof boots and gloves will keep extremities warm and dry; cover as much of the face as possible while outside, breathe through a fluffy scarf to warm air before it enters the lungs; wear several layers of lightweight clothing rather than one or two layers of heavy garments as the air between the garments acts as insulation to keep the body warmer; be prepared for signs of frostbite. Skin that turns whitish, stiff or numb should be warmed gradually. Wrap the area in blankets, sweaters, coats, etc. Do no rub affected area or apply snow to frostbite. Seek medical attention immediately.

Shoveling snow: cold weather strains the heart of even those in good shape, those strong enough to shovel should rest often and pace themselves; those not in good shape should ask for help from a physically fit neighbor; use a proper snow shovel and lift with one's legs, not one's back.

Auto safety: keep the car in good condition by making sure there is enough gas, antifreeze, windshield wiper fluid and oil; carry emergency supplies, including a flashlight and blanket.

In the home: never use an oven as a heating device, read all directions before using space heaters and other portable heating units; make sure cracks in windows and doors are repaired, as a quick fix, use towels, rugs or newspapers; and keep an emergency supply of bottled water and canned and other non perishable foods along with batteries and flashlights in case one is stranded at home. Make sure baby foods, diapers and medicines are included in one's supply.

For health: drink caffeine-free, non-alcoholic beverages such as decaffeinated coffee, tea, hot chocolate and soup to stay warm and hydrated; and check with one's doctor or pharmacist about medications that could cause problems in cold weather.

Residents of suburban Cook County should check with local municipalities and townships for warming center information. For more information, contact CCDPH at (708) 492-2000 or www.cookcountypublichealth.org.

Other resources include www.ready.gov/america/beinformed/winter.html. TDD for hearing/speech impaired is (708) 492-2002.

Receives Medal

The U.S. Armed Forces has awarded Saint Xavier University's Father Robert Barry, O.P., with the prestigious Meritorious Service Medal for his outstanding non-combat meritorious achievement and service.

Barry, who has served in the military for nearly 20 years, is currently a lieutenant colonel in the Air National Guard and the wing chaplain for the U.S. Air Force's 183rd Fighter Wing in Springfield, Ill. For the past two summers, he has provided sacramental and pastoral care to more than 1,000 wounded and ill American soldiers and Marines at the Landstuhl Regional Medical Center, one of Germany's leading trauma hospitals that cares for large numbers of the sick and wounded from Iraq and Afghanistan. Patients, physicians and family members of these patients have commended Barry for his compassionate pastoral care.

"I am not sure I deserve the honor because I think that the prayer, faith and hope in God exhibited by the doctors, nurses, staff, soldiers and Marines far outstrips mine. They are the ones who deserve the honors," said Barry, who lives in Chicago's Pilsen neighborhood.

Barry currently serves as Saint Xavier University's campus minister and instructor of religious studies courses. He has been at Saint Xavier since 2003.

Police Seize Marijuana

More than 5,000 pounds of marijuana, with an estimated street value of more than $14.2 million has been seized by a multi-jurisdictional task force aimed at reducing the flow of illegal narcotics into the Chicago area, according to the Office of Cook County Sheriff Thomas J. Dart.

A Sheriff's Police officer, who is a member of NARCINT, (NARCotics and Currency INTERdiction), a task force comprised of Cook County Sheriff's Police, Illinois State Police, Chicago Police, and the Dolton and Posen police departments, initiated an investigation Wednesday evening Jan. 24th into a suspicious semi-tractor trailer travelling north on Interstate 57, south of Interstate 80 in Rich Township.

Following an investigative stop by the officer, additional NARCINT officers and a narcotics sniffing canine searched the rear of the trunk. Of the 24 pallets contained inside, six were found to have brown boxes stacked more than five feet high and four feet wide each. The pallets were shrink wrapped and all the boxes were filled with marijuana. In all, police seized 5,217 pounds of marijuana.

The driver, Juan Gutierrez, 39, of Tampa, Florida, told police he had just come up from Houston, Texas, and was supposed to deliver the truck to a man on Chicago's South Side. Gutierrez is charged with one count of cannabis trafficking, a Class X felony, punishable by a minimum of 12 years in prison. The investigation is continuing.

The NARCINT task force is funded by HIDTA, a federally funded program targeting narcotics enforcement.

Well known speaker and author Mrs. Carolyn Ulrich will present a slide show lecture on "Garden Design Through The Ages" at 2 p.m. on Sunday, Feb. 11 in the Chicago Botanic Garden's Fairchild Room as one of the Wisconsin Illinois Lily Society's Spring series of free, public slide/show lectures.

Mrs. Ulrich is editor-in-chief of Chicagoland Gardening Magazine, and has won the Garden Writers Association Quill and Trowel award for outstanding achievement three times. Mrs. Ulrich's articles on gardens and gardening have appeared in numerous regional and national gardening magazines. She has also led many garden tours throughout Europe.

Those attending the illustrated lecture will learn the highlights of how gardens have evolved over the ages, as gardeners have searched for their own bits of paradise on earth.

The mission of the Wisconsin Illinois Lily Society, an affiliate of the North American Lily Society, is to further the knowledge and propagation of true lilies.

Sues Unlicensed Mortgage Companies

Attorney General Lisa Madigan announced that her office, working with the Illinois Department of Financial and Professional Regulation (IDFPR), has filed suit against three affiliated Riverside area mortgage companies and their president for operating without a mortgage license.

The lawsuit alleges that the defendants, Candice Company, Inc., Cadillac Properties, Inc., Payment Center, Inc., and Donna DiBrito, the president of the three entities, violated the Illinois Residential Mortgage License Act as well as the Illinois Consumer Fraud and Deceptive Business Practices Act.

According to the complaint, the mortgage companies are not licensed by the IDFPR as required by the Illinois Residential Mortgage License Act. Despite the fact that they are not licensed, records obtained from the Cook County Recorder of Deeds indicate that the defendant companies have issued more than 200 mortgages for amounts ranging from $25,000 to nearly $200,000. Over the years, these companies have completed more than $10 million worth of unlawful mortgage transactions.

The complaint alleges that the companies provided residential mortgage loans to consumers to allow them to finance home repair projects to be completed by one of two repair contracting businesses: Father & Sons Contractors, Inc., and Father & Sons Remodelers, Inc. Donna DeBrito, the president of the three mortgage companies, is also the president of both Father & Sons companies. The three mortgage and two home repair companies operate from the same Riverside address, 26 East Ave.

The complaint alleges how the defendants' conducted business. Specifically, Ronald Kafka, acting as a purported agent of the Father & Sons home repair businesses, would approach consumers and solicit their home repair business, convincing them that the companies could provide a professional remodeling job and also would refer the customer to a finance company for the home repair project. Referrals would be made to one of the three mortgage companies named in the complaint. Once a consumer signed the home repair and mortgage contracts, the mortgage companies would demand payment, regardless of whether the work had commenced or was performed in a shoddy manner.

If consumers called DiBrito to complain, they were allegedly told that the home repair companies and mortgage companies were separate entities, and that they had to pay the mortgage regardless of the status of the home repair work. DiBrito never told consumers that she was president of both the home repair and the mortgage companies.

DiBrito's mortgage companies have filed foreclosure actions against more than 70 homeowners. Many homeowners, fearing foreclosure, still continue to pay on mortgage loans in the face of having received no work, partially completed or shoddy work.

Madigan's lawsuit, filed in Cook County Circuit Court, asks the court to prohibit the defendants from continuing to offer, provide or service residential mortgage loans without a license. In addition, the lawsuit seeks a civil penalty of $50,000 and additional penalties of $50,000 for each violation found to have been committed with the intent to defraud. Finally, Madigan's lawsuit asks the court to order the defendants to pay restitution to consumers.

The Attorney General's Office has previously filed lawsuits against DiBrito, Kafka and Father & Sons for multiple violations of the Consumer Fraud and Deceptive Business Practices Act. Two of those suits are still pending, the first asks that DiBrito, Kafka, and the Father & Sons Remodelers be enjoined from violating the Consumer Fraud Act, and the second asks that Kafka and Father & Sons Contractors be permanently enjoined from engaging in the home repair business in Illinois for a series of ongoing consumer fraud violations against Illinois homeowners.

Assistant Attorney General Anshuman Vaidya is handling the case for Madigan's Consumer Fraud Bureau.

Illinois Receives An 'A'

Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich announced Illinois received the highest grade possible in a University of Baltimore Obesity Report Card for the state's efforts to control and lower childhood obesity rates. Illinois received the high mark as a result of the governor's efforts to ban junk food in elementary and middle schools in the state. Illinois has also passed legislation for the collection of information relating to obesity including Body Mass Index (BMI) for their students. Illinois is one of only six states to receive the high grade.

The University of Baltimore awarded the grades based on the policies states had enacted in the categories of nutrition standards at school, vending machine usage, body mass index measured in school, recess and physical education, and obesity programs and education. In addition to the governor's ban on junk food in schools and BMI testing, Illinois has participated in the CATCH Program (Coordinated Approach to Child Health) which promotes healthy eating and physical activity in elementary schools. Each of these programs contributed to Illinois' 'A' on the University of Baltimore's Report Card.

In March 2006, the Illinois State Board of Education adopted the governor's proposal to ban junk food and soda in Illinois elementary and middle schools. Research shows that healthier students have higher attendance rates, better behavior and superior test scores. The rules prohibit junk food during the entire school day in elementary and middle schools.

In January 2004, Gov. Blagojevich unveiled Illinois' participation in the nationwide CATCH program, a multi-component health intervention program, which builds an alliance of parents, teachers, child nutrition personnel, school staff and community partners to teach children and their families how to be healthy for a lifetime. It is targeted at students in third through fifth grade. The components of the CATCH program include classroom curriculum, food service modifications, physical education improvements and family reinforcement to reduce cardiovascular disease and type-2 diabetes risk factors in youth.

The I-Fly Program

Governor Rod R. Blagojevich announced the return of regular air passenger service to Chicago from the Decatur, Quincy and Marion markets. Daily flights to Chicago's Midway airport from the three downstate airports took off Feb. 1st under a deal worked out through the state's I-Fly program. Prior to these inaugural flights to Midway, the only air service at the three airports was to St. Louis.

"Last Fall, we doubled the number of state sponsored Amtrak trains, and now new flights are taking off. Connecting Chicago and downstate communities will not only help attract businesses to expand and locate in Illinois, but will make it easier for anyone traveling our state," Gov. Blagojevich said.

This air service between Decatur, Quincy and Marion is possible through funding in the I-Fly program. The program was created in 2003, but had never been funded until Fiscal Year 2007 when Gov. Blagojevich and members of the General Assembly agreed to include $1.65 million for the I-Fly program to restore air service between Chicago and these three downstate communities.

Air Midwest, Inc. began initial service from Decatur, Quincy and Marion to Chicago's Midway airport. Service includes multiple roundtrips during the week, with one roundtrip on Saturday at Decatur and Marion, and one roundtrip on Saturday and Sunday at Quincy. In addition to the Chicago service, there is also a roundtrip flight each day between Quincy and Kansas City. Air Midwest is using Beech 1900, which are turboprop planes that are capable of carrying 19 passengers per flight.

The I-Fly program is intended to provide incentives to airlines to begin operations in underserved Illinois airports. The Illinois Department of Transportation is providing grants to the airports in Decatur, Quincy and Marion that will guarantee a certain amount of revenue to Air Midwest for each flight. The local airports will be required to provide a 20 percent match.

The goal of the program is to provide an initial subsidy to bring airlines to underserved airports to initiate service, and then to work cooperatively with the local communities to help the service become self-sufficient. All three airports currently have air service to St. Louis provided by RegionsAir, a federally subsidized service. Air service to Chicago stopped in Quincy during 2003, Decatur in 1999, and Marion has not had any service other than to St. Louis since 1986.

Lithuanian Program

A program commemorating the establishment of Independence of the Republic of Lithuania will be presented by the Chicago Lithuanian Women's Club on Wednesday, Feb. 14th at Camelot Banquets, 8624 W. 95th St. in Hickory Hills. Ramojus and Aldona Vaitys will narrate the progress of the Children's Gate of Learning Centers in Lithuania. Musical entertainment will be provided by Algimantas Barniskis.

The social hour starts at 12:30 with the luncheon to be served at 1 p.m. Reservations at $22 per person are available by calling Irene Norbut at (708) 974-2946. Hostesses are Nijole Kaveckas and Elena Cizinauskas.

Urban Legends Of Chicago

The widely-believed urban legend of the Great Chicago Epidemic of 1885, the Rockford College presidency of Julia Gulliver and her drive to turn "Western Girls" into "Useful Women," and Chicago confidence man George W. Streeter's drive to work his way into the public's imagination are featured in the latest issue of the Journal of Illinois History, a scholarly publication about the state's history.

Many recent histories of Chicago mention 1885 epidemics that killed up to 90,000 people, 12 percent of the city's population. These cholera, typhoid and dysentery epidemics were reportedly triggered by a flood that washed raw sewage into the city's water supply. While the Aug. 3, 1885 flood caused by a five-and-one-half-inch rainfall in 19 hours really occurred, the epidemics did not. The first mention of a supposed 1885 epidemic was made in 1941 by Chicago Superintendent of Sewers Thomas D. Garry, who noted a "fearful typhoid epidemic of 1885" but did not provide a source for this information. Then, when the Metropolitan Sanitary District of Chicago tried to drum up public support for its expensive "Deep Tunnel" system underneath the city, it published a 1957 pamphlet that noted the "death from the terrible diseases of polluted water" that came from the 1885 storm. A 1964 newspaper advertisement recognizing the 75th anniversary of the Sanitary District furthered the legend, noting: "So it was...on that day in August 1885, when nature pulled the stopper and the rains came, Chicago was to find itself drinking raw sewage and death along with its breakfast coffee. Death from water-borne disease raged through the city." Newspaper and magazine articles as late as 1979 still reported the non-existent epidemic as fact. The article was written by Libby Hill, author of The Chicago River: A Natural and Unnatural History.

The second article profiles Julia Gulliver, who came to Rockford College in 1890 after becoming only the second woman in the United States to earn a doctorate in philosophy. She was named president of the college in 1902, and for the next 17 years championed a vocational curriculum for the all-female school, stressing home economics and secretarial work, through which she hoped to increase enrollment and attract potential donors. For decades, colleges had been criticized for not preparing women for "duties peculiar" to them. Gulliver's response was to develop coursework that would make "Western girls" into "useful women," recognizing women's roles as consumers who must have practical applications for their knowledge. The article was written by Anne McIs Knupfer, professor of educational studies at Purdue University.

From 1886 to 1921 George Wellington Streeter spun lies, forged legal documents, and used violence to wrest 186 acres of shoreline from some of Chicago's most powerful businessmen. He also wrung money from the pockets of the poor by selling them lots he did not own. However, Streeter was a masterful promoter who portrayed himself as pioneer who staked a claim and defended his land against marauding capitalists. He convinced many contemporaries, including a biographer, theater producer, radio disc jockey and several historians, that he was a hero of the frontier, and he subsequently became a celebrity. The article was written by Joshua Salzmann, Ph.D., candidate at the University of Illinois at Chicago.

The Journal of Illinois History is the foremost publication for readers who value documented research on the state's history, and features articles, book reviews, essays and bibliographies that have been reviewed by some of the country's leading historians. A Wrong Number can Delay Your Tax Return

If you expect a refund on your federal taxes, you can avoid a delay by making sure all names and Social Security numbers are recorded correctly on your tax return.

When processing tax returns, the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) checks all names and Social Security numbers for accuracy. When IRS discovers an incorrect Social Security number on your tax return, they send you a letter explaining the discrepancy. To fix the problem, you'll need to give IRS the correct Social Security number before you can expect your tax refund.

If you don't have a number or you need one for a dependent, call or visit Social Security. You'll need to show your age, citizenship or lawful alien status, and verify your identity. To learn more about the sort of information and documents you may need to submit, visit Social Security's Card and Number web site at <http://www.socialsecurity.gov/ssnumber/>.

You should also check the Social Security number on your W-2 statement and pay stubs to make sure it matches the one on your card. If it does not match, tell your employer immediately and also contact Social Security.

You also can visit your local Social Security office, or call 1(800) 772-1213, TTY 1(800) 325-0778.

GENERAL

Q. I'm 55 years old and have worked since I was 18. So I have well over the 40 credits I need to qualify for Social Security. Why do I have to keep paying Social Security taxes if I already qualify for maximum benefits?

A. As long as you are working, the law requires Social Security tax withholding for almost all wage earners. Only some government employees and career railroad workers are exempt from Social Security taxes because they pay into a separate retirement fund. In addition, you should not confuse the eligibility rules with the benefit calculation rules. Although you need only 10 years, or 40 credits of coverage, to be vested in Social Security, your retirement benefit is based on your highest 35 years of earnings. In other words, if you were allowed to drop out of Social Security after meeting the 10-year vesting rule, you would receive a very small Social Security benefit when you reach retirement age, because we would have to add 25 years of "zero" earnings into your retirement calculation.

Q. Can you settle a bet I have with a friend? She told me I need 40 credits from Social Security to collect retirement benefits. But I'm sure I read 10 years of work is the requirement. Who's right?

A. Both of you are right, because 40 credits and 10 years of work are roughly the same thing. In 2007, you get one Social Security credit for each $1,000 you earn, but you can only earn up to four credits in a year. Obviously, people with breaks in their work history will take longer than 10 years to earn the 40 credits they need for Social Security.

RETIREMENT

Q. My brother and I are both retired and get Social Security benefits. We worked side by side in the same factory for years, but he gets a higher Social Security payment. Why does he get more?

A. Unless you are twins and made exactly the same amount every year of your careers, you wouldn't get the same benefits as your brother. Social Security benefits are based on your age and your lifetime of earnings – generally the top 35 years. In order to get the same benefit as your brother, you and he must have been the same age, had the same earnings for each year and would have to have started and stopped working at the same time.

DISABILITY

Q. It has been about a month since I applied for Social Security disability benefits and I still haven't heard anything. How long does a decision usually take?

A. The amount of time it takes for a decision on a disability claim varies. The nature of your disability and how quickly we are able to get medical evidence from your doctor or medical sources can make a difference in how long it takes. Generally, to get an initial decision on your case, it takes about three to five months. If your claim is initially denied, there are several steps in the appeal process that you can pursue.

Q. My 3-year-old son is autistic. My husband and I have been told that he may be eligible for disability benefits from Social Security. How would he qualify for benefits? My husband and I both work full-time and pay Social Security taxes.

A. Social Security administers the Supplemental Security Income (SSI) program that does pay disability benefits to some children. SSI is a needs-based program, so if your family is having a hard time making ends meet, your son might qualify for a monthly SSI payment. And if he gets SSI, he might also get Medicaid coverage. The only other way your son would qualify for payments is as a dependent on either you or your husband's Social Security record. When either you or your husband retire – or if either one of you becomes disabled and begins drawing a Social Security disability payment – he could collect because he's your dependent child.

SUPPLEMENTAL SECURITY INCOME

Q. My parents recently moved into a retirement community and they are signing their house over to me. Can I still get Supplemental Security Income (SSI) or will home ownership make me ineligible?

A. You can own a home and still receive SSI as long as you live in the home you own. In most cases, when determining SSI eligibility we don't count the home you own and live in or the car you use as resources.

MEDICARE

Q. I was born in February of 1944, so my full retirement age is 66. Do I sign up for Medicare at the same time?

A. No – the Medicare eligibility age is still 65, so you should make an appointment to apply for Medicare first. Call 1(800) 772-1213, TTY 1(800) 325-0778, now to file for Medicare. While on the phone, we'll discuss your retirement plans and you may be able to sign up for Social Security at the same time. To learn more, visit Social Security's web site at www.socialsecurity.gov.

Something for the Children

Many people think of Social Security as just a retirement program. While it is true that most of the people receiving Social Security collect retirement benefits, Social Security touches families in many other ways – including those struggling to meet the basic needs of children with disabilities.

Children who have physical or mental disabilities may qualify for Supplemental Security Income, or SSI. SSI is a needs-based program that provides payments to people with disabilities who have not worked enough and paid enough Social Security tax to receive Social Security payments – including children.

When determining whether a child is eligible for SSI benefits, Social Security considers the income and resources of not only the child, but also the parents or other family members living in the household.

The child must have a physical or mental condition that seriously limits his or her daily activities, and the condition must be expected to last 12 months or more, or end in death. To help us determine whether a child is disabled, we will ask for any information available pertaining to the condition. We also will ask the applicant – the parent, grandparent or guardian – to sign releases that allow us to obtain information from doctors, hospitals, clinics, teachers, therapists and other professionals who have information about the child's condition.

You can learn more about SSI by reading You May Be Able To Get Supplemental Security Income (SSI) (SSA Publication No. 05-11069) at <http://www.socialsecurity.gov/pubs/11069.html>.

You also may want to visit Social Security's Kids and Families page at <http://www.socialsecurity.gov/kids/index.htm>. There you'll find information for kids, parents and teachers about Social Security numbers, benefits for children, the importance of saving and low-cost insurance for children. You also may call us at 1(800) 772-1213, TTY 1(800) 325-0778, or visit your local Social Security office.

Social Security Benefit Statements Being Mailed This Past Month

It is not too early to begin gathering the information you will need to file your income taxes. And if you receive Social Security benefits, you will be glad to know your Social Security Benefit Statement, or Form SSA-1099, can be expected to arrive in the mail this month.

Beneficiaries will need this 1099 Benefit Statement to complete their federal income tax return and to find out whether their benefits are subject to income tax. Generally, you have to pay taxes on your Social Security benefits if your total annual income is more than $25,000 as an individual or $32,000 for a couple. Less than a third of beneficiaries pay taxes on their benefits.

The Benefit Statement shows the gross amount of benefits that were due and the net amount of benefits paid. The 1099 also shows the amount of any payments (such as Medicare premiums) that were withheld.

The 1099 Benefit Statement should not be confused with the Social Security Statement, which is mailed to all workers age 25 or older not yet receiving benefits and gives an estimate of future benefits available. The 1099 Benefit Statement, mailed in January, reports the amount of benefits a person has received in the past year.

Benefit Statements are only sent to individuals who received Social Security benefits in the prior year, so you will only receive one if you were paid Social Security benefits in 2006. People who get Supplemental Security Income (SSI) do not receive Benefit Statements since SSI is based on need and is not considered taxable income.

If you got Social Security benefits in 2006 and you do not find a Social Security Benefit Statement in your mailbox by Jan. 31st, or if you need a replacement copy, you can request one online by visiting our web site at www.socialsecurity.gov/online_services. Or you can call Social Security's toll-free number, 1(800) 772-1213, TTY 1(800) 325-0778.

For more information on taxation of Social Security benefits, call the Internal Revenue Service's toll-free number, 1(800) 829-3676, to ask for Publication 554, Tax Information for Older Americans.

The Importance of Social Security Survivors Benefits

On Sept. 11th, the nation commemorated the fifth anniversary of the terrorist attacks on America. The nation suffered devastating losses on that day. Social Security employees, for example, handled more than 5,000 individual claims related to Sept. 11th. Although some were disability claims from people who survived the attacks, most were for survivors' benefits for the spouses and dependent children of those who died.

Looked at from another perspective, about 97 percent of persons aged 20-49 who worked in 2005 have survivors insurance protection for their young children and the surviving spouse caring for the children.

To see what your family could receive, check your Social Security Statement, which is sent each year to every worker age 25 or older. The Statement gives an estimate of survivors' benefits that could be paid, as well as an estimate of retirement and disability benefits and other important information.

If you would like more information about Social Security survivors benefits, visit www.socialsecurity.gov/planners/index.htm or call Social Security at 1(800) 772-1213, TTY 1(800) 325-0778, and ask for the publication, Survivors Benefits.

Amtrak Accepts RTA Transit Checks

Frequent users of Amtrak trains to and from Chicago can save money by buying tickets using special "Transit Checks" issued by their employers through the Chicago-based Regional Transportation Authority (RTA). Amtrak will accept the checks that list Amtrak among the area transportation providers.

Amtrak accepts RTA Transit Checks for the purchase of multi-ride tickets that are perfect for long-distance commuters and others who make regular trips in Illinois. They are also usable for other routes, with many available connections through Amtrak Chicago Union Station.

"Although Amtrak does not currently receive funding from the Chicago RTA, we work closely with the RTA on several projects, including Union Station improvements and looking ahead to Chicago's bid for the 2016 Olympics," said Don Saunders, General Superintendent of the Chicago-based Amtrak Central Division. Amtrak is also a partner in the RTA's Moving Beyond Congestion campaign and hosts an RTA Chicagoland TRIPS travel information kiosk at Amtrak Chicago Union Station.

"Ridership is growing on our corridors to and from Chicago and we appreciate the RTA's decision to include our passengers in the RTA Transit Check program as another enhancement to our service," Saunders added.

"Expanding our Transit Check program to include Amtrak offers significant benefits for commuters traveling between Chicago and other destinations in Illinois, Michigan, Missouri or Wisconsin," said Stephen Schlickman, RTA Executive Director. "They receive tax advantages, avoid traffic congestion, and can use their traveling time more effectively for relaxation or catching up on briefcase work. Encouraging the use of Amtrak also helps to improve air quality and promote energy independence," he added.

The RTA Transit Checks can be used for the purchase of Monthly Tickets for the Hiawatha Service trains between Chicago and Milwaukee (seven round-trips daily, Monday through Saturday and six round-trips on Sunday).

The RTA Transit Checks can also be used to buy 10 Ride Tickets for the Hiawathas, along with Lincoln Service and other trains between Chicago and St. Louis (total of five daily round-trips); Illini, Saluki and other trains between Chicago and Champaign/Carbondale (total of three daily round-trips); Illinois Zephyr & Carl Sandburg trains between Chicago and Quincy (two daily round-trips); Wolycrine Service trains between Chicago and Ann Arbor/Detroit/Pontiac (three daily round-trips); Pere Marquette trains between Chicago and Grand Rapids (one daily round-trip) and Blue Water trains between Chicago and East Lansing/Port Huron (one daily round-trip).

These named trains are operated by Amtrak under contracts with their respective state transportation departments (except Wolverine Service).

RTA Transit Checks are purchased by employers and distributed to employees. Checks may be purchased in any denomination from $10 to $110. RTA Transit Checks are tax-deductible to employers and a tax-free benefit to employees. The program puts money back in employees' pockets by lowering their commuting costs and it helps employers support clean air, reduce traffic congestion and promote a more reliable, on-time work force.

Employers seeking more information about the RTA Transit Check program as a benefit to their employees should visit www.rtachicago.com/infocenter/transitcheck or call 800-531-2828 between 9:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. Central Time. The program is a low, or no cost, benefit for both employees and employers. As of Jan. 1, 2007, federal law allows individuals to set aside up to $110 in pre-tax earnings each month to pay for transit costs.

RTA Transit Checks are also accepted by the Chicago Transit Authority, Metra commuter rail, Pace suburban buses, the South Shore Railroad commuter service to and from Indiana and vanpools.

Applications Available Online

Governor Rod R. Blagojevich announced that older adults and the disabled can now apply and file for the 2007 Illinois Cares Rx application over the Internet. The Governor is encouraging seniors to use the online application because it is the fastest way to get approved for state prescription drug assistance. Illinois Cares Rx provides wrap-around prescription drug coverage to fill in the gaps created by Medicare Part D. Seniors with questions about Illinois Cares Rx can call the governor's Senior HelpLine at 1-800-252-8966 or visit www.illinoisbenefits.org.

The Governor and the Illinois Department on Aging (IDoA) made the applications available online to make it easier and quicker to apply for benefits and to accommodate the increasing number of older persons accessing the World Wide Web. Several recent studies show that seniors are the fastest growing population of Internet users.

Before logging on to the Internet, IDoA Director Charles Johnson suggests having the following information available in order to make the process smoother: Social Security number(s), amount of property taxes paid in 2006, amount of rent paid in 2006, and a copy of 2006 federal tax returns.

IDoA has sent booklets to those seniors and the disabled who submitted Illinois Cares Rx applications in the mail last year. Seniors and the disabled who filed for Illinois Cares Rx via the Internet should have received yellow postcards in the mail as a reminder to sign-up online.

Illinois Cares Rx provides a safety net for seniors and the disabled when their out-of-pocket costs for prescription drugs go up under the federal program. In 2007, the standard federal Medicare Part D prescription drug program will pay 75 percent of prescription drug costs up to $2,400 after a $265 deductible with an average $24 per month premium. Beneficiaries are responsible for all of their costs between $2,400 and $5,451.25, with the plan paying 95 percent of costs beyond that top threshold. The gap where a beneficiary has to pay all the drug costs between $2,400 and $5,451.25 is commonly referred to as the "donut hole." People with Medicare applying for Illinois Cares Rx must also apply for Medicare's Extra Help for drug coverage through the Social Security Administration (SSA). Apply for Extra Help by calling the SSA toll-free at 1-800-772-1213 or at www.ssa.gov online.

The Medicare Part D stand-alone prescription drug plans currently coordinating with Illinois Cares Rx are the AARP MedicareRx Plan, UnitedHealth Rx Basic, and WellCare Signature. The Medicare Advantage companies currently coordinating with Illinois Cares Rx are Group Health Plan, Health Alliance, HealthSpring, OSF Health Plans, SecureHorizons by United Healthcare and WellCare HMO. The stand-alone prescription drug plans are available statewide. Medicare Advantage prescription drug plans may be available only in certain areas.

Individuals eligible for the Illinois Cares Rx program may also be eligible for additional benefits from the State's Circuit Breaker program. The Circuit Breaker program provides a property tax relief grant for individuals who pay property tax on their residence or rent or nursing home charges on a residence that is subject to property tax. In addition, the program provides an annual $54 discount on the license plate fee for one vehicle.

Those eligible for Illinois Cares Rx fall into one of the following groups whether you have Medicare or not. 1. Illinois Cares Rx Plus is for those who are single with an annual income of no more than $20,420; or a couple with an annual income of no more than $27,380; and a citizen or qualified non-citizen. All classes of medically necessary prescription drugs are covered. 2. Illinois Cares Rx Basic is for seniors or the disabled with income less than $21,218 for a single person or $28,480 for a couple. Covered are prescription drugs for the treatment of Alzheimer's disease, arthritis, cancer, diabetes, glaucoma, cardiovascular disease, lung disease and smoking-related illnesses, osteoporosis, Parkinson's disease, multiple sclerosis, and HIV/AIDS (if you have Medicare).

Woman's Retreat

A Woman's Retreat featuring winter folk crafts will be hosted at The Center, 12700 Southwest Highway in Palos Park, on Friday and Saturday, Feb. 16th and 17th.

Designed to accentuate the beauty of winter, this weekend will feature a variety of folk craft projects with winter twigs and snowflakes, including snowflake catchers, several varieties of intricate quill and folded paper snowflakes, and glittery snow frames for winter photos. Naturalist Carol Alesia and Center Program Director Lois Lauer are planning a weekend that combines these creative winter projects with time for warm fellowship by the cozy fireside, rejuvenating walks in the winter woods, and personal quiet time for reflection.

The cost per participant is $104, which includes accommodations, meals, leadership and supplies. Advance registration is required. For further information, call (708) 361-3650.

OAK LAWN SENIOR HAPPENINGS

It's going to be a busy month at the Oak Lawn Senior Center. Along with all the regular daily activities some special programs have been planned.

On Wednesday, Feb. 14th a representative from Aetna Insurance will give an informative session about Medicare D. A local pharmacist will accompany the rep to answer questions about generic vs. brand name drugs. The program begins at 10 a.m. and refreshments will be served at its conclusion. Door prizes will also be raffled.

On Thursday, Feb. 22nd seniors will meet once again for the newest program, Box Lunch Day. The event was created to provide an affordable lunch and social time for many in the village. A hot lunch, dessert, refreshments and bingo are provided with the help of a sponsor. This month's sponsor will be The Southwest Center for Healthy Joints. Its newest facility is located at 9618 Southwest Highway. As the sponsor, Dr. Harun Durudogan, a Board Certified Orthopedic Surgeon, will explain services provided for physical, occupational and pool therapies. As a sponsor they will contribute $3 per senior to the day and the senior will play $3.

Box Lunch Day is by ticket only and may be purchased at the Senior Center, 5330 W. 95th St.. The program begins at 10:30 a.m. and participants must attend the presentation to receive a lunch.

The Senior Center in cooperation with the Oak Lawn Park District is now offering instruction in Oil Painting. Seniors meet every Monday morning from 9 a.m. to Noon at the Oak View Center, 4625 W. 110th St. The cost of the ten week course is $25 for residents and $30 for non-residents. To register or for further information, call 499-0240.

Now available to Oak Lawn seniors 60 years of age and older is Income Tax assistance. Volunteers trained by the Internal Revenue Service in cooperation with AARP are available to complete simple tax returns. Before calling for a required appointment be sure to have all the pertinent information necessary to file. Needed is one's Social Security statement, dividend and interest statements, pension statements, Real Estate Tax bills paid in 2006 and last year's Income Tax. Morning and afternoon appointments, Monday through Friday are available. To obtain an appointment, call 499-0240.

Those no longer required to file Income Tax, may be entitled to receive a one-time Federal telephone excise tax refund. If between the years of 2003 and 2006 one had a long distance service or a bundled phone plan, one may complete a simple form to receive a refund. The form may be picked up at the Oak Lawn Senior Center, 5330 W. 95th St.

If you need to have further information on programs at the Senior Center, please call (708) 499-0240.

Filed Petitions

Educator and community activist John J. Gonezy has filed petitions to run for a seat on the Oak Lawn Public Library Board in the consolidated election on April 17. Born and raised in Oak Lawn, Gonezy attended Harnew Elementary and Simmons Junior High, and Oak Lawn Community High School. After receiving a bachelor's degree in English with highest honors from DePaul University, he spent a year abroad as a Fulbright scholar in Budapest, Hungary. He holds a master's degree in education from Saint Xavier University, where he graduated first in his class.

Gonezy is in his 11th year of teaching English, reading and journalism at Mount Carmel High School in Chicago. He has also taught in the resource program for students with learning disabilities at Mount Carmel. This year, he has been named an honorary alumnus of Mount Carmel in recognition of his outstanding commitment to his students and the school.

Currently, he is the vice-president of the Illinois Journalism Education Association (IJE), a member of the journalism advisory board for the Illinois High School Association (IHSA) and a member of the board of the Scholastic Press Association of Chicago (SPAC).

In January, the Journalism Education Association announced that Gonezy is one of nine high school newspaper advisers to receive its "Rising Star" award for 2007. He is the only educator in Illinois and the only Catholic high school educator in the nation to be so honored this year.

In Oak Lawn, Gonezy serves as a member of the board of the Children's Museum of Oak Lawn and the Oak Lawn Parks Foundation. He is a member of St. Germaine Parish.

"My desire to serve the Oak Lawn community in meaningful ways motivated my decision to run," Gonezy said. "Service on the library board presents an excellent opportunity for me to put my education and experience to work for an institution that played a vital role during my formative years and in my later success in life."

Telephone Tax Refund

The Internal Revenue Service reminds taxpayers that a one-time refund of the telephone excise tax paid on long-distance and bundled service is available on this year's tax return. One in three early filers did not request this special refund and while some may not be eligible, others may qualify and not know it.

The telephone tax refund is available to taxpayers who paid the three-percent federal excise tax on long-distance and bundled phone service billed from March 1, 2003 through July 31, 2006.

Taxpayers may request the actual amount of excise tax paid during that 41-month period or can simplify the process by using the standard amount, which ranges from $30 to $60 and is based upon the number of exemptions claimed on the 2006 tax return. Using the standard amount to figure the refund is easy, with only one line to complete on the tax return.

For the millions of people not required to file a tax return, the IRS has created a special short form for requesting the refund - Form 1040EZ-T, Request for Refund of Federal Telephone Excise Tax. Form 1040EZ-T can be e-filed for free through some of the software companies participating in the IRS Free File program. Free File is available on the IRS Web site at www.irs.gov. More than 10 million people, many of them senior citizens, are expected to file this form.

If you paid more than the standard amount, you may figure your refund using the actual amount of tax shown on your phone bills. Base your refund request on the three-percent federal excise tax paid, not the total phone bill. Do not count tax paid on local-only service. Complete Form 8913, Credit for Federal Excise Tax Paid, and attach it to your tax return. You must have phone bills or other records to support the amount you are requesting. Do not mail the supporting documents with your tax return. Keep them with your 2006 tax records.

Early mistakes found on a sample of returns filed in January include not listing the telephone tax refund amount on Form 1040EZ-T, not requesting the refund when the taxpayer appears to qualify, filing duplicate requests - both on a regular tax return and Form 1040EZ-T, and requesting a refund based on the entire amount of the phone bill instead of the three-percent tax on long-distance and bundled service.

The IRS expects more than 146 million individual taxpayers to request the telephone tax refund. Payments on these refunds are estimated to total more than $10 billion.

For more information on the telephone excise tax refund, check out the IRS Web site at www.irs.gov.

Boston Graduate

Boston University awarded academic degrees to 1,412 students in January.

Among the graduates was Rowena Adriano of Oak Lawn, who received a D.P.T. in Physical Therapy.

Boston University is the fourth largest independent university in the United States, with an enrollment of more than 29,000 students in its 17 schools and colleges. The university offers an exceptional grounding in the liberal arts, a broad range of programs in the arts, sciences, engineering, and professional areas, and state-of-the-art facilities for teaching and research.

McAuley's "Equinox" Is Awarded

Mother McAuley Liberal Arts High School annually publishes the literary arts magazine EQUINOX. It is written, edited and illustrated by students from all class levels.

The 2005-2006 edition was recently awarded an "Excellent" ranking by the National Council of Teachers of English. Mother McAuley was among the 497 schools that entered the program which recognizes excellence in student literary magazines. The staff of the 2005-2006 edition included co-editors Hannah Carroll '06 (Blue Island) and Jackie Todd '06 (Orland Park); page layout, Amy Preston '06 (Chg., Westlawn), and Sophie Zelek '08 (Posen); typing, Megan Panella '08 (Oak Lawn) and Maggie Black '08 (Oak Lawn); cover art, Katlyn Tracy '08 (Chg., Clearing); reading, evaluation and publicity, Heather O'Donnell '07 (Midlothian), and Joanna Matuskiewicz '08 (Chg., Westlawn). The group's faculty advisor is Mrs. Therese Gump.

Do It For David

On Dec. 11th, David O'Donnell entered the hospital for pneumonia-like symptoms and remained there for over a month. He was diagnosed with several health problems including various heart conditions that require him to have open-heart surgery. In his present state of health he is too weak to have this type of surgery and was told he would be unable to work. Insurance cost, several medications and hospital bills have put him in significant financial hardship and disability benefits are extremely limited.

A benefit has been planned in David's honor on Sunday, Feb. 18th to raise money to help with expenses.

The benefit will be held at the Oak Forest Senior Center, 15501 S. Kilpatrick in Oak Forest, from 12 noon to 7 p.m. offering raffle prizes and split the pot. You may purchase a $20 ticket to the benefit (in advance or at the door) which includes music, food and drinks.

Your donation will help to support David and ease the burden on him.

To make a monetary donation, make checks payable to David O'Donnell. Checks can be mailed to: David O'Donnell, c/o Amy Harenberg, 9848 S. St. Louis Ave., Evergreen Park, IL 60805.

If you have any questions, feel free to contact: Bobby Loranger at (708) 257-2115; Rich or Amy Harenberg at (708) 422-0825; Julie Figueroa at (708) 388-4322; or you can e-mail at doitfordave@yahoo.com.

Hold CIA Admissions Reception In Chicago

Future chefs, bakers, and foodservice industry leaders, The Culinary Institute of America (CIA) in Hyde Park, NY is coming to Chicago for an admissions reception and one lucky person will come away with a $500 grant to study at the CIA.

The admissions reception will be held at the Four Seasons Hotel, 120 E. Delaware Pl., on Wednesday, March 14 at 7 p.m. The reception is an opportunity for aspiring culinarians to meet the CIA to learn about the college's range of degree programs. The evening will be hosted by CIA alumna Michelle Antonishek '99, executive pastry chef at the Four Seasons Hotel Chicago. During the evening, one attendee will win a $500 grant towards his or her CIA studies.

The CIA is now enrolling students for 2007 entry dates for both its bachelor's and associate degree programs in culinary arts and baking and pastry arts. The college's representatives can discuss the benefits of a CIA education, as well as additional scholarship opportunities.

The foodservice industry is experiencing exponential growth, and interest in culinary careers is rising among both career changers and "traditional" college students. The National Restaurant Association projects a record $537 billion in sales for 2007 (almost $1.5 billion per day!). Graduates of the CIA are offered prestigious positions in all aspects of the restaurant industry. In addition to being top chefs, pastry chefs, and bakers, CIA alumna are leaders in research and development, catering, education, food styling, food journalism, and many other industry-related fields.

To learn more about the reception or to find out about available entry dates, contact The Culinary Institute of America at 1-800-CULINARY (285-4627) or visit www.ciachef.edu.

Statement On Bush's Proposed 2008 Budget

Governor Rod R. Blagojevich made the following statement on President Bush's proposed 2008 Budget: "The proposed federal budget unveiled by President Bush would seriously hamper the efforts of Illinois and other states across the country as we try to help working and middle class families get ahead. At a time when Illinois is making great progress in expanding access to healthcare, making our communities safer and investing more in our public schools, President Bush is proposing a budget that cuts funding for these critical areas so that he can provide permanent tax cuts to the wealthiest Americans and invest more in the escalating war in Iraq.

"President Bush's health care proposals represent, at best, another lost opportunity and, at worst, an approach that will dismantle coverage for millions of seniors, children and working families. The President's plan reduces flexibility and cuts federal support in the very areas that have enabled states to launch innovative programs like All Kids. He would shift an even greater share of costs and risks to businesses, working families, states and healthcare providers, and do so without significantly addressing the plight of the uninsured from the federal level.

"In the weeks and months ahead, I will work closely with my fellow governors and the Illinois Congressional delegation to stop President's Bush's efforts to finance a war and tax breaks for the rich on the backs of the middle class."

Chicago Lithuanian Women's Club Officers Installed

The new Board has started activity plans for this 84-year-old philanthropic organization with the Lithuanian Independence commemoration slated for Wednesday, Feb. 14th.

Goal To Reduce Greenhouse Gas Emissions

Governor Rod R. Blagojevich announced a statewide goal to slash the production of heat-trapping greenhouse gases (GHGs) to 1990 levels by 2020 and 60 percent below 1990 levels by 2050. The GHG goals are part of a long-term study by the state to combat global climate change and builds on steps the state has already taken to reduce greenhouse gas emissions to protect the environment and public health.

The announcement comes as Gov. Blagojevich's Climate Change Advisory Group prepares to meet to address the serious and urgent issue of global climate change. The Governor charged the advisory group with recommending strategies to meet these GHG reduction goals. The advisory group, comprised of business leaders, labor unions, the energy and agricultural industries, scientists, and environmental and consumer groups, from throughout the state, will meet over a six-month period to identify measures to cost-effectively reduce greenhouse gases.

"The impact of global warming in Illinois and around the globe could be devastating, and we can't wait for federal government to act because scientists worldwide have warned that we must address climate change within the next decade to avoid serious and irreversible consequences," said Gov. Blagojevich. "The international community recognizes that rising temperatures, melting glaciers, and unusual weather patterns are warning signs telling us that climate change is a reality. Now, despite inaction by President Bush, we must deal with it. By committing ourselves to action in Illinois, we can help minimize the effects of climate change and ensure our children and grandchildren inherit a healthy world full of opportunity."

Scientists have reached consensus that increasing emissions of carbon dioxide from the combustion of fossil fuels, methane from landfills and other sources of GHGs are trapping heat and warming the earth's atmosphere. These gases remain in the atmosphere for decades or even centuries. Earlier this month, the United Nations Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change reported that heat trapped by GHGs are raising the temperature of the air and oceans, causing snow and ice to melt and sea levels to rise. More than 1,200 experts from 113 countries wrote and reviewed the report.

According to scientists, global warming could cause a variety of serious problems in Illinois, including more frequent droughts, flooding, and extreme heat events. Such changes could endanger public health, decrease agricultural production, overwhelm sewage infrastructure, and cause property damage. Increased temperatures could also lead to dangerous increases in the level of air pollution and to the introduction of non-native invasive species that could damage Illinois' ecosystems.

The Governor's GHG reduction goals are similar to goals set by other states and those proposed by U.S. Senators Lieberman and McCain. Scientists argue that global reductions of this magnitude are needed to minimize the impact of climate change.

Seeking Host Families

NW Services, a non-profit and CSJET approved program, is looking for caring families to host high school students from Germany, Brazil, Columbia, Japan, France, and other countries for the upcoming school year. The students are 15-18 years of age and will begin arriving in August to spend the coming semester or school year with a caring host family while attending the local high school.

There is no such thing as a typical host family. Whether you are a single parent, retired, have small children, teens, or no children, you can have a great experience hosting an international teen.

The students are prescreened, speak English and look forward to learning about our culture while teaching us about their country. They have medical insurance and their own spending money to cover such things as clothing, school supplies and entertainment. Host families provide a loving home, meals and a place for the student to study/ sleep. Host families are not paid but may be able to claim a $50 per month charitable contribution on their income tax.

It is only through the kindness and generosity of families in communities like ours that these young teens will be able to fulfill their DREAM of spending a year as an American Teen. Please open your heart and home to one of these teens by inviting them to become a member of your family. Or, become a representative to watch over a student and family!

Bring the world to your doorstep! Call Karen Shell today at (866) 634-3977.

Daylight Saving Time Begins Early

Passed by the U.S. Congress in July 2005 (The U.S. Energy Policy Act of 2005), Daylight Saving Time in 2007 will be four weeks longer than previously observed. It will begin three weeks early, on March 11, and end one week later, on November 4.

It is important to make sure that your computer systems are appropriately updated to reflect the changes in Daylight Saving Time this year. Pay particular attention to appointments you have scheduled on your computer between March 11 and April 1 as well as between October 28 to November 4.

Check Scam A Growing Threat

Potential victims across the country are receiving notifications via mail that they are 'lucky' lottery winners. The solicitation and check offer is a scam whose only intent is to defraud the recipient rather than bring good financial news. The volume of these types of letters currently going around is substantial, so if you think that you have been singled out as a lucky winner in a drawing or a lottery that you don't ever recall entering, think again before responding.

If an unsolicited letter with a notification that you have won an award is received in the form of a final notification or you are a winner it will also urge your direct and immediate response. In many occasions the recipient will find a check included with your own name on it. Exercise caution as you are being targeted by a scammer.

According to Steve J. Bernas, President & CEO of the BBB of Chicago and Northern Illinois, "These types of scams that feature phony lottery and drawing winners are burgeoning and consumers need to be extremely vigilant if they are targeted. Do not under any circumstances send a check or wire transfer money to any individual or company that you don't know. If the offer looks too good to be true it probably is."

The Better Business Bureau has reported this fraudulent activity to several law enforcement authorities and is working closely with the Federal Trade Commission, the Illinois Attorney General's Office, The U.S. Postal Service and the City of Chicago Department of Consumer Services who are working in concert with us to help shut down these scams. Unfortunately, Bernas adds "it is extremely difficult if not impossible to recover consumer's money once they have sent it to these scammers."

Lottery Scam Prevention Tips:

If you get an alleged award notification letter, several things become evident. The text of the winnings will have a very generic-sounding name, such as USA Mega Direct or USA Lotto Direct, both of which sound like you could have potentially entered.

You will then be congratulated on being a winner of a large amount of money, given a reference number, and subsequently asked to not make your winnings public just yet. For convenience's sake, you will almost certainly be given a name of a contact or financial secretary who is to allegedly help guide you through your award claims process.

What is necessary to keep in mind is that anytime anyone asks you to pay for something that they claim you have won, a red flag should go up. If anyone asks you to wire a payment via Western Union to Canada, another red flag should go up. If you happen to receive a solicitation of being an awards or lotto winner and then are provided with a check to allegedly cover taxes or fees, turn it into your local Postal Inspector's Office.

These so-called contacts have in common is that they have a Canadian phone number for you to call- frequently out of Ontario and British Columbia- regardless of where they claim to be, Canada or the United States.

Included with the letter will almost always be a legitimate looking check, with an amount that can range from several hundred to several thousand dollars. The solicitation will tell you that this check is to help you offset the pay for insurance, taxes, and shipping and handling fees which you will need to pay before you can claim your prize, and will then direct you to call their financial advisor in order to find out how to claim the winnings.

Sometimes this check may even be addressed as coming from a well-known and/or Fortune 500 company with wide name recognition, which may put you in a fake comfort zone. This is in actuality an instance of identity theft of a business, which may likely not be aware that its name and identity are being fraudulently used in a check scam.

As soon as you call the number provided on your solicitation, you will be instructed to deposit the check into your personal bank account. Here is where the essence of the check scam lays: as real as it may look, the check will not have any funds to back it up. Shortly after taking out what you think are the funds from the check, you will be instructed to wire a certain amount of money, usually via Western Union or MoneyGram, to a previously undisclosed third party location.

The money that you will be wiring will be your own, provided that you have enough in your account to cover the amount being sent. If not, within a few days your bank will realize that the check you deposited was a fake one, as a result of which it will bounce and you will be held liable for any insufficient fund fees at the least.

Contact the BBB to report the scam at our website ~ www.chicago.bbb.org.

Mayor's Conference Decries Budget Cuts

In a show of support for the law enforcement services provided by the Cook County Sheriff's Office, the Southwest Conference of Mayors recently approved a resolution that strongly urges county commissioners to reconsider the cuts being proposed by Board President Todd Stroger.

The resolution, which was unanimously approved, states that the proposed cuts in the Sheriff's Office budget would "jeopardize the safety and well being of the citizens of Cook County."

Palos Hills Mayor Gerald Bennett, who serves as president of the Southwest conference, said the proposed cuts would hurt smaller suburban police agencies that rely on the Sheriff's Police for supplemental police services, such as bomb squad service, K-9 service, evidence technicians, and additional manpower for gang and drug suppression.

Stroger's proposed budget cuts include a $6.5 million reduction in the Sheriff's Police Department that would eliminate 100 Sheriff's Police patrol officers. According to Cook County Sheriff Tom Dart, such cuts would have a direct effect on the response time of Sheriff's police officers, who often assist and back up suburban police agencies in emergency situations.

The cuts would also force the Sheriff's Office to close the 24-hour lockups in the Markham and Maywood courthouses which many suburban police agencies rely on to house their prisoners overnight. In addition, the Sheriff would be forced to eliminate supplemental police services currently provided to the community of Ford Heights as well as the Cook County Housing Authority and the Forest Preserve Police.

Stroger is also proposing a $10.9 million cut in the Sheriff's Court Services Division which would eliminate 236 deputy sheriff positions. According to Sheriff Dart, the Court Services Division is already short staffed and additional cuts will leave a number of civil and criminal courts without a deputy sheriff to maintain order and court room security. The cuts will also force a reduction in staffing at entryways and checkpoints at all court facilities.

Other cuts in the Sheriff's Office that Stroger is proposing include the complete elimination of the Sheriff's Senior Citizen Academy and all senior preventive programming, which is widely utilized by suburban residents. All preventive programming provided by the Sheriff's Youth Services staff in suburban schools would also be slashed.

By law, the county budget must be approved by this coming Feb. 28.

The Southwest Conference of Mayors is a body of elected officials from 21 southwest suburbs representing more than 350,000 citizens.

Accepts Donated Products

If you have excess consumer electronics that consist of new, overstock, slow-selling or discontinued products, chances are NAEIR members could use it. The Consumer Electronics Show probably gave you some ideas about what new products to carry and offer to your customers. So what do you do with your old merchandise?

NAEIR, the National Assn. for the Exchange of Industrial Resources, accepts donations of merchandise from manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers, then redistributes those goods to schools and 501-c-3 nonprofit organizations across the country.

Over 7,000 large corporations have donated over $2 billion worth of goods since NAEIR's founding in 1977. They have shipped items such as toys, consumer electronics, games, books, clothing, building materials, personal care products, office supplies, school supplies, and many more items.

These items are received and stored in a 450,000 square foot warehouse in Galesburg, Illinois. Donations come in all sizes, from one carton to several truckloads. The only thing NAEIR asks is that the products be new, finished goods so the deserving, charitable organizations that make up NAEIR's membership can use them.

These materials not only benefit deserving organizations, but companies that contribute can earn an above cost federal income tax deduction that could be up to twice the cost of the goods. This option is made possible by the Internal Revenue Code Section 170 (c) (3).

To get a FREE Donation Information Kit, contact NAEIR's Corporate Relations Dept. at 1(800) 562-0955 or email donor@naeir.org.

Information On Unclaimed Assets

Many people find it hard to believe they would ever overpay a bill or lose track of a safety deposit box.

So you can imagine the surprise of newly elected Illinois State Treasurer Alexi Giannoulias when he discovered his name appeared on the state's list of unclaimed property owners. Having overpaid a registration fee to the Law School Admission Council in 1998, Giannoulias is now awaiting a check from his office for $36.

More than 75,000 individuals and businesses have been added to the state's unclaimed property rolls since the list was published in August, bringing the database to a record 10.2 million names. This month, the new additions will be listed in newspapers across the state with the hopes that more people will collect what's owed to them.

The Treasurer's Office currently holds over eight million properties worth more than $1.4 billion. Unclaimed property consists of money and other assets that are considered lost or abandoned after an owner cannot be located for more than five years.

The most common assets include abandoned savings and checking accounts, unpaid wages or commissions, stocks, bonds, mutual funds, non-cashed dividends, customer deposits or overpayments, credit balances, refunds, money orders, travelers checks, paid-up life insurance policies and safe deposit box contents.

The list of unclaimed property owners will appear in newspapers regionally in February as follows:

Week of Feb. 25th for Cook and Collar Counties: Cook, DuPage, Kane, Kendall, Lake, McHenry and Will.

The State Treasurer's Office has returned more than $400 million in unclaimed property since taking over the duty in July 1999.

An estimated one in six people has lost assets at the Illinois Treasurer's Office. In many cases, people move and forget to furnish their broker, bank, employer or insurance company with a forwarding address. Eventually, the money makes its way to the Treasurer's Office for distribution.

For more information about unclaimed property, visit the web site at www.cashdash.net; write the Illinois State Treasurer, Unclaimed Property Division, P.O. Box 19495, Springfield, IL 62794-9495; or call (217) 785-6998 or toll-free 1(866) 458-7327 (in Illinois only).

Rita To Chair Committee

State Rep. Bob Rita (D-Blue Island) announced recently that he is proud to be the first Chair of the newly-created House Committee on Tollway Oversight and hopes to bring fresh ideas to the Illinois tollway system.

"I am very excited about the possibilities we have with this new committee to help Illinois' tollways become the best in the country," Rita said. "Our tollway system is facing some obstacles and some opportunities right now, and this committee is the right place to address those kinds of issues and see where we can make some progress."

One issue that may be considered during this spring's legislative session is the governor's proposal to sell or lease the Illinois tollways. However, there are many other possible legislative ideas that may come before the committee. With a rapidly growing Chicago region, importance will be placed on measures that ease stress during commutes and best utilize Illinois' existing tollways.

"Chairing a committee is a new experience, and I look forward to finding ways to help the many people of my district who use tollways every day," Rita said. "I can assure everyone concerned with our tollways that we will be looking into the problems and solutions that will make Illinois' tollways stronger and more efficient for drivers all around the state."

As well as serving as chair of the Tollway Oversight Committee, Rita was also appointed to the Consumer Protection Committee, the Insurance Committee, the Environment and Energy Committee, the Health and Healthcare Disparities Committee, and the Executive Committee. While in Springfield, Rita wants to remind his constituents that his service office in Crestwood will remain open Monday through Friday from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. to help with issues important to them. For more information, anyone may contact his Springfield office at (217) 558-1000.

This past Saturday, Feb. 10th, our United States Senator Barack Obama (D-IL) made his formal announcement that he would seek the office of the Presidency in the March 18th, 2008 Democratic Primary. Surrounded by family, loyal supporters and friends, Senator Obama articulated his desire to fight to make sure that working families have access to health care, good paying jobs, and opportunities to provide for their children.

According to Illinois Governor Rod Blagojevich, "Senator Obama has the vision, skills and dedication necessary to bring people together and make real progress in Washington to help solve our country's greatest and most pressing problems. Senator Obama offers real hope for the American people and I am proud to give him my support."

The Governor also went on to urge the Legislature to consider moving the Illinois primary from March 18, 2008 to Feb. 5, 2008. Blagojevich suggested that this change would send an early, positive message in support of Senator Obama throughout the state and the nation.

Cook County Treasurer Maria Pappas has requested that All Points remind readers that property owners can pay tax bills from the past two years on the Treasurer's website. Pappas stated that full or partial payment can be made on www.cookcountytreasurer.com for: current bills dues March 1, for the first installment of tax year 2006. Also, bills issued in 2006 for the two installments of tax year 2005. According to the Treasurer, "the most convenient way to pay in person is on-line, from a computer."

Taxpayers can learn how much is owed on current and past year bills at the afore mentioned Treasurer's website or by calling (312) 443-5100. Remember to have the PIN (Property Index Number) to correctly identify your property.

Cook County Republican committeemen recently learned that GOP Chairman Gary Skoien is leaving his party leadership position to help his wife recuperate from breast cancer. Skoien, State Rep. Paul Froehlich (R-Schaumburg) and Cook County Commissioner Anthony "Tony" Peraica have acknowledged that they are throwing their support behind the parties executive director and 27th Ward committeeman Tom Swiss. The Republican party's 80 ward and township committeemen were scheduled to meet Monday, Feb. 12th, to select a new party leader. Stay tuned.

Oak Lawn Fifth District Trustee Marjorie Ann Joy is being feted by a Mardi Gras Fundraiser in her honor on Tuesday, Feb. 20th, from 6 to 9 p.m. at the Stony Creek Club House, 5850 W. 103rd St., in Oak Lawn. Cocktails and hors d'oeuvres will be plentiful, as well as great company and camaraderie. Tickets are $40 per person.

On Friday, Feb. 23rd, the Independent/Tax Abatement Party of Midlothian will honor Midlothian Mayor Thomas Murawski at its annual dinner dance. The 43rd President's Ball will be held at the Odyssey Country Club in Tinley Park. The evening is highlighted by cocktails at 6:30 p.m. and dinner at 7:30 p.m. After dinner music and dancing will commence to the beautiful sounds of the Steven Edward Orchestra. Tickets for the entire evening, including an open bar, are only $60 per person. For reservations or tickets, contact any Independent/Tax Abatement Party member or call (708) 371-8757.

Practicing nurse professionals who wish to broaden their healthcare knowledge or nurses who are returning to the healthcare setting can learn comprehensive theory and get clinical experience in Moraine Valley Community College's Current Nurse Update Refresher course.

The 10-week course includes theory classes on Fridays from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Moraine Valley's Blue Island Educational Center, 12940 S. Western Ave., and clinical work on Saturdays from 6:45 a.m. to 4:45 p.m. at a local hospital. The class begins Feb. 23rd. Students who are hired by their clinical site will receive full tuition reimbursement. Tuition is $1,354.

Students in the course will reestablish a solid medical-surgical foundation and will update their pharmacological practical skills in the medical-surgical area of professional nursing.

This course is approved for 10 adult education credits by the Illinois Department of Financial and Professional Regulation (IDFPR). Students must complete a series of immunizations and paperwork by the first day of class or they will be dropped without a refund. It may take four to six weeks to complete the requirements. Call (708) 974-5747 for a packet. Nurses with expired licenses should call IDFPR at (217) 785-0800 to request a nursing restoration packet.

To register for this course, go to the Admissions, Records, and Registration Office, located in the College Center on campus, 9000 W. College Pkwy., Palos Hills, or call (708) 974-2110 (TT/TDD for the hearing impaired 708-974-9556). Previously enrolled students can register online at morainevalley.edu.

Will Not Overturn License Plate Decision

A federal district judge denied a motion by the Secretary of State to overturn his recent ruling that allowed "Choose Life" to be a slogan on Illinois specialty license plates. On Jan. 22, Federal Judge David Coar had ruled in favor of Choose Life Illinois plaintiffs in their lawsuit against Jesse White, explaining that their message was protected by the First Amendment and entitled to be on the plates. Judge Coar had stayed enforcement of the January ruling for 30 days, and when White's lawyers, from the office of Illinois Attorney General Lisa Madigan, sought to extend that stay beyond its scheduled expiration date of Feb. 21, Judge Coar declined to do so. He explained that he might consider extending the stay if White pursued a further appeal to the U.S. Court of Appeals from this trial court ruling in favor of the "Choose Life" plates.

Tom Brejcha, president and chief counsel at Chicago's Thomas More Society, a public interest law firm representing the non-profit group, Choose Life Illinois, Inc., hailed Judge Coar's latest ruling as another strong endorsement of his clients' First Amendment rights. "This isn't rocket science, but rather a plain and simple application of rudimentary First Amendment principles," Brejcha said. "Once you open up state license plates as a public forum where citizens can set up their soap boxes and promote their private causes - ranging from peace plates, environmental plates, pet friendly plates to plates for Masons and Knights of Columbus - you can't constitutionally suppress the rights of over 25,000 Illinois citizens who signed petitions for Choose Life to promote the cause of adoption and raise funds to support young women who choose to bear their infants and give them the priceless gift of life in loving, adoptive families."

Jesse White's spokesman recently faulted the Choose Life group for failing to follow the usual procedure of getting a bill passed in the General Assembly.

Brejcha responded to this allegation stating, "Judge Coar ruled that Illinois law gives the Secretary of State himself full authority to approve or reject specialty plates. Secretary White can't lawfully pass the buck to the General Assembly, as if legislators should be casting votes as grand inquisitors or censors approving some causes, disapprove others. Every American has the right to stand on his or her soap box and promote a cherished cause, unless it's obscene, or threatening, or fighting words, or an incitement to violence. If those who oppose adoption or advocate against choosing life want to petition for their own specialty plate, more power to them - this is still a free country!"

Jim Finnegan, retired business executive and president of Choose Life Illinois, said that he and his fellow board members, including Virginia McCaskey of the Chicago Bears, "look forward to the day when Illinois drivers may help more children find loving homes by buying these plates, whose proceeds will be earmarked only for agencies supporting adoption."

Fund Programs To Reduce Child Abuse Cases

Illinois law enforcement leaders met recently with Rep. Danny Davis (D-IL) and urged him to move forward legislation that would provide federal funding for programs to reduce child abuse and neglect while cutting crime.

Davis has been a leader on this issue and Police Chiefs Robert Smith of Westchester, Rick Tanksley of Oak Park and Ray Pelletier of Broadview thanked him for his efforts. In their meeting, the chiefs spoke with Davis about urging his colleagues to support legislation similar to the Education Begins at Home Act introduced in the 109th Congress. That bill would provide states with federal funding to improve and expand in-home parent coaching programs.

The police chiefs are members of the anti-crime group Fight Crime: Invest in Kids Illinois. Davis is a member of the House Committee on Education and Labor that has jurisdiction over in-home parent coaching legislation.

In-home parent coaching programs send trained professionals to the homes of at-risk, first-time parents to provide them with support and information to better care for their children, even before they're born. These programs, which are voluntary, are also proven to cut crime. Citing results from a study of one model program - the Nurse-Family Partnership - Smith said high quality in-home parent coaching programs for at-risk families can cut cases of child abuse and neglect in half. It also reduces later arrests of the moms and kids by about 60 percent.

Research also shows that kids who are abused or neglected as children are 29 percent more likely than other children to be arrested for a violent crime as adults. In-home parent coaching is one of the most effective ways to break this cycle of violence.

Illinois has been a leader in promoting in-home parent coaching efforts and currently has programs in place, but most at-risk families do not get this crucial service due to lack of funding.

Fight Crime: Invest in Kids is a non-profit anti-crime organization based in Washington, D.C. with more than 3,000 law enforcement members. Illinois members include 190 police chiefs, sheriffs, prosecutors, and violent crime victims.

Youth Award Tea

The Swallow Cliff Chapter of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution will hold its annual Youth Awards Tea on Feb. 17th at Trinity Christian College in Ozinga Chapel, 6601 W. College Drive in Palos Heights, at 1 p.m.

Numerous schools and students participated in the "Student History Essay Awards Contest" and "Good Citizen Awards." This year students will be presented the "American History Award" for their essay titled "Jamestown Colony is Settled." In 2007 we will celebrate the 400th anniversary of the "Settlement of Jamestown." Celebrations will be held in Jamestown during the year. Students whose essays are selected to enter the DAR District competition will be reading their essay of Jamestown at the meeting.

Also, we will be celebrating the "275th birthday of George Washington," (Feb. 22nd) known as "The Father of Our Country." Much is being done in celebration for his birthday at Mt. Vernon. A new addition/museum, called the "Reynolds Museum and Education Center," has been added to Mount Vernon where George spent many of his years. Celebrations will be held at his boyhood home "Ferry Farm," and the Kenmore Estate of his sister Elizabeth. Mark your calendars and celebrate these historical events at Jamestown and Mt. Vernon this year. Information on Jamestown and George Washington can be found on the Internet.

Prospective members are welcome. Call (708) 974-1710 for information and reservations.

Lake Shore Singers To Perform

The Lake Shore Singers will perform quartets by Johannes Brahms on Friday, Feb. 23, as part of the Xavier Classics at Noon concert series in Saint Xavier University's McGuire Hall, 3700 W. 103rd St., Chicago.

Comprising soprano Kathleen VanDeGraaff, mezzo-soprano Jan Bickel, tenor Christopher Lorimer, bass-baritone Peter VanDeGraaff and accompanied by pianist Daniel Surma, the professional singers will present the opus 64 and 92 quartets and the Gypsy Lieder by Brahms in the original German language.

It is the fourth Xavier Classics at Noon concert of the 2006-07 academic year and the first of three spring 2007 programs offered at Saint Xavier. The March 23 concert will feature concert pianist Amy Briggs-Dissanayake in a program of Schubert, Ravel and Ligeti. And the April 20 concert will feature Abellimento, Chicago's premier flute-and-harp duo featuring Gia Sastre on flute and AnnLaura Tapia on harp. The concerts are open to the public and a $5 donation will be accepted at the door.

Members of the Lake Shore Singers are known locally, nationally and internationally for their vocal performances.

Kathleen VanDeGraaff has been featured at the Costa Rica International Music Festival, singing in opera performances throughout that country. She also has been a soloist at the San Luis Obispo Mozart Festival, St. Louis Baroque Festival, Music of the Baroque, Bloomington Early Music Festival and Manitou Music Festival. She has worked with opera companies in Chicago, Milwaukee, Washington, Utah and Idaho.

Bickel, D.M.A., is founder of Xavier Classics at Noon and a professor of music and director of vocal studies at Saint Xavier University, where she has taught for 24 years. She also is a frequent recitalist in the Chicago area and has appeared as a soloist with the Chicago Symphony, Chicago Philharmonic, Chicago Chamber Orchestra, and with the Wheaton, Southwest, and Kankakee Valley symphony orchestras. Most recently, she performed the alto solos in Beethoven's 9th Symphony with the Chicago Bar Association Symphony Orchestra and Chorus at the International Bar Association convention at Navy Pier.

Lorimer has distinguished himself in Chicago and the Midwest as a performer in opera and oratorio. His opera credits include Abduction from the Seraglio, Rigoletto, The Rake's Progress, Die Fledermaus and The Magic Flute. He performs with the Grant Park Symphony Chorus and Music of the Baroque. Active as a clinician and a member of the Chicago Chapter of the National Association of Teachers of Singers, he taught at the National High School Music Institute, College of DuPage and University of Illinois-Chicago before joining DePaul University as a voice instructor.

Hailed by critics as possessing a "resplendent voice," a "rich, burnished sound" with "formidable skill" and a "commanding grace and strength," bass-baritone Peter VanDeGraaff has sung to great acclaim throughout the world. His singing has taken him throughout the United States, including engagements with the Houston Symphony, Chicago Symphony and the Utah Symphony, among many others. He also has been active in the opera house and has performed with the Lyric Opera of Chicago, Florentine Opera, Milwaukee Opera, Rochester Opera, Chicago Opera Theater, Cedar Rapids Opera and many other companies.

Surma is adjunct professor of piano and staff accompanist at Saint Xavier University. He is also a studio accompanist and accompanist for the Opera Workshop and University choral organizations, and accompanies student, faculty and guest recitals. He is the organist/choral director for United Church of Christ in Skokie. He has appeared four times as soloist with the LaPorte Symphony Orchestra in his hometown of LaPorte, Ind., and has been a keyboardist with the Northwest Indiana Symphony, Whiting Park Festival Orchestra, Illinois Symphony in Springfield, Elgin Symphony and Ravinia Festival Orchestra.

Xavier Classics at Noon provides 50 minutes of fine classical music to the University and neighboring communities. Since 2005, the series has been supported by a grant from the Illinois Arts Council.

For more information, visit www.sxu.edu/music/concerts.asp, or contact the Saint Xavier University music department at (773) 298-3421.

26th Annual Chevy Vettefest

This rare 1953 Corvette will be among hundreds of cars showcased at the 26th annual Chevy Vettefest, March 3-4, at McCormick Place in Chicago. For more information or to buy advance tickets call (248) 373-1700 or log on to www.chevyvettefest.net

The world's largest all-indoor Chevy and Corvette show, swap meet and car sale peels into Chicago's McCormick Place March 3rd and 4th. Car enthusiasts will find everything-Chevrolet, from antiques to futuristic prototypes, and every super-charged dream car in between. The spring edition of the 26th annual Chevy Vettefest, under new owner Championship Auto Shows, Inc., returns to Chicago with more than 400 four-wheel standouts.

A Vette lovers dream, Chevy Vettefest is presented by Nickey Chicago. A wide variety of vendors, ranging from the weekend swapper to nationally recognized specialty Corvette vendors, will be on-hand to inspire the car expert and novice alike.

Muscle car aficionados can expect to see a wide variety of Camaros, Chevelles and Novas. A special 50th Anniversary feature showcase, dubbed "57 Heaven," will feature a wide variety of Chevrolet's finest offerings from the 1957 model year. A Yenko Supercars showcase, featuring some of the Pennsylvania dealerships finest and most sought after muscle cars will also be featured. The newly reborn Nickey Chicago, title sponsor, will show off their Continuation cars along with several documented original Nickey supercars.

Fans will also get a chance to step back in time and see a rare 1953 Corvette. The car is one of only 300 and is one of the first produced and built in Flint, Mich.

Prizes will be awarded to top stock, restored, custom and modified cars and trucks in the Gold Spinner Concours and Bow tie Boulevard classes. For the Triple Crown award, competitors converge from across the country to vie for an honor given only to the finest restored Corvettes that already have achieved Gold Spinner, NCRS Top Flight and Bloomington Gold status. A team of experienced Corvette experts stringently judge Triple Crown entries so that only a select few Corvettes win this award at each show. The new "Diamond" award will also be presented to an outstanding first-time shown Corvette, Camaro, Chevelle and Nova. The "Woman's World" area and awards competition will feature classic and custom show cars owned and maintained by women.

Also new this year is the 2007 Indy Fan Tour. Racing enthusiasts will marvel at this interactive display highlighting the history of the Indy-500. Fans will go behind the scenes on race day as they navigate their own simulated Indy racing car and get their picture taken crossing the finish line.

In the automotive swap meet, serious restorers and weekend dabblers alike will find more Chevy and Corvette parts and peripherals than anywhere else under a single roof - everything from N.O.S. (new old stock) parts to the latest reproduction items, bumper-to-bumper parts, automotive restoration services and apparel. The all-Corvette and Chevrolet car and truck sale allows buyers to deal directly with sellers, without commission fees.

Chevy Vettefest will be open to the public, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., Saturday and Sunday, at McCormick Place North, 23rd Pl. and Lake Shore Drive, Chicago. Tickets are $14 per person at the door, with children under age 12 admitted free.

For additional information or to buy advance tickets, call (248) 373-1700 or log on to www.chevyvettefest.net.

The Wolfe Tones

An exciting evening will be had at Gaelic Park, 6119 W. 147th St. in Oak Forest, on Friday, Feb. 23rd when The Wolfe Tones come to town. The doors for this show open at 7:30 p.m. with an 8:30 show time.

For over 40 years, this rabble-rousing group has inspired many to fight against the injustices in Ireland with their poignant, powerful and unsurpassed style of music. In the past years the group has become the biggest selling artists in Ireland and in 2001-02 sold more albums than the ever-popular U2. The Wolfe Tones also have had double and triple platinum albums and recently released a new album "The Troubles", which holds 32 tracks including brand new songs. Show goers will enjoy Wolfe Tones ballads such as On the One Road, Boys of the Old Brigade, Come Out Ye Black and the classic - Celtic Symphony.

Tickets to this much-anticipated show will go quickly as the last appearance at Gaelic Park did sell out. Tickets are on sale now for the price of $20 per person. Reserve by calling Gaelic Park at (708) 687-9323 or visit the web site at www.chicagogaelpark.org.

DON'T LIE FOR THE OTHER GUY: Starting with a high-profile launch in Georgia in January, the "Don't Lie For The Other Guy" program brought its message of the consequences of participating in an illegal firearms purchase to seven more states and the District of Columbia. This program has been an effective tool for U.S. Attorneys, to raise the public's awareness of the consequences of straw purchases, whereby a person buys a firearm for someone not qualified to own a gun. This program should be put into effect in Illinois, considering the high number of shootings by persons using illegal guns.

■LET'S TALK TURKEY: The Cook County Turkey Baggers Chapter of the National Wild Turkey Federation will be holding its 6th Annual Hunting Heritage Banquet on March 30th.

There will be live and silent auctions, and raffles for outdoor items, including guns, art collectibles, hunting apparel and equipment.

Doors open at 6 p.m. for cocktails and product review. Dinner at 7:15 followed by raffles and auctions. The affair will be held at the South Chicago Elks Lodge, 4428 Midlothian Turnpike, in nearby Crestwood. Tickets are only $60. For tickets and information call Carl Rendel at (708) 349-8862. See you there!!

■COAST GUARD TO RE-THINK LIVE-FIRE RANGES ON LAKE MICHIGAN: The U.S. Coast Guard announced its decision to withdraw its intent to establish 34 safety zones for live-fire training on the Great Lakes.

The plan had been criticized by at least 80 U.S. and Canadian mayors, business leaders, governors, anglers, boaters, conservationists and environmentalists who said the plan was unsafe. Many expressed concerns about lead ammunition being deposited in the Great Lakes.

■OUTDOOR GEAR SALES STRONG IN 2005: New statistics show that hunting gear, firearm sales, and fishing tackle topped $5.4 billion in 2005 according to data just released by the National Sporting Goods Association. Hunting, firearm and fishing tackle sales grew by 6% from the previous year, which is two times better than the athletic and sports equipment market performed as a whole.

Within the hunting and firearms category, hunting footwear sales saw a 7% increase, and sales of hunting-related apparel saw a 4% gain. Shotgun sales increased by 10.5% for a total of $667.9 million, handgun sales rose 8.5% to $630.7 million and rifle sales were up 2.7% to $849.2 million.

■WSRC ANNOUNCES WINTER HOURS FOR PUBLIC SHOOTING: Shooting facilities at the new World Shooting and Recreational Complex (WSRC) in Sparta in Randolph County are open throughout the winter for public trap and sporting clays shooting.

Operating hours for the complex are each Wednesday through Sunday from 10 a.m. until dusk. The complex also hosts a Winter Trap League on lighted fields each Thursday evening. Planned skeet fields at the complex are scheduled to be open in early 2007.

The state of the art 1,600 acre complex opened for public shooting on Sept. 1st. Public shooting opportunities are available on trap fields nearest WSRC Events Center and vendor mall for the convenience of recreational shooters.

Shooters should enter the complex at the Events Center access drive off of Randolph County Highway 18. Shooting fees are collected at the Events Center. For more information phone the Events Center at (618) 295-2700, ext. 352.

■NEW INDIANA RECORD SPOTTED BASS: A Terre Haute man has broken one of Indiana's longest standing fish records. Larry Hinesley Jr.'s 5 lb., 5 oz. fish recently topped a 31 year old 5 lb., 1 oz. spotted bass record. On May 24, Hinesley was fishing a private pond, when Indiana's largest recorded spotted bass took his night crawler bait. Hinesley saw the fish before he cast to it. He tied the fish with an ultra-light Ugly Stick fishing rod strung with 10-pound-tester Spider Wire. The fight lasted five to six minutes.

After boating the fish, Hinesley had it weighed on certified scales at the IGA on Locust Street in Terre Haute. Spotted bass also known as Kentucky spotted bass, are frequently mistaken for other types of bass. Spotted bass will sometimes out-compete smallmouth bass.

■FOUR ILLINOIS MEN FACE HEFTY FINES: The four men were cited for 92 walleyes over the limit in Lake of the Woods Minnesota/Canadian boundary waters. The men from Chicago and Coal City, if convicted face fines totaling $4,250 and revocation of their fishing privileges for three years. This was a "Turn-in Poacher" phone call tip.

Special Olympics Basketball

Richards High School hosted more than 300 athletes on Saturday, Feb. 10th for the Illinois Special Olympics regional basketball tournament.

Special Olympics athletes from southern Cook County and Will County participated in the tournament, which included more than 30 teams. Winning teams qualified for the state finals at Illinois State University in March.

More than 100 Richards students, including the National Honor Society and football team, volunteered throughout the day to make the event a success.

Richards Assistant Principal Ken Styler organized the event with Illinois Special Olympics regional executive director Kevin O'Brien.

Baseball Program

Diamond Kings Baseball Complex will host a six-week Spring Training 2007 baseball program for players in grades 1 through 12 Feb. 25th to April 1st. Diamond Kings Baseball Complex owner/former Seattle Mariners player Eric Blakeley, will direct the program in conjunction with Midwest Baseball Academy. Sessions are offered in advanced hitting and pitching at a cost of $98 for six weeks. Space is limited. Registration is now under way.

For more information, visit www.baseballacademy.net, or call toll-free (866) MBA-HITS.

Coaching Clinic

ASEP Coaching Clinics will be held in Arlington Heights on Feb. 24th at the La Quinta Inn and in South Holland on March 3rd at Seton Academy for anyone interested in becoming certified to coach middle or high school athletics. The successful completion of the ASEP program is required by the Illinois High School Assn. for all non-faculty coaches.

To register or for more information about this or future clinics, contact Jeff Kyle at (217) 586-4799.

Ranked 23rd

Led by head coach Myra Minuskin, the St. Xavier University softball team recently learned that it would carry the No. 23 ranking into the 2007 season this March when the NAIA released its 2007 Softball Preseason Ratings from its national office in Olathe, Kan. Last season, the Cougars finished the season ranked No. 15 nationally, but just missed receiving an at-large bid to participate in the 2006 NAIA National Tournament last May.

International Women's Day Fair

The Union League Club of Chicago will host the sixth annual International Women's Day Fair and Luncheon on Thursday, March 8. The fair will feature Chicago-based organizations that focus on a wide range of issues affecting women, both domestically and internationally. From relief organizations to the arts, healthcare to technology, there will be a broad range of topics covered at the fair.

The luncheon keynote speaker is Mardge H. Cohen, M.D., an internationally recognized medical educator, researcher and advocate for the prevention of HIV in women. She is founder and chair the Chicago Women's AIDS Project, a community based initiative to provide support, prevention and advocacy services for Chicago women with HIV. In 1988, Dr. Cohen launched the Women and Children HIV program at Cook County Hospital to provide comprehensive medical and psychosocial services to women, their partners and children. She continues today as the program's director.

Since 2004, Dr. Cohen has served as medical director of the Women's Equity in Access to Care and Treatment (WE-ACTx) to facilitate HIV primary care for women 250,000 who were infected after being raped during the 1994 genocide incidents in Rwanda. WE-ACTx has established health clinics, food and income generation programs for women and children with HIV in Rwanda. Five percent of Rwandan adults and an estimated 20,000 to 30,000 children are infected with HIV.

Dr. Cohen is the Chicago principal investigator for the National Institutes of Health supported Women's Interassociation HIV Study begun in 1994 to better understand HIV disease progression in women. She worked on HIV research projects funded by the Centers for Disease Control and the National Institutes of Child Health & Human Development. She leads a public health initiative to implement the rapid HIV testing in labor and delivery areas of all birthing hospitals in the state of Illinois.

Dr. Cohen, is a senior attending physician at Cook County (Stroger) Hospital, a clinical instructor at the University of Illinois School of Medicine and an associate professor, Rush Medical College.

Sponsors for the IDW event are the International Trade Club of Chicago, International Visitors Center of Chicago and the Union League Club of Chicago. Partners of the event are: Consulate General of Canada; Girl Scouts of Chicago; National Association of Women Business Owners; Organization of Women in International Trade, Chicago chapter; Polish American Women in Business Club; Professional Women's Club of Chicago, and the University of Chicago's Women's Business Group.

International Women's Day began in the early 1900s as a remembrance and celebration of the struggle faced by women around the world in the name of equality, justice, peace and development. Though the role of women around the world has continued to evolve in the nine decades since the inception of International Women's Day, women in the 21st century still face many obstacles in the advancement of their status worldwide. Regardless of ethnic, linguistic, cultural, economic and political differences, the desire and need for progressive change is universal.

International Women's Day Fair begins at 10:30 a.m. at the Union League Club of Chicago, 65 West Jackson Blvd., Chicago. Luncheon begins at noon. Cost is $60 per person and includes admission to exhibits and luncheon. Exhibit space and luncheon table reservations are available for purchase through the International Visitors Centers of Chicago. For reservations or more information contact: Lexy Sobel, IVCC at (312) 254-1800 ext. 102 or visit www.ivcc.org.

Theaters Creating Jobs

Mayor Richard M. Daley hailed an economic study that reports the Broadway In Chicago theater program has created 7,500 jobs for residents of neighborhoods across Chicago.

The study, conducted by Fishkind & Associates of Orlando, reports that Broadway In Chicago pumps $635 million into the Chicago economy each year and attracts an annual audience of 1.5 million patrons, who occupy more than 500,000 hotel rooms and spend $75 million in local restaurants.

Unique Lithuanian Film

The Women's Guild of the Balzekas Museum of Lithuanian Culture is featuring a unique film, "In Love With Lithuania," as its program on Sunday, Feb. 25th, to commemorate Lithuania's Independence. Director and photographer Arvydas Barysas highlighted Lithuania's rich historical past with this film presented at the Expo 2005 World Exhibition in Japan. This visual story journeys into a modern rapidly developing Lithuania.

The program will begin at 2 p.m. in the Edward Mankas Audio Visual Room of the Museum, 6500 S. Pulaski Rd., Chicago. Socializing and refreshments to follow in the Amber Room. Committee hostesses are Kathleen Guzauskas, Irene Buchbinder and Irene Norbut.

Thoughts On Health & Nutrition

NEW FDA-APPROVED DIET DRUG

It's true! Last week the FDA announced the approval of the first-time ever over-the-counter weight loss drug! The drug—Alli—made by GlaxoSmithKline, actually works, say the Feds. For every five pounds a person loses due to diet and exercise change, Alli can help you to lose more.

The FDA has approved its OTC use only for overweight adults when combined with a program which includes a reduced calorie, low fat diet and an exercise program, according to the Wall Street Journal. The issue then becomes, of course, who will do the monitoring? I have not found the FDA's answer to this yet.

Two-thirds of Americans are overweight or obese. Not only have those rates increased exponentially in recent decades, but we are getting fatter at even faster rates. Even an extra 20 pounds dramatically increases a person's risk for heart disease, cancer and diabetes. It is happening to our children, too. Being fat is the second largest cause of preventable death, just behind smoking, and is closing in fast on first place. Easily available snack and fast foods and ridiculously large portions at restaurants and at home, and a country of people young and old sitting at computers and watching TV and DVDs, has made us this way.

The fear among professionals like myself is that this is an expensive drug which will be used and abused. Not to mention the unpleasant gastrointestinal side effects it may have after taking, according to reports. And without a formalized weight management program run by licensed health care professionals, or one-to-one counseling, and an exercise program modified to fit the client, a person will generally see very short-term weight loss while using this drug. After all, losing weight and keeping it off involves permanent changes in lifestyle choices.

Alli, according to GlaxoSmithKline, will be on the market this summer at supermarkets and drug stores, so be on the look-out for its debut.

Medical Marijuana Bill Introduced

Sen. John J. Cullerton (D-Chicago) introduced legislation recently that would remove criminal penalties for medical use of marijuana with a physician's recommendation.

If enacted, SB 650 would make Illinois the 12th state to protect seriously ill patients who use medical marijuana with their physician's recommendation from arrest. Medical marijuana laws are currently in effect in Alaska, California, Colorado, Hawaii, Maine, Montana, Nevada, Oregon, Rhode Island, Vermont and Washington. Polling last year indicated that all of these laws are extremely popular.

Illinois is just one of many states considering medical marijuana bills this year. Connecticut, Michigan, Minnesota, New Mexico, New York, South Carolina and Tennessee are considering bills to protect sick and dying citizens from the threat of prosecution and jail, and medical marijuana legislation is expected to be introduced in an additional half dozen states within the next month. Additionally, legislation has been introduced in Montana and Vermont that would expand existing medical marijuana laws to provide greater protection to patients.

With more than 21,000 members and 100,000 e-mail subscribers nationwide, the Marijuana Policy Project is the largest marijuana policy reform organization in the United States. MPP believes that the best way to minimize the harm associated with marijuana is to regulate marijuana in a manner similar to alcohol. For more information, visit www.MarijuanaPolicy.org.

Prostate Cancer Challenge

A challenge gift of $1 million has been made by Wade F.B. Thompson, chairman, president and chief executive officer of Thor Industries, Inc. to the National Prostate Cancer Coalition (NPCC) for 2007.

The Wade Thompson $1 Million Prostate Cancer Challenge aims to persuade individuals, corporations and foundations to give for the first time, renew a gift or increase their support. From Feb. 1st to Dec. 31st, all donations made to the NPCC will be matched dollar for dollar, enabling each dollar donated to become two.

"We are excited about the prospect of raising $1 million to meet this challenge," NPCC CEO Richard N. Atkins, M.D. said. "NPCC is delighted and honored to receive this gift from Mr. Thompson. He is a leading philanthropist in this cause and has been instrumental in the success of our organization and its programs, particularly the Drive Against Prostate Cancer which is a life-saving initiative he envisioned and began in 2001."

The Challenge is broken down into two parts. NPCC is challenged to raise the first $500,000 before June 30. If that amount is met on time, a second $500,000 challenge gift will be issued by Mr. Thompson with a deadline of Dec. 31st.

The funds will support the NPCC's mission to fight prostate cancer through early detection, awareness, outreach and advocacy specifically by expanding the Drive Against Prostate Cancer to test 20,000 men free every year and to further research by discovering a better test for the disease. To date, the Drive has provided free tests to more than 46,000 men, saving countless lives.

"Despite exercise, a good diet, and annual check-ups, prostate cancer can strike anyone, at any time. Early detection is the key. I am alive nearly 11 years after detection because my cancer was caught early and I urge every man to get tested," said Thompson. "Prostate cancer discovered early is virtually 100 percent curable. I plan to continue trying to find the cure for this disease that kills more than 27,000 U.S. men annually. I hope everyone will respond generously because every dollar given under the Challenge will be matched by me and therefore doubled."

Thompson, a three cancer survivor (prostate, melanoma and colon cancer), has dedicated his life to defeating cancer. He started the Drive Against Prostate Cancer - a mobile screening program for prostate cancer managed by the NPCC. In 2005, Thor Industries, Inc. donated the program's two vehicles to the NPCC. Thor Industries, the largest manufacturer of recreation vehicles and a major builder of buses, was co-founded by Thompson in 1980. In 2004, Forbes recognized Thompson as the "Lord of the Rigs" in a cover story about the business powerhouse turned philanthropist.

Individuals, companies and organizations can make contributions to the NPCC by logging on to www.fightprostatecancer.org, calling (888) 245-9455, or writing to NPCC, 1154 15th St., NW Washington, DC 20005.

Mobile Spirometry Unit

The COPD Foundation launched two new initiatives with the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute (NHLBI) this month in order to raise awareness of Chronic Obstructive Pulmonary Disease (COPD). The first initiative, a virtual call center, debuted Jan. 18th. The C.O.P.D. (Call Our Patients Direct) Information Line provides free information for individuals interested in finding out more about the illness.

The call center is staffed by volunteer patients who are prepared to handle calls from seasoned COPD patients, caregivers, recently diagnosed patients, symptomatic individuals or members of the general public interested in more information about COPD. The call center is available free of charge to the caller. The C.O.P.D. Information Line is 1(866) 316-2673 and it operates from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. EST.

On Jan. 13th, the COPD Foundation launched its second initiative: the Mobile Spirometry Unit (MSU). The MSU staged its first event at the NBC4 Health & Fitness Expo in Washington, DC, providing 861 free spirometries to participants and distributing thousands of collateral education materials to attendees.

The MSU consists of a truck and trailer traveling to health expos, senior fairs, state and county fairs, and other events across the nation. At each stop, the MSU will offer free spirometry testing by respiratory therapists for those who are symptomatic or at-risk of developing COPD. A spirometry test records the total air flow, lung volume, as well as other measurements that will help the person understand how their lungs are working. At the MSU booth, passersby can take information on COPD and how to talk to their doctor for further testing. By correctly answering COPD questions, attendees can register to win a prize.

"We are delighted to be coordinating the COPD Info Line and commend the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute for developing the national COPD Awareness campaign," said Gerald Turino, M.D., chairman of the COPD Foundation board. "This will help reach individuals who are at-risk for or have undiagnosed COPD to learn more about their illness. And we hope it will lead to patients getting tested and if appropriate, correctly treated."

To see if the MSU will be in your area soon, visit www.copdfoundation.org/calendar.

Woman's Heart Day Health Fair

Free heart screenings with follow-up consultation will be offered during the National Woman's Heart Day Health Fair from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. Friday, Feb. 16th, in the lobby of the Merchandise Mart in Chicago.

Sister to Sister: Everyone Has A Heart Foundation Inc.® is sponsoring the one-day event. Saint Xavier University's School of Nursing will provide a volunteer staff of 36 master's- and doctorate-level faculty members, students and others to register participants, measure vital signs and conduct counseling.

The screenings will measure body mass index and test blood pressure, blood glucose and total cholesterol as well as HDL cholesterol and triglyceride levels. Attendees will receive instant results and a personal health consultation conducted by advanced-practice nurses.

At last year's event, 40 percent of the participants discovered they had two or more risk factors for heart disease. Many were unaware that one-third of American women will die of heart disease, taking more than 500,000 lives each year.

"This is a tremendous value offered free of charge," said SXU School of Nursing Dean Anne Bavier. "I believe strongly in the benefits of this program, and the Saint Xavier School of Nursing is delighted to continue its participation and leadership in giving women specific information about their health."

Exhibits at the Health Fair will include: Cooking demonstrations featuring heart-healthy recipes with local chef Shelley Young of The Chopping Block; Exercise trainers offering suggestions for increasing activity; Medical professionals providing information on heart disease risk factors such as diabetes, obesity, smoking and stress; Free massages; Giveaways and prizes.

The Health Fair will include exhibits and demonstrations as well as panel discussions on such topics as menopause, the effects of statins and other cardiac medications, the importance of avoiding obesity, and heart-friendly exercise.

The Chicago location of the National Woman's Heart Day Health Fair is one of 16 offered around the nation as part of the growing women's heart health movement. The Sister to Sister Foundation began in 2000 in Washington, D.C., and now offers events in Atlanta, Baltimore, Boston, Charlotte, N.C., Dallas, Detroit, Indianapolis, Jacksonville, Fla., Los Angeles, Miami, New York City, Philadelphia, Phoenix and St. Louis.

The Sister To Sister-Everyone Has A Heart Foundation is the only national organization that focuses solely on women's heart disease screening and prevention. The organization was founded by its president, Irene Pollin, wife of Washington Wizards owner Abe Pollin. The couple lost two children to heart disease.

Last year's Chicago Health Fair event drew more than 2,500 attendees, with more than one-third taking advantage of the free heart health screenings.

A Gift That Matters

New research shows that couples who check one another for skin cancer tend to do so more scrupulously than people who do skin self-exams alone. The researchers trained both individuals and couples to practice skin self-examination, finding that the couples conducted the tests more frequently, and thoroughly, resulting in reduced odds of developing skin cancer.

"A simple head-to-toe skin check should be done at least once every month," said Perry Robins, MD, President of The Skin Cancer Foundation. "Conducting the exam with a partner can dramatically reduce the risk for skin cancer and could possibly be the difference between life and death," said Dr. Robins.

The researchers noted that half of all melanomas are discovered by patients themselves, confirming the importance of self-examination in early detection. Having a partner to help with the exam can make it easier to remember to check the skin regularly as well as easier to check areas such as the scalp and back, which are difficult to see alone. After the first few times, self-examination should take no more than 10 minutes - a small investment once a month in what could be a lifesaving procedure.

What you'll need: a bright light; full-length mirror; a hand mirror; two chairs or stools; and a blow-dryer. Examine head and face, especially the nose, lips, mouth and ears (front and back); check hands, including fingernails, in a full-length mirror examine elbows, arms and underarms; examine the neck, chest and torso (women: check under breasts; with back to mirror, use a hand mirror to inspect back of neck, shoulders, upper arms, back, buttocks, and legs; and sitting-down, check legs and feet, including soles, heels and nails. Use hand mirror to examine genitals.

The warning signs are a skin growth that increases in size and appears pearly, translucent, tan, brown, black or multi-colored; a spot or sore that continues to itch, hurt, crust, seab, erode or bleed; an open sore that does not heal within three weeks; a mole, birthmark, or brown spot that: changes in color, increases in size or thickness, is larger than 6mm in size (size of a pencil eraser), changes in texture, or has an irregular border.

While a monthly self-exam shouldn't replace the important annual skin exam performed by a physician, it offers the best chance of detecting the early warning signs of melanoma, basal cell carcinoma and squamous cell carcinoma. And for information on self-exams, visit www.skincancer.org. For a free self-exam brochure and mole-mapping guide, call 1-800-SKIN-490 or email info@skincancer.org.

Monitoring Avian Influenza

Governor Rod R. Blagojevich announced the state would begin surveillance for an avian influenza among Illinois wild game bird and poultry breeders. Through an intergovernmental agreement with the USDA, the state has been awarded $165,000 in funding to work with game bird and poultry producers to provide free testing for the highly pathogenic H5N1 avian influenza in captive-reared game birds and poultry.

In an effort to enhance the capacity to detect highly pathogenic avian influenza (HPAI) in the United States, the Illinois Department of Agriculture (IDOA) and the Illinois Department of Natural Resources (IDNR) will participate in a joint effort to increase surveillance in Illinois for avian flu. The program allows for IDOA to provide necropsies (autopsies) of game birds and appropriate testing for avian flu. Flock owners who elect to be a part of the program may submit up to 10 birds per flock every six months for necropsy to the Animal Disease Laboratory in Centralia or Galesburg or the University of Illinois-College of Veterinary Medicine's Diagnostic Laboratory at no charge to the owners.

This agreement will also cover the cost of having a licensed veterinarian travel to the farm, drawing blood samples, submitting the sample and testing the samples at the Animal Disease Laboratory Galesburg for 30 birds per flock every six months.

The IDOA will provide reimbursement funding for these and other low pathogenic avian influenza (LPAI) and HPAI surveillance activities with the poultry industry throughout Illinois through a cooperative agreement with the USDA. Letters have been sent to all game bird license holders in Illinois and all those with registered poultry flocks alerting them of the availability of the program.

The IDNR announced plans in the fall of 2006 to participate in the national surveillance effort for highly-pathogenic (HP) Asian H4N1 avian influenza by collecting samples from hunter-harvested waterfowl. Illinois was awarded $75,000 by the USDA to pursue statewide surveillance of certain species of wild birds for the disease. Approximately 800 samples are expected to have been tested by the conclusion of spring migration. Samples are being taken from several species of ducks and geese that were selected based on migratory connections to other continents where HP Asian H5N1 is known to occur. A secondary group of species that have potential to intermix with those in the primary species set will also be a part of the collection sample.

Currently, HP Asian H5N1, which has caused mortality in domestic poultry, wild birds, and humans on other continents, has not been detected in North America. While the role of wild birds in transporting HP Asian H5N1 is not clear, this surveillance effort will help to ensure early detection of the disease should it arrive in North America.

Pay Bills On-Line

Cook County property owners can pay tax bills from two years on the web site of Cook County Treasurer Maria Pappas.

Pappas said full or partial payment can be made on www.cookcountytreasurer.com for: current bills due March 1, 2007, for the first installment of tax year 2006; and bills issued in 2006 for the two installments of tax year 2005.

"The convenient way to pay in person is on-line, from a computer," Pappas said.

Taxpayers can learn how much is owed on current & past-year bills at www.cookcountytreasurer.com or (312) 443-5100. An inquiry requires a Property Index Number. Late penalties of 1.5 percent per month are in the amount owed.

Payment also can be made at nearly 300 Chase Bank locations, some in Dominick's Food Stores, and by direct debit at 214 participating community banks.

Cook County has nearly 1.7 million parcels of property -- homes, businesses and land -- on which more than $9 billion is collected in two installments yearly. The revenue goes to local governments and taxing agencies.

Firefighters To Receive Grants

The U.S. Department of Homeland Security (DHS) recently announced $34,562,495 in direct assistance grants to 391 fire departments and first responder organizations through the department's Fiscal Year 2006 Assistance to Firefighters Grant (AFG) program. Additional phases will soon be announced that will total $485 million in AFG grant awards to approximately 5,000 fire-related organizations nationwide.

"Emergency response is inherently local, and these resources support those who serve us all, our nation's firefighters," said Under Secretary for Preparedness George Foresman. "By building emergency response capability through training and first responder equipment, the AFG program is helping to strengthen readiness throughout the country. These are smart investments that protect our firefighters and help to save lives in our communities."

This round of the Assistance to Firefighters Grant Program includes awards to the Oak Lawn Fire Dept. for Operations and Safety in the amount of $118,572.

Since 2001, the AFG has provided $2.4 billion in grants to fire departments and first responder organizations for response equipment, personal protective equipment, vehicles, and fire prevention activities. DHS received more than 18,000 applications for nearly $2.5 billion in requests in FY06.

The AFG program awards grants to firefighters, emergency response personnel and first responders throughout the country to enhance response capabilities and to more effectively protect the health and safety of first responders and citizens in their communities. AFG grants provide resources for training, first responder health and safety programs, and response equipment and vehicles.

Kindergarten Enrollment

All-day kindergarten will be optional for all enrollees. Half-day program will be offered only during the morning sessions when the core instructional program is delivered.

Kindergarten enrollment for Oak Lawn-Hometown School District 123 will be held on Wednesday, Feb. 28th from 9 to 11 a.m. and 12:30 to 3 p.m. According to Kathleen McCord, superintendent, parents should enroll resident students who will be five years old before Sept. 1st for kindergarten at one of the district's five elementary schools: Covington, Hannum, Hometown, Kolmar and Sward.

Parents are required to present the following documents at registration:

- an official birth certificate and a copy
- proof of legal custody, if applicable
- photo ID with name and address of parent/guardian/custodian (driver's license, state ID or passport)
- four proofs of residency: Category 1 (one document required) - real estate tax bill, signed lease, mortgage papers or sales agreement. Category 2 (three documents showing proper address) - driver's license, voter registration, library card, home/apt. insurance papers, most recent gas or electric bill, auto registration, most recent credit card bill or public aid card

Birth certificates for children who were born in Chicago may be obtained from the Bureau of Vital Statistics, 118 N. Clark, Chicago, IL 60602, (312) 603-7790, or at a participating Currency Exchange. Birth certificates for children born in other localities may be obtained by contacting the local village or city hall.

Taize Service

A weekly Taize service will be held at Salem United Church of Christ, 9717 S. Kostner Ave., at 7:00 p.m. February 28th through March 28th. This half-hour ecumenical service of reflective prayer and song is being offered by Salem UCC during the season of Lent.

Taize services follow a format started by Br. Roger in the ecumenical community he founded in Taize, France in 1945. His mission began as a place of healing and refuge for Europeans devastated by a world at war and continues as a model of inter-religious peace.

Since the 1950s, spiritual pilgrims from many faiths have found their way to Taize to participate in the services of prayer, music and silence. Representatives from the community also hold services throughout the world.

"Taize is a service of silence, reflection and prayer," says Rev. Steven Hoerger, pastor of Salem UCC. "It takes us out of our day-to-day routine and allows us the time and space to realize that God is beside us at all times."

Everyone is welcome. If you would like to have more information, please feel free to call the church at (708) 423-9717.

Richards High School State Scholars

Richards High School in Oak Lawn announced that 41 members of the 2007 senior class have been named Illinois State Scholars by the Illinois Student Assistance Commission.

Roughly 10 percent of the state's high school seniors earn this recognition each year. In order to earn Illinois State Scholar honors, students must: attend an Illinois State recognized high school; be a United States citizen or an eligible noncitizen; be a resident of Illinois; take the ACT, SAT I, or Prairie State Achievement Exam during the third or fourth semester prior to graduation from high school (typically between September 1 and June 30 of the junior year); rank in the top one-half of his or her high school class at the end of the third semester prior to graduation from high school (typically as a junior in their sixth semester); and graduate from high school during the academic year in which the student is selected as a State Scholar.

Pryme Tymers Church Meeting

The Pryme Tymers, an active fellowship that meets at Trinity Church, 9230 S. Pulaski Rd., invites the entire community to their meeting on Thursday, Feb. 22nd at 11 a.m. Abraham Lincoln and his wife, Mary Todd (Max and Donna Daniels from Wheaton), will reenact, in costume, the dramatic last days of the President's life. This is a must-see for everyone celebrating Presidents Month. At noon, a corned beef and cabbage luncheon, prepared by Chef Pitluck, will be served. The cost is only $6 and reservations are required.

Call the church office at (708) 422-5111 or Tom Panush at (708) 636-7548 by Friday, Feb. 16th. Transportation is provided upon request. Canned goods are also collected for the Salvation Army Food Pantry.

Jaber Announces Candidacy

Certified financial planner Rafeeq Jaber announced his candidacy for the Ridgeland School District 122 Board of Education on Tuesday, Feb. 8th outlining his goals to save neighborhood schools, improve education for our children, and improve communication with parents.

"Those who know me best and know my track record when it comes to community activism have encouraged me to run for the school board. They are concerned about the direction our schools are going," Jaber said. "Many people are worried about the state of District 122 schools, which have been plunged into poor financial standing because of irresponsible past decisions. The future quality of our children's education is at stake."

Jaber said he would draw on his vast experience as a community volunteer and activist as well as his expertise in financial planning to help steer District 122 down the path to a brighter future. Furthermore, he wants to draw on the true backbone of any educational system — the parents.

As a member of the Board of Education, Jaber said he would continue talking to residents in the community to find solutions to the district's current financial difficulties and improve the quality of education for children. Jaber wants to use his experience as a certified financial planner to analyze the district's spending and cut unnecessary spending. His focus would begin with cuts to administrative operational costs and Board of Education expenses such as administrative overhead, traveling and conference expenses, and discretionary spending. Jaber opposes grade centers because of their potential to hurt the quality of education while also dismantling the neighborhood schools that many families enjoy.

As a community resident who has vast experiences working with elected officials, Jaber wants to make sure parent input is considered. He proposes using technology to make it easier for parents to communicate with the board. He also proposes frequently meeting with community residents who are concerned about issues facing our neighborhood schools.

"Residents face tough choices in the next couple months," Jaber said. "This election will be about improving the educational quality of our children, restoring fiscal responsibility to the budget, and strengthening our local neighborhood schools. We are all going to have to face tough choices and the board needs to lead by example to help put our fiscal house in order."

Jaber is an independent certified financial planner who is a small business owner. He is the father of three children, all of whom graduated from Columbus Manor School where he also participated as a PTA member.

Veterans And Soldiers News

By Lori Taylor Ph: 708.388.2425

Hi, I'm getting around better with the walker or cane, but still going to physical therapy twice a week. Next week I'll see the doctor, have X-rays, etc. and approval to drive and go back to work, I hope. I don't think we appreciate being able to drive and being independent until we have to rely on others to help us with normal things and to get us around. Thanks to everyone who has helped me these last few weeks, I'm really very grateful.

Brian Maxwell, 35, of Oak Lawn was promoted to Lt. Commander in the U.S. Navy on Oct. 1, 2006. He joined the Navy in 1990 and became an officer when he graduated from officers' training school in 1995. Brian finished post-graduate Naval School in Monterey, California where he received a Bachelor of Science degree in Logistics. Brian is now stationed in Hawaii and will possibly be going to Iraq in June. He has already been on duty there four times. Brian and his wife Joanne have a daughter Samantha who is a sophomore in high school in Hawaii. He is the son of William and Linda Maxwell of Oak Lawn. Brian graduated from high school in 1988 in Tucson, Arizona.

Army Spec. Ryan T. Grant has graduated from Basic Combat Training at Fort Knox, Kentucky. He is the son of Anina and stepson of Brian McSweeney of Sarasota, Florida and son of Tim Grant of Palos Heights. Grant received a Master's degree in 2006 from Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tennessee.

Air Force Airman Joshua J. Reusnow has graduated from basic military training at Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Texas. In addition, airmen who complete basic training earn credits toward an associate degree through the Community College of the Air Force. Reusnow is a 2006 graduate of Evergreen Park High School in Evergreen Park.

Army Reserve Pvt. Michael W. Mitchell has graduated from Basic Combat Training at Fort Knox, Kentucky. He is the son of Michael Mitchell of Alsip. Mitchell is a 2005 graduate of Shepard High School in Palos Heights.

Air Force Airman Samantha K. Pronobis has graduated from basic military training at Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Texas. She is the daughter of James and Beverly Pronobis of Burbank and sister of Melanie Scanlan of Romeoville, Ill. Pronobis is a 2006 graduate of Reavis High School in Burbank.

The old Nimitz Hotel in Fredericksburg will reopen as the Admiral Nimitz Museum on Sunday, Feb. 25th. The three-million-dollar renovation, begun in 2004, provided all new exhibits for the museum, the restoration of the Grand Ballroom and the creation of a new Education Center. The Nimitz Museum is part of the National Museum of the Pacific War complex. The dedication ceremony coincides with the 122nd anniversary of the birth of Fleet Admiral Nimitz in Fredericksburg.

The National Museum of the Pacific War, a Texas Historical Commission property operated by the Admiral Nimitz Foundation located in Fredericksburg, Texas, is the only institution in the continental United States dedicated exclusively to telling the story of the Pacific Theater battles of World War II. The Center, located on a six-acre site, includes the George Bush Gallery, Admiral Nimitz Museum, Plaza of Presidents, Veterans' Walk of Honor and Memorial Wall, Japanese Garden of Peace, Pacific Combat Zone, and the Center for Pacific War Studies. The rededication ceremony will take place at 1 p.m. on the 18th and groundbreaking is scheduled for this spring.

Hometown-Murray VFW will hold an "Italian Nite" on Saturday, Feb. 24th from 4 to 8 p.m. at the post home, 9092 Main St. in Hometown. You will have a choice of spaghetti with meatballs/sausage or shrimp scampi; salad, bread and hutter, and dessert for $5 per person. Proceeds will help defray the cost of holiday baskets for the needy, care packages to the troops, assistance to military families and other programs. Carry-outs are available. For more information, call (708) 422-9800.

"The Pointe at Kilpatrick" held its annual "Sweetheart Dance" on Valentine's Day. Entertainment was provided by Joey Labriola of Bandstand Karaoke. We wish to thank volunteers from Stone Church and Mother McAuley High School.

Residents Alice Horton, Rita Spisak, Pearl Rajca, Mary Kleczowski, Margaret Clifton, Tony Liberatore, Mary Burke, Carl Jorse, Georgia Batchos, Pam LaPorte, Therese Heimann and Patricia Griffin made handmade Valentine's for "Operation Support Our Troops" in Naperville. They made approximately 65. As always, "The Pointe" would like to build a strong volunteer program. Varied duties would be assisting with ice cream socials, one-on-one visits, a craft session weekly or monthly, helping with men's club and more. Any interested parties may contact Kimberly J. Kogiones, program director, at (708) 293-0010. Ext. 212.

Good-bye until next week. God bless you and your family and God bless America!

New Internet Crimes Unit Web Site Dedicated

As part of his aggressive plan to fight Internet crime and protect families and communities from sexual predators, Governor Rod R. Blagojevich launched the new Illinois State Police (ISP) Internet Crimes Unit (ICU) Web site, www.isp.state.il.us/icu. The Web site will serve as a "one-stop-shop" for answers to questions or concerns regarding Internet safety or crime. The new site also provides law enforcement the tools and resources needed to fight Internet crime. While the Internet has many useful applications, it also affords new opportunities for criminals and sexual predators.

"Children can spend hours on the Internet each day - learning and exploring. But, while they're online, they're prime targets for predators. That's why we created a new Internet Crimes Unit at the State Police that approaches Internet crime the same way we approach organized crime, narcotics and other major crimes," said Gov. Blagojevich. "This new Web site is another weapon in our arsenal against Internet criminals. It gives the public a place to report suspicious online behavior. It also provides parents the opportunity to get more information on Internet crime and how to keep their children safe."

The Governor's plan has four main components: creating a centralized Internet Crimes Unit (ICU) under Illinois State Police authority, increasing penalties of Internet crime, designing the ICU Web site to serve as a "One-Stop-Shopping" center where the public can report suspicious online behavior and get information about Internet crime and safety, using the most advanced law enforcement technology available. In addition, the ISP has entered into a partnership with NetSmartz and is putting state police officers into school classrooms around the state to teach kids how to be safe and smart on the Internet.

The ICU is comprised of ten officers, seven computer forensic investigators, and eight crime analysts. This makes the Illinois ICU one of the nation's largest state teams dedicated to fighting Internet crimes. The goal is to create a unique enforcement group capable of educating the public, gathering information from the private sector, coordinating investigations with other bodies and agencies of law enforcement, de-conflicting investigative efforts, researching crime, proactively searching the Web for criminal activity, and then performing the required forensic work to further investigative efforts and assist prosecutors in jailing offenders.

The ICU serves as a point of contact for the general public, schools, and the law enforcement community for all questions/concerns regarding Internet safety or crimes like identity theft, financial fraud, and terrorism. The unit also serves as the initial point of contact for citizen inquiries; a repository for public safety information; provides statewide deconfliction for investigations; and offers criminal intelligence analysis for law enforcement agencies and computer evidence recovery for investigations and trial preparation.

Direct links to the Web site will be placed on all state Web pages so the public can easily report a crime to the Internet Crimes Unit. A toll-free number has also been established for the public: 1-888-70-CRIME (1-888-702-7463).

National Salute To Hospitalized Veterans

In conjunction with the 29th annual observance of the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs' National Salute to Hospitalized Veterans, Governor Rod R. Blagojevich issued a proclamation declaring Feb. 12th to 18th as National Salute to Hospitalized Veterans Week in Illinois. The Governor encouraged Illinoisans to visit local hospitalized veterans this week to say thank you for the sacrifices they made for our country. The Governor also urged Illinoisans to learn about volunteer opportunities at medical facilities around the state.

This week at VA medical centers, nursing homes, state veterans homes, and other facilities across the nation, celebrities, youth groups, members of the general public, and veterans service organizations will visit hospitalized veterans to honor those who have contributed to the defense of our nation and the protection of our freedoms. Gov. Blagojevich and Illinois Department of Veterans' Affairs Acting Director L. Tammy Duckworth encouraged Illinoisans of all ages to join in this worthy observance and visit the state's veterans.

The annual observance occurs during the week of Valentine's Day because it is a perfect time to communicate feelings of affection and express sentiments of care and respect for loved ones, friends and those we admire. Hundreds of thousands of Valentine's Day cards addressed "Dear Veteran" have been sent to hospitalized veterans over the years.

Illinois is home to 36 veteran hospitals, including seven hospitals located in Chicago. For a full list, visit www.OperationHomefront.org.

January Warmer, Wetter

Despite the recent cold spell, statewide January temperatures of 29.5 degrees were 4.7 degrees above normal, and precipitation of 3 inches was 1.07 inches above normal, based on preliminary data. Temperatures were well above normal the first half of January (12.7 degrees above) and slightly below normal the second half (2.8 degrees below). January marked the third consecutive month with above normal temperatures; November-January temperatures were 4.2 degrees above normal, the 7th warmest such period on record since 1895.

Statewide, January heating degree days (HDDs), a measure of home heating demand, were 12 percent below normal - 1099 HDDs statewide compared to the 1247 HDD normal. For the 2006-07 heating season, beginning July 1st through Jan. 31st, statewide HDDs were 8 percent below normal and averaged 3195 HDDs, compared to the 3458 HDD normal.

The National Weather Service outlook for February-March calls for an increased chance of temperatures above normal across Illinois and precipitation below normal.

Tips To Use Less Electricity

With the recent expiration of the ten-year electric rate freeze and projected average electric bill increasing 22-25%, there is light at the end of the tunnel, thanks to Clean Air Counts, a program of the Chicago Metropolitan Mayors Caucus.

What was created as a program to reduce air pollution in the six-county Metropolitan Chicago region, "Clean Air Counts" offers new tips (see them at www.cleanaircounts.org) to electric consumers that will help them find ways to use less electricity. For example, Clean Air Counts participant Windsor Park Manor, a 200-bed retirement home in Carol Stream, has saved more than $60,000 with more energy efficient lighting as part of the Clean Air Counts program.

"Clean Air Counts is a voluntary program for businesses and consumers to reduce pollution by adopting energy efficiency and low-VOC strategies," explained Kate Agasie, Environmental Director with the Metropolitan Mayors Caucus. "But individuals and companies adopting energy efficient strategies also derive cost savings by reducing their electricity consumption."

"Windsor Park Manor is an excellent example of a significant cost savings created by switching to energy efficient lighting. Their efforts also resulted in a reduction in air pollution emissions of nearly 11,000 pounds," Agasie said. "Other health care facilities, office buildings, manufacturing facilities and homeowners have also had similar experiences."

Windsor Park Manor was able to reduce their energy usage by replacing old incandescent light bulbs with fluorescent light bulbs. Not only did this save energy, but also changing to energy efficient light bulbs reduced pollution by 10,914.87 lbs. In total they replaced 1,583 light bulbs. These lights included wall sconces, overhead lights and table lamps.

Another example is Glenbrook Hospital in Glenview, which reduced its electricity consumption from lighting to 320,000 from 650,000 kilowatt hours in 2005 by changing the light bulbs and fixtures throughout its facility. It also expects to generate additional savings by installing daytime light sensors that will automatically adjust lighting levels based upon the amount of natural light available during the daytime. Both of these strategies are part of the recommendations suggested by Clean Air Counts.

Clean Air Counts Energy Saving Tips: Use Occupancy Sensors in bathrooms, kitchens, locker rooms, file rooms and other small rooms. This can reduce energy usage by 45%. Replace incandescent and less efficient light bulbs with compact fluorescent and other more efficient light bulbs. Compact fluorescent light bulbs use at least 2/3 less energy than standard incandescent bulbs to provide the same amount of light, and last up to 10 times longer. Take advantage of daylight: well designed spaces that take advantage of daylight use 50-80% less energy.

Clean Air Counts offers more detailed suggestions and technical advice to individual and companies interested in exploring energy efficient strategies and other pollution reduction strategies through its website at www.CleanAirCounts.org.

Clean Air Counts is a project of the Metropolitan Mayors Caucus and is made possible through the support of the Grand Victoria Foundation, The John D. And Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation, Gaylord and Dorothy Donnelley Foundation, The Searle Funds at The Chicago Community Trust, and the United States Environmental Protection Agency.

Investigate Unlawful Labor Agencies

Governor Rod R. Blagojevich announced that the State has achieved major results in its efforts to protect day and temporary laborers from abuses by unlawful agencies. In the first year after the amendments to the Day and Temporary Labor Services Act went into effect, the Illinois Department of Labor (IDOL) has investigated 104 day and temporary labor agencies, finding 36 in violation of the law, and collecting $60,750 in penalties for registration violations. IDOL is also in the process of collecting an additional $21,266 in back wages for minimum wage and overtime violations.

The Governor signed an amendment to the Day and Temporary Labor Services Act in 2005 to impose stiffer penalties against those who disregard the law's registration, notice and recordkeeping requirements or fail to provide workers with fair working conditions.

IDOL enforces the Act to ensure compliance with basic labor laws within the day and temporary labor industry and to ensure agencies register with the state. The Department reports that approximately 235 day and temporary labor agencies with 689 locations are now registered with the state - a 24% increase in the number of labor agencies registered with the state since the new law went into effect. In addition, the Department's Day Labor Hotline handled nearly 200 complaint calls in 2006.

The new law allows IDOL to impose a $500 penalty against a day and temporary labor agency for each day it is not registered. The Department may fine first-time violators up to $6,000 for all violations found and repeat violators up to $2,500 per violation per day. The new law also requires third-party employers that contract with day and temporary labor agencies to verify that they are registered with IDOL, or they may face monetary fines. To avoid such penalties, employers should review the list of agencies registered with the state on the Department's website before entering into a contract with any day and temporary labor service agency at www.state.il.us/agency/idol. If you are a day or temporary laborer and are a victim of unfair working conditions, call the Day and Temporary Labor Services Hotline at (877) 314-7052 to file a complaint in English or Spanish or log on to the Department's website.

Inducted Into Hall Of Fame

The Girls Catholic Athletic Conference has announced that Jen Rees DeJarld (pictured), Mother McAuley Class of 1987 will be inducted into their Hall of Fame for 2007. Jen played on McAuley's volleyball team during all four of her years at McAuley and then attended University of Iowa where she was a starting player. DeJarld returned to McAuley to join the volleyball program where she coached the lower level and then as assistant varsity coach with then Head Coach Naney Pedersen. Pedersen endorsed DeJarld as her replacement upon her retirement from coaching. As head coach, Jen has captured the third place crown in the State of Illinois in 2005. This year her team was a Sweet Sixteen finalist in the state. On her induction Jen said "I am honored to be part of the GCAC Hall of Fame. I have been a member of the GCAC since 1983 as a player and now as coach"

The ceremonies will be held on Sunday, March 18th at Monastero's Ristorante & Banquets in conjunction with the 32nd Anniversary dinner of the formation of the Girls' Catholic Athletic Conference. Tickets are $30 per person. Contact Rosaria Cicchetti, ticket coordinator with questions at rcicchetti@Trinityhs.org.

Semiconductor Price-Fixing Conspiracy

Attorney General Lisa Madigan announced a $90 million nationwide settlement with Samsung Semiconductor, Inc. and Samsung Electronics Company Ltd. ("Samsung"), resolving allegations that Samsung, in conjunction with other major computer chip manufacturers, agreed to fix prices of Dynamic Random Access Memory (DRAM). Thirty-seven other state attorneys general joined in this settlement with Illinois.

If approved by the court, the proceeds of the settlement will be paid as restitution to the consumers and governmental agencies that paid more for computers, servers and other electronic devices because of price-fixing of DRAM chips. Under the settlement terms, Samsung also has agreed to strong injunctive relief that will require the company to refrain from conduct that could substantially lessen competition and to cooperate with the states in prosecuting co-conspirators. Additionally, the settlement includes up to $1 million to reimburse the states for legal costs. Illinois consumers' share of the settlement will be determined at a later date.

"This settlement again underscores that companies who choose to conspire rather than compete will be called to account for their actions," said Madigan. "Higher prices for the computer chips, which were the subject of this conspiracy, affect individuals, businesses and government agencies and the settlement we are announcing is a first step toward remedying the significant injury caused by this price fixing."

Illinois and the other states continue to pursue a lawsuit in the U.S. District Court in San Francisco, seeking damages, restitution, civil penalties and injunctive relief for consumers and governmental agencies who paid higher prices for electronics from 1997-2002 as a result of alleged price-fixing by at least seven more companies including Elpida, Hynix, Infineon, Micron Technologies, Mosel Vitelic, Nanya and NEC. The states' suit arose from a multi-state investigation that began in 2004, following a federal criminal investigation that exposed a scheme where DRAM manufacturers profited at the expense of consumers in the computer and electronics industry.

The states' complaint lays out the details of the conspiracy, including an agreement by industry leaders to trim production to artificially raise prices. According to the states' complaint, the defendants violated federal and state antitrust laws by coordinating prices they charged for DRAM.

As background, in June 2002, the U.S. Department of Justice launched a criminal investigation into what officials have called "one of the largest cartels ever discovered." Micron agreed to cooperate with investigators in exchange for amnesty from federal criminal charges. Samsung, Hynix, Infineon, Elpida and numerous individuals have pled guilty to federal criminal price-fixing charges and collectively paid more than $730 million in fines.

In agreeing to this settlement, Samsung does not admit to a violation of the law.

Saint Thomas More Parish Mission

On March 1st, 2nd and 3rd, Saint Thomas More Parish will give its annual Parish Mission. Fr. Richard Simon will be preaching at the 7 p.m. masses on Thursday and Friday evening and on Saturday morning at the 8:30 a.m. mass. Renowned convert to Catholicism from the Jewish faith, Rosaline Moss, will give two talks beginning at 10:30 a.m.: "The Triune God of Abraham" and "God's Will for the Family: How to Live it."

Tickets for the Rosaline Moss portion of the mission are $20 each; an optional $6 box lunch is available by advance reservation only. Free admission to the masses and the special talks given by Fr. Simon.

For more information or to reserve tickets, contact the Rectory Office at (773) 436-4444.

Energy Efficiency Improvement Program

The Metropolitan Chicago Healthcare Council (MCHC) announced its Energy Efficiency Improvement Program to help metropolitan Chicago area hospitals battle the rising cost of energy.

"The primary goal in this pilot program is to deliver a comprehensive set of services that will significantly improve our member hospital's energy efficiency and overall energy management practices," said Rich Palmer, director of Facilities at MCHC.

According to a nationwide survey of hospitals by Health Facilities Management and the American Society for Healthcare Engineering, one in six hospitals reported an annual energy cost increase of more than 25 percent.

MCHC estimates the 11 participating hospitals spend in excess of $12 million annually in energy costs.

The program will improve each hospital's energy efficiency by applying energy cost reduction measures and improving operating practices. The MCHC estimates that participating hospitals will save more than $600,000 per year in energy costs. The goal of the program is to improve energy efficiency by two percent to ten percent in each hospital.

"Fundamentally, this is a leadership-driven initiative in which we have engaged senior executive sponsorship to help drive maximum success within the participating hospitals," said Kevin Scanlan, MCHC president and chief executive officer.

The Illinois Clean Energy Community Foundation (ICECF), a foundation that provides financial support to non-profit organizations, awarded MCHC with a $160,000 grant to aid their efforts. MCHC plans to donate more than $200,000 to the new program.

MCHC will work in conjunction with the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's (EPA) "Energy Star Challenge," a program that encourages building owners to make energy efficiency improvements to their property in an effort to reduce energy use by 10 percent or more.

Through the Operational Energy Efficiency Work Group, MCHC will share the pilot program's most successful energy efficient practices to all interested MCHC members. The work group will meet quarterly to discuss lessons learned and to roll out the EPA's Energy Star Portfolio Manager for benchmarking.

ICECF provides financial support and assistance to 501(c)(3) non-profit organizations and state and local government agencies for programs and projects that benefit the public by improving energy efficiency, developing renewable energy resources and supporting projects and programs intended to preserve or enhance the natural habits and wildlife areas of the state. The foundation was established through an endowment from Commonwealth Edison in December 1999.

The Metropolitan Chicago Healthcare Council is a membership and service association comprising more than 140 hospitals and health care organizations working together, since 1935, to improve the delivery of health care services in the greater metropolitan Chicago area. More information is available on the MCHC web site at www.mchc.org.

Reducing Dependence On Printing Paper Forms

The Illinois Dept. of Human Services (IDHS) is saving at least $100,000 a month in printing costs through the use of electronic "E-forms." E-forms are electronic versions of forms enabling IDHS to drastically reduce the amount of paper it uses while at the same time cutting costs for storage and shipping.

An E-form can be filled in and saved by DHS staff on the computer. These forms retain all the information typed by the person completing these forms. The forms can then be printed or emailed to other offices. IDHS currently has more than 200 forms published on the Internet.

E-forms make it possible for IDHS to keep forms up to date electronically, rather than have to print out new forms and throw away old, outdated forms. This also ensures that customers will have access to current forms. In the past if a customer filled out an outdated form it could result in a delay in much-needed benefits.

The Smart Forms program, which is used in IDHS local offices by human service caseworkers, is saving each caseworker an average of over 1 hour a day. These forms auto-populate based on database information stored by IDHS. This saves the caseworker the time of having to manually fill in all information on each form.

IDHS continues to work closely with Illinois Dept. of Central Management Services (CMS), the agency that manages the state's computer networks, on this initiative. CMS procured, licensed and coordinated the installation of the application software that allows all governmental entities in the state to use these electronic forms.

IDHS, the state's largest agency, serves more than 1.5 million people annually with an annual budget of nearly $5 billion. IDHS works to improve the quality of life of thousands of Illinois families. The agency provides an array of comprehensive, coordinated services through community health and prevention programs; services for persons with developmental disabilities, mental illness, or substance abuse problems; employment training; and financial support, child care and other family services for low-income families.

Discuss Suburban Transit Priorities

U.S. Sen. Dick Durbin (D-IL) met with Metra Board Chairwoman Carole Doris and Executive Director Phil Pagano to discuss a number of priorities important to the transit line including expansion, improvement and funding.

"A recent study showed that traffic in the Chicago area was among the most congested in the country," said Durbin. "With gasoline prices at an all time high, more people rely on the public transit system as a means of transportation. The improvements we discussed today will allow Metra to keep up with the increase in ridership demands while ensuring the long-term viability of the system."

Durbin noted that Metra makes 300 thousand trips per weekday; about 7 million passenger trips per month on 11 commuter lines - an increase of 7% from 2004 to 2006. With the increase in ridership, Durbin and the members of Metra discussed the need for two new lines. The proposed STAR Line will connect 100 communities in 55 miles of track and allow people to travel in an arc from O'Hare to Hoffman Estates to Naperville to Joliet. The proposed Southeast line would link 20 under-served areas connecting downtown Chicago to Crete and Balmoral Park.

Durbin also stressed the need for improvements to two existing lines, the UP-NW Line and the UP-West Line. The UP-NW Line is Metra's longest serving line currently serving 72 communities, running from Ogolvie Center in Chicago to Harvard. Upgrading this line would allow for an increase from 63 to 74 in the number of trains and would include new rail yards to boost train capacity. Growing population demands have increased the need for service on the UP-West Line which runs 44 miles from Ogolvie Center to Elburn and serves 62 communities in Kane, DuPage and western Cook counties. The planned project would expand the number of daily trains from 59 to 80 and would fix the most congested bottleneck in Chicago.

At the meeting, Durbin also discussed the need for transit funding for the Chicago area. Last year, Durbin secured $2 million from the SAFETEA bill for the Northern Illinois Commuter Transportation Initiative study, which would look into the expansion of Metra to Rockford. The service would help alleviate the heavy congestion on I-90; almost 100,000 cars travel daily on I-90 between Rockford and the growing Chicago suburbs.

Marist Will Induct Hall Of Fame Members

Marist High School will induct four members into the school's esteemed athletic Hall of Fame on Saturday, March 3.

The alumni inductees for 2007 are standout football defenseman Brian Liston '79 (Hinsdale) and track star Marty Manzke '87 (Orland Park). Retired coaches Ray Balcarcel (Orland Park) and Don Kuehner (Lansing) will also be inducted. Balcarcel's 33 year coaching career at Marist included track, football and boxing. Kuehner, who spent 36 years at the school, was a decorated baseball coach.

The group will be inducted at a dinner held at the school. The cost is $100 per person and includes cocktails at 6 p.m. followed by dinner. Sponsorships are also available. Contact Liz Brennan for more information at (773) 881-5365 or brennan.liz@marist.net.

Marist's Hall of Fame started in 1990 and currently boasts 57 members who made an indelible mark on Marist's athletic history.

Celebrating over 40 years of excellence, Marist High School is a Catholic, college preparatory school educating young men and women in heart, mind, and body.

Roll Over College Funds

Parents who watch their children's college funds with nervous anticipation of stock market fluctuations may want to consider moving those funds into a more secure college savings option like College Illinois! Through April 24th, the state's 529 prepaid tuition plan is offering a rebate to parents and grandparents who roll over funds from another qualified college savings plan.

Some parents may not be comfortable with riskier investment strategies that keep them guessing about how much money will be available when their child's college freshman orientation rolls around. Because College Illinois! acts like an insurance policy that protects participants from future tuition fluctuation, the plan takes the guesswork out of predicting college costs by allowing parents and grandparents to lock in a price now to cover future college tuition and fees.

"There are no tax implications when money from qualified 529 plans, Coverdell Education Savings Accounts and certain series U.S. Savings Bonds is rolled over to the College Illinois! programs," said Randy Erford, director of College Illinois!. "The convenient rollover option and rebate provides an opportunity for more families to enjoy the peace of mind that comes with maintaining control over rising tuition costs," said Erford.

Parents and grandparents can initiate a rollover by completing a rollover form available at collegeillinois.com. Upon receipt of funds, College Illinois! will rebate the application fee for the first contract purchased. For eligibility and specific requirements, interested individuals should visit collegeillinois.com and click on the "Rollover Express Rebate" link.

There are tax advantages to participating in the College Illinois! program. In addition to a state tax deduction of up to $20,000 on contributions made to the plan (excluding rollovers from other Illinois 529 plans), plan earnings are also 100 percent exempt from federal and state income taxes. Purchasers also enjoy federal gift tax benefits up to $12,000 per year and estate tax benefits.

Administered by the Illinois Student Assistance Commission, College Illinois! is a secure college funding option because benefits do not fluctuate with the stock market. Program benefits keep pace with the increases in tuition and fees equal to those found at in-state, public institutions. Participants can purchase from one semester at a community college to nine semesters at a public university using various payment options, including monthly and annual installments and down payment options. When a beneficiary is ready to go to school, he or she can choose to attend college anywhere because benefits can be used not only in Illinois public universities and community colleges, but at public and private institutions nationwide as well.

Since the program's inception in 1998, an estimated 27,000 families have purchased more than 53,000 prepaid tuition contracts with a value of more than $1 billion. College Illinois! is secured by the state of Illinois. The program's Trust Fund is managed by professional money managers, subject to oversight by the program's Investment Advisory Panel and the Illinois Student Assistance Commission.

College Illinois! is open for enrollment through April 24th. For more information about College Illinois!, or to initiate a rollover, visit collegeillinois.com or call (877) 877-3724.

Alderman Edward M. Burke To Receive Shield Of Saint Xavier

Saint Xavier University will host its 22nd annual President's Scholarship Ball at the Field Museum on Saturday, April 21. This year, Edward M. Burke, longtime Chicago alderman, will be honored with the Shield of Saint Xavier for his commitment to service and generosity to Chicago's Catholic institutions.

"The Shield of Saint Xavier represents the University's highest distinction," said Saint Xavier University President Judith A. Dwyer, Ph.D., in her letter of invitation to Burke. "It is awarded to individuals who have demonstrated extraordinary commitment and service to the greater Chicago community. We believe that by your generosity to so many institutions, including this University, your life and achievements exemplify the ideals of Saint Francis Xavier, Mother Catherine McAuley and the Sisters of Mercy."

Burke, 63, has served Chicago's 14th Ward for more than 35 years. A recognized expert on city budget matters, Burke is the chairman of the City Council Finance Committee and is responsible for all legislative matters pertaining to the city's finances, including municipal bonds, taxes and revenue matters. Known as the "Dean of the City Council," Burke became 14th Ward Democratic Committeeman in 1968 and alderman in 1969. He also served as a Chicago police officer from 1965 to 1968. He is married to Anne Burke, the newest member of the Illinois Supreme Court and a former Saint Xavier trustee.

The President's Scholarship Ball will be the capstone event to a yearlong series of activities marking Saint Xavier's 160th year as the "First in Chicago" serving the educational needs of the community. The ball has raised millions of dollars for the President's Scholarship Program, which provides financial support to Saint Xavier's most deserving students.

Ball guests will enjoy a cocktail reception at 6:30 p.m., followed by dinner and dancing to the Ron Bedal Orchestra. The black-tie event is open to the public, and reservations are $160 per person. Anyone interested in making reservations should call (773) 298-3311 or e-mail speialevents@sxu.edu with "President's Scholarship Ball" in the subject line.

For the fourth consecutive year, LaSalle Bank N.A. is to be the presenting sponsor of the President's Scholarship Ball. Other major underwriters to date include American Airlines, Chicago Mercantile Exchange, McDonough and Associates, and Henry Bros. Co. Tables are available for corporate sponsorship by contacting Sara Miller-Acosta, director of development, at (773) 298-3322.

Red Cross Response Increases

The 4-11 fire in County Club Hills on Feb. 5th marks the 684th fire that the American Red Cross of Greater Chicago has responded to since July. The number represents a 25% increase in response from the same date a year ago when the chapter had responded to 538 incidents. On the weekend of Feb. 2-4 alone the Greater Chicago Red Cross responded to 21 fires, twice as many as a typical weekend.

The majority of local disasters that occur in Chicago are home fires. While the Red Cross does not track the cause of the fires, it knows that many factors including the unusually cold weather contribute to the increase, said LaForice Nealy, Chief Response Officer of the Greater Chicago Chapter. Disaster assistance provided by the American Red Cross of Greater Chicago may include food, clothing, shelter, mental health counseling and prescription drug/eyeglass replacement. As disaster response increases so does the need for volunteers and financial support. Nealy added.

All Red Cross disaster assistance is free, made possible by voluntary gifts of time and money from the American people. Those interested in volunteering or making a donation to the American Red Cross of Greater Chicago should call (312) 729-6100 or visit www.chicagoredcross.org for more information.

The American Red Cross of Greater Chicago serves more than 8.3 million people in Cook, DuPage, Kane, Kendall, Lake, McHenry and Will counties through the support and generous contributions of individuals, corporations, foundations, and the United Way.

Associate Membership Program Available

Approximately 700,000 Americans have disabilities related to the spinal cord including spinal cord injuries, multiple sclerosis, polio, spina bifida, and amyotrophic lateral sclerosis (Lou Gehrig's disease). Since 1946, United Spinal Association has been committed to enhancing the lives of individuals with spinal cord disabilities, free of charge, through various outreach activities, services and programs.

United Spinal is now introducing an exciting new initiative through an Associate Membership program. This offering will reach out to the larger community of people impacted by spinal cord injuries and disorders. "With our Associate Membership program we're inviting family members, caregivers, advocates, and community and business leaders to join the United Spinal family," said Marlene Harmon-Perkins, Director of Outreach & Member Programs. "The criterion for Associate Membership is simple—anyone who believes in and wants to support the mission of United Spinal Association. We welcome everyone who shares our commitment to enhancing the lives of individuals with spinal cord injuries and disorders."

For an annual donation of $25, Associate Members will receive United Spinal's popular e-newsletter, United Spinal Today; access to the Association's full-service travel agency, ABLE to Travel www.abletotravel.org and access to the Nationwide Roadside Assistance program of the American Drivers Alliance Auto Club. "The $25 annual gift from Associate members will be used to support training and outreach programs; advocacy campaigns, sports and recreational programs, and more," Harmon-Perkins said.

As an added bonus, Associate members can also receive United Spinal's monthly membership magazine Action for an additional $14 above the $25 tax-deductible donation. Associate members will receive Action's timely, lively, and informative articles and editorials on life with a spinal cord disability.

To apply for Associate Membership, please visit www.unitedspinal.org or call the Membership Department at (800) 404-2898, ext. 222, an e-mail can also be sent to deallino@unitedspinal.org. For more information about membership and other programs and services offered by United Spinal, please visit www.unitedspinal.org.

United Spinal Association is a national membership organization for people with spinal cord injuries or disorders (SCI/D). The mission of United Spinal Association is to provide expertise, create access to resources and strengthen hope, thereby enabling people with SCI/D to fulfill their potential as active members of their communities. Membership in United Spinal Association is free and open to all people with SCI/D.

Shannon Is New Labor Director

Governor Rod R. Blagojevich named longtime labor activist and policy advisor Catherine Shannon as his new Director of the Illinois Department of Labor. Her appointment is effective immediately and requires Senate confirmation. Shannon is currently Acting Director as well as Legislative Director of the Department.

For the past 19 years, Shannon has been a leader on labor issues and in state government. She served as Legislative and Political Director of the Illinois AFL-CIO for nine years, as Legislative Director of the Illinois Federation of Teachers, and on the research and appropriations staff of House Speaker Michael Madigan.

As the Legislative and Political Director of the Illinois AFL-CIO, Shannon drafted and promoted legislation to improve the pay and working conditions of Illinois workers and their families. She was the leading advocate for improvements to Illinois workers' protection laws, including the Prevailing Wage, Equal Pay and Minimum Wage Acts.

Shannon replaces Art Ludwig, who served as IDOL Director from July 2004 through Dec. 2006. Shannon has a bachelor's degree in political science from Northern Illinois University in DeKalb. She lives in Springfield with her husband and two children.

Strategic Directions

The Illinois Art Council (IAC) will work over the next five years to educate a growing number of people in the state about the value of the arts and the role art and creativity can play to strengthen communities and contribute to the education of thousands of Illinois children, according to IAC's Strategic Directions submitted to Governor Rod R. Blagojevich and the General Assembly.

Under the new Strategic Directions for 2007-2012, the IAC will shift from making art accessible to actively engaging Illinoisans of all ages and abilities in arts and culture. By increasing public will for the arts, the IAC hopes to build toward a stronger, more creative, and more connected state. With this goal in mind, the IAC will work over the next five years towards increasing art appreciation throughout communities in Illinois, strengthening the cultural community and their connection to the broader community, increasing educational opportunities for Illinoisans - especially children - in the arts, and better equipping their own organization to anticipate and respond to the needs of the Illinois arts community.

Supporting strategies will address, among other issues, the day-to-day challenges facing individual artists, arts educators, and arts and community organizations in Illinois and new opportunities for the arts and cultural community in the global marketplace.

The IAC developed the plan based upon the findings of a public listening tour, surveys, and assessments of the needs of the arts statewide. The Council and a 21-member Strategic Plan Task Force chaired by Council Member Harper Montgomery began a Public Listening Tour in January of 2006. For four months, information gathering sessions were held in 15 communities and attended by artists, arts educators, arts and community organizations, patrons of the arts, libraries, media outlets, park districts, business leaders, legislators and other government leaders, and members of the general public.

Additional input for the plan was gained through topic-specific discussion groups, an online survey, a news audit, agency grant documentation, and a comprehensive review of local and national studies and reports related to building public support for the arts.

Dates and locations are currently being scheduled to present and discuss the new strategic directions throughout the state at each of the Public Listening Tour arcas. More information will be provided on the Illinois Arts Council website as soon as it is finalized.

The entire plan, as submitted to Governor Blagojevich and the Illinois General Assembly in January, is available online at <http://www.state.il.us/agency/iac/Stratplan1.pdf>. Print copies of the Strategic Directions 2007-2012 are available upon request by contacting Alex A.G. Shapiro, IAC Research, Planning & Marketing at (312) 814-6762 or emailing iac.strategic@illinois.gov.

Challenge Match To Elim

The Coleman Foundation, Inc. announced in November 2006 that they will bestow a gift of $300,000 over three years to Elim Christian Services. The gift is to be used to challenge others to donate toward Elim's Capital Campaign program, as The Coleman Foundation, Inc. will match any gift, up to its pledged $300,000, that is given for this purpose. Both the gifts of The Coleman Foundation, Inc. and those of the private funders who choose to give in response to the matching gift opportunity will be allocated toward three projects defined in Elim's Moving Beyond Capital Campaign program. The specific projects to be funded are: 1) Greater Independence through Assistive Technology, 2) the Functional Ability Center, and 3) the Food Service Center.

As part of Elim's Moving Beyond Capital Campaign, Elim will expand its capacity to provide direct services to 20 more adults with developmental disabilities within the Chicago area. Also, through this program, Elim will be established as a Resource Center of Best Practices, sharing the knowledge accumulated through 59 years of excellence in the care and education of children and adults with developmental disabilities.

The Coleman Foundation, Inc. is a private independent grant-making foundation established in 1951. It specializes in grants for Education, Cancer Care, and Services for the Disabled, with a strong emphasis on programs that encourage independence and self-development for individuals with developmental disabilities. Although this is the first gift given to Elim Christian Services by The Coleman Foundation, Inc., those at the foundation are confident it will be put to good use. Rosa Berardi, Program Manager of The Coleman Foundation, Inc., said, "Although this is the Foundation's first experience with Elim Christian Services, I was most impressed by their willingness to teach others to serve people with developmental disabilities."

High School Students Succeeding

Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich announced that more Illinois high school students than ever are succeeding on college-level Advanced Placement Program (AP) exams, according to the College Board's third annual Advanced Placement Report to the Nation. The Advanced Placement Program is a cooperative educational endeavor between secondary schools and colleges and universities. Participating students gain college-level skills and in many cases earn college credit while they are still in high school.

In 2006, a record number of Illinois high school students - more than 43,700 - took AP exams, compared to just over 17,600 students in 1996. Since 2001, the number of students participating in AP has steadily increased by 17,034 or 63.7 percent.

In addition, a record 76,683 AP tests were taken by college-bound students with nearly 70 percent scoring at the "3" to "5" levels to receive college credit.

That represents a 13.7 percent increase over the number of tests taken in 2005: 67,456. The number of AP exams scored 3 or higher taken has also increased by 19,912 or 59.2 percent since 2001.

The Report shows that more low-income, African-American, and Hispanic or Latino students are taking AP exams. The increase is due in part to a $1.5 million grant awarded in FY 2006 that allowed 28 districts to expand their AP classes and programs. Illinois has also been awarded federal dollars as part of No Child Left Behind to help promote AP classes to low-income students.

The Report uses data from all schools - both public and non-public - that participate in AP to identify schools that are leading the way in AP performance worldwide. Six of Illinois' public and non-public schools were recognized including Illinois Mathematics and Science Academy in Aurora and St. Ignatius College Preparatory in Chicago.

Understanding Credit Scoring

There's a lot of confusion around credit reports and credit scores - what they're used for, how they're calculated and why they're so important if you want to buy a car or house. Lenders, insurers and even employers review your credit history to decide if you're a worthwhile risk, so here's some background information that may help demystify the whole credit scoring process:

Credit bureaus. There are three major credit bureaus: Equifax (www.equifax.com), Experian (www.experian.com) and TransUnion (www.transunion.com). Each tracks how many and what types of credit cards and loans you have, how long your accounts have been open and whether you've paid your bills on time.

Credit report. Upon request from you or a potential lender, a credit bureau will compile a credit report - basically a snapshot of your credit history at that moment. You can order one free credit report a year from each of the three bureaus. (Order through www.annualcreditreport.com; otherwise you'll pay a small fee.) They are required by law to investigate any disputed item and correct inaccuracies.

It's wise to order a free report from one of the bureaus every four months; that way, you'll keep regular, year-round tabs on what's being reported about you. Another tip: If you're planning to borrow to make a major purchase, order your credit reports beforehand so you'll know what lenders will see about your credit history.

It's vital to know what's in your credit reports so you can spot fraudulent activity or errors before they damage your credit standing. For more information on what to do if you suspect identity fraud, go to Practical Money Skills for Life, a free personal financial management site sponsored by Visa USA www.practicalmoneyskills.com/security.

Credit scores. Credit bureaus use information in your credit report to create a three-digit credit score. The higher your score, the better your credit rating is. The most commonly used credit scores are called FICO scores, named for Fair Isaac Corporation (FICO), which developed the proprietary software.

Five factors are used to determine your FICO score: payment history, amount owed, length of credit history, newly opened credit accounts, and types of credit used. Scores take into consideration information in all five categories, both positive and negative, but may weigh them differently depending on your individual circumstances.

When you apply for credit or a loan, lenders evaluate one or more of these bureaus' scores along with their own criteria (which may include income, length of employment or other factors), to determine if you are a worthy credit risk. Your overall credit score may affect not only whether or not you get the loan, but also the amount, term length and interest rate.

The differences between excellent, good, fair and poor credit scores can really add up. For example, someone with a top-notch FICO credit score - say above 720 - might qualify for a mortgage rate one or more percentage points lower than someone with poor credit. For a typical 30-year, $200,000 mortgage, this could add up to an extra $50,000 in interest payments over the life of the loan.

For more information on how credit reports and credit scores work - and to purchase a copy of your score - go to www.myfico.com. Remember, it's always a good idea to know what's in your reports ahead of time so you can correct errors before they harm your credit rating.

Cold Weather Killer

Each year, nearly 5,000 people in the United States are treated in hospital emergency rooms for carbon monoxide (CO) poisoning. This number is, however, believed to be an underestimate of those poisoned because many people exhibiting the symptoms of CO poisoning mistake these symptoms for the flu or are misdiagnosed.

CO poisoning can kill without warning, as your family sleeps. CO gas has no warning properties - you can't smell it, see it, or taste it - even at harmful or life threatening levels. And, since so many deaths occur as the result of defective or poorly operated home heating devices, CO has been termed the "silent cold weather killer."

CO is a colorless, odorless, toxic gas. It is produced by the incomplete combustion of solid, liquid, and gaseous fuels. Appliances fueled with gas, oil, kerosene, or wood may produce CO. If such appliances are not installed, maintained, and used properly, CO may accumulate to dangerous and even fatal levels in cars, homes, or poorly ventilated areas like basements.

CO is produced when fuels are burned, therefore, any fuel-burning appliance in your home is a potential CO source. Electrical heaters and electric water heaters, toasters, etc., do not produce CO under any circumstances. Under normal circumstances, CO should not be detectable in the typical home or workplace.

When fuel-fired appliances are kept in good working condition, they produce very little CO. But improperly operated or improperly vented appliances can produce elevated - or even fatal - CO concentrations in your home. Likewise, using kerosene heaters or charcoal grills indoors, or running a car in a closed garage, can cause levels of CO high enough to result in CO poisoning or even death.

Common sources of CO include the following wood- or gas-fueled appliances: room heaters; furnaces; charcoal grills; cooking ranges; water heaters; automobiles run in closed garages; fireplaces; portable generators; and wood-burning stoves.

Any person or animal in spaces shared with a device capable of generating CO should be considered at risk of CO poisoning. CO exposures especially affect unborn babies, infants, and people with anemia or a history of heart disease. Breathing low levels of the chemical can cause fatigue and increase chest pain in people with chronic heart disease.

Although not always experienced, the initial symptoms of CO poisoning are similar to the flu, but without the fever. They include: dizziness, fatigue, headache, nausea, and irregular breathing.

It is critical to note that death from CO poisoning can occur with some or all of these symptoms never being experienced, in which case the overexposed victim simply falls asleep and never regains consciousness.

Dangerous levels of CO can be prevented by proper appliance maintenance, installation, and use. Timely inspections of potentially CO-producing equipment, and the use of CO toxic level concentration alarms, are also key to avoiding a CO fatality.

Fund Chicago Search And Rescue Team

U.S. Sen. Dick Durbin (D-IL) recently met with Dept. of Homeland Security Secretary Michael Chertoff to ask him to consider Chicago's eligibility for a federally funded search and rescue team. Durbin also discussed the impact of the fiscal year 2008 budget on Illinois' ability to respond to natural disasters and terrorist threats.

"Chicago is the third largest city in the country, yet year after year, we are not included in the 28 cities that receive federal funds for urban search and rescue teams. The State of Illinois has done a tremendous job in funding its own urban search and rescue team, but I expressed my frustration to Secretary Chertoff over the lack of federal support," said Durbin. "Our state deserves to have federal help in fielding these trained and equipped urban search and rescue teams when local resources are overwhelmed."

Currently, there are 28 FEMA-certified urban search and rescue teams that operate as a disaster response task force. The teams operate around the clock, and include engineers, medics and other technical experts, specially trained search dogs and an average of $4.5 million of equipment. The State currently spends approximately $1 million for training each year and has spent $3 million in equipment over the last couple of years in funding its own urban search and rescue team.

In the meeting, Durbin also expressed serious concerns about the impact of the President's FY 2008 budget on Illinois' ability to respond to natural disasters and terrorist threats. The budget the President presented to Congress recently cuts funding for state and local law enforcement assistance by $1.3 billion, dramatically decreases funding for FIRE grants and eliminates the SAFER firefighter-hiring program.

Durbin also raised concerns that the President's budget reduces funding for the FIRE program which provides equipment and training to fire departments in Illinois and across the country to help them prepare and respond to terrorist incidents. Last year, in Illinois, over $13.6 million was awarded to IL fire departments.

The President's budget completely eliminates the SAFER firefighter-hiring program, which provides funding to fire departments to hire additional firefighters and first responders. Last year, $4.4 million was awarded to Illinois fire departments for hiring/recruiting additional firefighters.

Text Message Lawsuit

Attorney General Lisa Madigan recently filed a lawsuit in Federal court in Springfield against C & C Global Enterprises, L.L.C., www.resortsellers.com, Neela Pundit and Charles Rossop, the operators of www.webuyresorts.com and www.resortsellers.com, alleging that they sent millions of unsolicited text messages to Illinois consumers and wireless phones across the country in violation of the federal Telephone Consumer Protection Act and the state Consumer Fraud and Deceptive Business Practices Act.

Beginning on about Nov. 3rd, 2006, Illinois residents began receiving unsolicited text messages alerting them that "We have someone interested in buying or renting your Time Share" and directing the recipient to log on to www.webuyresorts.com or www.resortsellers.com for more information. The web sites vanished from the Internet a few days after consumers began complaining about the unsolicited messages.

Madigan's Consumer Protection Division has received 66 written complaints and 190 complaints by phone from consumers complaining that they received these unsolicited text messages from the defendants.

Blanketing cell phone customers with unsolicited text messages costs consumers. Depending on a consumer's cell phone plan, the consumer either is charged a fee for each message received or her monthly bucket of text messages, for which she pays a monthly fee, is reduced. In addition, receiving and viewing text messages uses precious battery power, which could leave consumers unable to make necessary calls, including emergency calls.

Madigan's lawsuit also raises allegations concerning other aspects of the defendants' business. Specifically, the suit alleges that the defendants' unsolicited text message tells consumers they have a buyer or renter for their time share, but many of the recipients of the unsolicited text message do not own a time share. In addition, Madigan alleges that the defendants accept payment for time-share listing services and then fail to provide the listing. The defendants could not possibly provide the time share listing because they do not request sufficient information from customers to develop a time share sale listing, such as the address of the time share and the unit number, the complaint alleges.

Madigan's lawsuit seeks a nationwide injunction against the defendants, prohibiting them from violating consumer protection laws. In addition, the lawsuit seeks civil penalties of $50,000 and additional civil penalties of $50,000 for each violation of the Consumer Fraud Act found to be committed with the intent to defraud. Madigan also requests that the court order the defendants to pay restitution to affected consumers.

No-Interest Loans Available

Governor Rod R. Blagojevich announced $1.9 million in no-interest loans to help fire departments and fire protection districts purchase much-needed fire trucks. This is the second phase of a loan program that has already helped 63 fire departments obtain new fire trucks.

The Fire Truck Revolving Loan Program, administered by the Office of the State Fire Marshal (OSFM), provides no-interest, 20-year loans to local fire departments and fire protection districts for the purchase of fire trucks. The maximum loan award is $250,000. The loan program was created by legislation signed by Gov. Blagojevich in 2003.

Applications for the loans are available on the OSFM website at www.state.il.us/osfm. The agency also will mail applications to each fire department in Illinois. Applications will be accepted from Feb. 1 through April 15. A nine-member review committee comprising representatives of the banking industry and the fire services will review the applications. Loans will be awarded on the basis of need.

In August 2004, 63 fire departments were selected to receive the initial revolving loans. Payments on those loans go into the revolving loan fund, and will be used for this second round of loans.

Air Quality Report

Air quality in Illinois was either good or moderate 90 percent of the time throughout Illinois in 2005, according to the 35th Annual Air Quality Report, released by the Illinois EPA.

While this is a decrease from the air quality numbers in 2004, it is consistent with the air quality trends the state has experienced in the past. Air quality trends still show air pollution levels well below the standards on a statewide basis.

In 2005, Illinois as well as other Midwestern and Northeastern states experienced one of the most unusual air quality episodes in recent history. For the first time in Illinois, Air Pollution Action Days were called outside of the ozone season, May through September, with three action days being called in February due to elevated levels of fine particulate matter. Scientists determined that a combination of a stagnating regional air mass and combustion of winter fuels region-wide was the main cause of this incident.

This unusual episode provided the Illinois EPA with the opportunity to thoroughly discuss fine particulate matter, which led to additional public education about the causes and health concerns of this pollutant.

"While annual trends show the statewide levels of pollutants well below the federal standards, there are still some areas in Illinois where improvement is still needed," said Illinois EPA Director Doug Scott. "The Illinois EPA continues its commitment to improve air quality throughout the state and the region."

Man Threatened At Oak Lawn Library

An unidentified victim was threatened at the Oak Lawn Library on Tuesday, Feb. 6th. Police reported that the victim was using the computer lab just before noon on Tuesday. It was stated that the victim brushed against another man in the doorway. Apologizing to the man, the victim was threatened.

The victim reportedly went to the second floor of the library and was followed by the man. The victim said that the man repeated the threat and pulled out a silver object that resembled a gun. Both men then fled the scene.

The victim reported the incident to the police on Wednesday. The police are investigating the incident and are trying to find the identity of the man who threatened the patron.

Healthcare Access Campaign

Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich recently announced that Dick Kay, retired TV newscaster from NBC 5 Chicago, will be working with his administration to advocate for increased access to healthcare for all Illinoisans. This spring Gov. Blagojevich will announce a plan to guarantee the estimated 1.4 million uninsured adults in Illinois have access to affordable health insurance.

"Dick Kay shares my beliefs about the clear need to close the growing healthcare gap in our country," said Gov. Blagojevich. "His life experiences and unrivaled ability to relate to people from all walks of life will make him an asset as we communicate the challenges families and small businesses face now, and introduce our plan for expanding access to health coverage. I am honored that he agreed to leave his comfortable retirement to join our campaign for healthcare."

Throughout his 46 years of broadcast experience, Kay was known as a personality people could relate to. He made the abstract policies he covered clear and easy to understand for his viewers, and he identified with the struggles of everyday Illinoisans.

Kay has dealt with the need for healthcare coverage in both his personal and professional life. As a National

Vice-President of the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists (AFTRA) and the former president of the Chicago Local AFTRA, Kay was on the front lines in negotiations for health coverage for union members. As healthcare costs spiraled upward, earnings tests for insurance coverage were raised to keep AFTRA's self-funded plan solvent. With each increase in the earnings test, hundreds of previously covered performers, regardless of age, suddenly found themselves and their families with no health insurance because their earnings were too low to qualify. Many had to leave their chosen careers and find other jobs to pay for private insurance.

As a father, Kay has intimately seen how a lack of insurance can disrupt a life course. Several years ago one of his sons had a medical emergency involving surgery without health insurance; he had to enter a payment plan to cover his medical debts. Today, Kay watches another son, a self-employed professional artist, face denial by health insurance companies. He worries about the odds of his son suffering a debilitating illness followed by debilitating debt from medical bills, and recognizes that these are the fears that 1.4 million uninsured Illinoisans must deal with on a daily basis.

"Healthcare touches our society on so many levels from the uninsured family struck with medical debt, to the small business owner who struggles to cover his employees, to the hospital emergency room doctors that deal with medical catastrophes that yearly checkups could have prevented. Expanded access is a goal worth fighting for, and I am happy to join the governor's efforts," Kay said.

Kay, a graduate of Bradley University in Peoria, worked for various stations in Peoria and Green Bay, Wisconsin before coming to Chicago. At NBC 5, he served as political editor and host of the Sunday morning political show City Desk, retiring May 31st, 2006.

Kay will work with the Blagojevich administration on a contract basis.

Artists Exhibition Opportunities

Artists working in any media are invited to submit exhibition proposals for the Moraine Valley Community College Robert F. DeCaprio Art Gallery's 2007-08 season. The gallery is inside the college's Fine and Performing Arts Center, 9000 W. College Pkwy., Palos Hills, IL, 60465.

All submissions must include a written proposal, resume, artist statement, 20 images in slide or CD format (Mac), image list and a self-addressed, stamped envelope. Send submissions to Meaghan Callan, Gallery director, at the above address by March 30.

If you would like to have additional information, please feel free to call Callan at (708) 974-4231 or e-mail her at allanm6@morainevalley.edu.

Francis Cardinal George Speaks

Francis Cardinal George, O.M.I., Archbishop of Chicago, will speak as part of Saint Xavier University's 160th anniversary Catholic Colloquium lecture series at 7 p.m. Thursday, March 8, in the Butler Reception Room, Warde Academic Center, 3700 W. 103rd St., Chicago. The lecture is free and open to the public.

Cardinal George's lecture is titled "Paradigms of Interpretation: Catholic Universities and Catholic Moral Life." His lecture is the fourth in a five-part series examining what it means to "be in good standing" with the Catholic Church and the challenges facing Catholic universities since the Second Vatican Council, said Mebael O'Keeffe, associate professor of religious studies at Saint Xavier, who helped organize the series.

"In this series, we have invited renowned Catholic scholars to provide theological perspectives that could inform our thinking about social, political and religious issues that did not even exist at the time of the Second Vatican Council in the 1960s," said Sister Susan Sanders, R.S.M., vice president for University Mission and Heritage at Saint Xavier, who also helped organize the event. "When Cardinal George came to Saint Xavier in October 2002, he gave a path-breaking theological perspective on pre-emptive war. I am eager to hear his ideas about the role Catholic universities can play in the moral life of Catholics."

Cardinal George was appointed eighth Archbishop of Chicago in April 1997 and was named Cardinal by Pope John Paul II in January 1998. He is vice president of the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops and a member of the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops Committee on Liturgy and the ad hoc Committee on Shrines. He is the chancellor of the Catholic Church Extension Society and chancellor of the board of advisors of the University of St. Mary of the Lake/Mundelein Seminary. He is a member of the board of trustees of the Catholic University of America, a trustee of the Papal Foundation, a member of the board of directors of the National Bio-ethics Center in Boston, and a member of the board of the Basilica of the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception.

Cardinal George was the only Chicago-born cardinal ever to vote in a papal election, participating in the 2005 conclave that selected Pope Benedict XVI. He served as vicar general of the Oblates of Mary Immaculate in Rome from 1974 to 1986. Since 1990, he has been Episcopal Moderator and a member of the board of the National Catholic Office for Persons with Disabilities.

The lecture series, which is funded in part by Saint Xavier's Office for University Mission and Heritage and a generous contribution from the Lilly Fellows Program, is one of many events to celebrate Saint Xavier University's 160th anniversary. The series also celebrates the 175th anniversary of the founding of the Sisters of Mercy by Mother Catherine McAuley in Dublin, Ireland, in 1831.

For more information about the lecture series, contact Kathy Mareska at (773) 298-3981 or mareska@sxu.edu.

Plunge For Special Olympics

It's not every day that people are willing to "go jump in a lake" - particularly in the winter - let alone do so with thousands of other people, including members of the law enforcement community. But that's exactly what will happen on various weekends in February and March as part of the annual Law Enforcement Torch Run Polar Plunge® to benefit Special Olympics Illinois.

The event has grown from one location in 1999 to 16 locations across the state this year. Six Flags Great America and its Hurricane Harbor is the statewide sponsor of the Polar Plunges. Northern Region Sponsor is National Van Lines.

Any adventurous soul is invited to join law enforcement officers, as well as media and business and civic leaders from their community by donning bathing suits, costumes or any clothing of choice (just no wet suits!) to jump in a lake. Each plunger must collect a minimum of $75 in donations that will be used to support Special Olympics programs in Illinois. All plungers will receive gifts, compete for prizes, and enjoy food and camaraderie with other chilly participants. The more money a plunger raises, the more chances he/she will have to win a trip to Mexico presented by Apple Vacations and Iberostar Paraiso Maya and other grand prizes. For every $500 a plunger raises, he/she will get an entry into the drawing for the grand prizes.

Individuals can register for the plunge on the Special Olympics Illinois website at www.soill.org or by contacting the Special Olympics Illinois staff listed below.

The Illinois Law Enforcement Torch Run is the single largest year-round fundraising event benefiting Special Olympics Illinois. The annual intrastate relay and its various fundraising projects have two goals: to raise money and increase public awareness for the athletes of Special Olympics Illinois. Each year, more than 3,000 officers in Illinois run more than 1,500 miles carrying the Flame of Hope through the streets of their hometowns and deliver it to the State Summer Games in Normal in June.

Spring Lawn Care Presentation

The University of Illinois Extension will hold a Spring Lawn Care Presentation on March 1st at the Extension Office at the Agricultural High School, 3807 W. 111th St., and the Extension Chicago South Office at 8751 S. Greenwood. This presentation is open to the public free of charge.

The main purpose of spring lawn care is to get the grass through the summer. David Robson, Horticulture educator, will provide some tips to help your lawn look great throughout the summer. The presentation will use the University of Illinois Extension "TeleNet" system. This TeleNet program will feature color power point slides accompanied by the live voice of the instructor as people from all over the state participate at once. You will have the chance to ask questions at the end of the program.

Interested parties should call Ronald Wolford at the Chicago South Office at (773) 233-0476 and reserve a seat and packet of information.

Gaelic Park Musical Luncheon

Gaelic Park, 6119 W. 147th St. in Oak Forest, will host the Monthly Musical Luncheon on Wednesday, March 7th beginning at noon and until 4 p.m. For the modest cost of $13, the Musical Luncheon includes a delicious sit-down lunch including dessert, music and dancing to the delightful sounds of Joe McShane. Reservations are required. Call Gaelic Park at (708) 687-9323 to reserve tickets or visit www.chicagogaelpark.org for more information.

Selections For Children's Reading Club

First Lady Patricia Blagojevich announced the February book selections for her Children's Reading Club - Dr. Seuss' The Cat in the Hat and Sharon Creech's Walk Two Moons. The club, a recommended reading list made up of books the First Lady and her daughters Amy and Annie enjoy at home, encourages parents to read with their children and engage in early development of reading skills.

The Cat in the Hat has continued to help young children learn to read for 50 years. In the book, Theodor Geisel, a.k.a. Dr. Seuss uses a vocabulary of only 236 words to tell the tale of two children, Dick and Sally, who are stuck in the house with nothing to do, until a giant cat in a hat shows up, transforming the dull day into a wild and wacky adventure. Written in 1957, this book revolutionized the way children learn to read, and made Dr. Seuss a household name.

Walk Two Moons is an award-winning novel for students at a middle school reading level. In the book, Sharon Creech weaves together two tales, one funny, one bittersweet, to create a heartwarming, compelling, and utterly moving story of love, loss, and the complexity of human emotion.

The First Lady launched the Children's Reading Club literacy initiative in March of 2005, and has selected books such as Charlotte's Web, Harriet the Spy, The Growing-up Feet, Henry Huggins and Number the Stars for the recommended list. Each month's book selection is featured on the First Lady's website, <http://www.illinois.gov/firstlady>.

The First Lady hopes the recommended list will enable parents to find books the whole family can enjoy. The club applies to all children, but specifically targets children between the ages of seven and twelve. In conjunction with the passage of the Preschool for All program, the First Lady has added new selections to her reading club, to encourage parents of younger readers to engage in early development of reading skills.

As First Lady, Patricia Blagojevich has worked tirelessly to promote initiatives that help Illinois families bring up happy, healthy, and successful children. In addition to her work with children's literacy, the First Lady spearheaded the Illinois Pediatric Vision Awareness Initiative, the first state sponsored campaign in the U.S. to specifically target Amblyopia, or 'lazy eye,' in children. Mrs. Blagojevich has also brought attention to Healthy Families Illinois, a program that helps prevent child abuse by supporting high-risk parents. In addition, she has promoted the Prevention Development Resource Project, a partnership between the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services (DCFS) and Prevent Child Abuse Illinois, and the Governor's landmark All Kids plan, which makes Illinois the only state in the nation to provide affordable, comprehensive health insurance for every uninsured child in the state.

Lifeguard Testing Applications

If you are physically fit, a confident swimmer, and a people person who would enjoy having the pool or lake as your office view, you might be a good candidate for a lifeguard.

The Chicago Park District is looking for 800 qualified applicants to fill summer lifeguard positions. Applications are now available online at www.chicagoparkdistrict.com or at the Chicago Park District's Administration Office, 541 N. Fairbanks Court. Qualified applicants will be notified of the swim test.

Returning lifeguards have an earlier deadline than new lifeguards. Following are the application deadline dates and the corresponding swim test dates:

March 2 deadline for March 17 test (for returning lifeguards only)

March 30 deadline for April 14 test (all applicants)

April 20 deadline for May 5 test (all applicants)

May 4 deadline for May 19 test (all applicants)

Successful lifeguard candidates will move on to the lifeguard training academy before being placed at one of Chicago's 32 beaches or more than 100 pools. These seasonal positions offer a competitive salary of $11.57 per hour. Applicants must be 16 years old by July 1st. For questions regarding the application process, call the Beaches and Pool Unit at (312) 742-5121.

Appoints Film Production Veteran

Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich named a new Managing Director for the Illinois Film Office to continue to advance the state's aggressive efforts in support of the film industry in Illinois. The Governor tapped Betsy Steinberg, an industry veteran with vast experience in television and filmmaking production, who will work to attract more film and television projects to Illinois, which will help bring even more jobs and revenue to the state. Steinberg replaces Brenda Sexton, who is leaving the Administration after a successful tenure, which saw the start of the film industry's revival in Illinois. The Illinois Film Office is part of the Illinois Department of Commerce and Economic Opportunity (DCEO), the Governor's lead economic development agency.

Steinberg has 18 years of experience in television and film production. She has produced, written, supervised and directed various documentaries and documentary series and produced numerous commercials. Most recently, Steinberg served as the Vice President of Development for Towers Productions, a leading and award-winning documentary and entertainment production company based in Chicago. In this capacity, she wrote and pitched new series and show ideas to leading networks, including A&E, the History Channel, PBS, National Geographic, Court TV and MSNBC, as well as establishing international co-production relationships. Steinberg will begin on Jan. 29th.

In 2003, Governor Blagojevich signed landmark legislation establishing a competitive film and television production tax credit, which he enhanced last summer by signing Senate Bill 2030. The new law offers a 20 percent credit on total Illinois production spending, which includes all salary and expense costs associated with production activities taking place within the state. This can include salaries, spending with local vendors and lodging. To qualify, minimum Illinois film and television production spending would have to be greater than $100,000 and minimum Illinois commercial production spending would have to be greater than $50,000. It also encourages the hiring of Illinois residents from economically disadvantaged areas.

Over the last several years, a cross section of Hollywood studios have delivered the production and filming of tomorrow's big screen hits to the state, including The Lake House (Warner Bros.), Stranger Than Fiction (Mandate Pictures), The Break-Up (Universal Pictures), Batman Begins (Warner Bros.), The Ice Harvest (Focus Features), Roll Bounce (20th Century Fox) and Ocean's Twelve (Warner Bros.). The last several years have also brought more than a dozen television series to the state, including the critically acclaimed Prison Break (FOX Television), the state's first dramatic television series in six years.

Catholic Charities Events

With a complete schedule mapped out for the next several months, the members of Catholic Charities Regional Advisory Board plan on a busy year. According to Linda Purkett, chairperson of the RAB, the group meets quarterly and oversees various events and services provided under the umbrella of the nonprofit agency.

"Some of our goals include working on a strategic plan for the south suburban region," Purkett says. Those goals include a comprehensive list such as training programs for employees and volunteers, as well as educational tours of Catholic Charities' programs.

"I'd like to design a program that will familiarize the public with many of the programs offered by Catholic Charities," she says. "There are those who don't know about the agency and its many services."

Feedback on current services as well as the needs in the community can only help to address where help is needed. Purkett would also like to see expansion of some of the services offered by Catholic Charities. That would include expanding the Food Pantry and Clothing Room - both located at the South Holland office, she says.

A board member for four years, Purkett is also a former employee of Catholic Charities. With 27 years of experience, Purkett knows how to get things done. She not only worked as an outreach coordinator for the Mother and Child (MAC) nutrition program, she started the program.

Through a grant from the state of Illinois Department of Agriculture, Purkett started the MAC program in 1982.

Purkett officially retired from Catholic Charities in 1999, but has remained active with various volunteer programs.

Purkett spends a great deal of her free time working for the organization and she's glad to participate.

And while Purkett discussed her history with the agency, she also has her eye on the future of the RAB.

"At our next meeting, we'll discuss the annual rites of re-dedication and our re-commitment to serve on the board," Purkett would like to focus the board members on a more cohesive path.

Additional members of the RAB include: Eugene Purkett, committee chairperson; Linda Abbott, vice-chair; Jennifer Artis, former chairperson; Rev. Kevin Birmingham; Bertrand W. Ellis, former chairman of the board; Edward Harrison; Deacon Arthur Nylen; Patrick Rodgers; Illinois Representative George Scully; Paul Gibson; and Fred Shannon, regional services representative for Catholic Charities south suburban services.

Now in its 90th year, Catholic Charities of the Archdiocese of Chicago is the largest private, nonprofit social service agency in the Midwest, annually assisting more than 895,000 families and individuals in Cook and Lake counties without regard to religious, ethnic or economic background.

Catholic Charities fulfills the Church's role in the mission of charity by providing compassionate, competent, professional services that strengthen and support individuals, families and communities.

Donnersberger Announces Retirement

Judge David R. Donnersberger has announced his retirement as a Judge in the Circuit Court of Cook County after a distinguished 17 plus year judicial career. Prior to his election as a Judge in 1989, Donnersberger had extensive litigation experience both as an Assistant State's Attorney and in private practice.

Judge Donnersberger has served in various assignments. At the time of his retirement he was serving in the Chancery Division.

Prior to that he was appointed to the Commercial Section of the Law Division. From 1996 to 2001 Donnersberger served as a Motion Call Judge and Jury Call Judge in the Law Division. During that time he was called upon to sit as a Trial Judge for Medical Malpractice and Personal Injury cases. From 1994 to 1996 he was a Trial Judge in the Domestic Relations Division.

Donnersberger also has extensive experience in settling business and commercial suits, malpractice and personal injury cases, product liability, employment, insurance, real estate and statutory interpretation matters.

Retired Chancery Judge David R. Donnersberger will be Of Counsel with Lewis & Gellen LLP. He will also be available for private mediation and arbitration services.

Clusters' Children's Clothing Sale

Clusters' Children's Spring & Summer Clothing Sale will be held on Saturday, March 10th from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at Tinley Park High School, 6111 W. 175th St. in Tinley Park.

Over 80 sellers will be selling gently used children's spring and summer clothing, size preemie to teen. Shoes, games, toys, strollers, cribs, baby supplies, maternity clothing, high chairs, swings, bikes, books, bedding, videos and more will also be available. Clusters is a not-for-profit club formed to support and assist mothers of twins, triplets and more by allowing the opportunity to share information, advice and concerns regarding our children. Clusters supports moms of multiples from Southwest Chicago and the Southwest suburbs. Clusters is a proud member of the National Organization of Mothers of Twins Clubs and Illinois Organization of Mothers of Twin Clubs.

Opposes Budget Cut

U.S. Sen. Dick Durbin (D-IL) sent a letter to Senate Finance Committee Chairman and Ranking Member, Sen. Max Baucus (D-MO) and Sen. Chuck Grassley (R-IA) urging them to help prevent Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS) from implementing their proposed plan to dramatically cut Medicaid funding.

On Jan. 18th, CMS proposed a rule that would impact more than 57 million Americans and 2 million Illinoisans who rely on the Medicaid program, as well as health care providers who deliver essential services to them. Sen. Durbin was joined by 39 other senators from both political parties in sending the letter.

Women Voters Meet

The League of Women Voters of Chicago-South Side Group will hold a meeting on Saturday, Feb. 24th at 10 a.m. at the Beverly Unitarian Church, 10244 S. Longwood Dr., to discuss the subject, Tax Increment Financing (TIF). The league is a non-partisan organization that provides informed discussion of current political, social and economic issues. All interested persons are welcome to attend. For more details, call the league office at (312) 939-5935 weekdays.

Blagojevich To Bush Administration: "Don't Cut Medicaid Funding"

Governor Rod R. Blagojevich has called on President George Bush to back down on his proposal to cut federal funding for public hospitals and other Medicaid providers around the state, and urged the President to increase financial support for states that are working to expand access to healthcare. The Governor also blasted the Bush administration for seeking significant changes to Medicaid through administrative rule and without review or approval by elected members of the U.S. Congress. Last month, the Bush administration proposed new rules that would cut funding to public hospitals and clinics that provide healthcare to the nation's most underserved communities.

Current Medicaid rules allow state and local governments that own or run hospitals to receive more money for Medicaid services, beyond what the standard Medicaid rates pay, and draw a federal match on those additional dollars. The rule proposed by the Bush administration would end that arrangement, and would dramatically limit the services that public hospitals, nursing homes, and clinics could provide. In Illinois, the cuts would mean a loss of $623 million to Illinois' public hospitals and other Medicaid providers, including up to $235 million to the Cook County Hospital System, which is already facing a serious budget shortfall that is threatening the delivery of services to Chicago's most underserved communities.

The Governor also called on President Bush to increase financial support for states that are working to expand access to healthcare. Shortly after taking office in 2003, the Governor increased the income threshold for children in KidCare from 185 percent of the Federal Poverty Level to 200 percent, and in November 2005, the Governor signed All Kids into law, making healthcare affordable for the families of every uninsured child in the state. All Kids made Illinois the first state in the nation to offer affordable, comprehensive health coverage to every uninsured child. Under Governor Blagojevich, the state has provided health coverage to more than 313,000 children who didn't have it before.

Gov. Blagojevich also worked to further expand FamilyCare by increasing the eligibility level for benefits on three occasions, from 133 percent of the federal poverty level (annual household income of $25,740 for a family of four) to 185 percent of the federal poverty level (an annual household income of $35,796 for a family of four). Under Governor Blagojevich, more than 500,000 Illinoisans now have healthcare that did not before.

Words On Poverty Report

Last week, U.S. Senator Dick Durbin (D-IL) made the following statement about the 2007 Illinois Poverty Report. The report is an annual publication of the Heartland Alliance's Mid-America Institute on Poverty. Since 2000, the Institute has published data and analysis on current poverty data, trends affecting the state's economic health, and potential strategies to eliminate poverty in Illinois:

"The annual Report on Illinois Poverty, issued by the Heartland Alliance, makes it clear that in a state as prosperous as Illinois, many hard-working families are falling further behind every year.

"As the cost of health care, education, housing and utilities continue to rise, month after month, year after year, wages don't keep pace and the number facing poverty grows. There are things we can do to cut poverty in our state and nation. We need to increase Pell grants for the first time in four years, cut student loan interest rates, raise the minimum wage, give more low-income households access to the LIHEAP program and create new rental opportunities for low-income families.

"Too many uninsured Illinoisans are one accident away from financial ruin. We need to continue efforts to cover the uninsured, starting with giving small businesses and their employees the ability to join together to find affordable health insurance.

"Hunger in Illinois is still a problem as the workers at our food pantries and meal sites can tell you. We must improve federal nutrition programs, especially for children and the elderly. The federal earned income tax credit must also be expanded. It's one of our most valuable poverty-fighting tools."

The free pamphlet can be obtained by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to: TAX Guide for Parents, c/o Family Resource Center on Disabilities, 20 E. Jackson Blvd., #300, Chicago, IL 60604.

All Points Southwest

By THOMAS E. GAVIN

It hardly seems possible that four years have passed since the last Chicago Primary elections. As a variety of incumbents and challengers work hard to impress voters, the last few days could be filled with sound or print bites specifically crafted to attack or distort a particular candidate's record or background. All Points will deliver on its promise to present the men and women whom we believe have earned their constituents trust and vote.

Chicago's incumbent Mayor Richard M. Daley has been hailed by local, regional and national leaders as one of the top mayors in the nation! Under his guidance the "City that Works" has done just that. Downtown Chicago is magnificent. New stores, theatres, restaurants and housing have provided Chicagoans with a traveler's Mecca. The city is clean, fresh, well policed and ready and willing to host global events like the 2016 Olympic Games.

Neighborhoods have improved. Streets, sidewalks, parks and libraries have been refurbished or built. Schools have improved since this mayor has taken them over. Certainly there is more improvement on the horizon and Chicagoans can be thankful that they have such a strong, loyal steward at the city helm.

Challengers Dorothy Brown, who serves capably as the clerk of the Circuit Court of Cook County and community activist William "Dock" Walls have injected a much appreciated vitality into this mayoral race. They have brought up campaign issues which should be examined and in some cases possibly embraced by the present administration. However, on balance there is no doubt in our minds that the best individual for the mayor's office in Chicago is the incumbent Mayor Richard M. Daley. He has earned four more years.

In the spirit of good government and cooperation we also appreciate former Senator and the appointed acting City Clerk Miguel del Valle as the best choice for City Clerk of Chicago. Mr. del Valle has shown that he is capable of making executive decisions, and has offered a number of improvements that will bring the clerk's office into the 21st century. Challenger Jose Cerda III has been a bright light in this campaign and we hope that his talents might find a home in the city's governmental fabric. Diane Jones is the third candidate in this race.

The 19th Ward always promises an interesting contest and this year is no exception. Incumbent 16 year Alderman Ginger Rugai is being challenged by two erstwhile candidates, Cook County prosecutor John Somerville and real estate developer Timothy Sheehan. The fact that Alderman Rugai has developed a legacy of accomplishments has been contested by both Somerville and Sheehan. Somerville is back for his second bite of the apple, having been defeated by Rugai in 2003. He has worked the past four years to develop his image, and his electability with neighborhood voters. Timothy Sheehan feels that "if the community wasn't calling for a change, I wouldn't be running."

The 19th Ward, which is comprised of Beverly, Morgan Park and Mount Greenwood, has been well represented by Alderman Ginger Rugai since 1990. She has subsequently won re-election four times ('91, '95, '99, '03) and is seeking her fifth consecutive term. Alderman Rugai has accomplished numerous tasks in her ward. She has been instrumental in acquiring funding for numerous building projects, i.e. . . Beverly Art Center, 22nd District Police Station, CFD Engine Company 121 fire station, as well as business developments on 95th Street and 111th Street. With her help, Saint Xavier University was able to continue its growth and expansion, serving the entire southwest Chicago land corridor.

Alderman Ginger Rugai has worked diligently to improve the quality of life for her community and its constituents. She has earned our endorsement and our trust.

When veteran 18th Ward Alderman Thomas Murphy stepped down so that he could become a Cook County judge, his replacement was former Greater Ashburn Planning Association executive director Lona Lane. We feel that her appointment this past December was a prudent one. Ms. Lane knows and has worked tirelessly in the community. She appreciates its problems and is fully aware of its needs. Four other candidates are seeking election. They include: community activist Joseph C. Ziegler, insurance broker Sydney Washington, former city worker Paul Stewart, and Eldora Davis.

The 18th Ward will be best represented by electing Lona Lane for a full four year term. She has our backing.

While the city's 2nd Ward is a bit out of our territory, All Points wants to remind former Southsiders who have relocated to the South Loop and West Loop that one of their own is a candidate for Alderman. Former Beverly resident Larry Doody seeks your support and vote in the 2nd Ward race. A Christ the King and De La Salle graduate, he received his Bachelor's Degree from Arizona State University, majoring in finance. Larry Doody is a licensed insurance, securities, and real estate professional. He is president of his townhome association, active in the Illinois Public Pensions Fund Association, and a member of the Board of Advisors of Mercy Hospital which is located in his ward. His message to voters is simple, "I will focus on policies, not the politics of government." Want to learn more about Larry Doody? Give him a call at (312) 957-9800.

Dashes to Deadline...Midlothian Mayor Thomas Murawski will be honored at the "43rd Annual President's Ball" on Friday, Feb. 23rd. This outstanding event will be held at the Odyssey Country Club, 19110 S. Ridgeland in Tinley Park. Cocktails 6:30 p.m., Dinner 7:30 p.m. Music will be provided by the Steve Edward Orchestra. Tickets are $60 per person and available by calling (708) 371-8757.

An outstanding lineup of Irish musicians and dancers will entertain into the wee-hours. A $20 ticket includes a corned beef buffet, beer and soft drinks and more. This year's annual event will be dedicated to the memory of one of its founders, Donna Eamer, whose tireless work and abundant energy brought this splendid event to such success. Join former students, neighbors and friends of the St. Margaret family in an evening of enjoyment and celebration. For tickets call Gene Eamer at (708) 636-8827.

Oak Forest Hospital of Cook County will host a LifeSource Blood Services Blood Donor Drive on Wednesday, Feb. 28th from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the hospital auditorium. Oak Forest Hospital, an affiliate of the Cook County Bureau of Health Services, is located at 15900 S. Cicero Ave., Oak Forest. To schedule a donor appointment or for more information call (708) 633-3600.

Telecommunications Fraud Attempts

Attorney General Lisa Madigan joined with AT&T and TDS to warn phone customers of fraudulent practices underway to change their long distance providers and increase their rates. Nearly a week since the first notification, telecommunications customers in Illinois, including several served by TDS, are still being approached by a fraudulent company offering significant reductions in long distance calling plans.

In a scam known as "Vishing," which is similar to the "Phishing" schemes online, customers are offered a 35 percent discount on their Long Distance service and are asked to "verify a few things" before receiving the discount. This could mean a customer is asked to clarify their address and phone number, give out a maiden name or other personal identifiable information.

Sometimes the caller says they are with TDS, AT&T or other established companies, which adds to the confusion.

"Consumers need to be prepared if they receive this type of phone call," said Madigan. "Do not provide any personal information over the telephone, and if you believe you have received such a call, report the call to your phone company as well as to the Attorney General's consumer protection hotline."

"Customers of telecommunications services need to be cautious. Generally, customers can tell from the level of professionalism and grammar that it is a fraudulent call. The caller is speaking quickly, and trying to confuse the customer with names and requests. And when pressed for more information such as a company Website or name they generally hang up," states Andrew Petersen, Director of Legislative Affairs and Public Relations for TDS.

In the latest fraudulent report received from a TDS customer, it was determined the caller offering the phony long distance deal was using the AT&T name as his employer. When the customer informed the imposter he had TDS for long distance, the caller stated "TDS and AT&T have merged to become the same company. This is simply not true. AT&T and TDS are not the same company," remarked Petersen.

Rob Biederman, a spokesman for AT&T Illinois, said, "AT&T has long been committed to helping consumers and businesses avoid being deceived by the unethical business practices of suspicious marketers. We join Attorney General Madigan and TDS in cautioning potential victims to be on the lookout for this type of marketing behavior."

Both business and residential customers are being targeted. It is possible that consumers other than TDS customers have been or will also be targeted.

TDS urges customers to check directly with the company by calling 1-888-CALL-TDS to validate any promotional offerings they receive. If suspicious, of a request for personal information, AT&T customers can call 1-800-924-1000 to validate any such calls.

Consumers should report any suspicious telemarketing activity to the Illinois Attorney General's Consumer Protection Hotline at 1-800-386-5438.

Testing Program Undergoes Major Change

The Illinois Environmental Protection Agency (Illinois EPA) announced changes to the Vehicle Emissions Inspection Law, that took effect Feb. 1st, and will impact thousands of motorists in the northeastern Illinois and Metro-East St. Louis regions whose vehicles are currently required to undergo regular emissions inspections.

Test notices will no longer be sent to owners of 1995 and older model vehicles that have a current vehicle emissions compliance certificate with an expiration date after January 2007. Exempt status has automatically been applied to these vehicles. Owners of 1995 and older model year vehicles that have not yet passed their most recent emissions tests or received a waiver will be required to test their vehicles. Those vehicles that have not yet passed their most recent test cycle will receive an idle exhaust test and a gas cap test. The emissions testing program will continue to test 1996 and newer model year vehicles using the On-Board Diagnostics (OBD) test. The change to the Vehicle Emissions Law was passed by the General Assembly in 2005 as P.A. 94-526, signed into law in August 2005.

1996 and newer model year vehicles registered in Cook, Lake and DuPage counties and much of Will County are subject to the program, along with the eastern third of McHenry County, the eastern half of Kane County. In the Metro-East area, much of the western half of Madison and St. Clair counties and the northern tip of Monroe County are included. Boundary lines are determined by ZIP code, not by county or municipality boundaries.

The change in the emissions testing program is a result of technological advances in vehicles being driven. Beginning with the 1996 model year, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency required manufacturers to install standardized OBD systems on all light duty vehicles. These systems continuously monitor emissions-related components for malfunctions and/or deterioration. These systems notify the driver of a problem by activating the vehicle's "Check Engine" light before the vehicle's emissions have increased significantly. They also store this information allowing the Vehicle Emissions Test Program to retrieve the data in place of performing the current tailpipe and gas cap tests.

The number of OBD-equipped vehicles is increasing every year. Currently, over 75 percent of vehicles are OBD-equipped, with this number increasing to approximately 95 percent by 2012. The Illinois EPA began phasing in OBD testing for 1996 and newer vehicles in 2002 and fully implemented OBD testing on July 1, 2004.

Motorists with questions regarding the exemption status of their vehicle can contact the Illinois EPA at (847) 758-3400 or (217) 785-7449.

"Teacher Of The Year"

The deadline for accepting nominations for the Illinois 2006-07 "Teacher of the Year" award is midnight March 1st. The announcement came from the award sponsor, Teachers' Insurance Plan, a car insurance program exclusively for members of the educational community.

Teachers, students and parents can nominate any of the State's more than 160,000 accredited teachers. Nomination forms are available online at www.teachers.com/toty. To nominate an educator, or yourself, explain in 250 words or less why this teacher should be the Teacher of the Year. Nominees will be judged on their ability to motivate students, their special talents, and their contribution to their school, students or educational community.

The award will include $1,000 to the winning teacher and a $500 grant to that teacher's school. The state winner will also be eligible for the National Award that includes a special recognition and a $2,500 travel certificate. Winners will be announced at the start of the next school year.

Celebrates Irish Culture

The Beverly Arts Center (BAC), 2407 W. 111th St., Chicago, will host family activities, music, comedy, contemporary Irish cinema and more during March. The month is highlighted by the Center's 8th annual Chicago Irish Film Festival March 2 through 7, and the 3rd annual South Side Irish St. Patrick's Day Parade Family Fest, Sunday, March 11, noon to 5 p.m.

The acclaimed Chicago Irish Film Festival opens on Friday, March 2 with the opening reception at the Center at 7 p.m., followed at 8:30 p.m. by the screening of the award-winning gothic tale "Middletown." Screenings are also scheduled on Sat., March 3 at 4 p.m. and 7:30 p.m.; Sunday, March 4 at 2 p.m. and 4 p.m.; Monday, March 5 and Tuesday, March 6 at 7:30 p.m.; and Wednesday, March 7, 7:30 p.m., followed by the festival closing reception at Cork & Kerry Tavern, 10614 S. Western Ave., Chicago. Festival passes are $65 and individual screenings $10. For a complete schedule, visit www.chicagoirishfilmfestival.com.

"The Parade celebrates family and tradition," said BAC Executive Director Mike Nix. "We're offering families a place to bring their 'wee folks' to celebrate Irish culture while enjoying Chicago's best parade." The BAC's Family Fest provides a warm, friendly place from which to watch the South Side Irish Parade, as well as entertainment, food and activities.

From its vantage point at 111th and Western, the BAC offers a terrific view from indoors or outside as the South Side Irish Parade's pipers, bands, clans and floats march down Western toward 115th Street.

Inside, families will enjoy live bands playing traditional and not so traditional Irish Music, an Irish comedian, bagpipers, Irish dancers, and movies and crafts for kids.

Admission to the Family Fest is $5 per person or $15 per family.

Start your Parade Day with green bagels! The BAC

Auxiliary is selling plain green, plain and cinnamon bagels for $10 a dozen, including cream cheese. Orders must be placed and prepaid by March 3 and picked up from the BAC on March 10.

Irish rock group Black 47 will play Thursday, March 15, 8 p.m. According to Rolling Stone, their music "explodes with declarations of gnashing street poetry punctuated with wailing uilleann pipes." The New York Times called their music "Rowdy, catchy and unrepentant." Tickets are $25 ($30 for first four rows) in advance or $30 on the day of the show.

"Tequila & Shamrocks," a comedy show featuring performances by Chicago comedians Paul Kelly and Patti Vasquez, is scheduled for St. Patrick's Day, Saturday, March 17, 8 p.m. Tickets are $20 in advance or $25 at the door.

A master storyteller and quick ad-libber, Kelly's real life humor and unique physical style have made him a favorite headliner in Chicago and across the US. Called Chicago's funniest, most intelligent comedian by Chicago Magazine, Kelly's interactive routines are filled with hilarious situations that audience members recognize and relate to.

Vasquez's show will focus on the unique issues of growing up in a family with one Irish and one Mexican parent. She brings a unique and refreshing perspective to family life, politics and relationships in routines that have been described as "humor with a heart." Vasquez is a regular at Zanies comedy club, and has performed throughout the US and Canada.

Tickets and information about all of these events is available by calling (773) 445-3838 or visiting www.beverlyartscenter.org. Beverly Arts Center is a not-for-profit, multi-cultural regional facility providing fine arts education and programming.

Open Auditions

Actors of various ethnicities, ages and backgrounds are invited to audition for a role in Moraine Valley Community College's upcoming production of "Life is a Dream" by Calderon de la Barca, translation by Nilo Cruz. Auditions will be from 6 to 10 p.m. on Monday, Feb. 26, and Tuesday, Feb. 27, in the John and Angeline Oremus Theater in the Fine and Performing Arts Center, on campus, 9000 W. College Pkwy., Palos Hills. Callbacks are scheduled for 6 to 10 p.m. on Wednesday, Feb. 28.

To audition, performers must prepare a two-minute monologue, classical preferred. Optional cold readings from the script will be available. Performances will be April 27-29 and May 4-6. To register for an audition, call Craig Rosen, director, at (708) 974-5432 or e-mail him at rosen@morainevalley.edu.

Moraine Valley is presenting the regional premiere of a new translation of "Life is a Dream" from 2003 Pulitzer Prize winner Nilo Cruz. The play is a suspenseful story of a king who is forewarned that his son will be a tyrannical ruler. Respecting the omen, he locks the prince away. Releasing and then imprisoning him again, the king convinces his son that it was all a dream and that he was never a prince. Questioning free will and fate, this classic play is an imaginative look at the ethereal nature of fantasy versus reality.

For more information about Moraine Valley's Fine and Performing Arts Center or its 2006-07 season lineup, visit www.morainevalley.edu/fpac.

For news media inquiries, call Jessica Crotty, College and Community Relations coordinator, at (708) 974-5281, or e-mail her at crotty@morainevalley.edu.

Celebrate The Pig

Pig lovers will be in hog heaven at Brookfield Zoo's annual National Pig Day celebration on Thursday, March 1st, when all take time to recognize one of the most intelligent of the farmyard animals.

Hoof it over to Children's Zoo at 10:30 a.m. as Pinto, a Yucatan miniature pig, takes center stage to show off some of his behaviors such as playing basketball and distinguishing scents. Afterwards, guests and staff will sing a rousing rendition of "Happy Pig Day" to the popular porcine as he is presented with a special bouquet of carrots.

After Pinto's fine pork-formance, everyone can join in the annual National Pig Day Parade. In celebration of the Chinese New Year - Year of the Pig - members of the Chicago Seven Star Lion Dance Group will entertain guests along the parade route with their drums, gong, and cymbals. The parade begins at 11 a.m. just outside the Children's Zoo entrance and concludes at Hamill Family Play Zoo.

At the Play Zoo from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m., youngsters can participate in pig-themes games and activities, including getting their hands dirty in a Mud-Fest; pig cards, bookmarks, and pig puppets; and playing pin-the-tail on the pig.

Everyone Is Welcome

Everyone is welcome to "Party with the Plaid" at Mother McAuley High School on Saturday, Feb. 24th. Featured that evening will be the famous dueling piano performers from Howl at the Moon.

The Party will kick off at 7 p.m. with a buffet by Chuck's Southern Comforts Café in Burbank, and a silent auction which includes nearly two dozen hand-painted, themed bar stools. Then at 8 p.m., Howl at the Moon dueling pianos will provide two hours of sing along entertainment. Special thanks to Kinsella Landscaping, Inc. for sponsoring the Howl at the Moon performers.

Party with the Plaid, open to anyone 21 and older, will be held at Mother McAuley, 3737 W. 99th St., Chicago. Tickets are $30 in advance or $35 at the door and include dinner and entertainment with a cash bar. Visit www.mothermcauley.org for tickets and information.

National Pig Day was first conceived in 1972 by two sisters, Elien Stanley of Lubbock, Texas, and Mary Lynne Rave of Beaufort, North Carolina. The day has grown to become a celebration of and appreciation for the pig's best qualities and attributes.

On Thursday, March 1st, admission to the zoo is free. In addition, admission is free to Hamill Family Play Zoo (courtesy of LaSalle Bank) and Children's Zoo. Parking is $8. Brookfield Zoo's National Pig Day celebration is sponsored in part by American Airlines.

The mission of the Chicago Zoological Society, which manages Brookfield Zoo, is to inspire conservation leadership by connecting people with wildlife and nature. Open every day of the year, the zoo is located off First Avenue between the Stevenson (I-55) and Eisenhower (I-290) expressways and is also accessible via the Tri-State Tollway (I-294), Metra commuter line, CTA, and PACE bus service. For further information about Brookfield Zoo, go online to www.BrookfieldZoo.org.

Palos Heights Actress Appears In "Fiddler On The Roof"

Andrea Prestinano, a longtime resident of Palos Heights who now resides in Chicago, was on her way to a rehearsal in Munster for her role in the ensemble of "Fiddler On The Roof." Soon she'll be on her way to another possible audition for another production.

This is the life of an actress, singer and dancer who yearns for a career in show business, according to Andrea.

"This life is also difficult for relationships for those in show business. It's not easy to meet a man who understands the demands of this profession," she said as she spoke from her car phone on the way to Munster. "I have to learn four parts for 'Fiddler' since I'm understudy to one of the main roles another actress has and the ensemble," she added.

Andrea is a graduate of Mother McAuley High School and a graduate of Ball State University with a degree in music/theater. Her parents who reside in Palos Heights are her main supporters and keep encouraging their daughter to continue forging her career. Dad is an Alderman in the Village of Palos Heights.

Andrea said she has been singing since she was six and once landed a role in the production of "Joseph and the Technicolor Overcoat" at the Chicago Theater when she was 11. "I was so proud when I was part of the chorus," she continued.

Later she would recall a role as one half of conjoined twins in a production called "Sideshow." She was Violet. "Offstage we used to walk as if we were conjoined to keep the momentum," she laughed.

As if auditioning and appearing in shows isn't enough, Andrea has a full-time job as a receptionist for a firm in the Loop. "We all need our benefits like insurance. Not to mention the flexibility of a paycheck," she added.

"Fiddler On The Roof" at Theater at the Center, 1040 Ridge Road, off I-80/94, runs through March 11th. The director is Bill Pullins. For tickets call (219) 836-3255.

Extended By Popular Demand

The Shedd Aquarium announced the extension of its popular special exhibit Lizards and the Komodo King. With nearly 2.1 million guests visiting the Shedd last year, the exhibit is one of the aquarium's best-attended special exhibits to date. One of the highlights of the special exhibit is Faust, the first-ever Komodo dragon to be on public display in Chicago.

From a snakelike glass lizard to a black-and-white tegu, and from geckos that can curl up on a quarter to monitor lizards as long as a canoe, lizards come in a wild variety of shapes and sizes. And from the tiny day gecko to the world's largest lizard, the Komodo dragon, they're all part of Shedd's must-see special exhibit, Lizards and the Komodo King, now extended through summer 2008 by popular demand.

Visit the exhibit for the first time or come back for a second or third look. Either way you'll learn why some lizards bark, eject their tails to evade predators, have "beards" and even use their tails to hang from treetops while they sleep. The basilisk can even walk on water! Enter this kingdom of lizards, where your hosts are spectacular creatures - some beautiful, some ferocious, but every one of them fascinating.

The highlight of the exhibit is certainly Faust, the Komodo dragon. Guests can come face to face with all eight feet and 145 pounds of him. With his forked tongue, unbelievable size and ability to take down water buffalo (not that we'd give him the opportunity), Faust shows guests why the Komodo is a ferocious predator. Visitors will learn about Faust's razor-sharp teeth and toxic saliva, which harbors a dangerous mix of bacteria that cause deadly infections.

The exhibit features more than 25 species of lizards. Guests can explore the world of the lizards and learn through several interactive features. For guest information, call (312) 939-2438 or visit www.shedd-aquarium.org. Advance tickets are recommended. Contact Ticketmaster at (312) 559-0200 or www.ticketmaster.com.

St. Paddy's Run/Walk

Whether Irish or not, everyone will be catching Blarney Fever on Chicago's lakefront at the 6th annual "St. Paddy's 5K Run & Walk & Leprechaun Leap" on St. Patrick's Day, Saturday, March 17th, at Diverséy Harbor. The run/walk starts at 9 a.m. and a Leprechaun Leap - a free kids' dash - starts at 10:15.

ASIAN CARP IN THE CHICAGO RIVER? At one of Duke O'Malley's recent "Let's Talk Fishing" Saturday shows, I went to hear Ed Landmehl Sr.'s seminar on the problems facing the Great Lakes, and Lake Michigan in particular.

Ed talked about the problem of invasive species, including the Asian carp that if able to bypass the electronic barrier in Romeoville could devastate the Great Lakes fishery. Ed had a DVD that showed huge schools of Asian carp leaping into the air and jumping into boats on the Illinois River.

At the end of Ed's seminar, he introduced me to a gentleman who works near the Fisk Power Plant Sub station and Crowley's Yacht Yard on the South Branch of the Chicago River near Archer Ave. and Halsted St. He has been observing that stretch of the river for years and in 2006, for the first time, noticed large silvery fish leaping up to 4 feet in the air when power boats or barges go by.

This is the same way the Asian carp act in the Illinois River: they are excited by the sound and action of propellers on passing boats, and do their aerial act. (While observing this action in May, I had a leaping silver carp hit me in the head and knock me to the bottom of the boat, I know how dangerous they can be to boaters.)

Is this all a coincidence? I hope so! We have all seen fish jumping out of the water while feeding or trying to avoid being eaten themselves, but if the Asian carp have worked their way past the barrier into the Chicago River, it is only a matter of time until they make their way through the Chicago Lock into Lake Michigan "and there goes the Great Lakes fishery."

Landmehl intends to stay on top of this situation, and if it appears the Asian carp are indeed in that stretch of the Chicago River, when the weather warms up we will take my boat and stir up the water and see if the propeller action causes the fish to jump and get some photos to determine the species of fish doing the jumping.

By the way, O'Malley's Let's Talk Fishing shows run every Saturday through March 31st. The shows feature great speakers, are free, have voluntary raffles, and are a great opportunity to pick up a few pointers on fishing locally. The show is held at the American Legion Hall, 9701 S. Kedzie Ave. in Evergreen Park, from noon until 3 p.m.

SCHOLASTIC CLAY TARGET PROGRAM: A record 8,300-plus students from 41 states were on the 2006 roster for the National Shooting Sports Foundation's Scholastic Clay Target Program. Driven by a network of volunteer coaches, the program enjoyed strong turnout for its national trap, skeet and sporting clay championships, its junior Olympic development camp and its first-ever international-style competition.

A bonus is the unexpected attraction for girls-female participation in SCTP, up 178 percent over the past two years.

HOOKED! THE HISTORY & INGENUITY OF SPORT FISHING: See the largest display ever of Dan Basore's legendary fishing collection. The exhibition features items dating from the Old Copper culture to modern day.

Lures, reels, rods, creels, stringers, ads, flies, gaffs, brochures and hooks. Visit the Buck Perry theater, make a lure of your own in the interactive lure lab and visit an old-fashioned bait shop.

This interesting exhibit runs March 3rd through Sept. 21st, 2007 at the Lake County Discovery Museum, Route 176 and Fairfield Road, Wauconda, Illinois. The cost is only $6 for adults and $2.50 for ages 4-17. For information, call (847) 968-3393 or www.LCFPD.org/Hooked.

Dan is no stranger to folks who visit the Outdoor Shows. His exhibits always attract outdoor enthusiasts, young and old. He has amassed his collection of fishing artifacts from around the world, and is a walking encyclopedia on the history of fishing tackle.

OUTDOOR CALENDAR: *Saturday, March 3rd - Chicago Chapter Safari Club International 35th Annual Hunter's Banquet - The Lexington House, Hickory Hills. Thunderbolts Group Outings Available

The Windy City Thunderbolts are once again offering a great lineup of group packages for the 2007 season. Groups of all types and sizes can have a fun night out at Hawk Ford Field by combining food, friends, and baseball.

The Miller Lite Party Deck allows groups to enjoy an all-you-can-eat pre-game picnic and one of the best vantage points for watching the game. There are three picnic buffet packages to choose from, including the Grand Slam Buffet with BBQ ribs, steak and chicken breasts. Groups will have their private, tented area on the Miller Lite Party Deck for the entire game, allowing people to socialize or watch the action.

Hawk Ford Field also has two skybox suites that can be rented on a nightly basis. Each suite accommodates 25 people and includes catered food before the game along with wait staff service during the game. There is a private, air conditioned indoor area as well as outdoor seating in both suites. The two suites can be rented out together for larger groups. There is also the smaller Party Box that fits 10-15 people and offers the same perks as the suites.

The Right Field Party Patio will make its debut in 2007. The Patio, located down the right field line, is ideal for groups of 100 or more and includes a pre-game picnic buffet. In addition to table and chair seating, groups on The Patio will have access to the box seats in adjoining Section R at no extra charge.

All groups will be recognized on the message board and public address system during the game. Groups that are just looking for tickets can receive discounts starting at 25 people. Fundraising opportunities are also available for non-profit organizations. Hawk Ford Field is handicap accessible, including all group and picnic areas.

For more information or to book an outing, call (708) 489-2255. Information about 2007 season tickets, birthday parties, and the Field of Dreams program is also available. For the latest team news, visit www.WCThunderBolts.com. The Windy City ThunderBolts are a member of the 12-team Frontier League, an independent league with teams in the Midwest.

Basketball Tournament

North American Youth Sports announced that they still have several remaining openings in their annual spring youth basketball tournament in the Northwest Indiana area at the Highland Park and Recreation Dept. Lincoln Center on March 24th and 25th.

This tournament will feature eight different brackets: 5th grade boys; 5th grade girls; 6th grade boys; 6th grade girls; 7th grade boys; 7th grade girls; 8th grade boys; and 8th grade girls. All grades are based on the grade in which a student is currently enrolled.

The entry fee is $115 and guarantees each team a minimum of two games. There will be awards presented in each bracket. The entry deadline is March 2nd.

For additional information or an entry form, call the toll-free NAYS spring tournament hotline at 1(866) 352-5915 or tournament director Keith Jones at (708) 957-0300. For information e-mail Keith at kjones@hfparks.com

Letters Of Intent

Ken Hurta, a senior catcher/pitcher/first baseman at Bremen High School in Midlothian, has signed a letter of intent to continue both his athletic and academic career at Saint Xavier University as a member of the Cougar baseball program. Hurta, a Midlothian native, is projected to be a catcher at SXU when he joins the team as a freshman for the 2008 season.

Hurta is currently coached by Brad Esposito at Bremen High School. In 2006, he was a member of the Fall Wooden Bat League All-Star South Team and considered a "Top Prospect" by the Chicago White Sox Academy Fall Exposure Camp.

"We are very excited about Ken becoming a Cougar," said Saint Xavier University head baseball coach Mike Dooley. "Our coaching staff believes he has all the tools and projects well as a catcher in the future."

Ann Godette, a senior middle distance runner at Tinley Park High School, has signed a letter of intent to continue both her athletic and academic career at St. Xavier University as a member of the Cougar women's cross country and track programs. She was coached by Lauren Page (cross country) and Michael Mongan (track) during her prep career for the Titans of Tinley Park.

Godette is the daughter of Mike and Laura Godette of Tinley Park. She plans to pursue a degree in nursing next year at SXU.

"Ann was a leader on her cross country and track teams in high school," said SXU women's cross country/track coach Lisa Ebel. "She has a phenomenal work ethic and strong team spirit. Ann will be a fabulous addition to our running program at St. Xavier."

Danielle Malloy, a senior middle/outside hitter for Tinley Park High School, has signed a letter of intent to continue both her athletic and academic career at St. Xavier University as a member of the Cougar volleyball program. She was coached by Mike Mongan during her prep career for the Titans of Tinley Park.

Malloy is the daughter of Frank and Polly Malloy of Tinley Park. She is a three-time all-conference selection in volleyball and also plays basketball and track for the Titans. In fact, she was a two-time state qualifier in the high jump. Malloy is looking to pursue a degree in mass communication next year at SXU.

"Danielle was a very decorated three-sport athlete at Tinley Park High School," said SXU head volleyball coach Bob Heersema. "I'm very excited that she chose volleyball as the sport to play during her collegiate career and I think she is going to develop into a great player."

Amanda Turek, a senior middle blocker from Oak Forest High School, has signed a letter of intent to continue her athletic and academic career at St. Xavier University as a member of the Cougar volleyball program. She was coached by Amanda Brown during her prep career for the Lady Bengals of Oak Forest.

Last season, Oak Forest finished 19-12-1 overall and 8-3 in the Blue Division of the SICA Central. Turek was also named an honorable mention all-conference selection her senior season. She is the daughter of Dave and Mary Turek of Oak Forest. Turek will play at middle blocker or on the right side next season for the Cougars. She is looking to pursue a degree in nursing next year at SXU.

"Amanda is going to develop into a force to be reckoned with," said SXU head volleyball coach Bob Heersema. "Her best years will be here at St. Xavier University. She has the ability to play either in the middle or on the right side."

Seek Host Families

The Windy City ThunderBolts are in the process of lining up host families for the upcoming 2006 season. The host family program allows members of the community to become more than just fans and play an important role in the lives of the players.

The ThunderBolts fill their roster with players from all across the country. The host family program is a way to provide the players a home away from home during the season. Players and host families form bonds with each other that last well beyond the end of the season.

Host families will need to have space available beginning in early May when players arrive for spring training. The official start date of spring training is May 9th, but players may get into town several days prior. The season will end in early to mid-September. Host families are not expected to provide housing once the season is over. The ThunderBolts play a 96-game schedule with 48 at home and 48 on the road. Due to team travel, players will be gone approximately half of the time.

Players are responsible for their own transportation, phone calls, laundry and dining. Specific arrangements can be worked out between individual players and families. Host families are expected to provide private sleeping accommodations.

In return for their hospitality, host families will receive two full season tickets per player. For more information on becoming a host family, contact Host Family Coordinator Robbin Zaffino at (708) 489-2255. Testimonials from prior host families are available for people who would like to find out more about the program.

NAIA Coach Of The Year

St. Xavier University football coach Mike Feminis was recently named the 2006 American Football Coaches Assn. Schutt Sports NAIA Coach of the Year. One of the nation's leading equipment manufacturers, Schutt Sports has honored the top college and high school coaches of the year since 1997. Now in its 10th year, the Schutt Sports awards symbolize the essence of what makes a coach successful, both on and off the field.

"This award is a testament to all the coaches on our staff who worked so hard during the year to lead us to such a great season," said Feminis. "There were a lot of successful coaches at the NAIA level last fall, so to be named the top one says a lot about our program and staff. Last season was a great one but, as always, our staff has even higher expectations for next year."

St. Xavier had an impressive 2006 campaign finishing with a 10-3 overall record and ranked No. 9 nationally. The Cougars qualified for the NAIA Championship Series for only the third time in the program's 14-year history and advanced all the way to the semi-finals before falling to No. 1 ranked University of St. Francis on Dec. 2nd marking the first time ever that St. Xavier has moved past the first round in post-season play. SXU posted big road wins in the first two rounds of the post-season defeating No. 7 Georgetown University, 42-28, and No. 4 ranked and four-time defending national champion Carroll College, 14-7.

Feminis and the remaining 2006 College and High School Coach of the Year award winners were recognized at the 2007 AFCA Convention in San Antonio, Texas on Jan. 10th.

Report On "Toxic Childhood" Released

A newly released United Nations report card on the state of children's well-being, which places the United States and the United Kingdom at the bottom of the list of 21 wealthy countries, is "just scratching the surface of a growing crisis in children's health," says the head of the U.S. Alliance for Childhood.

The UNICEF report, released on Feb. 14th, assessed the status of children on six dimensions: material well-being, health and safety, education, family and peer relationships, risky behavior, and children's own sense of well-being. The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services has criticized the report for the way it defined poverty, saying that the international comparison was "somewhat meaningless." Others have complained that UNICEF ignored the racial and ethnic diversity of the U.S. and U.K. compared with higher-ranking but more homogeneous countries.

But Joan Almon, president of the non-profit Alliance for Childhood, says the U.N. survey should be taken seriously because it confirms indications that children in the United States are experiencing increasing levels of stress and ill health. "The Alliance was formed eight years ago this month," Almon pointed out, "to try to reverse the trends that have been creating a toxic environment for our children and that we have largely ignored. We are starting to wake up to the problem of childhood obesity, but that is only the tip of the iceberg."

Other signs of "toxic childhood," says Almon, include increasing incidence of allergies, asthma, attention and hyperactivity disorders, learning disabilities, depression, bipolar disorder, autism, failure to develop frustration tolerance, and explosive anger.

The rapid increase in the diagnosis of mental disorders in young children, and the attendant growth of aggressive drug treatment for these youngsters, has many physicians and health advocates worried. In just the last decade, for example, the rate of bipolar diagnosis in children under 13 has increased almost sevenfold, the New York Times reported this week.

"The UNICEF survey didn't take into account a number of important indicators of children's health and well-being," added Almon. "One of them is the opportunity for open-ended, unstructured play, which research shows is quickly disappearing from children's lives." The American Academy of Pediatrics, in a recent clinical report, affirmed the central importance of such play for children's health and detailed various factors in modern family life that threaten play.

The amount of time that children spend in front of TV, computer and video game screens—now averaging 4.5 to 6 hours in the U.S.—is another likely indicator of declining well-being, says Almon: "Screen time is linked to obesity, attention disorders and increased aggression, and may well contribute to other health problems."

Dr. Marilyn Benoit, past president of the American Academy of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry and vice-president of the Alliance for Childhood, echoes Almon's concerns about increasing screen time. "The exponential technological advances of recent years have afforded the possibility for young children to achieve instant gratification at the touch of a button," says Dr. Benoit. "The brain of the young child is overstimulated by the new multimedia environment with its sound effects, and rapidly changing, attention grabbing images." She speculates that the rise in cases of attention deficit hyperactivity disorder is related to children's constant exposure to rapid-fire stimuli.

Between 32 and 40 percent of U.S. children age 7 and under have televisions in their bedrooms, according to Kaiser Family Foundation research. Studies link having a TV in the child's bedroom with lower standardized test scores, reports the American Medical Association.

"This UNICEF report is very important," says the Alliance's Joan Almon, "but future reports should include other factors strongly affecting children's lives today. Screen time and play time are critical indicators of children's health and well-being."

The Alliance for Childhood has published two reports, available on its web site, raising questions about the effects of advanced technologies on children's development. The Alliance also promotes the importance of play and is organizing a national campaign to restore play to early childhood education.

Name Regional Scout Council

Girl Scouts of Greater Chicago and Northwest Indiana has been chosen as the name of the Girl Scout council that will debut later this year when seven existing councils join together as one.

Hundreds of suggestions for names were received from local Girl Scouts and adult volunteers. The name Girl Scouts of Greater Chicago and Northwest Indiana ultimately was selected because it clearly identifies and is inclusive of the region to be served. The council is expected to launch in the fall.

"With one name and a shared vision, we now can focus on providing an even better Girl Scout experience for girls through improved regional services," said Alice Watrobka, volunteer co-chair of the Council Realignment Committee, a group of 21 volunteers and staff representing the seven existing councils.

"We are thrilled to announce the name in conjunction with national Girl Scout Thinking Day on Feb. 22nd. This day, often marked by ceremonies and service projects with an international theme, symbolizes each girl's place in a sisterhood of Girl Guides and Girl Scouts around the world," Watrobka said. "That's also the emphasis of our realignment. We currently have separate council names, but ultimately we are all Girl Scouts who will benefit from the pooling of our resources and expertise."

The seven legacy councils included in the realignment are: Girl Scouts of the Calumet Council, Inc.; Girl Scouts of Chicago; Drifting Dunes Girl Scout Council, Inc.; Girl Scouts - Illinois Crossroads, Inc.; Girl Scouts - Prairie Winds, Inc.; Girl Scouts of South Cook County, Inc.; and Girl Scouts of Trailways Council, Inc.

These councils include the Illinois counties of Cook, DuPage, Grundy, Kankakee, Lake and Will, and the Indiana counties of Jasper, Lake, Newton and Porter.

The South Cook County Council alone comprises 49 south and southwest suburban communities, in an area that starts at 71st St. and runs south to the Cook-Will County border. It has approximately 10,000 girl members from 5 to 17 years old as well as adult volunteers.

More than 200 Illinois and Indiana Girl Scout volunteers and staff are currently serving on task groups focused on the local realignment process.

"This regional realignment will provide us with the opportunity to improve services for girl and adult members, encourage greater efficiency, promote economical use of resources, and eliminate unnecessary competition for funding and volunteers in a region characterized by people who often live, work, commute and volunteer across county lines," said Watrobka.

Maureen Jamrock, president of the South Cook County Council, added, "We're very excited about the increased opportunities for our members, as well as all the others throughout this great metropolitan area. This will mean more options for activities, support and ways we can offer an even stronger Girl Scout program."

Salmonella Increasing

Dr. Eric E. Whitaker, state public health director, warns consumers not to eat Peter Pan and Great Value peanut butter with product code beginning with numbers "2111" purchased since May 2006. This warning comes after a multi-state outbreak of S. ser. Tennessee, a specific strain of Salmonella that may be associated with the consumption of certain brands of peanut butter.

Five people in Illinois have tested positive for a form of Salmonella called Salmonella Tennessee (S. ser. Tennessee) that matches the national outbreak pattern associated with a peanut butter recall. The onset of illness ranges from Dec. 5th to Jan. 27th. The residents, who range in age from one to 27 years, live in areas of Northeastern, Northwestern and Southeastern Illinois.

"Salmonella are a family of bacteria that can cause diarrhea, fever and stomach pain. Salmonella infections usually last 5 to 7 days. This strain of Salmonella also causes urinary tract infections. Anyone experiencing these symptoms after eating the implicated peanut butter is urged to contact their health care provider and local health department," said Dr. Whitaker.

To date, the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has linked almost 300 cases of Salmonella in 39 states to the consumption of Peter Pan brand peanut butter. As a precaution, ConAgra manufacturing facility in Georgia is recalling all Peter Pan and Great Value peanut butter beginning with code 2111 on the lid of the jar. No deaths have been linked to the outbreak.

Illinois Dept. of Public Health (IDPH) is working with local health departments and hospitals about this outbreak. Health care providers with suspect cases may submit stool specimens to the IDPH laboratory for testing after consulting with their local health department.

Lenten Series

"Taking Care of Others" is the topic for the first panel of speakers for the Pilgrim Faith Church Lenten Series on Feb. 28th. Beginning at 7:15 p.m. a panel of members including Mark Baldwin, Kay Harris and Mary O'Young will discuss how they have coped with being in a "caregiver" role for adult family members.

A light supper of soup, bread, cheese and fruit will be served at 6:30 p.m. prior to the program. The series on "Turning Points: God's Help for Life's Twists and Turns" will continue each Wednesday through March 28th, with a different aspect of dealing with life's challenges addressed each week.

A children's program for those in kindergarten through sixth grade will meet at the same time. Child care is provided for children younger than kindergarten.

The church is at 9411 S. 51st Ave. The public is invited to attend. For more information, call the church at (708) 422-4200.

Y-Me Race To Empower

The Y-Me Race to Empower Committee will hold a meeting on Saturday, March 3rd in Oak Lawn at 9 a.m. to 10:30 a.m. at Panera Bread, 10553 S. Cicero, to learn more about the Family Team Program for Y-ME's Race to Empower. Meet the Family Team Committee who will guide you through the process of building a team, introduce you to the online fundraising center and share some great ideas to help you meet your donation goal.

The event is hosted by Panera Bread, sponsors of the Family Team Program. Registration for the Information Session is encouraged. RSVP online, e-mail Kendra at Khilmer@y-me.org or call (312) 294-8565.

This year, more than $4 million will be raised so Y-ME National Breast Cancer Organization can fulfill its mission to ensure that no one faces breast cancer alone, and teams of families and friends will raise half of this total.

Y-ME doesn't raise money for research. The organization is here right now for those who don't have time to wait for the cure, with programs and services for anyone affected by breast cancer. Y-ME has the country's only 24-hour hotline staffed entirely by breast cancer survivors who are trained peer counselors with interpreters in 150 languages.

To register and for more information, visit www.y-me.org or call 877-YME-RACE.

Monmouth Representative

A local representative of Monmouth College will visit Oak Lawn High School on Monday, Feb. 26th.

Admission representative Peter Pitts will be available to meet with high school juniors and seniors beginning at 10:45 a.m. If you would like to have further information, please feel free to contact the high school guidance office.

National Leaders Talk On Affordable Healthcare

Illinois Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich met with Gov. Arnold Schwarzenegger in California to discuss an issue at the top of priority lists for leaders across the country: expanding access to affordable healthcare. Both governors have taken innovative steps to move their states forward in this critical area while progress at the federal level has been minimal in recent years. The two leaders were together at the University of California, Berkeley, to announce an unprecedented partnership with BP that will create the first of its kind Energy Bioscience Institute to be housed on the campuses of UC-Berkeley and the University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign.

There are nearly 47 million uninsured people in the United States. Approximately 1.4 million of them live in Illinois. The number of uninsured nationally rose 800,000 between 2003 and 2004 and has increased by 6 million since 2000. By 2006, the number of uninsured was rising at a rate of one million people per year.

The primary cause of the escalating numbers of uninsured people is the rising cost of health insurance. According to the Kaiser Foundation, in 2006 employer health insurance premiums increased by 7.7% - twice the rate of inflation. In 2006, workers contributed nearly $3,000 or 10 percent more for health insurance than they did in 2005. And in 2006, the annual premiums for family coverage significantly eclipsed the gross earnings for a full-time, minimum wage worker ($10,712).

Gov. Schwarzenegger has fought to change his state's healthcare system. In January the governor introduced a comprehensive plan aimed at addressing hidden healthcare costs that result in billions of dollars in higher premiums and taxes. Under his new plan, all Californians will be required to have health insurance coverage. Low-income families will also have expanded access to public programs, and working families will get financial assistance to help with the cost of coverage.

In Illinois, Gov. Blagojevich has made it his mission to make healthcare more accessible. Recently, Gov. Blagojevich announced that he plans to provide health coverage to all Illinoisans. In developing the new plan, his administration is looking at recently announced programs in states like California and Massachusetts, as well as turning to Illinois' own record of success in helping more than 500,000 more people to get access to coverage in the last four years.

At the conclusion of their meeting, the two governors pledged to continue sharing ideas and information about initiatives that could be beneficial to the sizable and diverse populations in both their states.

Diabetes Research Check-off Fund

Illinoisans can help fund research for diabetes through contributions on their 2006 Illinois income tax returns. This is the second year for the Diabetes Research Check-off Fund, signed into law by Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich in 2005. The fund is administered by the Illinois Dept. of Human Services (IDHS) which makes grants to public or private entities in Illinois for research.

Taxpayers may write in a contribution of $1 or more to fund the Illinois Individual Income Tax form or the 1040EZ form. Taxpayers filing electronically or by phone may also make tax check-off contributions. Contributions to these funds are either deducted from a tax refund or added to the taxes owed.

Money contributed to the Diabetes Research Check-off Fund will be distributed equally by IDHS to the American Diabetes Assn. (ADA) for research to develop a cure for all types of diabetes and to the Juvenile Diabetes Foundation (JDRF) to support type 1 or juvenile diabetes research.

The fund received more than $100,000 for diabetes research as a result of contributions to the 2005 check-off.

Top Ten List For Senior Citizens On Preventing Falls

Avoiding a fall is a serious challenge for senior citizens. Thirty percent of seniors living in the community fall each year. Falls represent a major source of injury and death in older people. About 10,000 older adults die each year in the United States as a result of falling.

Especially during winter, with its snow and icy conditions, falls pose a serious health threat to older persons. To help improve safety and well being for seniors, the Illinois Council on Long Term Care, an association of nursing home professionals, offers its "Top Ten List" for preventing falls.

Here are the Illinois Council's top ten recommendations for preventing falls:

Consider medication side effects - Seniors should talk with their doctors about the side effects of their medications and whether they affect coordination, balance and blood pressure. Whenever possible, doctors should reduce or eliminate those medications that increase the risk of falling, such as sedatives and tranquilizers.

Exercise regularly - A regular exercise program helps to improve strength, muscle tone, flexibility and postural stability, all crucial to fall prevention. Seniors who are inactive are at the greatest risk of falling. Consult with a doctor or physical therapist to choose those exercises that are the safest and most effective.

Wear appropriate footwear - When indoors, seniors should wear lightweight gym shoes rather than heavy, clumsy athletic shoes. All footwear should be sturdy and well fitted, with low heels and non-slip soles. Make sure that hems on pants, long skirts and robes are not torn or too long.

Use mobility aids properly - Seniors who require mobility aids such as canes, walkers and wheelchairs should learn how to use them properly and make sure that they are in good condition. Don't overload yourself with packages, as this will make these mobility aids useless.

Watch out for environmental hazards - Keep floors free from litter and clutter. Clean up spills immediately. Keep electrical cords away from walking paths. Secure small rugs and carpets with rubber, non-skid padding. Make sure that chairs are pushed up tightly against tables, and that dresser drawers are shut completely.

Make the bathroom safe - The bathroom is a prime location for falls. Install sturdy grab bars in tub and toilet areas. Put rubber matting at the bottom of the tub. Make sure bathroom floors are not wet. Consider using a shower chair if bathing is difficult.

Be extra careful during winter - During the winter, use extreme caution when walking outdoors on wet or icy pavement. Be sure to clean up any water puddles that are brought in from the outside. Keep your home warm, as prolonged exposure to cold temperatures can lead to dizziness and falls.

Think about vision issues - Seniors need twice as much illumination as younger adults to see properly. Keep rooms, hallways and stairways well lit. Use nightlights in bedrooms, bathrooms and other dim areas. Have your vision checked regularly and wear your eyeglasses as much as possible. Use color contrast in the home whenever possible. Consider marking the edge of each stair in your staircase if you have depth perception difficulties.

Take your time - Make sure to take your time and be very careful in getting from place to place. Use caution in getting up too quickly after eating, lying down or resting. Low blood pressure may cause dizziness at these times. Try to avoid lifting things, especially heavy items, as this can lead to a fall.

Make fall prevention a top priority - Falls represent a huge challenge for seniors that can lead to reduced independence, serious injury and even death. Don't wait to think about fall prevention until after it is too late. Talk with your doctor or physical therapist about fall prevention techniques. Check around your home regularly for hazards. Be aware of your surroundings and use caution at all times.

Dental Health Month

In a special ceremony held at the State Capitol on Feb. 6th, Governor Rod Blagojevich officially recognized the importance of oral care for children by proclaiming February as Children's Dental Health Month in Illinois.

Governor Blagojevich urged the public, community dentists and children's organizations to participate in upcoming activities and events. The governor stressed the importance of proper oral health care for children, noting that a healthy smile can last a lifetime.

National Children's Dental Health Month was initiated over 50 years ago in an effort to promote good oral health for children. Although things are improving, many children still do not receive proper oral care. Consider that one in ten children ages five to eleven has not visited a dentist. And most cavities in five-year-old children occur by age three. However, with daily brushing and flossing, a healthy diet and regular dental visits, a healthy smile can last a lifetime. Under Illinois law, dental exams are now required for kids in kindergarten, second and sixth grades.

For more information about Children's Dental Health Month, contact the Illinois State Dental Society at (217) 525-1406.

Conference On Blood Cancer

Patients who have been diagnosed with leukemia, lymphoma or myelodysplastic syndromes (MDS), along with families and caregivers, are invited to learn about bone marrow, stem cell and cord blood transplants at a free conference presented by the Leukemia Research Foundation, with support from The Coleman Foundation, on Saturday, March 17th from 7:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. at The Westin O'Hare, 6100 River Road in Rosemont.

A panel of leading medical experts from the Cardinal Bernardin Cancer Center at Loyola University Medical Center (Patrick Stiff, M.D., Tulio Rodriguez, M.D., and Scott Smith, M.D.), Northwestern Memorial Hospital (Jane Winter, M.D.), University of Chicago Hospital (Wendy Stock, M.D.), Rush University Medical Center (Parameswaren Venugopal, M.D.) and Jeffrey Chell, M.D., CEO of the National Marrow Donor Program, will answer questions from the audience. It's like getting a second opinion from most of Chicagoland's transplant centers - all at once. There will also be a patient panel featuring blood cancer patients and caregivers, as well as breakout sessions on lymphomas, acute leukemia, chronic leukemia/MDS, and caregivers. Free parking, continental breakfast and lunch are included.

Women's Health Issues

The Northwest Indiana Group of Y-ME Illinois, an organization dedicated to breast cancer education and support, will hold its next Open Door Meeting on Saturday, March 10th in the Doctors' Meeting Room on the west side of Community Hospital's cafeteria, 901 MacArthur Blvd. in Munster, at 10 a.m. This meeting will feature one lecture entitled "Heart Disease and Women" given by Louanne Lowrance, F.N.P., Cardiology Assn. of Northwest Indiana.

Breast cancer patients, their families and friends, and health professionals interested in the topic are welcome at Open Door Meetings. This session is free of charge and reservations are not necessary.

The mission of Y-ME is to ensure, through information, empowerment and peer support that no one faces breast cancer alone. Y-ME Illinois provides assistance to the nearly 10,000 persons newly diagnosed with breast cancer in Illinois each year, with special emphasis on the underserved populations in Illinois. Y-ME Illinois offers the following free, local programs and services: mammography screening, support groups, educational workshops for adults and teens, wig and prosthesis salons, a resource library, and ongoing advocacy and educational work throughout the state. For more information about Y-ME Illinois, call (312) 364-9071 or visit www.y-me.org/illinois.

For information about the meeting or Y-ME, call Dorothy Gillespie at (219) 838-6111.

Census Bureau Update

Beginning Feb. 18th, nearly 2,000 Census Bureau field representatives will interview about 100,000 households across the nation for the Annual Social and Economic Supplement (ASEC) to the monthly Current Population Survey (CPS).

Interviews for the CPS-ASEC, which is co-sponsored by the Bureau of Labor Statistics and the Census Bureau, will take place during the weeks of Feb. 18th, March 18th and April 15th.

Before the survey, local households selected in the nationwide sample will receive an informational letter from Census Bureau Director Louis Kincannon. Some participants are interviewed by telephone and others are interviewed in person, by field representatives who carry official identification.

Every month, Census Bureau field representatives ask selected households questions relevant to the U.S. labor force, such as their employment status, hours worked, earnings, age, sex, race, marital status, educational attainment, occupation and industry. From these answers come estimates of the unemployment rate, released monthly by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Results from the CPS-ASEC also enable the following high-profile indicators to be updated: median household income, official poverty rate and percentage of people without health insurance coverage.

"The CPS is the primary source of information for state and local governments, and businesses regarding the country's labor force," said Stanley D. Moore, director of the Census Bureau's Chicago regional office. "The ASEC collects a wide range of socioeconomic characteristics data as part of the annual CPS program."

The Census Bureau's monthly Current Population Survey - which dates from 1942 - is the longest-running household survey in the country.

Community In Focus Guest

Kevin Durkin (left), President of the Chicago Bar Association, will be a guest on Ed McElroy's (right) "Community In Focus" program which airs weekly on Comcast channel 19. The program will air on Tuesdays, Feb. 27th and March 6th at 8 p.m. on Comcast channel 19.

Durkin has been an attorney since 1980 and is currently a prominent lawyer in the field of aviation. He is a partner of the Clifford Law Firm with offices located in downtown Chicago.

Investigate Iraqi Dinar Investment Deal

The Better Business Bureau (BBB) of Chicago and Northern Illinois is fielding an increasing number of complaints from around the world with many of them from military personnel concerning an alleged investment deal involving purchasing Iraqi Dinars.

The BBB has been advised that the company is allegedly selling Iraqi currency online and not providing consumers with what they have purchased. United World Exchange, dba US Dinar, has been selling Iraqi Dinars through their website - www.usdinar.com on the premise that buying the Dinars could be a great investment if the value of the Iraqi money were to increase.

Potential investors purportedly have bought Iraqi Dinars for anywhere between several hundred to several thousand dollars with the hope that this may possibly be a lucrative investment for them if the value of the Dinars goes up. Civilian investors and service personnel are buying the Dinars but according to the complaints it appears that the company is no longer providing the Dinars nor are they giving the potential investors their money back. Additionally, United World Exchange/US Dinar has stopped responding to the BBB.

According to BBB President & CEO Steve J. Bernas, "our office has received 77 complaints concerning United World Exchange from consumers in 31 states and 5 countries including Singapore, Australia, Malaysia, Canada and Iraq." Bernas went on to say many civilian contractors and soldiers serving in Iraq have also filed complaints with the BBB from abroad and most have reported the same type of experience.

A BBB representative visited the former Chicago location however it turned out this address is for a company renting office space. No representative for United World Exchange was available on site.

"Anyone who trades in foreign currency should be an expert in that vehicle and if you are better off participating in the growth of the American economy by investing a good growth mutual fund," commented William E. Braun, Jr., CFP(r), Financial Educator/Counselor, Fleet and Family Support Center at Naval Station Great Lakes.

Bernas added, "The alleged investment opportunity is especially concerning because it involves taking advantage of all investors including our men and women who are serving in our military both overseas and in this country."

Consumers who have purchased Dinars and have not received them are urged to contact the BBB office via its website, www.chicago.bbb.org or call (312) 832.0500.

Pledges Assistance

State Treasurer Alexi Giannoulas will commit $1.7 million to low-income designated credit unions throughout Illinois to assist state residents who don't have access to services offered by traditional banking institutions.

The Treasurer's Office will offer discounted deposits of up to $100,000 to 17 low-income designated credit unions at a 3.5 percent interest rate (1.5 percent below the market rate) for a 12-month period.

Low-income credit unions serve customers who make less than 80 percent of average wage earners, a figure established by the Bureau of Labor Statistics. In Chicago, the average is adjusted by 7 percent to account for the increased cost of living. Most are low-income minorities or immigrants.

The Treasurer's Office is following the lead of other financial institutions, like LaSalle Bank and Northern Trust, which deposit money in credit unions to serve the financial needs of those who cannot get help from mainstream banks.

The local Illinois credit union eligible to receive funds from the Treasurer's Office is South Side Community Credit Union of Chicago.

Kohl's Seventh-Annual Scholarship Program

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 22, 2007 - PAGE 15

The rising cost of college tuition is no surprise, but the results of a recent study might be. A 2007 survey* of more than 1,000 parents with school-aged children revealed that nearly 95 percent of parents consider the cost of college a concern, yet more than half are currently saying no money for their child's tuition. To help cover the rising cost of tuition, 75 percent of parents hope to tap into scholarship funds as a resource with a full 70 percent counting on scholarships to cover at least 25 percent of tuition costs.

Parallel to the rising cost of tuition is the rising trend of youth volunteerism in the United States. Whether they're donating time, fundraising or organizing benefits, young adults are tackling an endless list of community service opportunities. Today's teens also find that community service is an important factor when considering college. According to the 2007 survey, more than 60 percent of parents are aware that volunteering can actually improve their likelihood for success in college admissions and 65 percent of families perform volunteer activities at least once a year.

Kohl's is determined to help with the burden of college costs and honor volunteers who help transform their communities. With this in mind, the company will reward nearly 1,600 kids nationwide for their volunteer efforts in 2007 and award more than $200,000 in scholarships through its Kohl's Kids Who Care® Scholarship Program. Nominations are accepted through March 15 at www.kohls.com.

"Our goal is to recognize the outstanding efforts of youth volunteers while offering an opportunity to help further their education," said Julie Gardner, senior vice president of marketing and chief brand officer for Kohl's. "For the past six years the Kohl's Kids Who Care® Scholarship Program has honored youth and teens in Kohl's communities nationwide. At Kohl's we believe good deeds deserve recognition and helping further a child's education seems like a great investment in all of our futures."

No stranger to volunteering, George Huff (former American Idol hopeful and Season 3 finalist) is a perfect example of how young adults can transform the face of volunteerism in America. Huff knows from personal experience the difference scholarship dollars can make for a student struggling to pay tuition. As a New Orleans native, he's also experienced firsthand the difference volunteerism can make in a community.

"Going home after Hurricane Katrina reaffirmed my belief that volunteers are truly an integral part of every community, especially in the face of devastation. Anywhere you look in our country and our world there are people in need - it's great to see young people helping others," Huff said. "We have to encourage young volunteers to keep up the good work; nominating someone you know for a Kohl's Kids Who Care scholarship is a great way to do that."

Kids aged 6 to 18 are eligible for Kids Who Care scholarships. To nominate a young volunteer in your area, visit www.kohls.com and submit his or her nomination by March 15. Two nominees from each of Kohl's 800+ stores will win a $50 Kohl's gift card. Store winners then compete for one of 170 regional scholarships worth $1,000 toward post-secondary education. Regional winners are then eligible for one of 10 national prizes worth $5,000 toward post-secondary education. National winners also receive a $1,000 donation to the charity of their choice courtesy of Kohl's. National winners will be announced in July.

Child Support Collections

Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich recently announced that Illinois' Division of Child Support Enforcement is one of the nation's leaders in child support collected through the federal Passport Denial program. In 2006, Illinois was one of only six states to collect over $1 million through Passport Denial, netting $1.14 million for Illinois children. In addition, Passport Denial collections in Illinois jumped by 43% in 2006, surpassing the national increase by 33%. The State of Illinois' child support collection reached a record-breaking high of $1.1 billion in fiscal year 2006.

The Passport Denial program, which is part of the Federal Offset Program, is designed to help states enforce delinquent child support obligations. Under the program, non-custodial parents certified by a state as having arrears exceeding $2,500 are submitted by the Federal Office of Child Support Enforcement (OCSE) to the Dept. of State (DoS) which denies them U.S. passports upon application or the use of a passport service. Illinois Dept. of Healthcare and Family Services' Dept. of Child Support Enforcement staff then work with the debtor to make arrangements to pay the child support debt in order for the passport hold to be released. In most cases, full payment of the debt is required. Illinois is one of only seven states to collect over $3 million in child support dues through the Passport Denial program since its inception in 1998.

The Passport Denial program has been effective for parents across Illinois, including Ms. Peggy Carlson of Quincy. The non-custodial parent of her child resided in Germany and needed his passport to continue to live overseas and be able to visit the United States. He paid the entire cash balance of $46,097.06 for the release of his passport.

In August, Illinois was named the 2006 Most Improved Program in the country by the National Child Support Enforcement Assn. (NCSEA). NCSEA recognizes outstanding achievement in child support enforcement and the 2006 award was given to the State of Illinois' program for its increased collections and new programs.

Queen Of Peace Celebrates Catholic Schools Week

In celebration of Catholic School's Week - Jan. 29 to Feb. 2 - Peace planned a host of activities. On Monday, the Peace community gathered for the Catholic School's Week Eucharistic Liturgy, presided over by Reverend Jesus Medina from St. Bede the Venerable Church. During the liturgy, students heard from Peace Administrator Dr. Kathleen Hanlon, who encouraged students to remember, reflect on, teach, and live out the Catholic Social Teaching of Justice in their own lives. "Youth cannot be an excuse or an obstacle to living out the Gospel values." Students were reminded always to respect the dignity and rights of all of God's creatures.

Later on in the week, parents were invited to become the students again. Peace parents spent a morning in their daughter's classes in order to see what a typical high school day is like at Peace. Parents sang in choral classes and wrote essays on Christopher Columbus in history courses.

Teachers also showed students how much they appreciate their hard work and the time, effort, and energy they put into after-school clubs. During the Catholic School's Week Award Assembly, groups ranging from honor roll students, to the Environmental Task Force, to the Amity newspaper staff were honored for their work and dedication.

"Catholic School's Week gives us a forum to celebrate the unique opportunities a Catholic, Christian, faith-based education provides for our students, families and teachers. We are able to highlight the many gifts and talents students bring to and share with the community as we re-affirm the centrality of Catholic, social teachings in the ministry of education," commented Dr. Hanlon.

Refreshments will be served after the meeting. For more information call Felix Waitches at (708) 422-4121.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor,

There are many issues that will be discussed in the next few weeks before our April election and as a candidate for 5th District Trustee, I feel that one of the most important is that an overpass is desperately needed on Central Avenue (next to the railroad crossing at 108th St.). When the gates are down, most cars do not want to wait. They frequently make a U-turn and proceed to Cook Avenue and other surrounding streets, causing significant congestion.

There have been discussions about the feasibility of an overpass for years. But nothing has been done about this problem. The residents of the Eagle Ridge subdivision do not deserve this continuous traffic headache. It is dangerous for their children and makes it difficult for residents to walk, bike or just enjoy an evening outside in the nice weather. These homeowners are paying some of the highest taxes in Oak Lawn!

If I am fortunate to be the 5th District's Trustee, I will make it a priority to work with officials from the state and county to make an overpass a reality, combining it with a reasonable traffic plan. For starters, when a train is present, no U-turns will be permitted. The light at 107th and Central Ave. will also stay red and a no turn on red will be enforced. This traffic problem is quite difficult for Eagle Ridge residents. At times it is nearly impossible to get out of one's driveway. Cars using these neighborhood streets, usually driven by outsiders, just to avoid the train. Let's put a stop to this dangerous condition.

Respectfully,
James Jelinski
Candidate for Fifth District Trustee

OAK LAWN LIBRARY NOTES

The Oak Lawn Public Library, 5300 W. 95th St., offers a writers group which meets the second and fourth Saturday of each month from 10 a.m. to noon in the Mary Nelson Room, lower level. These informal meetings consist of readings, critiques and writing exercises. Current participants vary in their interests and writing experience. The group is intended for adults high school age and up. No fee or registration is required.

The group will host two special meetings for those interested in becoming a working writer: Writing to Sell on Saturday, Feb. 24th from 1 to 3 p.m. and Screenwriting on Saturday, March 10th from 1 to 3 p.m.

Show your support for the library by participating in a Jewel-Osco "Shop & Share" fundraiser Monday through Wednesday, March 5th, 6th and 7th. Shop at any Jewel-Osco store on one of those three dates and present a "Shop & Share" identification slip to the cashier. Five percent of your total purchase, excluding tax, will be donated by Jewel-Osco to the Oak Lawn Community Library Foundation. Shop & Share slips are available in the library's lobby.

Homeschooling families can meet and work together as part of a resource and sharing group sponsored by the library, the second Thursday of each month from 10 a.m. to noon. On March 8th, participants will make spring crafts. No registration is required. All ages are welcome.

The library will host a Yu-Gi-Oh game event in the lower level meeting room from 4 to 5 p.m. on Thursday, March 8th. Students in grades three and up are invited to bring their own set of Yu-Gi-Oh cards to play with others. No registration is required.

The library hosts "Guys Read," a free monthly after school program for boys in third through fifth grade. On Tuesday, March 6th from 4 to 5 p.m., participants will share projects that they've made using "how to" books. Advance registration is required at the Youth Services Desk. This program is limited to 30 participants. Light refreshments will be provided.

Girls in third through fifth grade and their moms (grandmas, aunts, etc.) are invited to take part in a lively discussion of the children's novel "The World According to Humphrey" by Betty G. Birney at a Mother and Daughter Book Club meeting from 11 a.m. to noon on Saturday, March 10th at the library. Register in advance and pick up a copy of the book at the Youth Services Desk. There is a limit of 15 mother/daughter pairs. Light refreshments will be served.

For additional information on these Oak Lawn Public Library programs call (708) 422-4990 or visit the library's web site at www.oaklawnlibrary.org.

Harris offers a 6.99% Annual Percentage Rate ("APR") on home equity loans of $25,000 or more with a loan-to-value ratio not exceeding 85% and a loan term of 5 years. This 6.99% APR fixed rate would result in 60 monthly payments of $19.80 per $1,000 borrowed for a 5 year term, and assumes a Harris checking account with automatic monthly payments (for loan amounts of $25,000 or more without automatic payment deductions from a Harris checking account, for a 5 year term the APR would be 7.49% and would result in 60 monthly payments of $20.03 per $1,000 borrowed). Funds will be disbursed after the federally mandated cancellation period. Property must be an owner occupied 1- to 4-family residence in IL, IN, MI, and WI and is subject to no less than a second lien position on your property and is subject to our underwriting closing costs are subject to credit qualifications. Closing costs paid by Harris are limited to appraisal, flood determination, title insurance and recording fees. Costs to satisfy certain prior liens may be assessed. Consult your tax advisor regarding the deductibility of interest. This offer is non-transferable, cannot be combined with any other offer, and can be withdrawn at any time without notice. Subject to credit approval, which includes verification of application information and receipt of collateral documents. The Oak Lawn Village Board Votes To

Accept Garbage Contract

Beginning May 1st, the village of Oak Lawn will have a new waste hauler. After much discussion, the Board of Trustees voted to accept the proposal of Veolia ES Solid Waste Midwest, Inc. The contract covers the collection and disposal of refuse, recyclables and landscape waste for a period of 56 months. Included in the contract are a Senior Citizen Discount program and the use of 96 gallon totes for household refuse and a 64 gallon tote for recyclables. Seniors will pay a discounted $15.21 per month while the non-senior fee is $16.90 per month. Toters will cost $1.50 for the 96 gallon tote and $1.55 per month for the 64 gallon recycling tote.

The totes are constructed of sturdy plastic containers on wheels designed to make it easier, cleaner and more orderly on waste pick-up day. Several seniors at the meeting complained at the size of the totes saying that they would not be able to drag the totes to the curb in snow or other bad weather. They also said that they would never be able to fill one as there was only one bag of garbage a week.

It was explained that the tote will keep vermin out of the garbage as they will be covered. It is hoped that by using the totes, there would be no more open cans to deal with or plastic bags on the curb for animals to get into. The contract was set up that every household would get the totes, but Veolia would pick up all receptacles. It was also suggested that with a bigger recycling container more recycling would be done. According to the contract, the village will receive a 50 percent return on the sale of recyclables.

The board voted to accept the contract. Representatives of Veolia said that they are working to make the transition to their services as smooth as possible.

Again after much discussion, the board voted to accept an ordinance banning smoking in public places. The ordinance covers the prohibition of smoking in public places, school grounds or entrances to public places. A business which includes bars will have to obtain a permit from the village to allow smoking but they will also have to post signs and install air cleaners. Smoking will also be banned at community events.

It was brought up that Smoker benefits had been held in school gyms or other buildings in the past and that this was detrimental to school children's health since the smoke does not dissipate for months and this is not good for children with asthma. It was stated that the ordinance states 'school grounds' which means smoking would be prohibited anywhere on the property.

The ordinance will take effect on Jan. 1, 2008.

In other business, it was announced that early voting for the Consolidated Election on April 17th, 2007 will begin in the Clerk's Office on Monday, March 26th from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays through Thursday, April 12th.

It was stated that Oak Lawn will celebrate its 100th anniversary in 2009. It was suggested that the Events committee look into planning activities for a year long celebration. It was also announced that the Public Library is reopening its historical department.

Elks Hoop Shoot

The Oak Lawn Elks #2254 have again completed successfully their portion of the Elks National Hoop Shoot Contest.

The Hoop Shoot is a national yearly free throw competition, open to all children ages 8 to 13 years. Children are placed in age brackets. This year's competition was again hosted by St. Paul's Lutheran School in Oak Lawn.

Local grammar and middle school girls and boys were involved. They received 25 free throws and progressed into rounds local, division, regional and national.

Winners in the girls competition included: 8-9, first place Maryssa Vela of Worth, second Lauryn McManus of Hannum and third Harlee Whitney of Worthwoods; 10-11, first Rachel Johnson of Sward, second Cara Ewert of Worth and third Liz Iwanski of St. Paul Lutheran. Maryssa Vela won first place in District in Pontiac, IL and went downstate in February.

Winners in the boys competitions included: 8-9, first place Yazan Salameh of Sward, second Mohammad Amara of Worthwoods, and third Sean McGuire of Hannum; 10-11, first Matt Dunne of Hannum, second Dylan Woodworth of Worth and third Jordan Moeller of St. Paul Lutheran; 12-13, first Tim Small of St. Paul Lutheran

Battle Of The Bands

Shepard High School will sponsor a Battle of the Bands on Fri., March 2 to benefit an organization assisting musicians who lost facilities & equipment to Hurricane Katrina.

The concert starts at 7 p.m. in the gym. Tickets are $5 and may only be purchased at the door. Shepard is located at 13049 S. Ridgeland Ave. in Palos Heights.

Eight bands, comprised primarily of Shepard students but including students from other area schools, will compete for monetary prizes ($100 for first, $75 for second, $50 for third). In order to compete, a band must have at least one Shepard student.

All proceeds will benefit Music Rising, an organization dedicated to helping Gulf Coast musicians affected by the hurricane. For more information about the organization, visit www.musicrising.org.

Key Club, the high school affiliate of Kiwanis International, and Photo Club from Shepard serve as co-sponsors of the event. Local professional musicians will judge the contest. For more information, contact teachers Paul Machnick at (708) 371-1111, ext. 3365 or Megan Moeller at (708) 371-1111, ext. 3380.

Give Parents Online Access To Teen Driving Records

The Illinois House Drivers Education and Safety Committee approved legislation initiated by Illinois Secretary of State Jesse White and sponsored by State Rep. John D'Amico (D-Chicago) that will allow parents or guardians access to the driving records of their teenagers via the Internet.

Under the proposal (HB 518), parents and guardians can view their teenagers driving record for free online. Parents will be able to access the youth's record until he or she turns 18-years-old.

"We want to make sure parents are fully involved with their teen as they go through the Graduated Driver's Licensing process," White said. "By giving adults access to their child's driving record, we are giving them a tool to observe their teenagers driving patterns as they proceed through the program."

A successful Graduated Driver Licensing (GDL) program increases driving privileges for safe and responsible drivers in a gradual fashion, while simultaneously identifying those drivers who display dangerous or reckless driving habits. Safe teen drivers will gradually see their driving restrictions ease accordingly as they move from one stage to the next under GDL. Parental involvement is a critical component of any successful GDL program.

Motor vehicle crashes are the leading cause of death for people age 15 to 20. Several recent studies concluded comprehensive GDL programs reduce teen traffic fatalities.

White has also initiated new legislation (SB 172) that would strengthen Illinois' GDL program and enhance the safety of young, novice drivers. The bill gives teens more time to obtain valuable driving experience while under the watchful eye of a parent or guardian, limits in-car distractions, and requires the teens to earn their way from one stage to the next by avoiding traffic convictions.

Avoid AT&T's Rate Hikes

It's no surprise that AT&T plans a round of rate hikes in March, but here's something Chicago-area callers aren't likely to hear from the company's salespeople: You can avoid these increases and at the same time take a big bite out of your phone bills.

The Citizens Utility Board (CUB) negotiated an agreement with AT&T that freezes the prices on three new, low-cost "Consumer's Choice" calling plans for four years. Most calling plans are bad deals, but CUB got a reluctant AT&T to offer the "Consumer's Choice" plans. They're actually designed to save most customers money - as much as $94 million over the four years of the agreement.

So now is the time for consumers to sign up and capture these savings - before AT&T increases rates. On March 1st, the company plans to raise its monthly line charge - what it costs just to have a working phone line - by $1. Later that month, the price tag for some of its most popular calling features also will jump.

Those rate hikes will hit people on AT&T's standard, per-call rates. The others, on AT&T's bloated calling plans, such as U-Select or Economy Solutions, may be even worse off. These plans charge customers a set monthly price, say $39.99 (before taxes and surcharges!), for unlimited local calling (calls 0-15 miles away) and special features - voice mail, call waiting, etc. Unfortunately, most people don't make enough calls or want all the features to make these fixed-rate plans a good deal.

However, the "Consumer's Choice" plans match how

Discuss Rules Banning Pets

ACTHA - the Association of Condominium, Townhouse and Homeowners Associations - will offer a program on rule development and enforcement and how it relates to other governing documents as part of its all-day conference on Saturday, March 24th, at the Drury Lane in Oak Brook. Naturally, it will also discuss the art of compromise when you have owners and board on different sides of the issue.

Presenters at this program are Gabriella Comstock, an attorney with Knuckles, Keough and Moody and Christine Evans, President of Vanguard Community Management.

Three different tracks of educational programs will be offered at this event including programs for new elected board members and in-depth discussion focus groups. At the conclusion of the day, there will be an "Ask an Attorney" panel. There is also a trade show open to the public in the morning.

ACTHA is the largest statewide organization representing unit owners and board of directors for condo, townhouse, homeowner and coop associations in Illinois.

Registration is $60 for ACTHA members and $120 for non-members. Registration includes seminars, lunch, Trade Show and materials. For more information and to register visit www.actha.org or call (312) 987-1906.

most people use the phone:

Consumer's Choice Basic

Thirty local calls a month plus your line charge (what you pay just to have a phone). Additional local calls cost 6 cents each. The monthly price is $3.05 for downtown Chicago residents, $6.03 for those in Chicago's neighborhoods and near suburbs, and $9.50 throughout Illinois.

Consumer's Choice Extra

Unlimited local calling and the line charge for a monthly fee of $10 in downtown Chicago, $13 in Chicago's neighborhoods and near suburbs, and $16 throughout Illinois.

Consumer's Choice Plus

Unlimited calling, the line charge, and two features of your choice (caller ID and voice mail, for example) for a monthly fee of $16 in downtown Chicago, $19 in Chicago's neighborhoods and near suburbs, and $21 throughout Illinois.

If confusing bills and all these options make your head spin, you're not alone. Call the hotline, 1(866) 688-4282, or go to www.CitizensUtilityBoard.org, which features the Local Phone Cost-cutter, an online calculator that can help you cut your bills.

While weary consumers face rising heat and electric costs, for once they can feel good about their phone bill. So pick it up, give CUB a call, and make the "Consumer's Choice."

Risks Of Tax Refund Anticipation Loans

Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich recently launched a "Get Your Full Refund" consumer awareness campaign to alert Illinoisans about the risks of taking out high-cost refund anticipation loans (RALs). The ads, backed by the Illinois Dept. of Revenue (IDOR) and Financial and Professional Regulation (IDFPR), will warn taxpayers not to be enticed by loan offers that come with excessively high interest rates and urge taxpayers to file their taxes electronically to get their refunds fast. The governor also directed IDFPR to further protect consumers by developing legislation that for the first time in Illinois would license tax preparation companies.

"It's unfair when companies take advantage of hard-working families who want to have access to their tax refund a couple of days earlier. Families and individuals should avoid these high-cost loans. If you file your taxes electronically, you can get your refunds safely in just a few days without having to pay hundreds of dollars in interest and fees and falling into debt," said Gov. Blagojevich.

RALs usually run 7-14 days, and fees for these loans can translate into triple digit Annual Percentage Rates (APR). The public service ad campaign will alert taxpayers to the high costs of these loans and will remind consumers that they can get their Illinois tax refund directly deposited within one week if they file their tax returns electronically. Federal refunds take a few days longer, but they can be processed in about two weeks.

According to a 2007 study issued by the Consumer Federation of America and the National Consumer Law Center, a consumer could pay from $57 to $111 in order to get a RAL for a typical refund of about $2,500. The effective annual interest rate for this loan would be 85 to 170 percent. So far this year more than 1 million Illinoisans have filed their state tax returns electronically while nearly 1.2 million have filed their federal taxes electronically. The average Illinois refund is $270 while the average federal refund is over $2,000.

At the governor's direction, IDFPR is developing legislation to license tax preparation companies and tax preparers operating in Illinois. In order to obtain a license, these firms would have to demonstrate that their employees were properly trained. Tax preparers would be required to give all potential RAL borrowers a clear and easily understood explanation of the costs associated with these loans.

Lower-income workers who are eligible for the Earned Income Tax Credit are the most frequent targets for RALs. Nationwide, low-income workers comprised over 60% of all RAL borrowers. In Illinois, more than 38 percent of all EITC recipients used refund anticipation loans to receive their refunds faster.

Nearly all Illinois taxpayers can file for free on the department's web site at www.tax.illinois.gov, and many can also file their federal taxes online at www.irs.gov.

Shamrock Shuffle Closes Registration

Despite an increased participant capacity of 30,000, up from 25,000 in 2006, The LaSalle Bank Shamrock Shuffle 8K run and 5K fitness walk reached capacity, more than a month in advance of the March 25 race. Registration for both events is officially closed. A Chicago spring ritual, the 28th annual LaSalle Bank Shamrock Shuffle will launch the local running season in Grant Park on Sunday, March 25.

New to the event this year, a late registration option is available for interested participants who missed the deadline. Official charity Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center has a limited number of entries to offer.

runners interested in participating as a member of the charity team. Information on how to apply for these entries is available at the charity section of the event web site shamrockshuffle.com or by calling the charity at (800) 876-7522.

Members of Chicago Area Runners Association (CARA), the official training program of the event, also have a unique opportunity to secure a late entry into the race as a membership benefit. More information on the limited number of available entries through CARA can be found at shamrockshuffle.com or by calling CARA at (312) 666-9836.

"The excitement this race generates each spring is always inspiring," commented Executive Race Director Carey Pinkowski. "The celebratory atmosphere that comes with the return to warmer weather, the outdoors and the beautiful Chicago running paths is contagious. We invite everyone to join us in Grant Park or along the course route to get a taste of the energy that recreational running can generate."

Although registration is closed, there are numerous ways runners and non-runners can still be part of the excitement that surrounds race weekend. The public is invited to attend the free LaSalle Bank Health &

Fitness Expo at Navy Pier on Friday and Saturday, March 23-24 and to line the course on race day to cheer on the runners. Volunteer opportunities are also available at shamrockshuffle.com.

The 28th annual LaSalle Bank Shamrock Shuffle will officially usher in the Chicago running season on Sunday, March 25 with an 8K run through the city and 5K fitness walk along the lakeshore. Beginning and ending in historic Grant Park, the 8K provides an abbreviated preview of The LaSalle Bank Chicago Marathon course as it circles the city's stunning downtown architecture. 5K walkers are treated to a scenic stroll along the shores of Lake Michigan in the shadow of the magnificent city skyline. Online registration for both events closed on February 23 when the 30,000 participant capacity was reached. The entire Chicago community is invited to celebrate along the 8K course or sign up to volunteer.

Letter To The Editor

Editor:

At this, the last P&D meeting of the year, and the last for outgoing Commissioner Quinn Mucker, I wanted to take the opportunity to express my own gratitude, and the gratitude of a good number of business and property owners, to Quinn for his service on the Commission. Having been selected by Mayor Heilmann as a new member of the Commission, I find writing this somewhat awkward, but I really want it to be known we value Quinn's service.

Throughout the difficult years with the town center development - which, as we know, is still ongoing - Quinn has always been extremely sensitive to the varied and complex needs and concerns of the business and property owners on 95th Street. He has listened; he has cared; he has asked the tough questions; and he has always done so with compassion, with kindness and as a consummate gentleman.

My wife, Anne Casey, and I are now and always will be grateful to Quinn for his involvement, his awareness, his perspective and his concern; and we are not alone. Quinn Mucker has served this Commission well, and his service has helped make Oak Lawn a better place. Thank you.

Sincerely,
S/S John Eggert

State Networking Convention

Municipal, not-for-profit, park district, corporate, fraternal, church and school event planners are invited to attend the annual Illinois Special Events Network (ISEN) State Convention on Wednesday and Thursday, March 14th and 15th at the Tinley Park Convention Center, 18501 S. Harlem Ave. The annual convention draws festival and event planners from Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, Michigan and Iowa to the Chicago Southland to discuss the state of their industry.

The ISEN State Convention provides regional event planners with insight into the latest trends in festival and event planning and execution, discussions of safety and security issues, marketing, and sponsorship of festivals, fairs, carnivals and special events. Top festival and event planners from across the U.S. are featured in breakout sessions during the convention, discussing topics appealing to planners involved in all stages of festival and event planning.

On Wednesday, March 14th, an entertainment showcase will be featured on the convention's first evening, where attendees enjoy refreshments while entertainers and musicians demonstrate their craft. A vendor expo on Thursday, March 15th from 2 to 4 p.m. features providers of the elements necessary to stage a successful festival, including musical acts, pyrotechnic and amusement companies, insurance providers, audio/visual companies, portable restroom companies, and much more. There is also ample time for planners and vendors to exchange information, strategies and ideas on festival and event planning and production.

The ISEN State Convention also includes a luncheon with presentation of The Skyscraper Awards for best print brochures, advertising materials and festival T-shirt designs promoting Illinois events.

"Our state convention is recognized as one of the best educational workshops in the festivals and events industry and across the Midwest," said Kim Kisowski, Marketing Manager for the Chicago Southland Convention & Visitors Bureau (CSCVB) and organizer of the event.

Registration for the two-day ISEN State Convention on March 14th and 15th is $120 for ISEN/IFEA members and $130 for non-members. Each additional registrant from the same organization is only $115 per person for ISEN/IFEA members and $125 for non-members. One-day registration for either Wednesday or Thursday is $65 per person. Late registration (after March 7th) is an additional $10 per registrant.

A Certified Festival and Event Executive (CFEE) course will be held during the convention; go to <http://www.visitchicagosouthland.com/isen/isen.html> or call Kim Kisowski at (708) 895-8200 for additional information on the CFEE course requirements.

For those wishing to attend only the Wednesday, March 14th Entertainment Showcase or the Thursday, March 15th Vendor Expo from 2 to 4 p.m. you may register for either event at $20 per person.

Accommodations are available at the headquarters hotel, the Holiday Inn Select Tinley Park, at a special ISEN State Convention rate; call the hotel at (708) 444-1100 for reservation information.

To receive a registration brochure for the ISEN State Convention on March 14th and 15th at the Tinley Park Convention Center, call the Chicago Southland Convention & Visitors Bureau at (708) 895-8200 or toll-free at (888) 895-8233. The brochure may also be downloaded at <http://www.visitchicagosouthland.com/isen/isen.html>.

Vendors interested in displaying their product or service to the festival and event planners in attendance at the convention may contact Kim Kisowski at (708) 895-8200.

Receives National Honors

Gov. Rod R. Blagojevich announced the Illinois Strategic National Stockpile team spoke at the Local, State and Federal Public Health Preparedness Summit in Washington, D.C. Illinois' SNS team, selected from more than 300 submissions from public health officials nationwide, provided insight on the state's coordinated preparedness efforts in a presentation entitled The Amazing SNS Race: Collaboration Between State Agencies to Get to the Finish. Illinois was selected to highlight its efforts because the state has achieved the highest ranking the past three years for its plan to use local health departments to dispense medications and supplies.

The Strategic National Stockpile consists of large quantities of medications and medical supplies to protect people if there is a public health emergency (terrorist attack, flu outbreak, earthquake, etc.) severe enough to cause local and state supplies to run out. Once federal, state and local authorities agree the stockpile is needed, medications and medical supplies will be delivered to any state in the U.S. within 12 hours. Each state has plans to receive and distribute medications and medical supplies to local communities as quickly as possible. The Illinois SNS team presentation illustrated the necessity of cooperation between state agencies in the planning and implementation of the SNS, as has been rehearsed in prior emergency response exercises, including the 2006 FLUX exercise.

Hynes Lauds Ethics Reform Initiatives

Comptroller Dan Hynes applauded members of the House State Government Administration Committee for approving ethics reform initiatives that will dramatically reduce the corrupting influence of campaign contributions on the awarding of state contracts and will bring greater transparency to lobbying activities.

"We must bring an end to pay to play politics in Illinois. Taxpayers have a right to good government. We, as elected officials, have a duty to give it to them," Hynes said. "While we have many more hurdles to overcome before these reforms can become law, I applaud the committee's action as a meaningful first step."

House Bill 1, sponsored by Rep. John Fritchey, D-Chicago, advanced to the full House for consideration. The initiative prohibits business owners with more than $25,000 in state contracts from making campaign contributions to officeholders awarding those contracts, requires contractors to disclose previous contributions and prevents individuals with conflicts of interest from receiving fees from state bond sales.

"Some would say that government is fundamentally corrupt. We know that's not true. But the perception is there. It is pretty difficult to convince citizens otherwise when they see headline after headline in the newspaper detailing insider deals, questionable influences, indictments and convictions of government officials in which they've placed their trust," Hynes said in testimony before the committee. "This initiative will help eliminate improper relationships between contractors and public officials and help restore public faith in their government."

Hynes long has been a strong advocate of state government and campaign finance reforms. He issued an Executive Order two years ago requiring his office to adhere to the contract reforms.

HB1 is part of a three-pronged reform package pushed by Hynes that also strengthens laws governing lobbyists and creates a voluntary public financing system for the election of Illinois Supreme Court justices. Previous efforts to enact the proposals have stalled in the Legislature.

Hynes also testified in support of House Bill 8, sponsored by Fritchey, which tightens lobbyist laws in Illinois. It strengthens reporting requirements, creates an enforcement process to ensure compliance and closes the revolving door that currently permits individuals to leave state government employment and immediately lobby former co-workers.

Hynes called the measures "realistic, fair, understandable, enforceable measures that make one very clear, very important statement: Illinois government is not for sale." Both bills were approved by the Committee and advanced to the full House for consideration.

He also praised Fritchey, calling him a relentless advocate and thanked him for "keeping the Legislature's feet to the fire" on ethics reform. "He's not giving up and neither am I," Hynes said. "We simply cannot allow business as usual to continue in Illinois. These reforms will increase government accountability by acting as a strong deterrent to backroom deals, and they will enhance public faith in state government by increasing the public's ability to follow the money."

The reform proposals are the culmination of two years of work and are supported by the Illinois Campaign for Political Reform, Citizen Action Illinois, the Better Government Association, the Citizen Advocacy Center, Common Cause Illinois, Illinois PIRG, the League of Women Voters and Protestants for the Common Good.

Porker Of The Year

Citizens Against Government Waste (CAGW) announced the final results of its online poll for the 2006 Porker of the Year. Rep. Alan Mollohan (D-W. Va.) received 48 percent of the vote, with co-nominees Sens. Thad Cochran (R-Miss.) and Trent Lott (R-Miss.) receiving 25.5 percent, and Sen. John Thune (R-S.D.) receiving 22.9. The finalists were chosen by CAGW staff from among the 12 Porker of the Month winners for 2006.

Rep. Mollohan was named Porker of the Month in April 2006 for abusing his position on the House Appropriations Committee by securing millions of dollars in earmarks that may have benefited him personally. The New York Times (4/08/06) detailed how Rep. Mollohan directed $250 million to five nonprofit organizations that he set up. Rep. Mollohan surrendered his seat as ranking Democrat on the House Ethics Committee in April.

CAGW identified $480 million for pork projects added in the House or in conference committees, most likely by Rep. Mollohan, for his district since 1995. More than half of his earmarks have gone to the five nonprofits, most of which depend almost entirely on government money for funding. To run the organizations, Rep. Mollohan recruited friends and former aides who then contributed to his political campaigns and family foundation. Businesses that are awarded contracts through these nonprofits also make campaign contributions. The Times described the network of nonprofits as "plush," with lavish facilities and high salaries. The Canaan Valley Institute, which is building a $33 billion headquarters with earmarked funds, grew out of an effort to create a wildlife refuge near property that Rep. Mollohan owns.

The National Legal and Policy Center filed a complaint challenging the accuracy of Rep. Mollohan's financial disclosure forms. The root question is whether a spike in Rep. Mollohan's personal fortune had any connection to earmarks that he secured. On June 13, Mollohan filed two dozen corrections to his past six annual financial disclosure forms and called the errors "unintentional." The FBI is examining charges that Rep. Mollohan illegally benefited from distribution of funds.

West Virginia ranked fourth in pork per capita in CAGW's 2006 Congressional Pork Book, which identified 9,963 pork projects costing a record $29 billion in the 11 appropriations bills for fiscal 2006. Rep. Mollohan received the Molehill into a Mountain "Oinker" Award for his $2.2 million in appropriations for the MountainMade Foundation, which promotes West Virginia arts and crafts on the Internet.

Asked if he was going to change the way in which he directs federal tax dollars to the five nonprofit groups, Mollohan repeated the discredited "power of the purpose" defense of earmarks, saying he is "not going to change a bit...How else would members...get funds if they aren't able to earmark funds? (The Times West Virginian, Nov. 8). Local projects are properly the domain of the private sector, nonprofit groups, and state and local government. Federal funding should be distributed according a competitive process or formula to ensure fairness and prevent abuse by appropriators.

For directing earmarks to wasteful projects that have the effect of swelling his campaign coffers and possibly his personal wealth, for pledging to continue his pork addiction in the face of national scrutiny and an FBI investigation, and for opposing earmark reforms, Rep. Alan Mollohan is the 2006 Porker of the Year. More information on the winner and finalists can be found in the Porker of the Month Hall of Shame at www.cagw.org.

Radogno To Take Lead

State Senator Christine Radogno (R-Lemont) was recently named Republican spokesman for the Senate Human Services Committee, and will also join the Senate Executive and Public Health Committees in addition to her ongoing appointment to all three Senate Appropriations committees.

Radogno previously served on the Health and Human Services committee, and noted that she is eager to continue to work on issues that impact the public's access to health care as well as related issues, including welfare reform and senior health care coverage.

"Providing reliable, accessible health care coverage is one of the key responsibilities of state government, and I am glad I once again have the opportunity to serve the people of Illinois in this capacity," said Radogno. "The General Assembly will be considering a number of controversial and divisive health care issues in the coming months, and I look forward to working with my legislative colleagues to fashion responsible, sensible health care policies."

In addition to her duties on the Human Services and Public Health committees, Radogno will also serve for the first time on the Senate Executive Committee, which considers a wide-range of high-profile issues, including changes to the state's constitution and state government policies.

"I'm eager to begin working with the Executive Committee, which is often called to make decisions on Illinois' most pressing and contentious issues," Radogno explained. "While I have not been a member of the Executive Committee before, I am excited to learn more about different areas of state government, and have a hand in shaping a diverse range of public policy."

Additionally, Radogno will continue to serve on all three Senate Appropriations committees, which review the budgetary recommendations of the Governor. Often, lawmakers on Appropriations committees also attend hearings to receive detailed information for use in the committee's consideration of proposed state revenue allocation.

All Points Southwest

By THOMAS E. GAVIN

Those readers that follow All Points regularly should know that there were no major upsets in our Chicago readership neighborhoods. Mayor Richard M. Daley romped to his sixth consecutive term by earning 71 percent of the primary vote to defeat challengers Dorothy Brown and William "Dock" Walls. Daley's running mates, Miguel del Valle (clerk) and Stephanie Neely (city treasurer) were likewise victorious. What is most apparent is that while only about one-third of the 1.4 million registered Chicago voters cast a ballot, these same voters overwhelmingly favored Daley's strong management and leadership, as well as his vision of the city's future.

The Mayor's success encompassed all ethnic and religious borders. Daley found himself the recipient of monumental voter confidence and respect. For those naysayers who would now suggest that with a significant number of potential aldermanic changes in the City Council, Daley might have problems. All Points suggests that these doubters should revisit the history of Chicago. Bigger and better days are on Chicago's horizon. Congratulations Mayor!

At press time not all votes have been recorded. However, some local races are rather predictable. Here's a brief recap. Congratulations go to the 19th Ward's sixteen-year incumbent Alderman Ginger Rugai, who received 54 percent of the vote to defeat challengers John Somerville (28 percent) and Timothy Sheehan (18 percent).

The 18th Ward's acting alderman Lona Lane could find herself in a runoff April 17th with challenger Paul Stewart. At present Lane holds a 49 percent to 26 percent edge over Stewart. A 50 percent plus one vote plurality is necessary for a primary victory.

Congratulations to the former Secretary to the Board of Cook County Commissioners and acting 8th Ward Alderman Michelle Harris in her successful bid to maintain her seat. Alderman Harris earned nearly 60 percent of the vote in a field of eight candidates.

Likewise, hats off to incumbent 34th Ward Alderman Carrie Austin. Her huge plurality, over 70 percent, in a field of four candidates, swept her into another winning term on the City Council.

Governor Rod Blagojevich has recently signed a number of laws which will improve the safety climate for Illinois residents. The first new law is designed to protect those who attempt to help injured people from lawsuits. Last summer the Governor signed a law protecting "Good Samaritans" trained in first aid by the American Heart Assn. or the American Red Cross from being sued for helping someone who is seriously injured. This recent law signing extends the same protection to people who received such training from the National Safety Council.

Senate Bill 1195, sponsored by State Sen. John Cullerton (D-Chicago) and State Rep. John Fritchey (D-Chicago) provides that any person who is currently certified in first aid by the American Red Cross, the American Heart Assn. or the National Safety Council, and acts in good faith to administer free first aid, is protected from being sued by the people they are trying to help. The new provision is effective immediately. The law also includes an exception for willful and wanton misconduct on the part of the "Good Samaritan" in providing the emergency care.

Another program that the Governor signed included $1.9 million in no-interest loans to assist fire departments and fire protection districts, purchase fire trucks. This is the second phase of a previous loan program which assisted in the acquisition of new fire trucks for 63 fire departments across the state.

The Fire Truck Revolving Loan Program provides no-interest, 20-year loans to local fire departments and fire protection districts for fire truck purchases. The maximum loan award is $250,000.

Applications for loans are available on the OSFM (Office of the State Fire Marshal) website at www.state.il.us/osfm or upon request by mail. Applications will be accepted through April 15th. Loans are awarded on a need basis by a nine member review committee.

Congratulations to State Senator Christine Radogno (R-Lemont), who was recently recognized by the Northern Illinois Public Health Consortium (NIPHC) as a "Public Health Champion," for her ongoing efforts to promote and protect public health.

Radogno was among five Illinois lawmakers to be honored by NIPHC for health-advocacy. The organization applauded her efforts to pass legislation strengthening the State Clean Indoor Air Act, which allows municipalities and counties to enact stronger smoke-free work place laws.

The NIPHC also commended her support of legislative initiatives that increased funding to prevent West Nile Virus, as well as her sponsorship of other initiatives in the area of communicable disease control.

This year Senator Radogno is a chief co-sponsor of Senate Bill 500, the Smoke Free Illinois Act. The bi-partisan legislation calls for all indoor public places and work places in Illinois - including bars, casinos, and restaurants - to be 100 percent smoke free.

The American Red Cross will present its 2007 CPR Training Day on Saturday, March 10th at Navy Pier, Festival Hall B, 600 E. Grand Ave. in Chicago. The Chicago Chapter of American Red Cross will offer two sessions: 8 a.m. to 12 p.m. Morning Session; 1 to 5 p.m. Afternoon Session.

The chapter aims to train 2,000 people in the lifesaving skill of CPR through the course of these events. Classes will be offered in English and Spanish and the cost is only $5 (saving up to $40/person from regular rates!). Only one session is required to get registered in CPR. Pre-registration is required.

To register or volunteer visit www.chicagoreddcross.org or call 1-800-337-2338. Remember, you must pre-register.

Citizens for Jerry Bennet, the popular suburban Palos Hills mayor, will honor their leader with a cocktail party on Friday, March 9th from 7 to 10 p.m. at the Belvedere Chateau, 8055 W. 103rd St. in Palos Hills. A $40 per person donation entitles participants to beer, wine and hors d'oeuvres. A cash bar will also be available. Enjoy the company of neighbors and friends who appreciate the continued productive leadership that Mayor Jerry Bennett and his Board exhibit each year on behalf of their fellow neighbors, business owners and residents of Palos Hills.
